

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

BEQUEST OF
MRS. HARRIET J. BRADBURY
JUNE 26, 1930

"Go, little book, God send thee good passage,
And specially let this be thy prayer
Unto them all that thee will read or hear,
Where thou art wrong, after their help to call,
Thee to correct in any part or all."

PREFACE.

THE HANDBOOK FOR NORTHERN GERMANY, which is now issued for the twelfth time and corresponds with the twenty-fifth German edition, is designed to assist the traveller in planning his tour and disposing of his time to the best advantage, to render him as far as possible independent of the services of hotel-keepers, commissionnaires, and guides, and thus to enable him the more thoroughly to enjoy and appreciate the objects of interest he meets with on his tour.

The Handbook has been compiled almost entirely from the personal observation of the Editor, and most of the country described has been repeatedly explored by him with a view to procure the latest possible information; but, as many of the data in the Handbook refer to matters which are constantly undergoing alteration, he will highly appreciate any corrections or suggestions with which travellers may favour him. Those already received, which in many instances have proved most useful, he gratefully acknowledges.

THE MAPS and PLANS, on which special care has been bestowed, will, it is hoped, render material service to the traveller in planning his tour. The Plan of Berlin is divided into three sections, with a view to obviate the necessity of unfolding a large sheet of paper at every consultation, and is placed, along with a small clue-plan and two tramway-plans, in a separate cover at the end of the volume.

TIME TABLES. Information regarding trains, steamboats, and diligences is most trustworthy when obtained from local sources. The best German publications of the kind are the 'Reichs-Kursbuch', published at Berlin, and 'Hendschel's Telegraph', published at Frankfort on the Main, both of which are issued monthly in summer.

DISTANCES by road are given approximately in English miles; but in the case of mountain-excursions they are expressed by the time in which they can be accomplished by average walkers. A kilomètre is approximately = $\frac{5}{8}$ Engl. mile; 8 kil. = 5 M. HEIGHTS are given in English feet (1 Engl. ft. = 0,3048 mètre = 0,938 Parisian ft. = 0,971 Prussian ft.), and the POPULATIONS in accordance with the latest census.

HOTELS. The Editor has endeavoured to enumerate not only the first-class hotels, but also others of more modest pretensions, which may be safely selected by the 'voyageur en garçon', with little sacrifice of comfort and considerable saving of expenditure. Hotel-charges, as well as carriage-fares and fees to guides, are liable to frequent variation, and generally have a strong upward tendency; but these items, as stated in the Handbook either from the personal experience of the Editor or from data furnished by numerous correspondents, will at least afford the traveller an approximate idea of his expenditure. Those hotels which the Editor has reason to believe good of their class are distinguished by an asterisk, but he does not doubt that equal excellence may often be found in hotels that are unstarred and even unmentioned.

To hotel-proprietors, tradesmen, and others the Editor begs to intimate that a character for fair dealing and courtesy towards travellers forms the sole passport to his commendation, and that advertisements of every kind are strictly excluded from his Handbooks. Hotel-keepers are also warned against persons representing themselves as agents for Baedeker's Handbooks.

INTRODUCTION.

I. Language. Money.

LANGUAGE. A slight acquaintance with German is very desirable for travellers who purpose exploring the more remote districts of Germany, but tourists who do not deviate from the beaten track will generally find that English or French is spoken at the principal hotels and the usual resorts of strangers. If, however, they are entirely ignorant of the German language, they must be prepared occasionally to submit to the extortions practised by porters, cab-drivers, and others of a like class, which even the data furnished by the Handbook will not always enable them to avoid.

MONEY. The German mark (M.), which is nearly equivalent to the English shilling, is divided into 100 pfennigs. Banknotes of 5, 20, and 50 M. are issued by the German Imperial Bank ('Deutsche Reichsbank'), and others of 100, 500, and 1000 M. by the Imperial Bank and by twelve other banks which possess the privilege. The current gold coins are pieces of 10 ('Krone') and of 20 marks ('Doppelkrone'), the intrinsic value of which is slightly lower than that of the English half-sovereign and sovereign (1*l.* being worth about 20 M. 43 pf.). The paper currency is of the same value as the precious metals. The silver coins are pieces of 5, 3 (the old thaler or dollar), 2, 1, $\frac{1}{2}$ (50 pf.), and $\frac{1}{5}$ mark (20 pf.). In nickel there are coins of 20, 10, and 5 pfennigs, and in copper there are pieces of 2 and 1 pfennig.

English sovereigns and banknotes may be exchanged at all the principal towns in Germany, and napoleons are also favourably received (20 fr. = 16 s. = 16 M. 20 pf., and often a few pfennigs more). Those who travel with large sums should carry them in the form of circular notes (issued by the chief British and American banks), rather than in banknotes or gold, as the value of circular notes, if lost or stolen, is recoverable.

TRAVELLING EXPENSES. The expense of a tour in Northern Germany depends of course on a great variety of circumstances; but it may be stated generally that travelling in Germany is less expensive, and in some respects more comfortable, than in most other countries in Europe. The modest pedestrian, who knows something of the language, and avoids the beaten track as much as possible, may succeed in limiting his expenditure to 8-10s. per diem. Those, on the other hand, who prefer driving to walking, choose the most expensive hotels, and employ guides and commissionnaires, etc., must be prepared to expend 25-30s. daily.

II. Passports and Custom House.

Passports are now unnecessary in Germany, as in most of the other countries of Europe, but they are frequently useful in proving the identity of the traveller, in procuring admission to collections, and in obtaining delivery of registered letters. Travellers entering Germany from France through Alsace should have their passports visé'd by the German ambassador in London or Paris (fee 10s.).

Foreign Office passports may be obtained in London through Lee and Carter, 440 West Strand; E. Stanford, 55 Charing Cross; W. J. Adams, 59 Fleet Street, or C. Smith & Son, 68 Charing Cross (charge 2s.; agent's fee 1s. 6d.).

CUSTOM HOUSE formalities are now almost everywhere lenient. As a rule, however, articles purchased during the journey and not destined for personal use, should be declared at the frontier.

III. Railways.

RAILWAY TRAVELLING is less expensive in Germany than in most other parts of Europe, and the carriages are generally clean and comfortable. The second-class carriages, with spring-seats, are sometimes as good as those of the first class in England. Smoking is permitted in all the carriages, except those 'Für Nichtraucher' and the coupés for ladies. The average fares for the different classes are 13/5d., 11/5d., and 4/5d. per Engl. M. respectively. The speed seldom exceeds 25 M. per hour and as the railways are generally well organised and under the immediate supervision of government accidents are very rare. No one is admitted to the platform without either a railway-ticket or a platform-ticket (Bahnsteigkarte); the latter (10 pf.) may be obtained from the automatic machines placed for the purpose at all stations.

Travellers by the through corridor-trains, marked 'D' in the Reichs-Kursbuch, are bound to take (in addition to the railway tickets) special seat-tickets (Platzkarten; 1st or 2nd cl. 2 M., 3rd cl. 1 M.) which secure for them numbered and reserved seats.

On many lines 20-50 lbs. of luggage are free, in addition to smaller articles carried in the hand, overweight being charged for at moderate rates. In all cases the heavier luggage must be booked and a ticket procured for it. This being done, the traveller need not enquire after his luggage until he arrives at his final destination, where it will be kept in safe custody, generally gratis for the first day or two, until he presents his ticket. When, however, a frontier has to be crossed, the traveller should see his luggage cleared at the custom-house in person.

The enormous weight of the trunks used by some travellers not unfrequently inflicts serious and even lifelong injury on the hotel and railway porters who have to handle them. Travellers are therefore urged to place their heavy articles in the smaller packages and thus minimize the evil as far as possible.

Railway time throughout Germany is that of 'Mid-Europe', which is one hour in advance of Greenwich time, and 56 min. in advance of French railway time

IV. Excursions on Foot.

For a short tour a couple of flannel shirts, a pair of worsted stockings, slippers, the articles of the toilette, a light waterproof, and a stout umbrella will generally be found a sufficient equipment. Strong and well-tryed boots are essential to comfort. Heavy and complicated knapsacks should be avoided; a light pouch or game-bag is far less irksome, and its position may be shifted at pleasure. A more extensive reserve of clothing should not exceed the limits of a small portmanteau, which can be easily wielded, and may be forwarded from town to town by post.

Northern Germany comprises many attractive and picturesque districts, such as the Saxon Switzerland (R. 44), the Thuringian Forest (R. 59), the Harz (R. 63), the Giant Mountains (R. 33), and the island of Rügen (R. 24). The student of art is strongly recommended to visit Dresden and Berlin; and the archæologist will find many objects of interest in the ancient towns of Hildesheim, Brunswick, Lübeck, and Dantsic. By consulting the Handbook the traveller will discover many other interesting places, whether the object of his tour be amusement or instruction.

V. Hotels.

The first-class hotels in the principal towns and watering-places throughout Germany are generally good and somewhat expensive; but it sometimes happens that in old-fashioned hotels of unassuming exterior, particularly in places off the beaten track, the traveller finds more real comfort and much lower charges.

The average charges in the first-class hotels are as follows: bed 2½-3 M., plain breakfast 1 M., dinner 3 M., tea with meat 2 M., attendance 1 M., light 1 M., boots extra.

When the traveller remains for a week or more at a hotel, it is advisable to call for his account every two or three days, in order that erroneous insertions may be at once detected. A habit too often prevails of presenting the bill at the last moment, when mistakes or wilful impositions cannot easily be detected or rectified. Those who intend starting early in the morning should therefore ask for their bills on the previous evening.

Hotel-keepers who wish to commend their houses to British and American travellers are reminded of the desirability of providing the bedrooms with large basins, foot-baths, plenty of water, and an adequate supply of towels. Great care should be taken that the sanitary arrangements are in good order, including a strong flush of water and proper toilette-paper; and no house that is deficient in this respect can rank as first-class or receive a star of commendation, whatever may be its excellencies in other departments.

The word Pension is used in the Handbook to include board, lodging, and attendance.

English travellers often impose considerable trouble by ordering things almost unknown in German usage; and if ignorance of the language be added to want of conformity to the customs, misunderstandings and disputes are apt to ensue. The reader is therefore recommended to endeavour to adapt his requirements to the habits of the country, and to acquire if possible such a moderate proficiency in the language as to render him intelligible to the servants. For this purpose Baedeker's Conversation Dictionary (in four languages; 3 M.) will be found useful.

Valets-de-place generally charge 2-3 M for half a day, and 3½-5 M for a whole day.

VI. Post and Telegraph Offices.

Postal Rates. Ordinary Letters within Germany and Austria-Hungary, 10 pf. per 15 grammes (½ oz.) prepaid; for foreign countries 20 pf. Registered Letters 20 pf. extra. — Post Cards 5 pf., for abroad 10 pf. Reply post-cards 10 pf., for abroad 20 pf. — Printed Papers (Drucksachen), up to 50 gr. 3 pf., to 100 gr. 5 pf., to 250 gr. 10 pf.; for abroad 5 pf. per 50 grammes.

Post Office Orders (Postanweisungen) within Germany, not exceeding 100 M 20 pf., not exceeding 200 M 30 pf., not exceeding 400 M 40 pf.; for Austria-Hungary, 10 pf. per 20 M (minimum 20 pf.). The charges for post-office orders for foreign countries vary, and may be learned on application at any post-office.

Telegrams. The minimum charge for a telegram to Great Britain or Ireland is 80 pf., to any other European country 50 pf., subject to which conditions telegrams are charged at the following rates per word: Germany, Austria-Hungary, and Luxembourg 5 pf.; Belgium, Denmark, Holland, and Switzerland 10 pf.; France 12 pf.; Great Britain, Italy, Norway, and Sweden 15 pf.; Greece 30 pf.; Turkey 45 pf.; other European countries 20 pf. — Telegrams despatched and received within the same town are charged 3 pf. per word (minimum 30 pf.).

Urgent telegrams, marked D (i.e. dringend), taking precedence of all others, pay thrice the above tariff.

Abbreviations.

R. = Room; also Route.
B. = Breakfast.
D. = Dinner.
A. = Attendance.
L. = Light.
M. = English mile.
R., L. = right, left.
ft. = English foot.
omn. = omnibus.

N. = North, northern, etc.
S. = South, etc.
E. = East, etc.
W. = West, etc.
M. = Mark.
pf. = Pfennig.
hr. = hour.
min. = minute.
pens. = pension.

Objects of special interest, and hotels that are believed worthy of special commendation are denoted by asterisks.

The letter d with a date, after the name of a person, indicates the year of his death. The number of feet given after the name of a place shows its height above the sea-level. The number of miles placed before the principal places on railway-routes and high-roads generally indicates their distance from the starting-point of the route or sub-route.

North German Art.

A Historical Sketch by Professor Anton Springer.

Though many of the towns described in this Handbook have been at different epochs the scene of a varied and important artistic activity, it is yet scarcely possible to speak of North German Art as an individual development. Not only is continuity of development wanting, but anything like a uniform cultivation of the different branches of art is also conspicuously absent. Painting, for example, has been neglected to a remarkable extent in comparison with its sister arts and North Germany can boast few original pictures of importance. The art of this district is also much more recent than that of other parts of Germany. On the Rhine, and in all other parts of the country where the Roman power was established, important buildings were erected in the earliest centuries of our era, and artistic handicrafts, such as pottery and glass-making, reached a state of considerable perfection. Even the art of the Carolingian period (9th cent.), which produced works of such excellence at Aachen (Aix-la-Chapelle), the second Rome, and in the Bavarian-Alemannian region, scarcely affected Northern Germany at all. It was not till the time of the Saxon emperors (10-11th cent.) that art began to show some signs of active life in the ancestral possessions of the Othos, partly evoked by the emperors themselves and transmitted by individual princes and bishops into wider circles, extending from Westphalia to the Elbe. Our knowledge of the art of this period is, however, based more upon tradition than upon an actual inspection of the monuments themselves, and the scanty remains of buildings of the 10th and 11th centuries now extant (e.g. at Quedlinburg and Gernrode) are subjects for the antiquarian rather than for the ordinary student of art. The architectural remains of Lower Saxony dating from the 12th century are, however, more numerous, and are sufficient to prove that an independent and definite style of building had been developed there at a comparatively early period.

It is customary to apply the name of Romanesque Style to the architecture prevalent in the W. half of Christendom from the 10th century to the end of the 12th, or even (in Germany at least) till the 13th century, and we find the prototype of the churches then built in the early Christian basilicas. The common object of the churches in different lands accounts for the similarity of their exteriors. But this similarity is by no means carried to the length of identity. The principal divisions demanded by the religious services are common to all, but the detailed treatment of these parts varies very considerably. In all the space reserved for the congregation consists of a lofty and wide nave, flanked by two narrower and lower aisles, while the clergy and altar occupy a chancel or apse with a semicircular termination. In the larger churches these were supplemented by a transept, often wider than the nave, which gave a cruciform shape to the whole. The vestibule and the towers may also be regarded as constant features, though the latter vary in number and position. Assuming, then, these necessary elements of the Romanesque style, we have now to consider the features specially characteristic of the LOWER SAXON ARCHITECTURE of the 11-12th centuries.

In the first place we find no elaborate façade or richly adorned portico at the entrance. The W. end of the church consists of a lofty and plain projection flanked by towers and usually unbroken by either door or window. The ordinary entrance, especially in the case of monastic churches, was at the side and led from the cloisters or cloister-garth into the interior. The upper wall of the nave is generally supported by pillars instead of columns, though an arrangement of alternate columns and pillars is not unusual. This latter arrangement indeed is an important characteristic of lower Saxon architecture, and as it is not due to any structural necessity it must be referred to a sense of delight in rhythmical proportions, which finds additional expression in the decorations of the walls. Little or no attempt was made to produce buildings imposing through their mere mass or size, and structural skill developed but slowly. At first every part of the church, with the exception of the chancel and the crypt, was covered by a flat wooden ceiling; afterwards the aisles were also vaulted, but it was not till the 12th cent. that the vaulting of the nave became the rule. On the other hand a lively sense for the decoration of the various members of the building is noticeable at an early period. The simple cubical capitals of the columns in the earliest period soon give way to more varied shapes, elaborately adorned with foliage and carvings. The cornices, friezes, and hood-mouldings of the interior also show the prevalence of this early-developed and refined feeling for ornament, in which the buildings of lower Saxony are superior to all others on German soil. Neither the Rhenish churches, most of which are built of soft tufa, nor those of South Germany, in which the details are often singularly rude, can vie with them in this respect. Among the causes of this artistic development in North Germany may be mentioned the frequent residence of the emperors in that part of their realm, their immediate participation in the work of founding and maintaining churches, and the wealth placed at the disposal of pious founders by the rich mines of the Harz Mountains. Quedlinburg and Goslar were intimately connected with Henry the Fowler, Goslar also with Henry III., Magdeburg with Otho the Great, and Königsutter with the Emp. Lothaire, while the importance of towns like Hildesheim, Halberstadt, and Brunswick was due to the same causes. The extant edifices of the 11th cent. are, of course, few in number, and those that have retained their original appearance still fewer. Alterations and additions were frequently undertaken in the following century and many of the old buildings were replaced by entirely new ones. In spite of this, however, we are able to assert with positiveness that art was cultivated in lower Saxony in the 11th cent. with energy and success, and that the 12th cent., with its strongly marked taste for rhythmic proportions and profusion of ornament, inherited the traditions of its predecessor. Among the most important Romanesque buildings in Lower Saxony and the adjoining Thuringia are the following: the Liebfrauenkirchen at Magdeburg and Halberstadt; the ruined church of Paulinselle, in which the arches are borne by columns; the church at Wechselburg, interesting for the uniformity of its design and execution; the vestibule of the cathedral of Goslar, the only remaining fragment of the edifice; the Kaiserpfalz, also at Goslar, the most important secular work of the 11th cent.; the Wartburg, the chief secular building of the 12th cent.; the convent-church of Neuwerk; the Benedictine abbey of Königsutter; and the two Cistercian churches of Loccum, near Minden, and Riddagshausen, near Brunswick, both of which belong to the 13th century. To the latest Romanesque period belong the nave and transept of the cathedral of Naumburg, with their pointed vaulting and rich articulation of pillars.

Even the cultivated traveller is, however, apt to leave the inspection of such isolated works to the professional enthusiast. Such towns as Hildesheim and Brunswick on the other hand, contain a wealth of architectural interest, that will not fail to delight even the layman and put him in touch with the artistic spirit of mediæval Germany. The numerous Romanesque churches and quaint timbered dwellings of both towns leave the imagination an easy task in realising the every-day life of the old German burghers. Most of the timber buildings are, it is true, of recent construction; but it is well known that timber architecture is the most conservative of all and adheres most closely to the traditionary forms. The originator of the artistic activity displayed in HILDESHEIM was Bishop Bernward, who filled the episcopal office there from 993 to 1022. Several small objects of this period are preserved in the treasure-chambers of the Cathedral and the Magdalenenkirche. The bishop's principal creation, the Michaelskirche, was restored in the 12th cent. after a fire, but retains its original appearance essentially unaltered. There are a transept and apse at each end of the nave, and no fewer than six towers lend beauty and variety to the exterior. This church, like the Cathedral and St. Godehard's, shows a mixture of columns and pillars in the interior, but the abbey-church in the suburb of Moritzberg is a purely columnar basilica. While the buildings of Hildesheim thus afford us a good insight into the nature of the early Romanesque style, those of Brunswick, dating from the time of Henry the Lion, supply admirable examples of the skill in vaulting acquired at a later period. Pillars alone are here used in supporting the body of the church, but the varied form given to these, according as they merely bear the arcades or are connected with the vaulting, is a reminiscence of the former alternative system of pillar and column. The vaults are destitute of ribs and form square compartments in such a way that only each alternate pillar is a supporter of the vaulting arch. The churches themselves are all distinctly cruciform in plan and gain great dignity from the two lofty towers at the W. end. The leading examples are the Cathedral and the churches of SS. Andrew, Martin, and Catharine. The plastic ornamentation of the individual features is not as a rule so elaborate as at Hildesheim, but there are nevertheless several fine sculptured portals.

Though, as has been said above, the art of PAINTING was comparatively little developed in N. Germany, it must not be supposed that it was altogether neglected in the districts we have been considering. No traces remain of the battle-scenes that Henry the Fowler is reported to have had painted in his palace at Merseburg; but the painted wooden ceiling in St. Michael's at Hildesheim, the extensive series of mural paintings in the Cathedral of Brunswick, those of the Neuwerk church at Goslar and the Liebfrauenkirche at Halberstadt, and the relics of coloured decorations in the Westphalian Churches all seem to point to a considerable amount of practice in the use of the brush. It is now, of course, impossible to judge of the colouring of these works, but both the drawing and the composition reveal no ordinary degree of skill. In the department of SCULPTURE, however, Lower Saxony can boast of much more important productions even in the early part of the middle ages. The energy with which mining was carried on could not fail to have a great effect in developing the arts of metal-founding and metal-working in all their branches. Hildesheim contains several monuments in cast metal reaching as far back as the episcopate of Bernward, and among the treasures of art in Brunswick are the Lion in the Burg-Platz, the seven-branched candelabra and the altar of the Duchess Matilda in the cathedral, and several other works in bronze, all dating from the time of Henry the Lion. The art of sculpture in stone did not lag behind, and by the end of the 12th or beginning of the 13th cent. it attained a pitch of excellence superior to that in any other part of Germany. A significant fact is the frequent use of the easily-worked stucco instead of stone, a proof of the early desire to remove all merely material hindrances to the attainment of a high artistic ideal. Stucco reliefs are found, for example, in the Michaeliskirche at Hildesheim and the Liebfrauenkirche at Halberstadt. Among the finest sculptures in stone is justly reckoned the Tomb of Henry the Lion and his Wife in Brunswick Cathedral, executed in the beginning of the 13th cent., and other good examples are the works that adorn the pulpit at Wechselburg and the Goldene Pforte at Freiberg in the Erzgebirge. The painted wooden group of the Crucifixion, with figures of the Virgin and St. John, above the altar at Wechselburg, may also be mentioned.

The German coast-districts, especially those Slavonic territories that were not won over to Christianity and Germany until the 12th cent., make their début in art at a later period than the towns between the Harz and the Elbe. They occupy, however, an equally important position in the history of art on account of the remarkable development of their BRICK ARCHITECTURE. The first churches here were usually made of wood, sometimes of blocks of granite; and the novel material brought in its train novel forms and deviations from the traditional style. The builders had to renounce a sharply defined profile in the individual members, as well as elaborate ornamentation with the chisel. The angular replaces the round, the slender column gives way to the pillar, the rounded corners of the old capitals are bevelled off. The larger surfaces are not relieved by projecting and receding members, but by moulded bricks, which are combined in various patterns and often in varied colours. The buildings in this 'Baltic Style' are by no means deficient in size or stateliness, as bricks are admirably adapted for vaulting large spaces, while their lightness makes it easy to attain a great height. At the same time it cannot be denied that the unrelieved outline often gives a heavy and even characterless appearance to the whole. This brick architecture moved with the German colonists from the Weser to the Vistula, but it is not quite clear whether its original home was in the western coast-districts of Germany or in the Netherlands. Romanesque architecture in brick may be studied to greatest advantage in the MARK OF BRANDENBURG, the towns of which began to obtain some importance in the 12th century. Besides the Cathedral and Nicolaikirche at Brandenburg, we may instance the Cistercian Church at Dobrilugk and the Premonstratensian Church at Jerichow, foundations of the two monastic orders which did such good service in opening up the North of Germany to civilisation. Part of the nave of Lübeck Cathedral, which was erected under the influence of the buildings of Brunswick, also dates from the 12th century.

The golden era of brick architecture, however, begins with the centuries which are generally known in the history of art as the Gothic Period. But the Gothic style of the brick buildings of North Germany is something very different from the 'Cathedral Gothic' which found its way in the course of the 13th cent. from France to the Rhine and thence to Central and Southern Germany, found here side by side. It is a subject for regret that so few students of art bend their steps to the capital of Silesia.

Another group of Gothic buildings meets us in the MARK OF BRANDENBURG. Of these the two conventual churches of Lehnin and Chorin, the latter now a ruin, the names of which occur so often in the history of Brandenburg, must first be mentioned. It must not, however, be therefore supposed that Brandenburg differs from the other districts of North Germany in the prominence of its monastic buildings. The part played by religious establishments in the encouragement of mediæval art cannot be lightly spoken of, but when a fuller and freer artistic life began in these northern regions, the power and influence of the great monastic orders were already on the wane. The preaching and mendicant friars were still active and influential, but they had neither the means nor the desire to raise structures of monumental importance. The great majority of the Gothic churches of North Germany, and nearly all the most important ones, are town and parochial churches, founded by the citizens and standing in the closest connection with the civic community; and there is no doubt that this civil origin exercised a great influence upon their form and style. It explains, for instance, the modest dimensions of the choir, as it was not necessary to find room for a large number of clergy. The desire of the rich burgher to perpetuate his name accounts for the extraordinary number of private chapels in the town churches. These were often formed by continuing the buttresses through the wall into the interior and occupying the spaces thus indicated between them. The singular mixture of boldness and sobriety, exemplified in the loftiness of the nave and towers on the one hand and the sparing use of superfluous architectonic ornaments on the other, as well as the preference shown for the spacious, the airy, and the perspicuous, may also be ascribed to the dominant tendencies of the civic mind. It has long since been observed that the contrast between sacred and profane buildings is by no means so marked in North Germany as in most other countries.

Among the brick buildings of the Mark a prominent place is taken by the Church of St. Catharine in the town of Brandenburg. It is a 'Hallenkirche' and the decoration of the exterior shows the utmost richness attainable by the use of polychrome painting and coloured tiles. The buttresses, embellished with pointed gables, rosettes, and perforated work, are farther adorned with alternate bands of red and dark-green tiles. The art of sculpture was also freely laid under requisition for the adornment of the edifice, and more than 100 niches were made in the buttresses and filled with statues in terracotta. Among the other churches of the Mark in which a similar style of ornamentation is used may be mentioned the Marienkirche at Prenslau and the Cathedral and the Marienkirche at Stendal.

Turning our eyes now to the extreme north, we find that while several churches (such as those dedicated to St. Nicholas at Lüneburg and Stralsund, as well as some in Mecklenburg) are evidently imitations of the proud Marienkirche at Lübeck, yet on the whole the form with nave and aisles of equal height is predominant, especially towards the E. and in the later periods. In such churches as the Marienkirche at Dantsic, the Jacobikirche at Stettin, and the Marienkirche at Colberg, what strikes us most is their huge proportions. These are due not to an empty striving after mere size, but to the necessity of providing accommodation for the large parishes of populous towns. In architectonic decoration the churches of the BALTIC TOWNS do not vie with those of Brandenburg. The lover of art will, however, find ample satisfaction in the fine brasses that cover the tombs (the best in the cathedral of Lübeck, the Nicolaikirche of Stralsund, and the cathedral of Schwerin) and in the carved wooden altars, which are most frequent in Pomerania.

The latest variety of North-German brick buildings was developed in the territories of the TEUTONIC ORDER. Tradition and the nature of the material here caused the elaborate external decoration to sink into a subsidiary place, while a plain, massive, and severe exterior was encouraged by the fact that the churches generally formed part of the fortified posts of the knights. The only church of the Order that displays any great attempt at external embellishment is the picturesquely situated Cathedral of Frauenburg, which is also distinguished by the possession of a vestibule lavishly adorned with coloured tiles. The interiors of the churches, most of which have nave and aisles of equal height, are also simple and the pillars and piers are clumsy. The ceilings, however, often consist of elaborate net-work or fan-vaulting, formed by an increase in the number of ribs and showing not only great technical confidence but also delight in a rich play of lines. The effect of this vaulting is enhanced by the contrast with the plainness of the rest of the edifice. It is not, however, the churches that first engage our attention in the lands of the Teutonic knights; it is in the castles or palaces that the æsthetic feeling of the Order finds its most characteristic expression. Just as the members of the Order combined the characters of knight and monk, so did their palaces partake of the double character of fortress and monastery. As in conventual establishments, the buildings are grouped round a quadrangular court, surrounded by arcades, but the strong walls and towers, the moats, the turrets, and other apparatus of defence betoken military purposes, while the splendid architectonic decoration suggests the interior of a nobleman's residence. The Order had strongholds of this kind at Heilsberg, Marienvorder, Königsberg (rebuilt), Rössel, and many other places, but the most imposing of all was the Marienburg. The international relations of the Order suggest that we should find traces of foreign influence in their edifices. It is indeed not improbable that the huge mosaic relief of the Madonna on the outside of the church at the Marienburg was executed by a Venetian master, and there is a similar work in the portal of the cathedral at Marienwerder. It is more difficult to guess at the original source of the fan-tracery vaulting in the 'Remter' of the Marienburg. The 'Briefkapelle' of the Marienkirche at Lübeck has vaulting of similar construction and earlier date. It is possible that the elaborate net and star vaulting of England also had some influence upon the builders of North Germany, where alone a similar system of vaulting has been developed, but this is a question that still awaits investigation.

If the castles of E. and W. Prussia reflect the might and character of the Teutonic Order, no less do the Town Houses and Town Gates bear witness to the substantial prosperity of the North German towns. The brick buildings of the Hanseatic towns cannot, of course, vie with the hôtels-de-ville of Belgium, and even the town halls of solid stone, such as those of Brunswick and Münster, are inferior both in size and ornamentation to their Belgian prototypes, while the variety of outline afforded by the soaring clock-towers (beffrois) is entirely wanting. The two distinguishing characteristics of the secular buildings of brick are the lofty gables, rising high above the roof and often erected merely as ornaments, and the polychrome decoration. As examples may be mentioned the town-houses of Lübeck, Bremen, Hanover, Brandenburg, Stargard, and Tangermünde. The Holstenthor at Lübeck is esteemed the most important of the old town-gates, which were invariably flanked with towers, and there are similar gates at Wismar, Stendal, Tangermünde, Brandenburg, and a few other places. There is also no lack of tasteful private houses in brick (Greifswald, Stralsund, Wismar) and in the timbered style (Brunswick, Wernigerode, Halberstadt, Hanover), but the period of the Renaissance was the golden age of secular buildings, whether civic or palatial.

The name and idea of a German Renaissance have only of late years become familiar in Germany itself and are scarcely known at all beyond its bounds. The term is used to comprehend all the creations of German art between about 1520 and 1640, especially those in the domains of architecture and the industrial arts. In regard to painting the name is somewhat less strictly limited, and even Dürer and the younger Holbein are ranked among the masters of the German Renaissance. Formerly critics were satisfied with the phrase 'Old German Style' and drew no sharp line of demarcation between these neglected later works and the products of the middle ages proper. Nuremberg, for example, long enjoyed the reputation of being the model of a mediæval town, whereas, as a matter of fact, it owes its distinguishing character to the Renaissance. The old view, however, was not wholly in the wrong. For though the Italian Renaissance exercised great influence upon German art from the 16th century onwards, it is also true that the connection with the inherited native style was never wholly severed and that many elements of the Gothic manner of building were adhered to during the period of the Renaissance. The development of the German Renaissance took place somewhat as follows. As early as the beginning of the 16th century German designers, painters, and engravers became alive to the beauty of the decorative works of Italy, especially of Northern Italy, and copied columns, pilasters, friezes, and mouldings used by Italian architects. The sculptors and metal-workers gradually followed suit, and the forms of the Renaissance became familiar in bronze gratings, sepulchral monuments, and small plastic decorative works of all kinds. An early example is the Memorial Brass of Gothard Wigerinck in the Marienkirche at Lübeck, cast soon after 1518. Architecture itself at last also yielded to the new fashion. The kernel of the buildings, their articulation, and their ground-plans remained, however, unchanged. The tall and narrow gable still characterised the private house; the arrangement of the château, the grouping of the dwelling-rooms, recalls in many respects the mediæval castle. The influence of the new style was mainly confined to the ornamental details of the design, such as the cornices, friezes, pillars, and columns. Particular parts of the building, such as the portals and bay-windows, were strongly emphasized in order to display the architect's knowledge of the fashionable Italian art. The typical Italian palace, with its façade looking as if cast in a mould and with its strict harmony of proportion between the different stories and the individual details, was seldom reproduced on German soil, and when met with may be referred to direct Italian influence. It was not till about the beginning of the 17th century, when German architects had begun to prosecute their studies in Italy, that the Italian palatial style became at all familiar in Germany. The peculiar character of the German Renaissance will, perhaps, be most justly appreciated, if we mark the following distinction between it and the Italian style of building. In Italy the chief weight is laid on the design; the harmonious disposition of spaces and surfaces is striven after as the highest aim, and regularity may be called the predominant feature of Italian structures. In German buildings the connection of the individual members is often entirely extrinsic, and unity of design entirely wanting. On the other hand the execution of the details delights by its thoroughness and variety of form and makes us forget the disjointed multiplicity of the design. It is quite in harmony with this distinction that the main charm of the buildings of the German Renaissance is found in the internal decorations of the rooms, and that it was the interest in old German furniture and domestic ornaments that formed the stepping-stone to the revival of a taste for German Renaissance architecture.

In the period of the Renaissance Germany appears as a land open to influences of the most varied kinds. While the Italian style invaded it from the south and penetrated as far as Saxony and Silesia, the influence of French and Flemish works made itself equally evident in the west. This fact of itself proves that it is impossible to speak of a uniform German Renaissance, since different parts of the country received their artistic impress from entirely different quarters. In addition to this, moreover, the Renaissance itself assumed different forms according to the style prevalent in the various territories it affected, while the mere material used, whether marble or stone or brick, was by no means without influence in determining the limits imposed upon the new style. The use of columns, for example, is much more common in the districts where hewn stone is employed than in those where brick buildings are the rule. On the whole North Germany, and particularly the domain of brick architecture, may claim to have developed the Renaissance more consistently than other parts of the country, to have broken less abruptly with the past, to have adopted fewer utterly foreign elements, and to form the truest expression of a national taste in architecture. In the domain of ecclesiastical architecture the German Renaissance has naturally few proofs of its activity to show. Here much more exclusively than in princely or civic buildings its task was confined to rearrangements of interiors. Monuments, stalls, and altar utensils are the most important examples of Renaissance art in the churches. In Palaces and Châteaux the North of Germany is poorer than Silesia and Saxony. In Saxony mention must be made of the palace at Torgau, with its magnificent staircase, and the Royal Palace at Dresden, erected mainly by Kaspar Voigt under the superintendence of Hans von Dehn-Rotfelser. A short excursion from Dresden enables us to compare this structure of the Renaissance with the earlier Gothic castle of Meissen. In Silesia the handsome châteaux at Brieg (1553) and Liegnitz take the first place. We must, however, remember that these edifices were mainly erected by foreign architects and must therefore be regarded rather as examples of the far-reaching Italian style than as creations of Teutonic art. The foremost place among the secular buildings of the period in the Baltic lands is due to the Fürstenhof at Wismar. The newer wing dates from the second half of the 16th century, and the decorations on its exterior face are held to be in a different style from those turned towards the inner court. A similar effective combination of stone and brick, borrowed from Dutch models, appears in other parts of North Germany, but the terracotta friezes and medallions of Wismar are unrivalled.

The whole tenor of the history of North Germany makes us turn naturally to the Municipal Buildings as the choicest results of the Renaissance as well as of the Gothic period, in this part of the world. And our expectations are fully realised. The Renaissance may be more picturesque and show greater variety in South and West Germany, but in the North it appears in such solid array that, until quite lately, whole rows of streets and whole quarters of the town showed an unbroken series of Renaissance façades. Among civic buildings the palm must be given to the Rathhaus of Lübeck. A colonnade, supported by polygonal pillars, has been placed in front of the building. The arches are slightly flattened, a not unusual feature in Renaissance buildings. The double windows are separated by pilasters, alternately ending in an Ionic capital and in a herma, and three handsome gables, flanked with volutes and small obelisks, surmount the whole. The handsome flight of steps ascending from the street is supported by four pillars, and each of the square stones of which it consists is adorned with stellar ornamentation. The internal arrangements of some of the rooms are also most interesting, and the wooden panelling and marble chimney-piece of the 'Kriegsstube' are excellent examples of the success with which the artistic handicrafts were then plied. A new colonnaded vestibule, with Gothic vaulting but Doric columns, was added in the late Renaissance period to the Rathhaus of Bremen. Above the vestibule is a balcony enclosed by an artistic balustrade and interrupted in the middle by a lofty gable. The plastic decorations skilfully conceal the lack of proportion in the outline. Other town-houses of architectural significance are those at Paderborn, Lüneburg, Emden, Dantsic, Brieg, and Neisse. With these may be coupled the arsenals of Dantsic and Lübeck, the warehouses of Bremen, and the guild-houses of Brunswick. It is, of course, useless to attempt a catalogue of the interesting Private Houses, and even a detailed description could convey no adequate conception of their singularly homelike charms. It is often only a single feature, such as a bow-window or an elaborate doorway, a tasteful frieze or an ornamented gable, that delights the eye of the connoisseur. The lighting and surroundings enhance the effect, a historical interest is added to the æsthetic, and the glamour of the past is shed on the realities of the present. A walk through the streets of a North German town is indeed a feast of varied and permanent enjoyment for the traveller of refined taste in art. The Merchant Princes of Dantsic, redeemed from provincialism and incited to luxury and display by their far-reaching commercial relations, expended a special amount of attention on the internal comfort and external embellishment of their houses. They selected the most costly kinds of building stone, such as were seldom used for ecclesiastical edifices, and took care that the pilasters between the windows, the spaces between the different stories, and the balustrades in front of the gable were all profusely adorned with reliefs cut in the stone and reproducing the antique models of capital and friezes. It almost seems as if these luxury-loving merchants had been affected by the light and splendour-loving character of their Slavonic neighbours, whose partiality for the Renaissance style is marked. One peculiar feature in these houses, significant of the easy comfortable life enjoyed by their inmates, is the so-called 'Beischläge', or raised landings surrounded with balustrades, in which the family could sit aloof from the tumult of the street but yet in sight of all that was going on and within easy reach of neighbourly intercourse. The private dwellings of Lübeck and the other western Hanseatic towns are much soberer and less pretentious. Their solid magnificence is reserved for the interior (e.g. the house of the Kaufleute Compagnie at Lübeck), while the brick façades, apart from the doorways, are perfectly simple and invariably surmounted with the traditional corbie-stepped gable. The inland towns of Lower Saxony, at a distance from the main arteries of modern traffic, have been more conservative in domestic architecture as in manners and customs. TIMBER ARCHITECTURE is found at its best in the towns last referred to. The construction is intimately connected with that of the Gothic period, almost the only marked differences being a diminution of the upper stories and a free use of Renaissance ornaments (masks, consols, volutes, shells, fans, stars, etc.). In these buildings the frame or skeleton consists of wooden beams and posts while the intervening spaces are filled up with clay or brick-work. The main uprights stand upon wooden sills or horizontal beams and are connected by tie-beams and stiffened by shorter cross or diagonal ties. The blank wall-spaces afforded ample opportunity for ornamentation, and the ends of the tie-beams, the braces, the sills, and other parts of the wooden frame-work were freely enriched with carvings. The good examples of timber architecture in North Germany are too many to enumerate. Among the most important of the earlier period are the Rathhaus of Wernigerode, the Rathskeller of Halberstadt, and the Alte Wage of Brunswick. To the Renaissance period proper belong a great number of interesting structures at Halberstadt, Goslar, Brunswick, Hanover, Hamel, Celle, Höxter, Stolberg, and Hildesheim. The Knochenhauer Amtshaus at Hildesheim, dating from 1529, is a veritable gem of timber architecture. Above the five stories of the building proper rises a lofty roof, itself containing several other stories. The façade is covered with figures and other ornamentation, in which painting and wood-carving vie with each other. Here and there a few motives are visible that would be more allowable in a Gothic building (such as the frieze of oak-leaves), but on the whole the designs of the 'putti', the garlands, the small columns for candelabra, and the doorway evince a clear conception of the Renaissance ideal and an astonishing liveliness of fancy. The figures are treated with a good deal of humour, a characteristic which we find frequently recurring in the paintings and mottoes so freely used in the timber buildings of Lower Saxony. The prominent place assigned to WOOD CARVING in the timber style of architecture gave a great momentum to the development of this art, which is always a natural growth in Alpine and coast districts. Shepherds and sailors alike find occupation and amusement for the idle months of winter in carving objects in wood. Among the numerous wood-carvers thus created by opportunity there must of course be some whose talents enable them to advance to higher work than the making of toys and pipes. A stroll through the Thaulow Museum in Kiel is enough to show what astonishing results in artistic cabinet-making can be produced even in a limited district like Holstein. The finest specimen of what may be called monumental wood-carving is the Altar of the Passion in the cathedral of Schleswig, executed by Hans Brüggemann in 1521 after compositions by Albrecht Dürer. The art of WORKING IN METAL, particularly in brass, was also zealously cultivated, and the candelabra, cups, flagons, plates, and grilles of cast or hammered and embossed metal found in the old Hanseatic towns prove how conspicuous a place was taken by objects of this kind in the domestic and ecclesiastical interiors of the period. For the productions of the GOLDSMITH'S ART North Germany seems to have looked to Augsburg and Nuremberg, which were at this time among the most important centres of this art in Europe.

The most important PAINTINGS were also as a rule imported from other districts, particularly from the Netherlands, a land connected with North Germany by numerous ties of kinship and intercourse. It was, it is true, merely a happy accident that brought Memling's Last Judgement to Dantsie, but the Altar-piece of the Crucifixion in the Cathedral of Lübeck, also from Memling's studio and dated 1491, seems to have been executed at the express commission of a Lübeck citizen. This picture, which, however, is unequal in execution, is one of the most elaborate works of the early Netherlandish school. The Dutch school of the 17th century had also many points of contact with North Germany, though the story of the birth of Adriaen van Ostade in Lübeck is probably a fable. Dutch painters here found a cordial reception and ample occupation; among others may be mentioned Jurjaen Ovens (d. 1678), a pupil of Rembrandt, some of whose altar-pieces are still preserved in the cathedral of Schleswig. We know also that some of the painters of Hamburg, which began to attain great wealth and commercial importance in the 17th century, formed themselves more or less upon the model of the Dutch school; among others Evert Decker and Mathias Scheidt, the latter a pupil of Wouverman. A more careful local investigation would doubtless bring to light many more similar instances of inter-relation and would confirm by numerous examples the tendency of North Germany to adopt the Netherlandish point of view. The miserable political condition of Germany in the 16th century will go far to account for the fact that this admiration of the Flemish and Dutch masters was mainly confined to purchasing their works and excited few attempts to follow their example by independent production. The industrial arts, however, were still actively practised, and in their own sphere afford a complete view of the transition from the Renaissance to the Baroque style.

The stylistic peculiarities of Baroque art are not always easily distinguishable from those of the German Renaissance. It is comparatively easy after some attention to analyse the forms of the latter and to recognize their distinguishing features. The column, for example, still preserves its antique capital and as a rule it is also fluted. It generally stands, however, on a high base, the middle of which is adorned with a mask. The lowest part of the shaft is often encircled by a band of reliefs, resembling a metal ring and it often assumes a curved or swelling form, especially when used as the support of a balcony. The piers often consist of 'rustica' masonry and diminish in width towards the top. Their edges are sometimes raised so as to form a kind of frame, the flat surface within being decorated with branching vines. The keystones of the arches are often emphasised by a carved head or console. The sides of the gables do not always meet at the top but break off short and leave the intervening space to be filled with a pyramid or some similar figure. The favourite ornaments are foliage and band-mouldings, the latter often represented as rolled up or intertwined. The ornaments constantly recall the work of the metal-founder, the carpenter, or similar artificers. When we try, however, to determine the exact difference between the forms of the German Renaissance and those of the Baroque Style of the 17th century, we soon find that the two often insensibly merge in each other and that it is consequently impossible to draw a clear line of demarcation. Among the main characteristics of the Baroque style may be instanced its exaggeration and over-loading, its partiality for flowing and crooked lines, its sharp contrasts, its striving after effects of light and shade. Similar tendencies, however, are observable in the 16th century, especially among the smaller objects of art. Columns, for example, supporting garlands of fruit, and curving gables are forms common to both styles. Perhaps the difference may be placed in a clearer light if we consider that while the germ of the powerful and energetic forms of the Baroque style already existed in the Renaissance period, we still find many echoes of the Gothic style in the latter, while the Baroque style is entirely based on ancient art. As a matter of fact it is to a wave of Italian influence, of which Bernini and Borromini may serve as types, that the introduction of the Baroque style in Germany is due.

A new artistic era for North Germany opens toward the end of the 17th century in the building activity displayed in the capital of the vigorous and pushing state of Prussia. BERLIN now first wins a place in the history of art. This remarkable and rapid advance may be linked with the names of two architects, Johann Arnold Nehrung (d. 1695) and Andreas Schüter (1664-1714), and of two buildings, the Arsenal and the Old Palace. A characteristic feature of the movement was the fact that sculpture advanced pari passu with architecture, drawing its subjects mainly from the heroic myths or from idealisations of warfare. The trophies and the masks of dying warriors at the arsenal, and the bronze statue of the Great Elector stand like symbols at the door of Berlin's artistic development and indicate the direction in which its future plastic triumphs were to be won. There was only an interval of a few years between the erection of the palace at Berlin and that of the Zwinger at DRESDEN, its only possible rival for the first place among the architectural creations of the century. No other building of the period in Germany can be compared with the works of Schlüter and Pöppelmann (1667-1736). The two great edifices also resemble each other in the fragmentary execution of their original designs. In the plans themselves, however, lay an essential difference. Schlüter's ideal was a magnificent Roman forum, Pöppelmann aimed at the creation of a 'show palace', in which the pomps and pleasures of a luxurious court might find an adequate reflection. The impressions produced by the two buildings are thus markedly unlike. In Schlüter's work we recognise solid, somewhat heavy magnificence, hinting at royal power and the might of government; in Pöppelmann's Zwinger, despite its splendour, the prevailing idea is that of careless pleasure, a revelation of the delights of the private life of kings. The contrast between the artistic tendencies of the two towns at the beginning of last century goes still farther. In Berlin monumental sculpture attains a most promising stage; Dresden at once calls up the idea of Rococo art and Porcelain. Böttger's discovery not only infused new life into the art of ornamenting vases and pottery, but for a time, so long as the sculptor Kändler modelled at Meissen, seemed to be on the point of entering the domain of pure art and of being applied to monumental sculpture. No advance, however, was made on the first attempts. The small world of the Rococo style found its fitting incorporation in the charming little figures of Dresden china; with the close of the Rococo period the art of modelling in porcelain lost its artistic importance and the real roots of its life.

A single glance at the architectural activity of Berlin and Dresden is enough to dissipate the current view of the artistic poverty of the 18th century. In addition to this, however, most of the German COLLECTIONS and GALLERIES were either founded or greatly extended in the same period. Even in the 16th century German princes possessed 'Cabinets of Art', in which curiosities and objects of natural history lay in peaceful union with small objects of art, paintings (chiefly portraits), and a few plastic works. Travel and residence in foreign countries, and above all the tempting example of the kings and 'grands seigneurs' of France awoke a taste for art in the breasts of German princes also, and led to the better arrangement of the old collections and to the foundation of new. Thus Landgrave William VIII. of Hesse laid the foundation of the Cassel Gallery, while the collections of Schwerin owe their extent mainly to Duke Christian Ludwig (1747-56). The collections at Gotha, begun by Duke Ernest the Pious (1640-75), were increased at the beginning of last century by the art-treasures of Count Anton Günther of Schwarzburg. The Dessau Collections originated in a bequest of the Orange family in 1675. All these collections, and indeed almost all the galleries of Northern Germany, are rich in Flemish and Dutch paintings of the 17th century, a feature which must be referred to the ancient kinship of the Netherlandish and North German races and not to mere external and accidental intercourse. The Dresden Gallery alone, mainly the creation of King Augustus III., can boast the possession both of numerous gems of Netherlandish art and also of an equally excellent collection of Italian pictures. Berlin, however, lagged behind in the work of forming large picture-galleries. Frederick the Great's interest was confined mainly to ancient sculptures and to the creations of the French school, and he formed an admirable selection of pieces by Watteau and other French masters. The fine Museums of Berlin originated in the present century, a fact which accounts for the scientific arrangement by which they are characterised.

The storms of the Napoleonic period sadly interfered with the peaceful development of art in Germany. Long after the conclusion of peace the poverty of the people prevented them from showing any great practical interest in art. This was the more to be lamented because the War of Liberation had powerfully excited the national imagination and because Prussia possessed two men who were eminently fitted to respond to the patriotic enthusiasm. The works of Schinkel (1781-1841), and still more those of Rauch (1777-1857), of course, show unmistakable traces of the influence, direct or indirect, of the ideas that led the nation to victory; but their effectiveness would have been immeasurably superior if the economical condition of the state had enabled them to embody all their plans in worthy form. It was not till the fifth decade of the century that prosperity returned in sufficient measure to allow of some thought being bestowed upon the artistic embellishments of life. The rapid growth of the cities has called into being an architectural activity, compared with which that of past centuries sinks into insignificance. The most characteristic features of the latest development of art have been the resuscitation of the artistic handicrafts and the fondness for 'Old German' interiors.

1. Berlin.

(Comp. Plans at the end of the Handbook.)

Arrival. A policeman, posted at the egress of each railway-station, hands the traveller a metal ticket with the number of a cab, on his stating whether he wishes a first-class ('erste Klasse'), second-class ('zweite Klasse'), or luggage cab ('Gepäckdroschke'). Travellers with luggage should entrust the summoning of the vehicle to a porter, as it is sometimes difficult, especially in the dark, to find the right cab. The ticket, however, should not be given up till seats are taken. Porter 25 pf. for ordinary luggage; 50 pf. or more for luggage above the usual weight. Cab into the town: 1st class (recommended to those with little luggage) 1 M 25 to 1 M 75 pf., 2nd class 85 pf. to 1 M 25 pf. (comp. pp. 6, 7); luggage under 22½ lbs. free, boxes of 22½-55 lbs. 25 pf., of 55-110 lbs. 50 pf., of 110-220 lbs. 1 M (comp. the tariff, p. 7). 'Gepäckdroschken' (see above), with two seats only, are necessary if luggage is heavy; tariff the same as that of cabs of the second class. If the train is crowded, it is advisable to telegraph for a cab from the last important station before Berlin (50 pf.), particularly if a 'Gepäckdroschke' is required. — Luggage may also be sent from the station to the town through the agency of the Paketsfahrts-gesellschaft, or Parcel Delivery Co., an official of which meets the express trains; the tariff is posted up in a conspicuous part of the station. In this case it is usually delivered in 2-3 hrs., but not till the following morning if handed over after 7 p.m. — Hotels near the Railway Stations, see p. 3.

Departure. Railway-tickets for all the lines diverging from Berlin may be obtained at the Internationale Reisebureau, Unter den Linden 69 (sub-office in the Kaiserhof); also in the Central Hotel, the Hôtel Continental, the Grand Hôtel de Rome, and at the offices of Carl Stangen (Mohren-Str. 10) and Hugo Stangen (agent for Gaze & Sons, London; Unter den Linden 39). Luggage may be dispatched from the Internationale Reisebureau, the Kaiserhof, and the Central Hotel. — Circular Tickets may be obtained on previous notice (½-1 day) at the above offices, and also at the Anhalt & Potsdam, the Alexander-Platz (E. side), and the Friedrich-Strasse Station (at the last in summer only). — The Enquiry Office of the Prussian State Railways (open 8-3) is on the E. side of the Alexander-Platz Station.

Railway Stations. There are five terminus railway-stations at Berlin, exclusive of the 'Stadtbahn' (see below). 1. ANHALT STATION (Pl. g; H, 1), Ascanischer-Platz, for Dresden, Prague, Vienna, Leipzig, Munich, Halle, Thuringia, and Frankfurt on the Main. — 2. POTSDAM STATION (Pl. r; G, 4), Potsdamer-Platz, for Potsdam, Magdeburg, the Harz, the Lower Rhine, Cassel, Frankfurt, Coblenz, Trèves, and Metz. — 3. STETTIN STATION (Pl. b; H, 3), Invaliden-Str., for Rostock (and Copenhagen), Stralsund, Stettin, and Dantsik (viâ Stargard). — 4. GÖRLITZ STATION (Pl. g; P, 2, 3), Wiener-Str., for the Spreewald, Cottbus, Görlitz, and the Giant Mts. — 5. LEHRTE STATION (Pl. r; F, 1), near the Moltkebrücke, for all trains to Hamburg and slow trains to Lehrte (Hanover, Bremen, etc.), Mecklenburg, and Holstein.

The 'STADTBahn', or city railway (see p. 21), an engineering work of great interest, is 12 M. long, about 5 M. consisting of a viaduct of masonry. The railway crosses the Spree thrice, and there are in all 66 bridges over streets and water-courses. The general elevation of the line is about 20 ft. above that of the streets. The line crosses the city from E. to W., starting at Stralau-Rummelsburg (beyond Pl. g; R, 1) and ending at Westend (beyond Pl. g; A, 1). The Stadtbahn is primarily intended to relieve the street traffic within Berlin, but the following five stations are also used for general traffic: — 1. The Silesian Station (Pl. r; P, 3, 4); 2. Alexander-Platz Station (Pl. r; M, 1); 3. Friedrich-Strasse Station (Pl. r; H, 1, 1, 2); 4. Zoological Garden Station (Pl. r; B, 4); 5. Charlottenburg Station. At present all the trains of the E. Railway (Königsberg, St. Petersburg, Warsaw) and the Niederschlesisch-Märkische Railway (Posen, Breslau, and Vienna) run from these stations; also most of the trains of the Görlitz line and the Nordhausen-Frankfurt Railway, and the express trains of the Lehrte Railway (Hanover, Bremen, Cologne, London, and Paris). The Anhalt and Stettin railways have no connection with the Stadtbahn.

The stations of the Stadtbahn for intramural and suburban traffic are (named from E. to W.; 'Lokalperron' = platform for local trains): Stralau-Rummelsburg, Warschauer Strasse, Schlesiacher Bahnhof, Jannowitz-Brücke, Alexander-Platz, Börsen, Friedrich-Strasse, Lehrter Bahnhof, Bellevue, Thiergarten, Zoologischer Garten, Charlottenburg, Westend. Trains run in both directions about every 5 min. from 5 a.m. till midnight. — The management of the traffic resembles that of the Underground Railway in London. There is no first class. Tickets are checked on entering and leaving the platform. No time should be lost in taking seats, as the stoppages are extremely brief. Smoking is prohibited in the second-class compartments.

The suburban trains go on to Lichtenberg, Erkner, Strausberg, Fürstenwalde, and Rüdersdorf on the E., Grünau (p. 90) and Königs-Wusterhausen on the S.E., Potsdam (p. 91) on the S.W., and Spandau (p. 106) on the N.W.

The 'RINGBAHN' is a railway forming a complete circle round Berlin, and is divided into two parts, the 'Nord-Ring' and the 'Süd-Ring', on which trains run at intervals of 1/2 hr. The stations on the Nord-Ring are: Stralau-Rummelsburg, Friedrichsberg (p. 75), Central-Viehhof (Cattle Market, p. 75), Landesberger Allee, Weissensee, Prenzlauer Allee, Schönhauser Allee, Gesundbrunnen (p. 76), Wedding, Beussel-Strasse, Jungfernheide, Westend (p. 89), and Charlottenburg (p. 87). The Süd-Ring, beginning at Charlottenburg and running for the most part beyond the precincts of the city, begins and ends at the Potsdamer Ring-Bahnhof; the other stations are Schöneberg (p. 65), Tempelhof (p. 68), Rixdorf, Treptow (p. 90), Stralau-Rummelsburg, Charlottenburg, Halensee, Schmargendorf, and Wilmerdorf-Friedenau. Owing to the distance of the Ringbahn stations from the places they serve, the tourist will generally find the tramways more convenient (see p. 8).

Hotels. The largest hotels in Berlin are the following: — *GRAND HÔTEL DE ROME, Unter den Linden 39, at the corner of the Charlotten-Str. (Pl. r; I, 2), with 120 rooms, elevator, café-restaurant, baths, railway ticket office, etc.; R., L., & A. 3-25, B. 1 1/4, D. 5 M. — *HÔTEL CONTINENTAL (Pl. r; H, 2), Neustädtische Kirch-Str., opposite the Friedrich-Strasse Station, with 200 rooms, elevator, and railway-ticket office. — *KAISERHOF (Pl. r; H, 3), an extensive detached edifice, with its principal façade towards the Zieten-Platz, with 280 rooms, elevator, post, telegraph, and railway-booking offices, restaurant, and café; R., L., & A. 3-15, B. 1 1/2, D. 8-3 1/2 M. (The rooms looking into the covered court should be avoided.) — *CENTRAL HOTEL (Pl. r; I, 2), in the Friedrich-Str., between the Georgen-Str. and the Dorotheen-Str., near the Friedrich-Strasse Station, with 600 rooms, café-restaurant, post and telegraph offices, baths, and elevators; R., L., & A. from 3, B. 1 1/4, luncheon (12-2 o'clock) 2 1/4, D. Cabs (Droschken). Those of the first class, fitted up in a superior style, have drivers with blue coats and white collars. The drivers of the second class cabs have yellow collars.

A. Drives within the precincts of the city:

	1st class	2nd class
for 1/4 hr.	1 — 1.50	60 1 — for the next 1/4 hr., or fraction thereof . .	— 50 — 50	— 40 — 50
for each 1/4 hr. more, or fraction	— 50 — 50	— 50 — 50

(Each driver is bound to have in his possession a plan of the city with the lengths of the streets clearly marked on it and must drive at the rate of at least $5\frac{1}{2}$ M. an hour.) — B. Drives beyond the precincts of the city are charged twice the above rates for 1-2 pers., and twice the above rates with 50 pf. additional for 3-4 persons. For waiting, 50 pf. per $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. is charged. — C. At Night: from 1st April to 30th Sept. between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m., and from 1st Oct. to 31st March between 11 p.m. and 8 a.m., the fares under sections A and B are doubled (drive in second-class cab 1 M.). — D. For a drive between 7 and 8 a.m. for which the cab has been ordered the previous night, 50 pf. is added to the fares under A and B. — E. For drives from a railway-station 25 pf. is charged in addition to the fares given under A, B, and C (comp. p. 1). — F. For driving home from the theatres, if the cab be ordered in the last entr'acte, 25 pf. extra is charged. In driving to the theatres, balls, etc., the fare must be paid in advance. — Luggage. Small articles under $22\frac{1}{2}$ lbs. are free. Luggage from $22\frac{1}{2}$ to 55 lbs. 25 pf., from 56 to 110 lbs. 50 pf., from 110 to 220 lbs. 1 M.; luggage over 220 lbs. must not be carried except in cabs fitted up for the purpose (50 pf. per 110 lbs.). — If a cab of the 2nd class is opened or shut at the hirer's request, 25 pf. extra is charged (except when rain or snow falls). — Each vehicle ought to contain a tariff. In all cases of attempted imposition the hirer should demand check-tickets ('Marken') showing the fare charged, whereupon the driver will generally abate his demands. If not, the complaint and tickets should be sent to the 'Königliches Polizei-Präsidium, Abtheilung für öffentliches Fuhrwesen', Alexander-Platz, from which the hirer will receive in a few days the amount paid in excess of the proper fare, and an intimation that the driver has been punished. Articles left in cabs should be reclaimed at the 'Bureau für gefundene Sachen', Polizei-Präsidium, Eingang II and V (see p. 12).

The so-called Taxameter Cabs (drivers with white hats), fitted up with 'taximeters' to show the distance traversed and the fare due, have three tariffs: 1. Day Tariff for 1-2 pers., with 55 lbs. of luggage, 800 mètres 50 pf., each 400 mètres additional 10 pf.; 2. Day Tariff for 3-5 pers., 600 mètres 50 pf., each 300 mètres more 10 pf.; 3. Double Tariff drives at night (12-6 in summer, 12-7 in winter) for 1-5 pers., or with luggage over 55 lbs., or from the rail. stations (by metal ticket, p. 1), or outside the municipal limits, 400 mètres 50 pf., each 200 mètres more 10 pf. For waiting 10 pf. per 4 min. or $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. per hr.; for waiting up to 8 min. before starting 50 pf.

PRIVATE CARRIAGES 15-20 M. per day, 8-12 M. per half-day; on Sundays dearer; fee 1-2 M. — Schultze, Kanonier-Str. 3, etc.

Tramways. In the Tramway Plan of Berlin in the Appendix the tramway-lines are coloured to correspond with the lamps and name-boards. 'White' is represented in the plan by 'blue'; dotted lines signify 'red and white', 'green and red', and so on. — The tramways pass each other to the right and are entered or quitted on the outer side only. The front platform does not communicate with the interior. The minimum-fare in all cases is 10 pf., rising by 5 pf. at a time according to the distance traversed. The numbers on the accompanying plan correspond to those of the text.

Commissionaires (Dienstmänner), recognisable by their red caps and metal badges, are found in all the principal streets. Charge for conveying letters or small parcels from 20 pf. upwards.

Post Offices. The General Post Office (Hauptpostgebäude; Pl. r, L 2), for the public service, with a telegraph-station, is at König-Str. 60 and Spandauer-Str. 19-23 (p. 60). Enquiries in case of doubt should be addressed to the porter (principal entrance from the König-Str.). The Poste Restante and Money Order Office are both in the second court. Letters for Berlin (10 pf.), which should contain the district-initial (W., S.W., etc.) in their address, reach their destination in a few hours. The Parcel Post Office (Packetpostamt; Pl. b, 14, and r, I 1) is at Oranienburger-Str. 70, corner of the Artillerie-Str. Parcels from abroad are examined by custom-house officers either at Ritter-Str. 7, Kloster-Str. 76, Köthener-Str. 28, or Schiffbauerdamm 22, according to the district of the city in which the addressee lives. Letters are received, and money-orders issued, at all of the 111 branch-offices (e.g. Dorotheen-Str. 22, near the Neustädtische Kirch-Str.; Linden 12; Tauben-Str. 23a; Beuth-Str. 20; and at all the railway-stations); packets and books are not received at the smaller branch post-offices. The offices are open from 7 (in winter from 8) a. m. to 8 p.m. (for parcels till 7 p.m.); closed on Sundays and holidays from 9 to 5 o'clock; the post-offices at the chief railway-stations remain open till the departure of the last mail trains. Postage-stamps (Briefmarken) may be purchased from the letter-carriers. — A system of PNEUMATIC TUBES also exists, for the rapid transmission of telegrams, letters, and post-cards from one part of Berlin to another (including Charlottenburg). Letters (30 pf.) or post-cards (25 pf., with prepaid answer 50 pf.) intended for transmission by this service must be marked 'Rohrpost' in the upper left-hand corner of the address. Letters must not exceed a certain size and weight. Pneumatic post offices (open from 7 or 8 a.m. till 10 p.m.) are distinguished by a red lamp; among the most important are those at Unter den Linden 12; Behren-Str. 52; Oberwall-Str. 4a; Mauer-Str. 74; Leipziger-Platz 20; Potsdamer-Str. 36; Zimmer-Str. 26; Belle-Alliance-Platz 9; at the Exchange; Spandauer-Str. 19; Oranienburger-Str. 35; in Schöneberg at Herbert-Str. 77; and in Charlottenburg at Berliner-Str. 62, and Goethe-Str. 3.

In cases where haste is not an object, letters (3 pf.), post-cards (2 pf.), and parcels for the Berlin district may be entrusted to the Berliner Packet-Fahrt-Aktien-Gesellschaft (Ritter-Str. 98), the agencies of which are denoted by red signs and letter-boxes (cleared four times daily). Stamps may be procured at the agencies.

Telegraph Offices. Central Office, Jäger-Str. 42, and 75 branch-offices (e.g. at the Exchange, Dorotheen-Str. 22, Linden 12, Behren-Str. 52, at the Potsdam and Brandenburg gates, in the Industrie-Gebäude, Benth-Str. 20, and at all the railway-stations). The Central Office and the offices at the six chief railway-stations are open day and night; the offices at the General Post Office, Exchange, and a few others from 7 or 8 a.m. till 10 p.m.; the remainder, from 7 or 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Telegrams within Berlin cost 3 pf. per word (minimum 30 pf.), to other parts of Germany 5 pf. and 50 pf.

Telephone Offices (open 7 a.m. till 10 p.m.) at Oranienburger-Str. 70 (head-office) and at Leipziger-Platz 20, Belle-Alliance-Str. 9, Französische-Str. 39c, the Lehrte Station, Oranienburger-Str. 35, Potsdamer-Str. 36, the Silesian Station, Spandauer-Str. 19, Tauben-Str. 20, Unter den Linden 12, the Central Cattle Market, etc.; also in Charlottenburg, at Berliner-Str. 62; and in the other suburbs. At these offices anyone can be put in telephonic communication with every person connected with the system (fee 25 pf. for 3 min. in the city, 50 pf. in the environs, 1-3 \mathcal{M} for long distances). Lists of those connected with the 'Telephonic Exchange' are provided.

Head Police Office (Polizeipräsidentium), in the Alexander-Platz. The Passport Office is at Eingang IV, beside the Stadtbahn. On the third floor at the same address is the Einwohnermeldeamt, where the address of any resident in Berlin may be obtained for a fee of 25 pf. The Office for Lost Articles is at Eingang II and Eingang V. — All strangers arriving in Berlin must be announced at the police-office by their landlord within six days.

Baths. Admiralsgarten-Bad*, Friedrich-Str. 102, close to the Friedrich-Str. Station, with swimming basin (bath $\frac{3}{4}$ -1 $\frac{1}{2}$ \mathcal{M}); Wasserheilanstalt des Vereins der Wasserfreunde*, Kommandanten-Str. 7, with swimming-baths, restaurant, café, etc.; Augusta-Bad, Köpenicker-Str. 60 (at these Turkish and vapour baths); Wilhelms-Bad, Schützen-Str. 19; Karls-Bad, Potsdamer-Str. 27b (these two Turkish baths); Belle-Alliance-Bad, Gneisenau-Str. 3; Victoria-Bad, Neuenburger-Str. 15; Hôtel de Rome*, see p. 2; Dianabad, Französische-Str. 18; City-Bad, Dresdener-Str. 52; Ascanisches Bad, Königgrätzer-Str. 19, near the Potsdam Gate; Kaiser-Wilhelms-Bad, Lützow-Str. 90; Municipal Baths, Thurm-Str. 85a and at the Schillings-Brücke. — RIVER BATHS in the Spree: Sachs'sches Wellenbad (Pl. g; B, 2), outside the Schlesiache Thor; Flussbad, An der Stralauer Brücke 2 (also for ladies); Häusler's Bad, Ratibor-Str. 12; Pfuef'sche Schwimmstalt (subscribers only), Köpenicker-Str. 11. These baths are conveniently reached by steamboat.

Shops. The best are in the Linden, the Leipziger-Str., the Friedrich-, Jerusalem-, Charlotten-, Markgrafen-, Jäger-Str. (E. end), etc. Special attention should be paid to the products of the artistic handicrafts, many of which are now practised at Berlin with marked success. Thus the gas-fittings, porcelain, earthenware, furniture, jewellery, etc., often display great taste both in design and execution. A good general survey of these Art Industries may be obtained by visiting the HOHENZOLLERN-KAUFHAUS, Leipziger-Str. 117, or the KUNSTGEWERBE-AUSSTELLUNG, Linden-Str. 18. A few of the most noted firms in the different branches are mentioned below.

Theatres. There are about twenty theatres at Berlin (plans may be consulted in the Berlin 'Adressbuch', or Directory; performances begin at 7.30 or 8 p.m.). Seats may be procured in advance at the box-offices or at the 'Invalidendank', Unter den Linden 24 (9-4; on Sun. 9-10 and 12-2). In winter Sunday afternoon performances at reduced prices are given at most of the theatres. The following are the most important theatres: —

1. ROYAL OPERA HOUSE (Pl. v; K. 2), for operas, ballets, and a few of the most celebrated dramas (Faust, Tell, Maid of Orleans); 1690 seats. Average charges: best boxes 10 M., proscenium by the orchestra 9, 1st balcony, front boxes, and parquet 6, proscenium, 2nd balcony, and upper boxes 4, 3rd balcony 3, amphitheatre $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. — Admission higher when some of the greater operas are performed.

2. ROYAL THEATRE (Schauspielhaus; Pl. r, I 3), for tragedies, classical and modern dramas (Shakspeare, Schiller, Goethe); 1120 seats. Best boxes 8 M.; 1st balcony and 1st balcony-boxes 5, parquet or parquet-boxes (the latter not recommended) 5, 2nd balcony and 2nd balcony-boxes $3\frac{1}{2}$, 3rd balcony $1\frac{1}{2}$, amphitheatre 1 M.

Tickets for the opera and theatre are issued in advance on week-days from 10.30 to 1, on Sundays from 11 to 1.30 o'clock. Strangers who are desirous of securing good places should order them by a post-card, bearing their address on the one side, and the date of the performance with the number and situation of the places desired on the other. The card should be placed, between 10 and 12 o'clock on the day before the performance, in the letter-box of the Opera House (Door No. 7), opposite the Roman Catholic Church, or enclosed in an envelope ('An das Kaiserl. Stadtpostamt hier C. Theater Meldekarte) and posted so as to reach the theatre before 9 a.m. (Sun. before 7 a.m.) on the day before the performance. It is returned the same day, either stamped 'bewilligt' (granted), or with a pencil-mark across it to indicate that the application has been unsuccessful. In the former case the tickets bespoken are obtained on the following morning between 9 and 10 (Sundays and holidays between 8 and 9) o'clock, at the ticket-office of the opera-house (or theatre), 50 pf. extra being paid for each seat. When very popular pieces are to be performed, a great number of the tickets are purchased by speculators, from whom they can be obtained only at exorbitant prices. In such cases the porter of the traveller's hotel will often be found useful in preventing excessive extortion. — The court-theatres are closed in July and August.

3. KROLL'S THEATRE (Pl. r; N, 2), Königs-Platz 7. Best boxes 10, first balcony 4-6, parquet 8-6, standing room $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. Admission to the garden (concerts) 50 pf., sometimes 1 M.

4. DEUTSCHES THEATER OR GERMAN THEATRE (Pl. b; H, 4, and r; H, 1), Schumann-Str. 13, for classical pieces; best boxes and orchestra-boxes $7\frac{1}{2}$ M., 1st balcony, 1st balcony-boxes, and parquet-boxes 6, parquet $4\frac{1}{2}$, 2nd balcony 3, gallery 1 M. Box-office open 10-1.30. Often crowded.

5. LESSING THEATRE (Pl. r; G, 1), Friedrich-Carl-Ufer 1; modern dramas and comedies. Adm. from $7\frac{1}{2}$ M. downwards.

6. BERLINER THEATER (Pl. g; I, 1), Charlotten-Str. 90, for dramas and comedies; best boxes 7, 1st balcony-boxes 6, 1st balcony and parquet 3 M.

7. THEATER DES WESTENS. Kant-Str. 12 (Zoological Garden Station), for dramas and comedies; best boxes 9, 1st balcony and parquet 4 M. 50.

Berlin (110 ft. above the sea-level), the capital of Prussia, residence of the German Emperor, and seat of the imperial government, as well as of the highest Prussian authorities, contains (1895) 1,676,352 inhab., including the garrison of 20,000 soldiers, and thus occupies the third place among the cities of Europe. Its situation, in the midst of an extensive sandy plain on the Spree, has often been spoken of disparagingly, but is in fact very favourable and one of the chief causes of the town's prosperity. Lying about halfway between the S.W. and N.E. extremities of the Empire (465 M. from Mülhausen in Alsace, and 405 M. from Memel), equidistant from the mid-German mountains and the sea, and connected with N.E. Germany and Poland by the navigable Spree, it is at the same time an important centre of the railway-system of Germany, one of the foremost seats of commerce in the country, and perhaps the greatest manufacturing town in continental Europe. The staple commodities of its trade are cattle, grain, spirits, and wool; the principal branches of industry are engine-building, brewing, dyeing, the artistic handicrafts, and the manufacture of chemicals, woollen and silk goods, and fancy articles. The money-market of Berlin is also of great importance. The traffic on the Spree and its canals is even busier than that on the Rhine.

The boundaries of the city now enclose an area of about 25 sq. M. The buildings have filled up the whole of the Spree valley, which here averages about 3 M. in breadth and is intersected by numerous water-courses, and are beginning to encroach on the surrounding plain, raised some 30 or 40 ft. higher. The city consists of twenty different quarters, divided into 326 municipal and 96 police districts. The oldest quarters are Alt-Berlin (on the right bank of the Spree, bounded by the Ringbahn), Alt-Kölln (on an island in the river), and Friedrichswerder (on the left bank of the Spree). These form the heart of the city, and were originally enclosed by fortifications. Beyond them is a second zone, the external boundary of which is formed by the ring of streets occupying the site of the old town-walls of the 18th century. It embraces the districts of Dorotheenstadt, Friedrichstadt, and Luisenstadt on the left bank of the Spree, and Friedrich-Wilhelmstadt, the Spandau Quarter, Königstadt, and the Stralau Quarter on the right bank. The two last-named districts encroach upon the outermost zone, or suburbs, which include on the left bank the Thiergarten Quarter, the Outer Friedrichstadt, the Schöneberg Quarter, the Tempelhof Quarter, and the Outer Luisenstadt, and on the right bank Moabit, Wedding, the Oranienburg Quarter, and the Rosenthal Quarter.

In external appearance Berlin is somewhat deficient in interest; its situation is unpicturesque, and it lacks the charm of mediæval and historical edifices. There is, however, no want of architectural display, and the last 20 years have witnessed the erection of many handsome buildings in every part of the city. Those erected by private enterprise often present considerable individuality of style and taste.

For many years back Berlin has been undergoing an extensive series of alterations and improvements, the favourable results of which are now evident. The removal of the town-walls in 1864-66 and the rapid extension of the tramway-system gave a great impulse to the city's prosperity, and diverted the current of traffic into many new channels; while the intramural railway (see p. 1), opened in 1882 and intersecting the city from E. to W., is at least of equal importance. The system of water-courses and drains has been improved and most of the principal thoroughfares have been laid with asphalt. Altogether Berlin is now little, if at all, inferior to the older capitals of Europe in the comfort and completeness of its public works, while in such matters as the cleaning and lighting of the streets it has few equals and no superiors.

History. Berlin first appears in history in the early part of the 13th cent., when it was already a double town of some importance (Berlin and Kölln). In all probability the original Wendish settlements had been taken possession of by German colonists at the end of the preceding century. The name of Kölln is mentioned for the first time in a document of 1237, and that of Berlin in 1244, after which the town soon began to be regarded as one of the most considerable in the Mark, next to Brandenburg, the residence of the Margraves. The two towns were united in 1307, and by their prudent policy during the troublous times of the 14th cent., under the Bavarian and Luxemburg princes, raised themselves to a position of great importance. About 1340 Berlin-Kölln became a member of the Hanseatic League, as representative of a confederation of towns of the Mark. Such a position, however, almost amounting to the independence of an imperial town, could not be maintained against the might of the Hohenzollern family, who became masters of the Mark in 1415. In consequence of its unsuccessful opposition to Frederick 'with the Iron Tooth' (1440-70), the second Elector, the town was deprived of its privileges (1442, 1448), and a fortified castle was erected to keep it in check. John Cicero (1486-99) made Berlin-Kölln his permanent abode, and since that period the fortunes of the town have been interwoven with those of the Hohenzollern family and their other dominions. In 1539 the townspeople and the Elector Joachim II. (1535-71) embraced the Reformed faith. This splendour-loving prince and his successor John George (1571-98) began the alteration and extension of the palace in the Renaissance style. Berlin suffered comparatively little from the troubles of the Thirty Years' War.

To Frederick William, the 'Great Elector' (1640-88), the founder of the Prussian monarchy, Berlin is chiefly indebted for its modern importance. He accorded municipal privileges to the Friedrichswerder, fortified the city according to the new Dutch system (1658-83), and founded the new town, which he named Dorotheenstadt in honour of his wife. The forest which extended on this side of the town nearly as far as the Spree was now removed, and on its site was planted the Linden-Allee, or double avenue of lime-trees, on each side of which gradually sprang up the handsome modern street of that name. Owing to the introduction of foreign settlers, and particularly French Protestant refugees (after the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes in 1685), the population of the town increased to 20,000. Its commerce now flourished to an extent hitherto unprecedented, while the court actively promoted artistic enterprise and strove to embellish the town, chiefly with the aid of Dutch architects. The nucleus of the royal library and art-collections was also formed at this period.

Frederick III. (1688-1713), who became King Frederick I. in 1701, erected the Friedrichstadt, constituted Berlin a royal residence, and united the administration of the five quarters of the city. In 1694 he founded the Academy of Art, and in 1700 that of Science, the first president of the latter being the celebrated Leibnitz; while in the province of architecture he was fortunate in obtaining the services of one of the greatest geniuses of his age, whose works were destined entirely to eclipse those of his predecessors. This was Andreas Schlüter (b. at Hamburg in 1664, d. at St. Petersburg in 1714). He was first employed as a sculptor in the embellishment of the Langs Brücke, in the Schloss, and in the Arsenal begun by Nering (d. 1695). He then erected the Château of Charlottenburg, and his successful completion of that edifice next led to his being engaged as the architect of the imposing new Palace of Berlin, which he began in 1699, but which was not completed until long after his death. He has also left a monument of his talent as a sculptor in the Equestrian Statue of the Great Elector, 1703. The other works of the reign of the first king of Prussia include the Academy, several churches, two town-halls, and numerous palatial private residences, but after the time of Schlüter the architecture of Berlin shows a great falling off. In 1710 the town possessed ten printing-offices, and the population, which had been steadily augmented by French and Walloon immigrants, was 61,000.

Under the patriarchal government of Frederick William I. (1713-40) the city made no less substantial, though less striking progress. This monarch enlarged the Friedrichstadt and the Dorotheenstadt, devoted the space occupied by the fortifications to building purposes, and added the N. and E. suburbs to the town. He also completed the royal palace, and erected the Supreme Court of Justice and several churches. All these operations, however, were conducted in so economical a spirit, that the buildings are generally insignificant in appearance. During this reign the administration of justice was reformed, the municipal guilds re-organised, and the Charité Hospital founded. In 1740 the population had increased to 91,000, including 2000 Bohemian Protestants.

Frederick the Great (1740-86), who possessed more taste for building than any of the other Prussian sovereigns, was unwearied in his efforts to extend and embellish his capital, though he seldom made it his residence. In Knobelsdorff (b. 1699, d. 1753) he found an architect who was capable of executing his plans in a tasteful style. Thus in 1743 he completed the Opera House in a noble, almost classical style, which presented a marked contrast to the capricious and degraded taste of the age. As the great monarch, however, had a strong predilection for designing his new buildings in person, and for materially altering the designs submitted to him, he found the less independent successors of Knobelsdorff more subservient to his wishes. The Palace of Prince Henry (now the University), the old Cathedral, the Hedwigskirche, the Königs-Colonnaden, the Library, and the Domed Towers in the Gensdarmen-Markt are the principal edifices of this period. In a spirit very different from that of his frugal father, Frederick also presented his citizens and officials with several hundred palatial dwelling-houses, which gave the town a handsome and imposing appearance. Commerce and industry were fostered; the academy of sciences, under the auspices of French savants, awoke to new life; and the collections of art were materially increased. At the same time a new intellectual era began to dawn, and to this period belong the authors Lessing, Moses Mendelssohn, and Nicolas, and the artist Chodowiecki. Although Berlin suffered severely during the Seven Years' War, having been twice occupied by foreign troops, the population had increased by the end of Frederick's reign to 145,000.

Under Frederick William II. (1786-97), Frederick's successor, the population increased much more rapidly, and in the year 1800 it amounted to no fewer than 172,000 inhabitants. A massive town-wall was constructed in place of the palisade of Frederick William I. (p. 20). Considerable progress was also made in the province of art. In 1793 C. G. Langhans (b. 1733, d. 1808), following the example of Knobelsdorff, erected the Brandenburger Thor in the classical style, while G. Schadow's Quadriga with which it was adorned formed a new triumph in the province of sculpture. The architects Gentz, the builder of the Old Mint, and Gilly also adopted the classical style while Carstens, a native of Schleswig, and a teacher at the Berlin Academy, inaugurated the revival of classical taste in painting. The theatre, formerly devoted to French plays, was now dedicated to the national German drama, which was zealously cultivated under Iffland's auspices.

The Napoleonic disasters by which Berlin was overtaken during the reign of Frederick William III. (1797-1840) presented only a temporary obstacle to the progress of the city. The battles of Jena and Auerstedt, and the occupation of Berlin by the French in 1806, produced a depressing effect, but this was in some degree compensated by the foundation of the University in 1809; and on the occasion of the general rising against the French in 1813 the citizens of Berlin, whose 'Landwehr' was chiefly instrumental in gaining the victory of Grossbeeren, set a noble example of patriotic zeal. After the establishment of peace in 1815, art, science, and commerce began to flourish anew. The University now took the highest rank among the institutions of learning in Germany; William and Alexander von Humboldt, Ritter, Hegel, Schleiermacher, Böckh, and many other famous men now lived and worked at Berlin; and at the same time the drama attained its highest pitch of excellence. Of this period the most distinguished architect was SCHINKEL (b. 1781, d. 1841), who was equally capable as a painter, as his sketches for the frescoes of the hall of the old museum testify (see p. 34), and by this great master were erected many admirable buildings, both in the classical and Gothic style, in Berlin and the environs. He was the architect of the Königswache, the Schauspielhaus, the Schlossbrücke, the Old Museum, the Werder'sche Kirche, the Bau-Academie, the Monument on the Kreuzberg, and the Palace of Count Redern at Berlin, and of the Palaces of Babelsberg, Glienicke, Charlottenhof, and the Nicolaikirche at Potsdam, while his numerous designs exercised no inconsiderable influence on the architecture of other countries. — As Schinkel reigned supreme at Berlin in the province of architecture, so did CHRISTIAN RAUCH (1777-1857) in that of sculpture, eclipsing his senior, G. Schadow, and still more so his contemporary, Fr. Tieck. In him the hero-worship of the period of the wars of independence found an admirable illustrator, and portrait-sculpture now received a new impulse. Very inferior to these architects and sculptors were the painters of this period (Wach, K. Begas, Hensel, Klöber, and Krüger), whose names are hardly known out of their native place. — The long years of peace in the latter part of this reign contributed materially to the external prosperity of Berlin. Commerce and industry, the latter stimulated by the exertions of Beuth, were greatly benefited by the construction of highroads, the foundation of the Zollverein, and the abolition of the monopoly of the guilds; and the city now began to lose the official and garrison-like air with which it had hitherto been pervaded. In 1838 the railway to Potsdam was opened. From 201,000 in 1819 the population had in 1840 increased to 329,000.

During the following reign, that of Frederick William IV. (1840-61), the cultivation of art seemed likely to progress far more rapidly. The favourable conditions of that monarch's reign were enhanced by the enthusiasm and refined artistic taste of the king himself, who often acted as his own architect. The prospect, however, was not entirely realised. The building of a cathedral, the king's favourite project, was never carried out; and although the architecture of the city was enriched by the completion of the New Museum, the dome of the palace, and numerous other edifices, most of them lack the imposing grandeur of Schinkel's creations. The leading architects of this period were F. A. Stüler (d. 1865), to whom most of the government-buildings were entrusted, Knoblauch (d. 1865), Hitzig (d. 1881), Soller (d. 1863; St. Michael's church), C. F. Langhans (d. 1869; Opera), and Strack (d. 1880; St. Peter's). — In the department of painting also the revival which had been anticipated from the presence of Cornelius (from 1841; d. 1867) and Kaulbach (d. 1874; p. 45) was never realised; while the originality of Ad. Menzel (b. 1815) was not duly appreciated. To the labours of Rauch, on the other hand, whose masterpiece, the statue of Frederick the Great, is justly admired, and to those of his numerous pupils (Drake, Bläser, A. Wolff, Kiss, etc.), the art of sculpture was indebted for its high repute during this reign. — Since the introduction of railways Berlin has increased rapidly in importance as a manufacturing and industrial centre. In 1849 the population was 424,000, and in 1880 it had increased to 496,000.

During the reigns of the Emperor William I. (1861-88) and of his successors Frederick III. (17th March-15th June, 1888) and William II. the prosperity of Berlin, now one of the great capitals of the world, made still more rapid strides. The population was trebled, rising to 702,000 in 1867, to 968,000 in 1875, to 1,122,390 in 1880, to 1,300,000 in 1885, and to 1,500,000 in 1888. Six new lines of railway were opened, and trade greatly extended. — Art also has revived, especially in the department of architecture. The Rathaus, the Exchange, and the Synagogue, all begun in 1859, were the first of a long series of imposing edifices, in which a complete revolution in taste manifests itself. The prevailing tendency is to substitute the Renaissance style for the more sober classical forms of Schinkel, to attach more importance to solidity of material and the artistic ornamentation of the interior, and to use colour more freely. By far the most important of the new public edifices is the Building of the Reichstag. Many private buildings rival the public edifices, and indeed often surpass them internally. Among the chief architects of the period have been Strack, Hitzig (see p. 23), Adler, (d. 1877), Orth, Ende & Böckmann, Gropius & Schmieden, Hude & Henicke, Lucae Kyllmann & Heyden, and Kayser & Grossheim. Painting and sculpture have also made marked progress, the prevalent tendency being towards a realistic style. The most eminent painters are Ad. Menzel, L. Knaus, A. von Werner, C. Becker, C. Gussow, F. Gesellschaft, and P. Meyerheim, while Reinhold Begas, Siemering, Schaper, Encke, Calandrelli, Eberlein, Lessing, Pfuhl, and Geyer are the most successful sculptors.

a. Unter den Linden. Platz am Opernhaus.

The handsomest and busiest part of Berlin, which likewise comprises the most interesting historical associations, is the long line of streets extending from the Brandenburg Gate to the Royal Palace, consisting of Unter den Linden* (Pl. r; H, I, 2), the Platz am Opernhaus, and the Lustgarten. The Linden, a street 196 ft. in width, deriving its name from the avenues of lime-trees (interspersed with chestnuts) with which it is planted, resembles the Boulevards of Paris, although inferior in length, and is flanked with handsome palaces, spacious hotels, and attractive shops, between which the long vistas of a number of side-streets are visible at intervals. The length of the street from the Brandenburg Gate to the Monument of Frederick the Great is about $\frac{2}{3}$ M., to the palace-gate about 1 M. At night the Linden is brilliantly illuminated by three rows of electric arc-lights.

The Brandenburg Gate* (Pl. r; G, 2), at the W. end of the Linden, forms the entrance to the town from the Thiergarten. It was erected in 1789-93 by C. G. Langhans in imitation of the Propylæa at Athens, and has five different passages (that in the centre forbidden to private carriages), separated by massive Doric columns. The material is sandstone. The structure (85 ft. in height, including the figure, and 205 ft. in width) is surmounted by a Quadriga of Victory, in copper, by Schadow, taken to Paris by the French in 1807, but restored in 1814. Adjoining the gate on the side next the town are two wings resembling Grecian temples, of which that on the right or N. side contains a Telegraph Office and a Pneumatic Post Office, while that on the left (S.) is the Guard House. On the outside are handsome open Colonnades for foot-passengers; the statue of Mars in that to the S. is by Schadow.

Between the gate and the beginning of the Linden lies the PARISER PLATZ, so named after the victories of 1814. On the S. side of the square are Prince Blücher's Palace (No. 2), now occupied by the president of the Reichstag, the Officers' Casino (No. 3), by Stralendorff, and the handsome Palace of Count Arnim-Boitzenburg (No. 4), by Knoblauch. No. 5, on the opposite side, is the palace of the French Embassy.

UNTER DEN LINDEN, No. 1 (S. side), at the corner of the Pariser Platz, is the Palace of Count Redern, erected in 1736, but rebuilt by Schinkel in 1833 in the Florentine style. The effect of the building is marred by the execution of its façade in plaster instead of in stone. On the right, beyond it, is the handsome Wilhelm-Strasse (p. 58). No. 4, farther on, is the residence of the Minister of Religion and Education, with a sculptured frieze by Eberlein. No. 7 is the palace of the Russian Embassy, erected by Knoblauch in 1840-41. No. 73 on the opposite side is that of the Minister of the Interior, completed by Emmerich in 1877, with an imposing sandstone façade, in the Greek Renaissance style.

The building No. 68a, on the left, at the corner of the Schadow-Str., contains the Aquarium* (Pl. r; H. 2), well stocked with salt and fresh-water fish, besides which there is a collection of birds, amphibious animals, apes, etc. The interior, with its grottoes and imitations of various natural objects, has been skilfully fitted up by Lüer (adm., see p. 15; catalogue 50 pf.).

In the Schadow-Str. (Nos. 6, 7) are the buildings of the Union Club and of the Ressource, a society established in 1794.

Farther along the S. side of the Linden (Nos. 17, 18) is the imposing Hôtel Westminster, adjoining which, in the Behren-Str. (No. 55), is the Theater Unter den Linden. Then follows (Nos. 22, 23), near the Friedrich-Str., the Passage, or Kaisergallerie* (Pl. r; I, 2), which leads to the corner of the Friedrich- and Behren-Strasse. It was erected by Kyllmann and Heyden in 1869-73, and, though not one of the largest, is one of the handsomest and busiest arcades in Europe. The façades within and without are finished with terracotta in a rich Renaissance style. The arcade contains shops, restaurants, a café, the Kaiser-Panorama (p. 17), and the Passage-Panopticum (p. 17).

At Linden 26, between the Friedrich-Str. and Charlotten-Str., is the Café Bauer (p. 6), the handsomest in Berlin, tastefully adorned with mural paintings by Werner. Farther on, No. 35, is the handsome building of the Discount Society, designed, like the Café Bauer, by Ende and Böckmann.

At the E. end of the Linden rises the Statue of Frederick* the Great (Pl. r; J, 2), in bronze, an impressive and masterly work by Rauch, erected in 1851, and probably the grandest monument of its kind in Europe (44 ft. in height).

The great king is represented on horseback with his coronation-robcs and his walking-stick. The pedestal is divided into three sections. The upper section contains allegorical figures, scenes from Frederick's life, and his apotheosis, with figures of Moderation, Justice, Wisdom, and Strength at the corners. At the corners of the central section are four equestrian figures, Prince Henry of Prussia and Duke Ferdinand of Brunswick on the E., and Generals Zieten and Seydlitz on the W., between which are placed spirited groups of other contemporaries and officers of the king (thus on the E. side Prince Augustus William and Keith, on the N. side Kleist, Winterfeldt, and Tauenzien, on the S. side Leopold of Dessau and Schwerin, on the W. side Lessing, Kant, and Graun, all lifesize). The lower section contains the dedication and the names of other distinguished men, chiefly soldiers of the time of Frederick. The pedestal is of polished granite. The foundation-stone was laid on 31st May, 1840, the hundredth anniversary of the accession of Frederick to the throne of Prussia, and the monument was completed and inaugurated in 1851.

To the right of the monument is the Palace of the Emperor William I. (Pl. r, I 2; adm., p. 16), erected by C. F. Langhans in 1834-36. The building extends behind the Royal Library towards the Behren-Str., and is connected by a covered passage with the adjoining building, which was formerly the palace of the Dutch princes in Berlin. The decorations of the interior are by Strack.

*Interior. The FAHNENZIMMER, to the E. of the main entrance, contains pictures by Camphausen (William I. entering Berlin in 1871), Hildebrandt, Schirmer, Graeb, and others. — Beyond the Minister's Room is the Emperor's STUDY, from the corner-window of which he was wont to watch the passing guard. It is preserved unchanged and contains many reminiscences of the old Kaiser. — Behind the Library is the bedroom (not shown) in which he died on March 9th, 1888. — The STAIRCASE is adorned with three Victories by Rauch and other sculptures. On the upper floor are the apartments of the Empress Augusta, including her STUDY and the room (not shown) in which she died on Jan. 7th, 1890. — To the W. are the handsome RECEPTION ROOMS.

Opposite the palace is the Academy Building, erected about 1690 and remodelled in 1749, containing the Academy of Art and the Academy of Science, founded in 1694 and 1700 respectively by Frederick I., the latter in accordance with plans by Leibnitz. The Art School is attended by about 300 students.

The University Buildings (Pl. r; I, 2), formerly the palace of Prince Henry, brother of Frederick II., erected in 1748-66, and fitted up in 1809 for the then recently-founded university, contain some of the lecture-rooms and scientific collections (5000 students). The garden in front is adorned with statues of William and Alexander von Humboldt, the former by Paul Otto, the latter by R. Begas.

Besides the aula and the lecture-rooms, the university contains the Christian Museum (adm., see p. 16), on the second floor of the left wing, with original and copied Christian inscriptions and monuments of art; the casts, arranged in chronological order, illustrate the whole Christian period down to the present day. — Behind the left wing is the University Garden, with a collection of medical and industrial plants. In the chestnut grove between the garden and the Singing Academy (p. 28) is a bronze statue, by Hartzel, of Mitscherlich (d. 1863), the chemist, erected in 1894, and the Academische Lesehalle (p. 15).

To the University belong also the following buildings: the Library, Dorotheen-Str. 9 (p. 79); the Dissecting Room (Anatomie), in the garden of the Veterinary College (p. 81); two Chemical Laboratories, Georgen-Str. 34-36 (p. 80) and Bunsen-Str. 1; the Physiological and Pharmacological Institute, Dorotheen-Str. 85; the Physical Institute, Neue Wilhelm-Str. 15 (p. 80); the Pathological Institute in the garden of the Charité (p. 81); the Midwifery Institute, Artillerie-Str. 13-16 (p. 80); the Surgical Operating Room, Ziegel-Str. 6 (p. 81); the Zoological Institute, Invaliden-Str. 43; the Botanical Institute, Dorotheen-Str. 5; the Botanical Museum, Grunewald-Str. 6; the Hygienic Institute, Kloster-Str. 36 (p. 74); the Oriental Seminary, by the Arsenal; and the Geographical Seminary, in the old Bau-Akademie (p. 30).

The Royal Library (Pl. r; 1, 2), behind the Palace of Emp. William I., erected in 1775-80 and facing the Opern-Platz, is one of the most effective rococo structures in Berlin, though sometimes likened to a chest of drawers. The motto below the cornice, 'nutrimentum spiritûs', was selected by Frederick the Great. The groundfloor is devoted to offices, while the library is upstairs. The reading-room is in the centre of the second floor; the newspapers, maps, and music in the annexe, Behren-Str. 42. Adm., see p. 16.

The Library, which was founded in 1659, now contains about 1,000,000 vols. and 20,000 MSS., among which may be mentioned the MS. and first impressions of Luther's translation of the Bible, Melanchthon's report of the Diet of Worms, Gutenberg's Bible on parchment, of 1450, the first book printed with movable types, the Codex Wittekindi, a MS. of the Gospels of the 8th cent., said to have been presented by Charlemagne to the Saxon duke Wittekind, miniatures by Lucas Cranach, 36 vols. of portraits and autographs of celebrated characters, Chinese books, a small octagonal Koran, important musical works, the air-pump and hemispheres with which Otto von Guericke (p. 114) made his first experiments, etc. Some of the older pieces of music are of great historical interest. — Part of the MSS. from the celebrated collection of the Duke of Hamilton has also been deposited in this library (comp. p. 49).

Opposite the Library is the Opera House (Pl. r; K, 2), with a portico of six Corinthian columns, erected by Knobelsdorff in 1741-43, and after a fire in 1843 restored by C. F. Langhans. The interior was remodelled in 1895. The tympanum contains an admirable *Group in zinc, by Rietschel: in the centre the muse of music; on the right the tragic and comic muse with the bantering satyr, the dramatic poet with the arts of painting and sculpture; on the left a dancing group with the Three Graces. Performances, see p. 13. — In winter symphony-concerts are given in the concert-room; see p. 13.

Between the Library and the Opera House, close to the Linden, stands the Kaiservase, a huge vase with a frieze of allegorical figures doing homage to Peace, presented by the Empress Augusta to the Emp. William I. on his 90th birthday (Mar. 22nd, 1887). In the middle of the square is a marble monument, by Schaper, to the Empress Augusta, unveiled in 1895. The reliefs on the pedestal represent the nursing of the wounded in war and the education of children. — In the background is the Roman Catholic Church of St. Hedwig (Pl. r; K, 2), a plain imitation of the Pantheon at Rome, erected by Frederick the Great in 1747-73, and improved in 1886-87. The interior has recently been beautified with good stained glass and tasteful altar-decorations.

Five *Statues by Rauch, over lifesize, embellish the square before the Opera House. Between the latter and the palace of the Empress Victoria is Blücher (d. 1819), erected in 1826; at his right hand Gneisenau (d. 1831), at his left York (d. 1830), both erected in 1855; all three in bronze. In front of the guard-house, Bülow (d. 1816) and Scharnhorst (d. 1813), in marble, erected in 1822. The pedestals are adorned with reliefs referring to the events of 1813-15.

The Royal Guard House (Königswache; Pl. r, K 2) was constructed by Schinkel in the Doric style in 1816-18 in the form of a Roman fortified gate. Adjoining it are three large cannon; the central one ('Valérie') was brought from Fort Mont Valérien at Paris in 1871. Military music here in summer daily at 11 a.m. (at noon on Sat. and Sun.).

At the back of the guard-house is the residence of the Minister of Finance (Pl. r; K, 2). To the left of this, and farther back, is the Singing Academy (Pl. r; K, 2), founded by Fasch in 1791, and now under the management of Prof. Blumner (adm., see p. 13).

To the E. of the guard-house, fronting to the S., is the Arsenal (Pl. r; K, 2), one of the best buildings in Berlin, begun by Nering in 1695 and carried to completion by Grünberg, Schlüter (1698-99), and De Bodt (1706). It is a square structure, each side of which is 295 ft. in length, enclosing a quadrangle 125 ft. square. Above the principal portal is a bust of Frederick I., in whose reign the building was erected. The exterior is richly adorned with fine sculptures by Schlüter, among which the *Heads of Expiring Warriors on the keystones of the window-arches in the court are especially remarkable for the vigour of their expression. In 1877-80 the interior underwent a thorough alteration under the superintendence of Hitzig (d. 1881), and it was re-opened as a Military Museum and 'Hall of Fame' (adm., see p. 15; official handbook 50 pf.).

The main portal, in the middle of the S. façade, has a bronze bust of Frederick I. above it and allegorical figures to its right and left (all by Hulot).

The rooms of the GROUND FLOOR, unfortunately somewhat poorly lighted, are fitted up as a museum of artillery and engineering. They are separated by handsome iron railings and adorned with mural paintings in grisaille (siege operations) by Burger. The rooms to the right (E.) contain the Collection of Ordnance, which is more remarkable for its historical completeness than for specimens of fine workmanship. Many of the pieces are spoils of war. — The rooms to the W. (left) of the vestibule are devoted to the Collection of Engineering Apparatus and Models, which includes sapping, mining, and other engineering implements, models of old French fortresses brought from Paris in 1814, plans of the storming of Düppel and the battle of Königgrätz, the keys of several captured fortresses, and a few pictures of historical interest (portraits of the gigantic grenadiers of Fred. William I., etc.). Most of the flags on the pillars were also brought from Paris in 1814.

Opposite the vestibule is the entrance to the glass-roofed COURT, round which are ranged groups of French cannon, overhung by French flags, both captured in the war of 1870-71. The centre is occupied by a colossal marble figure of Borussia, by R. Begas. — From the back of the court two flights of steps, adorned with sculptures, ascend to the Hall of Fame, which occupies the N. wing of the UPPER STOREY and consists of three sections — the 'Herrscherhalle' in the middle and the two 'Feldherrnhallen' at the sides. The 'Hall of the Rulers' is 70 ft. square and about the same in height and is lighted by a cupola. The 'Triumphal Procession on the dome, the large *Paintings on the walls (Resuscitation of the German Empire, War, Peace, and Valhalla), and the four Virtues of Rulers (Bravery, Justice, Wisdom, and Moderation) in the corners, are all by Gesellschaft. The following are the paintings in the side-niches: Homage of the Silesian Estates in 1741, by Camphausen; Assembling of the Volunteers at Breslau in 1813, by Bleibtreu; Coronation at Königsberg in 1701, by A. von Werner; and the Proclamation of the German Empire at Versailles in 1871, also by Werner. The sculptures include a marble Victory by Schaper (in the central recess, opposite the entrance) and eight bronze statues of Prussian rulers from the Great Elector to the Emperor William I., by Encke, Brunow, Hilgers, Hundrieser, and Schuler, and busts of Scharnhorst, Stein, Bismarck, and Roon. The 'Halls of the Generals' are adorned with twelve mural paintings of battles. Those in the hall to the left are the Battle of Turin (1706), by Knackfuss; the Passage of the Kurische Hafl by the Great Elector (1679), by Simler; the Battle of Fehrbellin (1676), by Janssen; Torgau (1760), by Janssen; Hohenfriedberg (1745), by Janssen; and Frederick the Great before the battle of Leuthen (1757), by Rober. Those in the hall to the right are the Capitulation at Sedan (1870), by Steffek; the Storming of St. Privat (1870), by Bleibtreu; the Meeting of King William and the Crown Prince at Königgrätz (1866), by Steffek; the Allied Monarchs at Leipzig (1813), by Schuch; Waterloo (Belle Alliance; 1815), by Bleibtreu; and Düppel (1864), by Rober. The plastic ornamentation includes colossal busts of 32 eminent leaders of the Prussian army and four allegorical figures in marble, two by Begas (to the left) and two by Schaper (to the right). The busts were executed under the superintendence of R. Begas by various sculptors.

The W., N., and E. wings of the upper floor contain the *Collection of Weapons and Armour, which is divided into three sections, the Oriental, the Medieval, and the Modern. The last two are arranged in historical order. The collection has recently been improved by the purchase of numerous valuable specimens from the armoury of Prince Charles (d. 1883). — A special section contains uniforms and orders of the emperors William I. and Frederick III.; column and gifts in honour of the jubilee of William I.; sword and orders of Field-Marshal Count Moltke.

On the S. side of the Zeughaus-Platz is the Palace of the Empress Victoria (Palais der Kaiserin Friedrich; Pl. r, K 2), which is connected with the so-called Palace of the Princesses by an arch over the Oberwall-Strasse. It owes its present form to the alterations made by Strack in 1857 on an earlier palace, occupied from 1780 to 1840 by Frederick William III. From 1858 to 1888 it was the winter residence of the Crown Prince Frederick William and his family. — To the E. of the palace is the Residence of the Commandant (Pl. r; K, 2), which adjoins the Schinkel-Platz.

To the S.E. of the Commandant's Residence, along the Spree, extends the SCHINKEL-PLATZ (Pl. r; K, 2), which is adorned with three statues in bronze. In the centre that of Schinkel* (d. 1841), by Drake; on the right that of Thaer (d. 1828), the agriculturist, Rauch's last work, completed by Hagen; on the left that of Beuth (d. 1853), to whose efforts Prussia has been much indebted for her advance in industrial pursuits, designed by Kiss, with reliefs by Drake.

To the S. of the Schinkel-Platz stands the old Bau-Akademie, or Academy of Architecture (Pl. r; K, 2), a lofty square edifice erected by Schinkel in 1832-35. The successful union of mediæval structural forms with Greek details in the brick and terracotta façades stamps this as one of Schinkel's most interesting creations. Most of the rooms are now occupied by the pupils of the Academy of Art (p. 26). In the E. wing is the Geographical Institute of the University (director, Prof. von Richthofen). In the S. part of the groundfloor is the Royal Meteorological Institute, founded by Alex. von Humboldt in 1848. On the second floor is the Royal Collection of Musical Instruments (adm., see p. 16).

In the Werder-Markt, to the W. of the Bau-Akademie, is the Friedrich-Werder Church (Pl. r; K, 2), a brick and terracotta structure erected by Schinkel in 1824-30. The exterior, in modified Gothic, is not happy, but the vaulted interior is more pleasing. The altar-piece is a Resurrection by K. Begas the Elder; at the sides, Four Evangelists by W. Schadow. On the front of the organ-choir, Faith, Hope, and Charity, by Wach. Sacristan, Oberwall-Str. 21.

At Unterwasser-Str. 2 is the Royal Mint (Pl. r, K, 2, 3; no admission). Its fine sandstone frieze, designed by F. Gilly and executed by Schadow, represents the processes of obtaining and treating the metals.

The Schleusen-Brücke or Werder-Brücke (Pl. r; K, 2) leads to the Schloss-Platz (see p. 34).

b. The Schloss-Brücke and Schloss.

In a straight line with the E. prolongation of the Linden is the Schloss-Brücke (palace-bridge), 106 ft. in width, constructed in 1822-24 from designs by Schinkel, and crossing the arm of the Spree which separates Alt-Kölln from the Friedrichs-Werder. It was adorned by Frederick William IV. with eight groups in marble, over lifesize, illustrative of the life of a warrior.

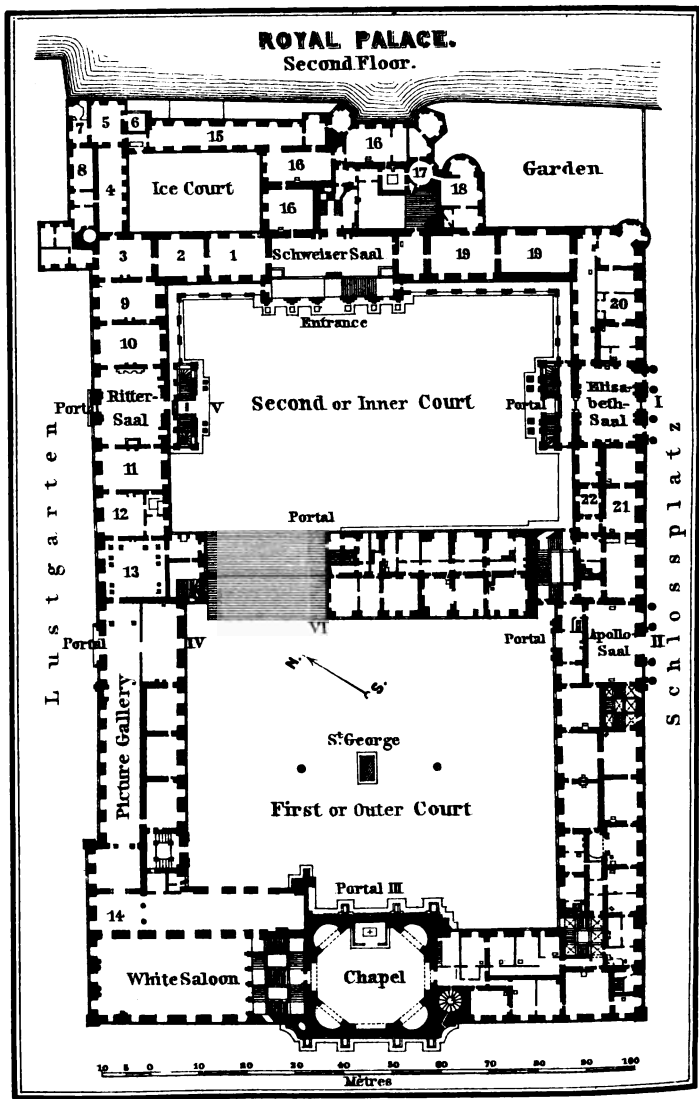

On the S.: 1. Victory teaches the boy the history of the heroes, by E. Wolff; 2. Minerva instructs the youth in the use of weapons, by Schiewelbein; 3. Minerva presents the combatant with arms, by Möller; *4. Victory crowns the conqueror, by Drake. On the N.: 5. Victory raises the wounded warrior, by Wichmann; *6. Minerva protecting and aiding a combatant, by Bläser; 7. Minerva inciting him to a new contest, by A. Wolff; 8. Iris conducts the victorious fallen warrior to Olympus, by Wredow. — The handsome parapet also merits attention.

To the right, beyond the bridge, on the site of the former Schloss-freiheit, stands the —

National Monument to Emp. William I., an imposing work by R. Begas, unveiled on 22nd March, 1897. On a pedestal 36 ft. in height rises the colossal equestrian figure of the emperor (29 ft. high), in bronze, with an ideal female figure, bearing a palm-branch and leading the horse by the bridle. At the four corners of the base are Victories, standing upon globes, with flowers and wreaths; and on the two principal sides are reliefs of War and Peace respectively, beneath which are seated colossal figures of corresponding import. Projecting from the base are four pedestals, on each of which rises a majestic lion amid trophies of weapons and banners. Behind extends a portico or colonnade, 260 ft. in length, with rich sculptured ornamentation, ending in corner-pavilions which bear colossal quadrigæ of wrought copper, representing N. and S. Germany.

To the left extends the LUSTGARTEN (Pl. r; K, 2), a square 247 yds. in length, and 220 yds. in width, originally a garden belonging to the palace, and afterwards converted into a drill-ground by Frederick William I. It is now planted with trees and is bounded by the Royal Palace (S.) and the Old Museum (N.; p. 34). In the centre, on a pedestal of granite 20 ft. in height, rises the equestrian *Statue of Frederick William III., by A. Wolff, inaugurated on 16th June, 1871, during the festival in celebration of the victories over the French. The pedestal is adorned with allegorical figures of Clio (in the front), Borussia with the Rhine and Memel on the right, Science with Industry and Art on the left, and Religion at the back. Beyond the statue, in front of the steps of the old Museum, is a huge Granite Basin, 22 ft. in diameter, and 75 tons in weight, hewn out of a solid erratic block of ten times the weight.

On the site of the old cathedral, to the E. of the Lustgarten, a new edifice by Raschdorff is now in course of erection. This will consist of a church, a wedding and baptismal chapel, and a burial-chapel for the reigning family. The cost of the building is estimated at 10 million marks (500,000*l.*), and its completion is looked for in 1900.

Passing between this building and the palace, we reach the imposing Kaiser-Wilhelm-Brücke, with artistic embellishments by Lüssen.

The *Royal Palace (Pl. r; K, L, 2) is in the form of a rectangle 650 ft. in length and 380 ft. in depth, enclosing two larger and two smaller courts. It rises in four stories to the height of 100 ft., while the dome above it is 230 ft. high.

The original building was a castle erected by Elector Frederick II. on the Spree in 1443-51. In 1538 Joachim II. added a wing by Caspar Thies, facing the Schloss-Platz, the whole forming a handsome example of the German Renaissance, highly praised by contemporary critics. Elector John George finished the enclosure of the E. court in 1580-96 and began another one to the W. Under the Great Elector, who at first directed his energies to laying out the Lustgarten, Nering erected the Throne Room in 1681, and the round-arched gallery on the Spree in 1685. The Elector's successor, Frederick I., the first King of Prussia, determined to replace the irregular pile of buildings that had now arisen by a uniform structure of massive and imposing proportions, and confided the execution of this task to the architect Schlüter, who began his work in 1693. The gigantic scheme of alteration thus projected has, however, never been fully carried out, the part of the building on the Spree still retaining its original form. Schlüter was succeeded by Eosander von Goethe, to whom is due the architecture of the largest court and of the W. façade towards the Schlossfreiheit. In 1716 the process of alteration was brought by Böhme to a conclusion for the nonce, and during the reigns of Frederick William II. comparatively trifling additions only were made. The spacious chapel in the W. wing, with its vast dome, was constructed in the reign of Frederick William IV. by Stüler and Schadow (1845-52), and greatly enhances the effect of the exterior. A new period of building activity began under William II., who made the palace once more the actual residence of the reigning sovereign; and the W. wing has recently undergone a thorough reconstruction from the designs of Jane. — The rooms occupied by the imperial family are on the first floor overlooking the Schloss-Platz. A purple banner, on the N. side, indicates the Emperor's presence.

The exterior of the palace is in general effect massive and imposing. It has, however, received but little of the intended plastic embellishment. The two principal façades, both by Schlüter, display a pleasing diversity of style, that to the S. being distinguished by monumental severity, while that to the N. is enlivened with light and elegant details. The portal in the W. façade, by Eosander, is an imitation of the triumphal arch of Septimius Severus. The best example of Schlüter's work is seen in the *Inner Court, which is surrounded with arcades on three sides. The block of buildings that separates this from the Outer Courts belongs to the edifice of 1580, but its ornamental details are modern. The S. portion of the water-front, next the Kurfürsten-Brücke, which is well seen from the Burg-Str., formed part of the castle of Joachim II.; the adjoining, projecting portion, with the turret, was built early in the 17th century. Next to the latter is the gallery, built by Nering in 1685, with High Renaissance details.

At the portal towards the Lustgarten are the Horse Tamers, two large groups in bronze, by Baron Clodt of St. Petersburg, presented by the Emp. Nicholas in 1842. The first court is adorned with St. George and the dragon, a group in bronze by Kiss, erected in 1865.

*Interior. Admission; see p. 16. Visitors receive their tickets in the inner court, on the ground-floor to the left, and are conducted through the state-rooms in parties every half-hour. They enter the palace by the large portal on the E. side of the quadrangle, where umbrellas and sticks are left. The building contains about 700 apartments. The first room shown is the SCHWEIZER-SAAL (see Plan), or old guard-room. Next to it come two ANTE-CHAMBERS (Nos. 1 & 2 on Plan), one of which contains portraits of the mother, sister, brother, and wife of Frederick the Great, by Peene; in the other are portraits of the Great Elector and his family, Frederick William I. as crown-prince, Peter the Great, and Catharine II. of Russia. The KÖNIGSZIMMER (3), which we next enter, lies in the N. wing of the palace, and contains the portraits of all the Prussian monarchs and their consorts down to Emp. Frederick.

To the W. of the Königszimmer is a series of RECEPTION ROOMS by Schlüter, all somewhat overladen with ornament. The *ROTHER DRAP D'OR KAMMER (9), which we first enter, contains a handsome silver memorial, presented by the City of Berlin on the marriage of Crown Prince William (1853), and also a large picture by Camphausen representing Emperor William I. at Gravelotte. The ROTHE ADLER KAMMER (10) is adorned with Camphausen's picture of the Great Elector and his generals and a silver shield presented by Berlin to Frederick William IV. In the *RITTER-SAAL, or OLD THRONE ROOM, the gorgeous rococo decoration reaches its culmination. The well-designed allegorical *Groups of the four quarters of the globe, above the side-doors, are among the best efforts of Schlüter. The beautiful carving of the large central door also deserves notice. The gallery above it was formerly of solid silver. Among the gold and silver plate on the handsome sideboard, mostly dating from the time of the first two Prussian kings, is a tankard by Jannitzer. The crystal chandelier was purchased from the city of Worms by Frederick William III.; beneath it Luther is said to have stood in the diet of 1521. The SCHWARZE ADLER KAMMER (11) contains a large picture by Camphausen, representing Frederick the Great surrounded by his generals. In the RED VELVET ROOM (12) are good portraits of the Great Elector, of Frederick I., and of Sophia Charlotte, wife of the latter, all in handsome old frames. The old furniture and hangings are noticeable. The old CHAPEL (13) has lately been restored in the original style and fitted up for the meetings of the Order of the Black Eagle.

The PICTURE GALLERY, 106 ft. in length, contains numerous portraits and scenes from recent Prussian history. Above the entrance-door, Peter the Great; adjacent, Sultan Solymán II., by Lievens; above the other doors, Gustavus Adolphus and Maria Theresia. Among the portraits of other foreign monarchs the most interesting are: Charles I. of England and his queen, by Van Dyck; Catharine II., by Nef; Napoleon crossing the St. Bernhard, by David, brought from Paris by Blücher. The portraits of Prussian monarchs include the Emperor William and Empress Augusta by Winterhalter, a large equestrian portrait of Fred. William III. by Krüger, and a fine portrait of Fred. William I. Among the historical pictures are: Menzel, Coronation of King William I. at Königsberg in 1861; Sieffert, King William at the Battle of Sedowa, or Königgrätz, in 1866; Camphausen, Emp. William I. entering Berlin in 1871; A. von Werner, King William proclaimed Emperor at Versailles in 1871, presented by the German princes. At the end of the gallery, to the right, is a sculptured group by Schadow of Queen Louise and her sister. — The KÖNIGIN-ZIMMER (14) contains portraits of all the Queens of Prussia.

We now reach the W. Wing and enter the new GALLERY OF THE WHITE SALOON, which is adorned with fine Gobelin's tapestry (scenes from 'Don Quixote'; 1774-78) and with portraits of Queen Victoria, the Prince of Wales, Alexander II., and other royal friends of the Emperor. It communicates by several doors with the WHITE SALOON, a large hall 105 ft. in length, 50 ft. in width, and 40 ft. high, completed by Stüler in 1844 and remodelled by Inne in 1894-95. The ceiling has been raised and has received a rich plastic decoration. The reliefs on the vaulting between the walls and the ceiling are by O. Lessing and represent victorious war as the fosterer of art, science, trade, and industry. The niches in the side of the hall are occupied by models of statues of Prussian rulers at the age of their accession to the throne, to be carved in white marble. The opening of the Reichstag and of the Landtag (Prussian Diet) takes place in the White Saloon.

The adjoining STAIRCASE is embellished with marble statues and reliefs. — The PALACE CHAPEL, an octagonal edifice, 113 ft. in height, and 68-75 ft. in diameter, is lined and paved with marble of different colours, and adorned with frescoes on a gold ground. The altar with its four columns is of yellow Egyptian marble, the pulpit and candelabra of Carrara marble. The acoustic properties of the chapel are very poor.

The chapel terminates the series of rooms shown to the general public, though the attractions of the palace are by no means exhausted by the foregoing inspection, but the other parts of the building are almost never accessible. The Königszimmer (Pl. 3; p. 32) is adjoined on the right or Spree side by the so-called OLD RECEPTION ROOMS (Die Paradenkammern), the handsome floors and other rich decorations of which date from the early part of the reign of Elector Frederick III. (1688-1713). The first of these is the WAINSCOTED GALLERY (Boiserte Gallerie; 4), with portraits of the Great Elector, his two wives, his parents, his children, and other relatives. The KURFÜRSTENZIMMER (5) contains portraits of all the Hohenzollern Electors, and is supplemented by an ante-room devoted to the old Counts of Zollern and Burgravates of Nuremberg. Next to these are the CHINESE CABINET (6a), the CROWN CABINET (6), in which the crown-jewels used to be kept, FREDERICK I.'s ORATORY (7), and the BRIDAL CHAMBER (8), still used for the royal marriages. Farther on, also on the water-side, are the NEUE GALLERIE (15), the BRUNSWICK APARTMENTS (16), the THURM-ZIMMER (17) in the 'Grüne Hut', adorned with views of the palace in the time of the Electors by C. and P. Græb, the adjoining KAPPELLENZIMMER, the KLEIN APARTMENTS (18), in the German Renaissance style, with ten paintings by L. Cranach, the ELISABETH-KAMMERN (18), and lastly the APARTMENTS OF PRINCESS MARIE (20), in a room adjoining which (21) Frederick the Great was born on 24th Jan., 1712. On the first floor are the *KÖNIGSKAMMERN, built for Frederick William II., now devoted to the use of foreign princes; and also the rooms once occupied by Frederick the Great, and at present forming part of the Emperor William II.'s suite. The rooms of Fred. William I. on the groundfloor of the N.W. wing, afterwards known as the 'Petits Appartements' of Fred. William II., are maintained in the taste of last century.

Distributed throughout these apartments and in different palaces at Potsdam are a number of paintings of the Netherlands School of the 17th cent. and the French School of the 18th cent., many of great excellence.

The White Lady, a spectre which traditionally haunts the palaces of Baireuth and Berlin, and periodically appears to portend the death of a member of the royal house of Hohenzollern, is said to be the ghost of the Countess Agnes of Orlamünde, who murdered her two children in order that she might be enabled to marry the Burggrave Albert of Nuremberg, ancestor of the Electors of Brandenburg.

In the Schloss-Platz, to the S. of the Palace, is a Monumental Fountain by Begas, presented to the Emperor William II. by the magistrates of Berlin, and unveiled in 1891; in the centre is Neptune, surrounded by the Rhine, Oder, Elbe, and Vistula. — In the N.E. angle of the square is a 'barometer column' in the shape of an obelisk crowned with the globe, by Schmitz.

c. The Royal Museums. The National Gallery.

The *Old Museum (Pl. r; K, 2), on the N. side of the Lustgarten, an admirable building in the Greek style, the finest in Berlin, with an Ionic portico of eighteen columns, and approached by a broad flight of steps, was erected by Schinkel in 1824-28 (length 284 ft., depth 175 ft., height 62 ft.). The central part of the structure, rising above the rotunda in the interior, is adorned at the corners with four colossal groups in bronze: in front, the Horse Tamers of the Piazza del Quirinale at Rome, a copy by Tieck; at the back, Pegasus refreshed by the Horæ, by Schievelbein and Hagen. The steps are flanked by two large groups in bronze: right, *Amazon on horse-back, defending herself against a tiger, by Kiss; left, Fight with a lion, by A. Wolff.

The VESTIBULE contains marble statues of Schinkel (d. 1841) by Tieck, Otfr. Müller (d. 1840) by Tondeur, Rauch (d. 1857) by Drake, Winckelmann (d. 1768) by Wichmann, G. Schadow (d. 1850) by Hagen, Cornelius (d. 1867) by A. Calandrelli, G. W. von Knobelsdorff (d. 1753) by Begas the Younger, and Chodowiecki (d. 1801) by Paul Otto. — The frescoes, designed by Schinkel, and executed under the direction of Cornelius, represent (on the left) the development of the world from chaos, and (on the right) the progress of human culture. (Schinkel's original designs, in the Schinkel Museum, p. 88, with a key attached, afford more satisfaction than the frescoes themselves.)

The UPPER VESTIBULE, to which a double staircase ascends, is adorned with a copy of the celebrated ancient Warwick Vase in England. The frescoes, also designed by Schinkel, represent the struggle of civilised mankind against barbarians and the elements.

— A fine view of the Lustgarten with its fountains, the Schloss, etc., is obtained hence from between the columns. — A door here leads into the gallery encircling the rotunda (see p. 45), while two others (open in summer only) admit direct to Saloons No. III (to the right) and No. IX (to the left) of the picture-gallery (pp. 43, 45).

At the back of the Old Museum, to the N.W., and connected with it by a short passage crossing the street (comp. Plan, p. 36), is situated the New Museum (Pl. r; K, 1), erected by Stüler in the Renaissance style in 1843-55 (length 344 ft., depth 130 ft.; height of the central part, with the grand staircase, 102 ft.). The exterior of this edifice is comparatively insignificant, its chief attraction consisting in the rich and artistic internal decorations. These perhaps are almost too elaborate, as their tendency is to throw the contents of the Museum into the shade. The rapid increase of the collections has led to the most undesirable over-crowding of certain departments.

The ENTRANCE (adm., p. 16) to both museums is in the vestibule of the Old Museum, which is reached by a broad flight of steps from the Lustgarten (comp. Plan). There is a SECOND ENTRANCE to the New Museum on the N.E. side, opposite the National Gallery, leading directly to the Egyptian and Assyrian Collections.

The Director General of the Museums is Dr. Richard Schoene. — Dr. Bode is Director of the Picture Gallery and of the Collection of Christian Sculptures, Prof. Kekulé of the Collection of Antiquities, Dr. Lippmann of the Cabinet of Engravings, Prof. Ernst Curtius of the Antiquarium, and Prof. von Sallet of the Collection of Coins, while Prof. Erman is at the head of the Egyptian and Assyrian Department.

The following pages contain a short notice of the principal treasures of the Museums. Details will be found in the excellent official catalogue (50 pf.). The catalogues offered for sale outside the Museums are dear and untrustworthy.

1. COLLECTIONS IN THE OLD MUSEUM.

The Gallery of Antiquities is chiefly indebted for its origin to Frederick the Great, who purchased at Rome the collection of Cardinal Polignac. Most of its contents were formerly of mediocre merit, dating from the later Roman Empire, and freely restored, but the acquisition of the Pergamenian sculptures in 1879 and the purchase of the Saburow collection of Attic sculptures in 1884 have placed the gallery upon quite a different footing. The different objects are labelled, and a catalogue (1 M) was issued in 1885. A large illustrated account of the collection may be obtained for 25 M (1891).

The arrangement begins with the Rotunda, a large circular hall, covered with glass, and producing an impression of great spaciousness (entr., see above). Between the columns supporting the gallery (with the Raphael tapestry, p. 45) are several ancient statues and a Hon in Pentelic marble (4th cent. B.C.).

This room also contains the two Friezes of the Altar of Zeus on the Acropolis of Pergamus, discovered by the engineer Herr Humann, and excavated by him in 1879-80 under the direction of Dr. Conze. These exquisite reliefs formed the artistic decoration of a huge altar to Zeus, probably erected by Eumenes II. about the year B.C. 180 in honour of his decisive victory over the Gauls before the gates of Pergamus. The larger frieze, the figures in which are of colossal size, adorned the exterior of the altar, and represents the triumph of the Gods, led by Zeus and Athene, over the Giants. About two-thirds of it have been found. The smaller and more pleasing reliefs from the interior (not all shown at present) consist of scenes from the history of Telephus, the local hero of Pergamus. These sculptures are not conceived in the chaste and monumental style of the Parthenon reliefs, but are full of that strong dramatic feeling which was fostered by the protracted wars of Alexander and his generals. They also reveal a knowledge of the human form, a richness of fancy, and a mastery of execution, such as are possessed by no other antique remains on so large a scale. — The other fragments of the frieze are exhibited in the room adjoining the Hall of the Heroes on the E. (comp. Plan).

From the Rotunda we enter the — Hall of the Heroes, in eleven 'compartments' divided by columns, chiefly containing marble statues. Comp. XXI (at the end, to the right): 50. Apollo Citharæus; 218. Euterpe; 208. Polyhymnia. — Comp. XX: 585. So-called Niobide. No number, Dancing Mænad, a fine Greek decorative work of the time of the Diadochi, or successors of Alexander. — [The Etruscan Cabinet, adjoining this compartment on the S., contains a number of sarcophagi and urns (mostly dating from the 2nd or 3rd cent. B.C.), with reliefs. The figures of the dead are usually represented in a recumbent position on the lid. To the right are ancient painted terracottas from Cære.] — Comp. XIX: 485. Thorn Extractor; *7. Amazon (after Polykleitos). — Comp. XVIII: 494. Girl playing with astragali; 591. Calliope; 222. Urania. — Comp. XIV: 302. Demosthenes; 295. Herodotus. — Comp. XIII: 4. Statue of a boy, in bronze, found in the Rhine, near Xanten; *23. Torso of Venus, an admirable Greek work. — Comp. XII: Large Sarcophagus; at the window, 297. Euripides; by the wall-pillar, 342. Julius Cæsar, in basalt. — Comp. XI: 1061. Greek marble throne. Statues and busts of the late republican and early imperial epochs: 341. Julius Cæsar, draped statue; 399b. Portrait-head of a boy (early imperial epoch); 343. Emp. Augustus, a well-known statue from the Pourtales collection (freely restored); 363. Head of Antinous (found in the Nile); 532. Scipio Africanus the Elder, a colossal head in alabaster. — Greek Room. Comp. X: *3. Torso of a draped female figure in bronze, found at Cyzicus (4th cent.); *1. Bronze torso of an Ephebos, probably Apollo, found near Eleusis, an admirable work of the best Greek period (5th cent.); *2. Boy praying, a Greek bronze, possibly of the school of Lysippos, but perhaps of the 3rd or 2nd cent. B.C., purchased by Frederick the Great for 5000 thalers; it underwent restoration in France in the 17th cent. and it is therefore uncertain whether the present 'intention' is the same as the original. — Comp. IX: *788, *739. Two large Attic tomb-reliefs, in excellent preservation; *498, *499. Figures of two maid-servants, in a sitting posture, from an Attic tomb; 740. Fragment of the tomb of Nikarete (these all of the 4th cent. B.C.). — Comp. VIII: Draped Athena, Pergamenian copy of an ancient Attic work; 808. Bearded heads, one of the earliest Greek portraits extant; 736. Stale of Karystos; ancient copies of Attic works.

We now reach the *Sculptures of the Christian Epoch. This collection of works in marble, bronze, terracotta, and painted stucco is now perhaps unequalled out of Italy (illustrated catalogue, 2nd ed., 1893, 1 M 25 pf.).

Comp. VII. To the right: *Ant. Rossellino, Virgin and Child with two cherubim, in marble; opposite, *33a. Donatello, Young John the Baptist, coloured bust in stucco; to the left, 42. Donatello, Madonna with the Child, in marble; *39. Donatello, 'Madonna Pazzi', in marble; *38a. Donatello, Scourging of Christ, in marble; 203. Maestro Andrea, Front of a ciborium; 205. Roman Master (about 1500), Colossal marble bust of Pope Alexander VI.

Comp. VI. To the right, by the pillar: *276. Spanish Master (ca. 1620; Montañez?), Painted wooden bust, of great realism, of the Mater Dolorosa; 80. Mino, Bust of a woman (in marble); opposite, Mino, *79. Niccolò Strossi

COMP. V. To the right: *62a. Desiderio, Bust of a princess of Urbino, one of the most finished portraits in existence, executed in fine limestone from Urbino; to the left: 279. Pigalle, Mercury; 273. Fr. Maratti, Carlo Maratti.

COMP. IV. To the right are works by Verrocchio: Statuette (86, *93) and Studies for terracotta reliefs (*97a. Entombment); 86, 99. Matthew Corvinus and his wife, marble reliefs. — 225. Andrea Sansovino (?), Marble bust of Theodora Cibo, daughter of Pope Innocent VIII. — 104a. Florentine Master, Bust of Giuliano de' Medici. On the principal wall: *247. Aless. Vittoria, Ott. Grimani, marble bust; opposite, *208. Michael Angelo, Youthful John the Baptist, an early masterpiece (1495); to the left: 187. Venetian Master, Portrait bust (end of 15th cent.).

Following Saloon. COMP. I and II. 165, 166. Leopardi, Marble shield-bearers from the Vendramin tomb at Venice; 129a. Giov. della Robbia, Pietà, a large group in painted terracotta; 191a. Master of Bologna (15th cent.), Madonna and cherubim (painted terracotta). In a cabinet is a rich Collection of Early Christian and Byzantine Ivory Reliefs*. — COMP. III contains the very interesting collection of Early Christian and Early Romanesque Stone Reliefs, and also several excellent works of later Romanesque and Gothic times. 21d. Large Madonna by the master Martin, dating from the year 1189, with faultlessly preserved painting; *23. Giov. Pisano, Madonna; 24. Giov. Pisano, Reading-desk in marble; 22. Niccolò Pisano, Reading-desk in marble; *25. Andrea Pisano, Crucifixion in wood; 93. Bust of a South Italian princess (from Scala, near Ravello; ca. 1270); Bust of a prince (Roman; 15th cent.). — At the entrance to the last room: 201. Cristof. Solari, Portrait of a young man; 226. Andrea Sansovino, Portrait of Cardinal Antonio del Monte.

End Saloon. To the left: unglazed works by Luca della Robbia, the best of which are *113 and *115. Farther on: 87. Benedetto da Majano, Vision of Innocent III.; 84. A. Rossellino, Adoration of the Shepherds, terracotta model for the marble relief in the Bargello at Florence; *85. Ben. da Majano, Painted terracotta bust of Fil. Strozzi. — On the back-wall: 87. A. Rossellino, Marble bust; *86. Ben. da Majano, Madonna, a large, painted terracotta figure, the finest work of its kind; *81. Fr. Laurana, Marble bust of a princess of Naples. — To the right: *89a. Donatello, Madonna; *141. Florentine Master (ca. 1510), Giov. Rucellai, painted stucco bust; 108b, etc. Madonna-reliefs in painted terracotta and stucco, of the school of Quercia; *Annunciation, in wood. — This room also contains in glass-cases and on shelves numerous statuettes and models by Verrocchio, Ben. da Majano, Bernini, Giov. da Bologna, etc.

Opposite the entrance from the rotunda, a staircase (on which is a model of a Greek quinquereme) descends from the Hall of the Heroes to the ground-floor of the Old Museum, containing the Library for the use of the officials, and the Cabinet of Coins.

The Cabinet of Coins contains 200,000 specimens, of which about 80,000 are ancient (35,000 Greek and 35,000 Roman). The collection of Greek coins has been much enriched by the purchase of the For and Prokesch-Osten cabinets (each of which cost 15,000*l.*) and other additions. The collection of oriental, mediæval, and modern coins is also very extensive. The Collection of Italian Medals of the 15th and 16th cent., formerly in the possession of Elisa Bonaparte-Bacciocchi, Grand Duchess of Tuscany, and also the collection of German Medals are remarkably complete. A selection of the finest medals and coins, and a collection of box-wood and soapstone matrices for the German medals, are exhibited in glass-cases. Catalogue for sale (50 pf.). Visitors who wish to examine the coins more closely must apply to the director.

The double staircase from the Hall of the Heroes ascends to the Passage connecting the old and new Museums (p. 45), whence we proceed direct to the Roman Cupola Saloon of the New Museum (p. 47); or we may turn in the opposite direction and ascend a few more steps to the Second Floor of the Old Museum, containing the picture-gallery. — Direct approach to the picture-gallery (in summer only) from the vestibule of the Old Museum, see p. 35.

The nucleus of the Picture Gallery consists of the collections of Mr. Solly, an Englishman, purchased in 1821 for 750,000 thalers (110,000*l.*) and of a selection made from the various royal galleries in Berlin and Potsdam on the establishment of the Museum in 1829. The Solly collection yielded most of the Italian pictures of the 14th, 15th, and 16th cent., most of the works of the early Flemish and German schools, and numerous examples of later Dutch and Flemish painters. The contributions from the royal collections embrace the masterpieces of the Dutch and Flemish schools, the majority of the German works, many of the Italian paintings of the 16th and 17th cent., and a few French pictures. Nearly all the works of Caravaggio and the other Italian 'academics' and 'naturalists' now in the Gallery once formed part of the Giustiniani Collection, one-half of which was purchased at Paris in 1815. — After the opening of the museums the work of extension progressed steadily under Dr. Waagen (d. 1867), the first director, who acquired numerous pictures of various periods and schools, though few of them were works of the first order. After 1850 the progress of the Gallery came almost to a stand-still, but in 1873, under a new director, the spirit of rivalry with the other European galleries gave it a fresh impetus. Since that date numerous admirable works of various schools have been added, the most important acquisition having been the Suermondt Collection, consisting chiefly of Dutch paintings, which was purchased in 1874 for 50,000*l.*

The importance of the Berlin Gallery consists rather in its representation of the most various styles and epochs, than in its possession of masterpieces by the great painters, although it is by no means entirely deficient in works of the highest class. In historical completeness it vies with the National Gallery at London, which has been formed during the same period and under similar auspices. The collection of early Italian and Flemish works of the 15th cent. is particularly rich, and the growing appreciation for these schools has also enhanced the reputation of the Berlin gallery.

Among works of the EARLY NETHERLANDISH SCHOOL the Gallery possesses the large winged altar-piece from Ghent by the brothers Hubert and Jan van Eyck, the finest work of the school, and the first painting executed wholly in oils. Roger van der Weyden, the best of the followers of the Van Eycks, is represented by three admirable altar-pieces. Petrus Cristus, Dierick Bouts, and the Master of the Merode Altar are also well represented; by Hans Memling are a Madonna and an excellent portrait. The museum contains the only known work by Albert Dürer. The Virgin and Child of Quinten Massys, who forms a link between the early Flemish school and the Renaissance, is one of that master's best efforts. — The contemporary OLD FRENCH SCHOOL is represented by an admirable portrait by Fouquet.

The EARLY ITALIAN MASTERS are particularly well represented in the Berlin Gallery. Among the painters of the 14th century we meet Duccio, Giotto, the Gaddi, Simone Memmi, and Lorenzetti. The Last Judgment of Fra Angelico, the Madonnas with saints of Sandro Botticelli and Cosimo Tura, the Woman's Portrait by Piero della Francesca, the Pan and Portrait of Luca Signorelli, the large altar-piece by Vivarini, the Pieta of Giov. Bellini, and the small portrait by Antonello da Messina rank among the finest creations of these leading masters of the 15th century. The Madonna of Andr. Verrocchio, the Annunciation and St. Sebastian of Piero Pollajuolo, the allegorical pieces by Melozzo da Forlì, three small panels by Masaccio, and the Adoration of the Magi by Vittore Pisano are among the greatest rarities in the Gallery. — The GOLDEN PERIOD OF ITALIAN ART is neither so fully nor so well represented. Of the four works by Raphael three belong to his earliest period, and one, the Madonna di Casa Colonna, is unfinished. The rare Sebastiano del Piombo is illustrated by several works, one of which is the so-called 'Fornarina' from the Blenheim collection. The admirable altar-piece by Andrea del Sarto is a masterpiece. The Assumption of Fra Bartolommeo belongs to the period of his co-operation with Albertinelli. His rare contemporary Franciabigio is represented by two portraits. Bronzino, the best-known portrait painter of Florence, is illustrated by a masterly portrait of Ugolino Martelli. — Among the MASTERS OF CHIAROSCURO Leonardo da Vinci is illustrated by a highly interesting altar-piece of the Resurrection, and Correggio is represented by one of his most attractive works, the Leda. The Io is merely a well-executed copy by a contemporary. — Titian, the chief of the VENETIAN SCHOOL, is illustrated by a few portraits only; Giorgione by one attractive portrait. The Gallery also contains altar-pieces and ceiling-paintings by Bordone, Francesco Vecellio, Tintoretto, Paolo Veronese, and Lor. Lotto, all of which, however, are excelled by several admirable portraits by Lotto. — The BRESCIAN SCHOOL is unusually well represented by works of Romanino, Savoldo, Moroni, and Moretto.

ITALIAN ART IN THE 17TH CENTURY is abundantly and well exemplified by a number of the naturalistic works in which it was most successful. Caravaggio, in particular, is represented by works of every size and description, while Guido Reni is seen to advantage in a fine altar-piece of his early period. Carlo Maratti contributes an admirable portrait. — The second short revival of the Venetian school is represented by good works by Tiepolo and Bellotto.

The gem of the EARLY GERMAN SCHOOL is Holbein's portrait of the merchant Gisz, which formed part of the Solly collection, and is justly regarded as one of the very finest works by this master. Two other admirable portraits by Holbein belonged to the Suermondt Cabinet. The gallery has recently been enriched by six genuine specimens of Albrecht Dürer: a portrait of Elector Frederick the Wise (of his early period), the admirable portrait of Muffel (1526), the celebrated Holzschuher portrait, considered the finest he ever painted (1526; bought in 1884 for 17,500*l.*), the Madonna with the siskin, the portrait of a lady (these two painted in Venice), and lastly a Mater Dolorosa. The collection also contains masterpieces of two of his best pupils, Hans von Kulmbach and Albrecht Altdorfer. Of the examples of Lucas Cranach, the 'Jungbrunnen' and a few of the small portraits only are in his best style. Penex, Amberger, and Bruyn, and also the early Cologne and Westphalian masters, are represented by characteristic examples.

THE NETHERLANDISH ART OF THE 16-17TH CENTURIES, the period of the development of the two great national schools of the Flemings and the Dutch, may be studied here to great advantage in all its various departments. Of the works of Peter Paul Rubens, the versatile chief of the FLEMISH SCHOOL, the Gallery possesses a small but choice collection, nearly all executed without the aid of pupils. The Raising of Lazarus is one of his best altar-pieces, the Rescue of Andromeda and Diana at the Chase are charming examples of his mythological style, the St. Cecilia and the larger Andromeda are delightful in their bloom of colour. The unfinished Capture of Tunis affords an instructive insight into the technical method pursued by the great master. The St. Sebastian and the Neptune and Amphitrite are characteristic specimens of his early period. The school of Rubens is also well represented. The talents of Van Dyck are exhibited in a Pietà, one of his masterpieces, and in three altar-pieces of his first period, showing an exaggerated imitation of Rubens. The collection also contains good examples of Diepenbeek, Van Thulden, Van Mol, Snyders, and Fyt. The best works by Teniers the Younger are the Backgammon Players, the Temptation of St. Antony, and a Rural Feast. A large landscape by Adrian Brouwer is remarkable for its idealised fidelity to nature.

THE DUROM SCHOOL is also well represented. Frans Hals, the chief master of the earlier period, is nowhere else studied to so great advantage, except in the museum of his native town of Haarlem, the best examples of his skill being the Nurse and the Hille Bobbe. The collection of paintings by Rembrandt is one of the finest of its kinds and includes characteristic specimens in both his earlier and later manner. The two portraits of himself and that of the so-called Duke of Guelders are early works; the two small Biblical scenes, the large painting of Ansis and the Widow (acquired in 1894), the portrait of his wife Saskia, the portrait of his second wife Hen-drikkje Jaghere, the Vision of Daniel, the Joseph and Potiphar, and the Susanna are in his most mature style. Among the ten landscapes by Jacob van Ruysdael are four masterpieces. The Violoncello Player of Terburg is perhaps his most finished work. P. de Hooch, Van der Meer of Delft, Ph. de Koninck, A. van de Velde, Du Jardin, and Wouwerman are admirably represented; and the gallery also contains excellent examples of De Heem, Huyenem, Hondecoeter, Weenix, Kalf, and other depicitors of still-life.

The pictures are hung in strict historical order, the Germanic schools occupying the E. half of the building (to the left), the Romanesque schools the W. half (to the right). In point of lighting, attractive arrangement, and equipment the gallery yields to few or none. We begin our enumeration of the most important works with the small Vestibule, entered from the landing at the top of the double staircase (see p. 38). — Descriptive catalogue (3rd ed., 1891), 1 M.; the same, with 50 photogravures, 2 M. Photographs 80 pf. each. Each picture is inscribed with the name of the painter and the date of his birth and death.

The Vestibule contains *Choir Stalls, with intarsia work by Pantaleone de Marchis (ca. 1486) and a few decorative paintings by Paolo Veronese and Foggino. — We then turn to the left and enter — Saloon I (lighted from the roof). Early German Schools of the 15-16th centuries. To the left: *596a. Hans von Kulmbach, Adoration of the Magi; 618, 567a. L. Cramach the Elder, Portraits; *583. Amberger, The geographer Sebastian Münster. Holbein the Younger, 588. Jörg Glaze, a Bâle merchant in the Steelyard at London, one of the greatest triumphs of portrait painting (1532); *588b, 588c. Portraits. 556. Amberger, Emp. Charles V., a work of the most uncompromising realism, painted at the Diet of Augsburg in 1530. — A. Dürer, *557f. Madonna and angels (painted at Venice in 1506); 557c. Elector Frederick the Wise (an early work, ca. 1495); *557d. Portrait of Senator Muffel of Nuremberg, dated 1526; *557e. Hieronymus Holzschuher, patrician and senator of Nuremberg, the finest of Dürer's portraits, painted in 1526 (bought from Holzschuher's descendants in 1884 for 17,500*l.*); no number, *Dürer's wife Agnes (?), a picturesque little work, with a blue sky. Among the Dürers hang a number of good little paintings by A. Altdorfer. — 608a. Baldung, Winged altar-piece with the Adoration of the Magi; to the right, 1222. School of Soest, Crucifixion; 1207-1210. Meister Berthold of Nuremberg, Altar-piece in four sections.

Saloon II (lighted from the roof). Netherlandish Schools of the 15-16th centuries. To the left: *534b. Roger van der Weyden, Winged altar-piece with scenes from the life of John the Baptist (small replica at Frankfurt on the Main); *532a. A. Ouwater, Raising of Lazarus (the only authenticated work by this founder of the Dutch School); 584a. Roger van der Weyden, Travelling altar of Charles V., with scenes from the Life of Christ. — The main wall is occupied by six Panels (Nos. 512-517) of the famous Altar-piece of the Lamb, by Hubert and Jan van Eyck, the first picture ever painted in oils, the masterpiece of the early-Netherlandish school. It was begun by Hubert for a Ghent patrician named Jodocus Vydt, and was finished by Jan after his brother's death (1426-32). The central portion of the altar-piece, representing the Adoration of the Mystic Lamb, surmounted by figures of God the Father, the Virgin Mary, and John the Baptist, is still in the Chapel of St. Bavon at Ghent; two other panels (Adam and Eve) are in the Museum at Brussels. The remaining six panels were purchased by Mr. Solly for 4000*l.* The four lower panels (512, 513, 516, 517) depict knights, crusaders, hermits, and pilgrims moving in procession to the Fountain of Life (central panel, see copy by Coxie, above,

No. 524); the two upper (514, 515) represent respectively a group of singing angels, and St. Cecilia attended by angels with musical instruments. The back of the panels (in Cabinet 2) bears the Annunciation, portraits of Jodocus Vyds and his wife, St. John the Evangelist, and John the Baptist. 'There is not to be found', say Crowe and Cavalcaselle, 'in the whole Flemish school a picture in which human figures are grouped, designed, or painted with so much perfection as in this of the mystic Lamb. Nor is it possible to find a more complete or better distributed composition, more natural attitudes, or more dignified expression'. The visitor is charmed both by the naive and careful realism and by the brilliancy of the colouring. — *535. Roger van der Weyden, Winged altar-piece, with the Adoration of the Holy Child, the Tiburtine Sibyl before Augustus, and the Star in the East; a masterpiece, 'remarkable for the finish of the parts, the delicacy of the touch, and the gloss of the colours'. — Dierick Bouts, *533. Elijah in the desert; *539. Feast of the Passover, companion picture to No. 533. — To the right: *561. Quinten Matsys, Madonna enthroned (a masterpiece of colouring); *565a. Sir A. More, Two clerics (1544; a youthful work); *586a. Mabuse, Portrait; 573. Gheraert David, Crucifixion; 529a, 529b. P. Cristus, Winged pictures.

Saloon II is adjoined by two small cabinets.

Cabinet I, containing works of the early-Flemish school. To the right: 528. Jan van Eyck, Half-length of Christ (1438); no number, Master of the Merode Altar*, Crucifixion, a masterpiece of this eminent forerunner of Roger van der Weyden. — Jan van Eyck, *523b. Madonna with an abbot and St. Barbara; 525a. Man with carnations, a fine work, showing on a smaller scale much of the finished execution and powerful general effect of the Ghent altar-piece; *525c. Virgin at church; *523a. Johan Arnolfini. — To the left: 1202. Schoreel, Anna van Schonhove, the painter's mistress; 545. Roger van der Weyden, Charles the Bold; *633a. Joos van Cleve, Portrait; no number, Mening*, Portrait of an old man.

Cabinet 2, with small pictures of the Flemish school (17th cent.) and a small collection of miniatures. To the right: *866. Teniers the Younger, Backgammon; 798f. Rubens, Head of an Apostle; 688a. Jan Brueghel, Flowers; 857. Teniers, The painter's family. — Collection of miniatures by Elshéimer, Petitot, Huot, Chodowiecki, and others. — No. 8648. Gonzales Coques, C. de Bie, the historian of art. — To the left: Rubens, 798g. Capture of Tunis (unfinished); *763. Child of the painter playing with a bird; *798k. Pietà. — 869. Teniers, Temptation of St. Antony.

From Room II we enter a Corridor containing the Flemish and Dutch Masters of the 17th cent. (see p. 43), on the other side of which is a row of cabinets, with the masterpieces of the Dutch School.

Cabinet 1 (Rembrandt's Room) contains the whole of the twenty works of Rembrandt owned by the museum. To the left: Rembrandt, 828b. Hendrikje Jaghers, his second wife, at a window, a brilliant work of his latest period; no number, Preaching of John the Baptist, a vigorous sketch with numerous figures; *812. Saakia, his first wife (painted in 1643, after her death); *828f. Vision of Daniel (ca. 1650). — *821a. Ph. de Koninck, Large landscape, painted under the influence of Rembrandt. — Rembrandt, *823h. Joseph and Potiphar (1655); 823e. Susanna at the bath, one of the great master's finest and most mature productions (1647); 808, 810. Rembrandt, Portraits of himself; no number, Pastor Anso* consoling a widow, a large and vigorous work of the same period as the Night Watch (1641), acquired from Lord Ashburnham in 1894. Also several youthful, smaller, and decorative works by Rembrandt.

Cabinet 2. To the right: 820b. Pieter de Hooch, Dutch interior, an early masterpiece; *948a. W. Kalf, Still-life; *872a. Paul Potter, The 'Bosch' near the Hague, with Prince Frederick Henry's hounds. To the left: 792. Metsu, A merchant's family; *825a. B. van der Helst, Portrait; *795. Jan Steen, Inn-garden; 838. Frans van Mieris the Elder, Lady before her mirror; *840. Aart van der Neer, Conflagration in Amsterdam.

Cabinet 3. Right: *765c. Jan Steen, Falstaff and Mrs. Quickly, a masterpiece of humour and clever handling; 884a. J. van Ruysdael, Stormy sea; 876a. M. d'Hondecooter, Foreign water-fowl; *808b. Herc Seghers, Landscape; *855b. A. van Ostade, Boors in a tavern. To the left: *912b. J. van der Meer van Delft, Girl at her toilette; 855g. J. van Ruysdael, Oak-forest; *919b. Wemix, Game; *791g. Terburg, Violoncello-player, a masterpiece.

Cabinet 4. Right: *768, 768, 801f. Frans Hals the Elder, Small portraits; 852h. A. Brouwer, Landscape; *988d. A. van Beyeren, Fish; *801a. P. Hals, Tyman Oosdorp (1856); *888. Hobbema, Landscape; *906a. P. Hals the Younger, Silver ware; *801c. F. Hals, Hille Bobbe, the sailors' Venus. Left: *800, *801. Hals, Portraits of a wedded pair; 801g. Hals, Nurse and child; 791. Terburg, Paternal Admonition (described by Goethe in his 'Elective Affinities'); *793. Terburg, Knife-grinder.

Cabinet 5. Right: *837. Schaeken, Fisher-boy; *861b. Cuypp, Cows at the river; *922b. A. van de Velde, Landscape; *810d. Jan van der Meer van Haarlem, Landscape. Saloon V (lighted from the roof). North Italian Schools of the 15th century. Right: *Piero della Francesca, Portrait; Fr. Cossa, Autumn; *1156a. Carlo Crivelli, Madonna with saints; *111. Cosimo Tura, Madonna and Child enthroned, with saints, an excellent example of the earlier Ferrara school; 1170. Marco Eppo, Madonna enthroned, with saints; no number, Luca Signorelli*, Portrait; *29. Montegna, Presentation in the Temple; 9. Montegna, Card. Luigi Scarampi; 112. Lorenzo Costa, Presentation; *38. Luigi Vivarini, Madonna enthroned, with saints; 'cleverly arranged, and very earnest in the dignified air and natural action of the figures'; 23. Vitt. Carpaccio, St. Peter blessing St. Stephen and other believers; *54, 54a. Melozzo da Forlì, Allegorical representation of the culture of the sciences at the court of Duke Federigo of Urbino, forming one of a series, of which two other pictures are in the London National Gallery and one at Windsor. — *79. Luca Signorelli, Two wings of an altar, with saints; *79a. Signorelli, Pan with shepherds and nymphs, 'most poetically conceived and beautifully arranged', and distinguished by the admirable drawing of the nude, here handled freely for the first time in Italian art. (presented by the painter to Lorenzo de' Medici).

Saloon VI (lighted from the roof). Early Italian Masters (14th and 15th centuries). Right: 58c. Masaccio, Confinement of a Florentine lady; *106a. Bernardo da Firenze, Coronation of the Virgin, Adoration of the Child, Crucifixion (triptych); 1079 et seq. Taddeo Gaddi, Small altarpieces; *1062a. Duccio di Buoninsegna, Part of a celebrated altarpiece from Siena; 1072, 1081a. Lippo Memmi, Madonnas; *2. Cima da Conegliano, Madonna enthroned, with saints (a masterpiece of colouring); *20. Basaiti, Altarpiece (in several sections); *15. Cima da Conegliano, St. Mark healing Anianus. Left: 1130. Gentile da Fabriano, Madonna and saints; *18a. Antonello da Messina, Portrait; 5. Ant. Vivarini, Adoration of the Kings.

Saloon VII (lighted from the roof). Italian Masters of the 16th century (large paintings). Right: 207. Botticello, St. Barbara. — *90b. Leonardo da Vinci, The Risen Christ, between SS. Leonard and Lucia. Though in a lamentable condition and at places retouched, this picture produces a very powerful impression through the beauty of the two saints, the brilliancy of the colouring, and the charm of the landscape background. — 249. Fra Bartolommeo, Assumption. — Left: 48. Fr. Morone, Madonna and Child; 125. Fr. Francina (Rafbolini), Holy Family; *248. A. del Sarto, Madonna and saints.

Cabinet 1 (Italiana). Left: 245, *245a. Franciabigio, Portraits. — Raphael, *145. Madonna with SS. Jerome and Francis; 141. 'Madonna Solly'; *247a. 'Madonna del Duca di Terranuova'; 147. 'Madonna della Casa Diotalevi' (the last three youthful works, ca. 1501-5); *248. 'Madonna di Casa Colonna' (1517; unfinished). — *338b. Bronzino, Eleanor of Toledo; *16. Giorghione, Young man. — Right: *338a. Bronzino, Ugolino Martelli; *166. Titian, I avinia, daughter of the painter; *158. Lor. Lotto, Portrait of an architect.

Cabinet 2 (Italiana). Left: 78a. Piero Pollajuolo, David; *90. Raffaellino del Garbo, Madonna with two angels; *104a. Andrea Verrocchio, Madonna, an unfinished work of masterly modelling; 106b. S. Botticelli, Giuliano de' Medici (d. 1478); *60a. Fra Angelico, Last Judgment, an altarpiece in three sections, forming one of the later masterpieces of the artist and unexcelled for depth of religious feeling and attractiveness in the figures. — Right: *28. Giovanni Bellini, Pietà, an early work, showing Mantegna's influence; 32. Catena, Raymund Fugger; 27. Mantegna (?), Madonna with cherubs bearing the instruments of the Passion.

Cabinet 3 (Italian and French Masters). Left: *320. Lor. Lotto, Portrait (1526); *161, 301. Titian, Portraits; *269b. Sebastiano del Piombo, So-called 'Fornarina', a noble portrait, grandly and freely handled, of a Roman woman, painted under the influence of Giorgione and probably the model of Raphael's 'Fornarina' in the Uffizi (from Blenheim); *197b. Palma Vecchio, Portrait, one of the favourite ideal figures of the master, generally known as 'Palma's Daughter', remarkable for the brilliancy of the flesh tints and the masterly modelling; *484c. Greuze, Head of a girl; *190. Stephan von Calcar, Portrait; *470, 488. Watteau, Italian and French Comedy; *42a. C. Maratti, Portrait. Right: *508b, 508c. Bellotto, Views of Pirna; *163. Titian, Portrait of himself (unfinished).

Saloon VIII (lighted from the roof). Venetian Masters of the 16-18th centuries. Left: *309, 311. Paolo Veronese, Ceiling paintings from the Fondaco de' Tedeschi, or Warehouse of the Germans, at Venice; *160a. Titian, Daughter of Roberto Strozzi (dated 1542); 193a. Moroni, Portrait of a scholar; Correggio, 218. Io, an early copy of the original in Vienna, *218. Leda. — Right: *197. Moretto, Fra Bart. Arnolfo and his nephew adoring the Virgin and St. Anna; *310. Tintoretto, Luna and Horæ; 191. Paris Bordone, Madonna enthroned, with saints.

Saloon IX (lighted from the roof). Italian, Spanish, and French Schools of the 17-18th centuries. Left: 494. Penna, Schmidt, the engraver, and his wife; 445b. Claude Lorrain, Landscape; 418. F. Vost, Cardinal Desio Assolini; *478a. N. Poussin, View of Acqua Acetosa, to the N. of Rome, with St. Matthew in the foreground (a favourable example of the master's colouring); *414. Murillo, St. Antony of Padua with the Holy Child, a masterpiece in his latest manner; 415c. Velasquez, Maria Anna of Spain, consort of Emp. Ferdinand III.; *404a. Zurbaran, Franciscan miracle of the Crucifix, one of the artist's best efforts (1629); 413a. Velasquez (?), General Borro, as conqueror of Pope Urban VIII., trampling on the banner of the Barberini, a work of extraordinary effectiveness of treatment; *413c. Velasquez, Portrait of a Spanish lady. — Right: 465. Mignard, Portrait of Maria Mancini; 471. Char. Lebrun, Jacob of Cologne, Louis XIV.'s banker, and his family; *439. Penna, Frederick the Great (1739); *459b. Giov. Batt. Tiepolo, Martyrdom of St. Agatha, a large and fine altar-piece; 372. Annibale Carracci, Italian landscape; 441. Luca Giordano, Judgment of Paris; 373. Guido Reni, The Virgin appearing to the hermits Paul and Antony, a good specimen of his early manner.

Returning by R. VIII and the corridor (Ital., Span., and French paintings of the 16-18th cent.) behind the cabinets, we reach the entrance-room (p. 41). The door opposite the entrance admits to the upper gallery of the ROTUNDA (p. 35).

The upper walls of the Rotunda are hung with the celebrated *Tapestry woven at Brussels for Henry VIII. in 1515-16 from designs by Raphael (now in the South Kensington Museum), being, like that at Dresden, a repetition of the famous tapestry in the Vatican. The colours are unfortunately faded. It was once in the possession of Emp. Charles I., then in that of the Dukes of Alva, and was purchased by Frederick William IV. in 1844. The subjects, with which every one acquainted with the cartoons or the engravings from them is familiar, are from the Acts of the Apostles and the Life of Christ: 1. Death of Ananias; 2. Christ giving Peter the keys of heaven; 3. Paul and Barnabas at Lystra; 4. The sorcerer Elymas struck with blindness; 5. Conversion of St. Paul; 6. Paul preaching at Athens; 7. Stoning of St. Stephen; 8. Miraculous draught of fishes; 9. Peter and Paul healing the lame man. (The 10th, Paul in prison at Philippi, has unfortunately been destroyed.)

2. COLLECTIONS IN THE NEW MUSEUM.

The connecting PASSAGE (p. 38) between the New Museum and the Old contains numerous casts from antique portrait-statues, such as Augustus (Vatican), Demosthenes (Vatican), Æschines (Naples), Sophocles (Lateran), and Posidippus and Menander (Vatican). The visitor is recommended to traverse Rooms X, XI, and XII (see Plan, p. 34) and enter the spacious *Staircase (Pl. II), 125 ft. in length, 50 ft. in width, and 65 ft. in height, which forms the centre of the building. A broad flight of steps leads from the ground-floor to the first story, and two narrower ones from the first to the second.

Six magnificent *Mural Paintings by W. von Kaulbach, executed in 1847-66, representing important epochs in the history of mankind, adorn the upper walls of the staircase.

1. FALL OF BABEL, with Nimrod in the centre. — 2. GOLDEN AGE OF GREECE, with Homer reciting his works to the Greeks. — 3. DESTRUCTION OF JERUSALEM by Titus. — 4. BATTLE OF THE HUNS, considered the finest of the six paintings. According to a legend, the combatants were so exasperated that the slain rose during the night and fought in the air. Above, borne on a shield, is Attila with a scourge in his hand, opposite him Theodoric, king of the Visigoths. — 5. THE CRUSADERS BEFORE JERUSALEM under Godfrey de Bouillon. — 6. AGE OF THE REFORMATION.

Adjoining the great paintings are several figures on a gold ground. Over the doors, Tradition and History, Science and Primitive Art (poetry). Between the large pictures, the law-givers Moses, Solon, Charlemagne, Frederick the Great; above them, Egypt, Greece, Italy, Germany. On the window-walls, the arts of Sculpture, Painting, Architecture, and Engraving.

Around the entire hall, beneath the richly-decorated pendent work, runs a Frieze, bearing a humorous representation (in grisaille) of the history of the development of mankind, terminating with Humboldt leaning on his Cosmos, the whole hardly intelligible without a detailed explanation.

The FIRST FLOOR OF THE NEW MUSEUM is entirely occupied by the very extensive and valuable Collection of Casts, arranged in twelve saloons. Short catalogue 50 pf.; scientific catalogue by Friedrichs (2nd edit. by Dr. Wolters, 1885).

I. The GALLERY OF THE N. COURT (Pl. I) contains casts of the most ancient Greek works: early Greek statues and reliefs (Athenian steles), and metopæ (Parthenon; Selinus), friezes (Temple of Athene Nike at Athens; Theseum), and other architectural sculptures; casts of the Lycian reliefs brought to Vienna in 1882 by Beudorf and Niemann.

II. ANTSCHAMBER. Colossal horse-tamers from the Quirinal in Rome; in the E. part: Children of Niobe; on the walls of the staircase: reliefs from the temple of Apollo at Phigalia; gate of the lions at Mycenæ.

III. GREEK SALOON. Tympanum groups from the Temple of Minerva at Egina (originals at Munich), tympanum groups and frieze from the Parthenon by Phidias (originals in the British Museum), and similar works. Above are ten Mural Paintings, of architectural views of Greece by Græb (Ancient Athens and Olympia), Schirmer, Biermann, Schmidt, and Pape.

IV. CABINET. Tomb from Eleusis; Athene Varvakion, a copy of the chryselephantine statue by Phidias, discovered on the Acropolis in 1879 (original in the National Museum at Athens).

V. ATHENA SALOON. Figures of Athena of different periods (476. Athena Medici, now in the Palais des Beaux-Arts at Paris, and perhaps belonging to the Parthenon sculptures); Irene; colossal top of a tomb in Lycia.

VI. ROTUNDA. Zeus of Otricoli (Rome); Juno Ludovisi (Rome); Farnese Hercules (Naples); Flora (Naples); Menelaus with the body of Patroclus (Florence); statues from the Mausoleum at Halicarnassus. — Mural Paintings: Exploits of Theseus, Perseus, Bellerophon, and Hercules, by Däge, Steinbrück, Schmidt, and Hopfgarten.

VII. BLUE SALOON. The five compartments of this room contain Athenian tomb-reliefs. Also: 1. (right) Discobolus by Myron. 2. Amazons, Doryphoros, and Diadumenos of Polycleitos. 3. Hermes, Apollo Sauracton, and Eubuleus of Praxiteles; Demeter of Cnidus; column from the temple of Diana at Ephesus. 4. Sandal-binder and Apoxyomenos of Lysippus. 5. Diana of Versailles; Apollo Belvedere; Nike from Samothrace. The stereochromatic mural paintings represent Greek heroic scenes by Kaselowski, Henning, Becker, and Peters (after Genelli).

VIII. BACCHUS SALOON. Small bronzes, terracottas, and marbles. Barberini faun (Munich); Borghese fighter (Louvre); Knife-grinder (Florence).

IX. YELLOW SALOON. Laocoon group; Gaul and his wife (Villa Ludovisi) and Dying Gaul (Capitol); Venus of Milo (Paris); Capitoline Venus; Ariadne (Dresden); Venus de' Medici; Endymion (Stockholm); Boy with goose (Vatican); torso of Hercules (Vatican). On the walls are seventeen encaustic paintings of ancient Roman buildings, designed by Stüler and executed by Pape and Seiffert.

X. CUPOLA SALOON (adjoining the passage connecting the new with the old museum, see p. 38). Roman portrait-statues and reliefs. In the middle, equestrian statue of Colleone by Verrocchio. Three large stereochromatic mural paintings: Consecration of the Church of St. Sophia by Justinian, by Schrader; Subjugation of Wittekind by Charlemagne, designed by Kaulbach, executed by Graf; Christianity adopted as the religion of the state, by Sülke.

XI. & XII. MEDIEVAL SALOONS. Casts of Italian sculptures of the mediæval and Renaissance periods. Equestrian statue of Gattamelata by Donatello (d. 1466); statues by Michael Angelo; doors of the Baptistery at Florence by Ghiberti, etc.

Four sections in the S. part of Room XI contain the Original German Sculptures. 1. Sandstone figures from Würzburg; altar adornments from Westphalia. — 2. *Fountain from Vischer's workshop. *Statues by Riemenschneider and the Master of Creglingen; Archangel Michael, by Bergmüller. — 3. *Adoration of the Magi, by a Swabian Master. Scenes from the Passion, by Veit Stoss. — 4. Cases with a valuable *Collection of small objects in wood, bronze, mother-of-pearl, boxwood, and ivory.

In the N. part of the same room are the Italian Bronzes. — In the middle of the room, *St. John, by Donatello. — To the left: Donatello* and Master of Padua (15th cent.), Bust of Lod. Gonzaga; G. B. Cavalli*, Alto-relief bust of Spagnuoli, Superior of the Camaldulensians. — To the right: two large *Busts of Gregory XIII. (by V. Danti?) and one of a Conte del Negro. — Shelves and Cases contain Bronze Statuettes*, by Donatello, Cellini, Giov. da Bologna, and other great workers in bronze. — By the walls are cases containing a very extensive collection (nearly 1000) of Plaquettes*, or small bronze plaques with reliefs, originally parts of caskets, lamps, and so forth. Donatello, Riccio, and all the other chief masters are represented by numerous specimens.

In the staircase (p. 45), as already mentioned, the wide central flight of steps descends to the GROUND FLOOR OF THE NEW MUSEUM.

From the Vestibule, which contains some of the Egyptian antiquities we first turn to the right and enter the Hall of Casts of German Sculptures.

This contains casts of sculptures in German cathedrals and from the chief works of Kraft, Vischer, Veit Stoss, etc., arranged in chronological order. — The stereochromatic mural paintings, by Bellermann, Müller, Heidenreich, and Richter, illustrate the mythology of the North, the room having been originally intended for the Northern Antiquities.

Then follows the Collection of Antiquities from Western Asia. To the left, behind the Babylonian room, is the —

BABYLONIAN ROOM. On the walls, casts of Assyrian reliefs, chiefly from Kalah (see below), with scenes of hunting, battle, and the bearing off of spoils; Isdubar, the national hero of Babylon (Wall X), and a winged lion with human head. Obelisk of Shalmaneser II. (860-824 B.C.); monument of victory of Esarhaddon, King of Assyria (681-668); G 107. Statue of the early monarch Gudea. — The cabinets contain tiles with cuneiform inscriptions, cylindrical seals bearing various representations and other monuments of the civilisation of ancient Babylon.

ASSYRIAN ROOM. Among the most interesting objects here are the large alabaster slabs with reliefs of kings, demons, scenes of war and the chase, etc. (formerly painted), found in the palaces of Kalah and Nineveh (now Nimroud and Kouyunjik), which were built in the 8-9th cent. B.C. Other objects from Phœnicia, Carthage, Palmyra, Commagena, S. Arabia, and Ethiopia.

The remainder of the groundfloor is occupied by the —

Egyptian Museum, one of the most important collections of the kind, founded by Passalacqua, and greatly extended by Lepsius in 1845 and again more recently. It is arranged in chronological order (by dynasties). The Colonnade Court (see below) and the Hall of Casts (p. 47) are entered from the Vestibule mentioned at p. 47.

GRÆCO-ROMAN ROOM (Pl. X). Late Ethiopian antiquities. Queen's ornaments from a pyramid at Meroë (Case J, Wall XIV); 2368. Monument of King Nestasen; 2261. King on a throne (Wall XII). — Wall VIII. Emp. Augustus as an Egyptian king; Wall VII. 7738. Inscription of Zenobia, Queen of Palmyra. The cabinets contain terracotta and bronze figures of gods, ornaments, etc. — Tombstones and altars. 81. Wooden coffin in the form of the goddess Hathor; 2271. Statue of a general; 2415. Relief from a temple at Thebes.

ROOM OF THE LATE EPOCH (Pl. VIII). In the cases: mummies and bronze and wooden figures of sacred animals and gods, temple utensils, ornaments, amulets, etc. — To the right of this room lies the —

FARÛM ROOM (Pl. IX), containing mummies of the 2nd cent. A.D., found at Hawara (Central Egypt), with portraits on wood and linen. — The passage beyond Room VIII contains a portrait of F. Champollion (1790-1832) and a cast of the trilingual Rosetta Stone. Proceeding in a straight direction, we reach Room VII (p. 49); to the right lies the —

COLONNADE COURT (Pl. III), which, together with Room V, represents the main features of an Egyptian temple. In the centre of the entrance court stands a late-Ethiopian altar. In the background are two colossal figures of kings in a sitting posture, in porphyry; to the left Ramses II., called Sesostris by the Greeks, entirely uninjured; to the right Usertesen I. (2100 B.C.), the upper part restored. In the centre, two ram-sphinxes in granite (that on the right a cast). To the left: 12,547. Statuettes of Tenti and his wife (ca. 2600 B.C.). On the S. side (entrance from the vestibule, see p. 47) are several figures of gods and cases containing smaller antiquities. The hieroglyphics on the entablature record that these monuments were arranged here in 1848 by order of Frederick William IV. The mural paintings by Schirmer, Pape, and others, represent Egyptian landscapes. — We now return through the passage (see above) to the — ROOM OF THE NEW EMPIRE (Pl. VII). Late Period (after 700 B.C.): Walls XVIII-XV, sarcophagi, 10,972. Statue of an old man; 7707. Tombstone with Aramaic inscription; heads of statues. — Libyan Epoch (after 1100 B.C.): Walls XIV-XII. Door and wall of a chapel of the Ethiopian king Shabaco. 10,114. Statue of a queen. Case G. Figures in dark blue faience. 2094. Relief from Karnak of captive Jews, from the wars of Sheshank (Shishak). — New Empire (after 1800 B.C.): Tombstones. Wall XI. Coloured terracotta reliefs. Wall X. 2099. Relief of a funeral under Ramses II. Wall IX. 10,833. Wooden relief; stucco-paintings from Thebes. Case F (Wall VIII). Axes, daggers, and utensils of various kinds. Wall V. Reliefs from the tomb of Seti I. (ca. 1350 B.C.). The cases contain figures and statuettes. Wall II. Wreaths from royal mummies. Case B. Bowls, writing materials, ornaments, etc. Wall I. Woman's wig of wool; statues of Ptahmai and his family. Case A. Furniture and musical instruments. — On the walls of this hall are representations from Egyptian history.

The adjoining ANTS-ROOM (Pl. VI) is devoted to the 18th Dynasty (1600-1400 B.C.).

ROOM OF THE MIDDLE MONARCHY (after 2200 B.C.; Pl. V). Next the colonnade-court, three wooden coffins, found one within the other. In the central passage: 1121. Statue of Amen-em-hat III. Wall VIII. 1157. Monument of victory of Useresen III.; 1180, 1161. Blocks of rock with marks indicating the level of the Nile. Wall VI. 1154. Sarcophagus from Thebes. In Case B. by the window, Toilet-case of a queen.

ROOM OF THE PRIMEVAL MONARCHY (after 2800 B.C.; Pl. IV). Wall XII. 1023. Family group. Wall XI. 7708. Maid-servant; 1185. Pyramid-door, with faience plaques. Near Wall VII: *Wooden statue of Per-her-nofret. Wall V. Model of the pyramid of Cheops at Gizeh. Tomb-chambers reconstructed from fragments brought by Lepsius from Memphis (for adm. to interior, apply to the custodian).

ROOM OF THE CASTS (Pl. XI). Tomb-reliefs, the oldest being those from Memphis (ca. 2600 B.C.; Walls I-VI); statues of kings of all periods; 375. Statue of an official; celebrated inscriptions. In the centre, statue of Ramses II. On the walls, paintings of Egyptian deities. On the ceiling, astronomical representations; in the centre, Zodiac from Denderah.

At the top of the staircase (p. 45) to the SECOND FLOOR of the New Museum, to the left, is the Cabinet of Engravings.

The collection embraces engravings and wood-cuts by masters of the 15-19th cent., drawings by artists who died before 1800, miniature-paintings from the 10th to the 16th cent., and early illustrated books. The drawings and engravings by German and Dutch masters are especially numerous. In 1877 an important collection of the engravings and wood-cuts of Dürer was purchased, along with 40 of his drawings. In 1882 the German Government bought the celebrated Manuscript Collection of the Duke of Hamilton, containing nearly 700 MSS. The MSS. of purely scientific or literary value were deposited in the Royal Library (p. 27), while those interesting from their artistic merit were placed in the Cabinet of Engravings. The gem of the collection is a unique copy of Dante, with 84 illustrations by Sandro Botticelli of Florence (d. 1510). — Passing through the vestibule, which is hung with engravings by Chodowiecki and others relating to Prussian history, we reach the students' room, where the portfolios of engravings are shown on application. Beyond is a room where a varying selection of the best drawings and miniatures is exhibited.

Opposite the Collection of Engravings is the entrance to the rooms that now contain the Antiquarium.

Room I. In front are the Small Bronzes (7th-4th cent. B.C.). To the right of the entrance, Group of Theseus and the Minotaur, a fine work of the Alexandrian period, found in Asia Minor. Two richly decorated tripods and a double-herma. In the cases are several beautiful Toilet Caskets from Præneste (4th-3rd cent. B.C.), also Greek mirrors, Etruscan mirrors in metal, mosaics, mural paintings, weapons, trinkets, domestic utensils, etc. — Farther on are the Terracottas, the finest of which are Greek. Those found at Tanagra in Bœotia, to judge from the pleasing movement, drapery, and delicate colouring of the groups and figures, date from the 3rd and 4th cent. B.C. Many of them are highly humorous in conception. The best are in Case XII, A, to the left, while the genre groups in the middle of Case XVI, B, are also interesting. Terracottas from Asia Minor, Sicily, and S. Italy, including heads from Tarentum (Case XXV) and a beautiful "Head of a youth, by the exit-door. Reliefs, chiefly from Greece (Case XX). In a recess by the exit, archaic bronzes, and coloured "Terracottas from Olympia.

Room II. Larger articles arranged in geographical order. In the centre: painted terracotta sarcophagi from Clazomenæ and objects found in Rhodes. In front of the centre window: from Chiuri (chair with relief; urn). On the walls: to the left, terracottas from Capua, Pæstum, Cære, Rome, and the Rhine; to the right, amber, ivory, and bone articles (consular dip-tychs); black pottery from Etruria. By the exit, two cinerary urns from Chiuri.

Room IV contains the Vases, 2300 in number, a collection scarcely inferior in value to those at Paris and London, and including many of great artistic value and importance in the history of Greek painting and mythology. Most of them, though made in Greece, have been found in tombs in Italy. The arrangement is chronological. The Attic Amphoræ (Cases VI, VIII, XII, XIII) and Hydriæ or water-vessels (Cases XVI, XVII) should be observed. The shallow bowls (especially in the small cases near Case XIX) and the extensive collection of Attic Lekythi, or anointing-vessels (Case XXIII), are noteworthy.

In the 'Sternsaal' (Pl. III) is the Collection of Gems (Intaglios, receding, and Cameos, raised), and Objects in the Precious Metals, to which Frederick the Great made a most valuable addition by the purchase of the Stosch collection. Of the gold objects (Case I, to the right) the most valuable are the "Vellersfelds Treasure, a suit of armour made probably on the Black Sea for a Scythian chief, and the "Antique Ornaments from the Sabine Mts., purchased for 60,000 M. (3000*l.*). The glass cabinet in the centre contains the "Silver Treasure found near Hildesheim (p. 145), consisting of Roman plate of the time of Augustus. Some of the articles possess great artistic merit, especially four round dishes with reliefs at the bottom: "Minerva, "Young Hercules, "Deus Lunus, and "Oybele. Case II contains a "Cameo of the Apotheosis of Septimius Severus, measuring 9 by 7½ inches, one of the largest and most valuable in the world (purchased for 1800*l.*), and the other chief cameos of the collection. The intaglios are exhibited at the back of Case II and in Case III. Among the other objects are ancient glass (Cases IV and VII), fragments of old glass mosaic (Table Case V), and ancient mural paintings (Case VI). By Case VII are the Lauenforst phaleræ, the silver ornaments of a Roman officer. — Casts and imitations of the best gems may be purchased of the custodians.

3. THE NATIONAL GALLERY.

To the E. of the New Museum, in the centre of a square surrounded with Doric colonnades and embellished with statues, flower-beds, and a fountain, rises the "National Gallery (Pl. r; K, 1), designed by Stüler in accordance with a plan of Frederick William IV., and built by Strack in 1866-76. The building is in the form of a Corinthian temple, 200 ft. long and 105 ft. wide, elevated on a basement 39 ft. in height. At the S. end is a portico of eight columns, and at the N. a semicircular apse. The sculptures are by M. Schultz, Calandrelli, and Moser. At the top of the imposing flights of steps in front of the S. façade is an Equestrian Statue of Frederick William IV., by Calandrelli, with allegorical figures of religion, history, science, and art on the pedestal. In the niche beneath the stairs, to the right: 52. Martin Wolff, Theseus lifting the rock which concealed the sword and sandals of his father; 53. Tüshaus, St. Sebastian. In the garden, towards the New Museum: *100. Tuailon, Amazon on horseback (1895).

The rich and appropriate decorations of the interior, designed by Strack, are executed in more solid materials than those of the Museums. The collection in the National Gallery, the nucleus of which was formed by 260 pictures bequeathed by Herr J. H. Wagnen (d. 1861) to the Emperor William I. (then Prince Regent), now contains about 730 paintings, 130 cartoons and water-colours, and over 100 sculptures; the names of the artist and subject are given on each work. With the exception of those in the Raczyński Gallery (p. 55), the works are all by modern, chiefly German, masters. Director, Dr. H. von Tschudi. Catalogue, 1 M. Admission, see p. 17. The collection, which is constantly increasing, was thoroughly re-arranged in the winter of 1896-97, and many works have been removed to provincial collections.

First Floor. We first enter the VESTIBULE, adorned with 15 portraits in relief of modern German artists. To the left is the staircase to the second floor (p. 53), near which are figures of Faith, Hope, and Charity, by Kiss. To the right are a picture of Huas at the stake, by Lessing (No. 207), and the Babylonian Captivity by Bendemann (24). — The door in the middle leads to the —

TRANSVERSE HALL. Paintings: 600. Schuch, Emp. William II.; *475. Feuerbach, Concert; *420. Spangenberg, Procession of Death; 667. Pigheim, Moritur in Deo; 520. Becker, Carnival in the Doge's Palace at Venice. — BRONZE SCULPTURES: 96. L. Manzel, Evening song; 78. L. Cauer, Greek youth; 75. Encke, Electress Elizabeth teaching her son Joachim; *52. Stuck, Athlete; 84. Busch, Girl reading (statuette in wood); 66. Rauch, Bust of Beuth; 88. Maisson, Augur (painted terracotta); *92. Vallgren, Youth; 51. Karl Schüller, Portrait-bust; etc. — Left side: 67. Göhr, Boy balancing himself; *60. Brütt, Saved; *101. Nic. Geiger, After the fall; *95. Vincotte, Catilina; *93. C. Meunier, The prodigal son; *91. Rodin, Portrait-bust; 77. Sommer, Siren; 36-38. L. Rau, Sketches for a monument of Liebig. — The rooms to the right of this hall contain the paintings, those to the left the sculptures in marble. We begin with the Paintings.

ROOM I (chiefly Berlin painters). To the right: *579. Conrad Lessing, Castle in the Eifel; 533. Schrader, Portrait of Ranke, the historian; 456. *C. NATIONAL GALLERY. First Floor

NATIONAL GALLERY. Second Floor

Medea prepared for the flight, 474. Battle of Amazons. — MARBLE SCULPTURES (recent works): 54. K. Begas, Bust of H. von Marées, the painter; Reinhold Begas, 25. Mercury and Psyche, 17. Bust of Wichmann, the sculptor; *45. A. Hildebrand, Youth; *79. A. Brütt, Eve with her children; *20. R. Begas, Bust of A. Mensel. — Second compartment. To the left: O. Lessing, Bust of L. Knaus, the painter. To the right: 76. R. Begas, 76. Bust of Bismarck, *39. Bust of Moltke; E. Beyer, Madonna; 97. Reinhold, On the roadside; 42. A. Volkmann, Bust of a girl. — Back-wall: 70. Römer, Bust of Empress Augusta; 80. Hundrieser, Statue of Queen Louisa; *82. Jos. Keps, Bust of Emp. William I.; 56. Eberlein, Boy extracting a thorn from his foot; 27. K. Begas, Brother and sister; 49. E. Herter, Dying Achilles; 72. K. Begas, Faun and the infant Bacchus.

Returning to the Vestibule by the transverse corridor, and ascending the staircase, we come to the Second Floor. — In the STAIRCASE is a frieze in stucco by Otto Geyer, representing the growth of German civilisation from the time of Arminius the Cheruscan down to the Franco-Prussian war. On the walls are hung: 462. A. Feuerbach, Plato's banquet; 361. Steffeck, Albert Achilles of Brandenburg's war with Nuremberg (1450); 82. Schnorr von Carolsfeld, Burial of the Burgundians (cartoon). We then pass through an ante-room, containing paintings by Schuck (550. Zieten at Hennerdorf, 550. Seydlitz at Rossbach), and a Hebe by Canova (No. 26), and enter the — CUPOLA SALOON, in which are exhibited the portraits of the Emperor William I. and the Empress Augusta, by Pöckhorst. The frieze in the vaulting, by A. von Heyden, represents the signs of the zodiac; the four lunettes above the door, scenes from the history of German art, are by the same artist: Emp. Henry II. laying the foundation-stone of the cathedral of Bamberg; Dürer painting a portrait of Emp. Maximilian, while Kuns von der Rosen entertains the emperor with a song; contest of the singers on the Wartburg; Adam Kraft in his workshop. — The visitor had better now traverse the lateral saloons and cabinets, and visit the Cornelius Saloons last; or he may prefer to devote a special visit to the latter. The contrast between the modern pictorial style and the Cartoons of Cornelius is so great, that a sudden transition from one to the other can hardly fail to prejudice to their due appreciation.

The two rooms on the right side (Pl. I and II), and the corridor between them, contain paintings from Prussian history and portraits of persons important in war and peace. Rooms III and IV, with the corresponding corridor on the left side, contain works by foreign masters. In the five cabinets are works of art previous to 1870, the chief of which are, however, in the Cornelius Saloons and on the third floor.

RIGHT SIDE. Paintings from the wars of 1813-15, 1864, 1866, and 1870. 323. Scholz, Volunteers of 1815 before Frederick William III. at Breslau; Adam, *8. Retreat of the French army from Russia, 446. Attack of French cavalry near Floing in the battle of Sedan; 52. Cumphausen, Düppel after its capture by storm in 1864; 442. Hüntel, Cavalry-engagement at Elsasshausen during the battle of Wörth; *567. Adam, Attack of the Prussian cavalry brigade von Bredow at Mars-la-Tour; 632. Bleibtreu, Crown Prince Frederick William before Paris in Jan., 1871; Bleibtreu, 32. Passage to Alsen, 33. Battle of Königgrätz; 131. Heyden, Battlefield of Königgrätz; 479. Költz, Scene from the skirmish of Vendôme (Jan., 1871). Then, paintings with various subjects: 527. Werner, Vivandière; 625. E. Hildebrand, Queen Louisa on her flight to Memel (1806); 408. W. Gentz, Crown Prince Fred. William of Prussia entering Jerusalem in 1869; 92. Graef, Patriotism in 1818; 598. Räuber, Surrender of Warsaw to the Great Elector (1656); 650, 719. Sallmann, two sea-pieces. — Among the portraits may be mentioned: 471. Angelt, Field-marshal von Manteuffel; 630. Scheurenberg, Field-marshal von Steinmetz; 504. Költz, General von Werder; 506. Janssen, Field-marshal Herwarth von Bittenfeld; 492. Gräß, Field-marshal Count Boon; 515. G. Richter, Field-marshal Count Blumenthal; 642. Krüger, Field-marshal Count Wrangel; 391. Otto, Portrait of Kiss, the sculptor; 674. Voigtländer, Prof. Weyerstrass; 662. Keil, Portr. of Blaeser, the sculptor; 519. Portr. of Ed. Bendemann, the painter; 621. Bendemann, Prof. Droyen; 575. Wider, Portr. of Fanny Lewald; 673. Keil, Portr. of Langhans, the architect; 517. Biermann, Portr. of W. Weber, the physicist; 529. Steffeck, Portr. of Prof. Neumann, the physicist. Also portraits by Magnus, Heuss, etc.; Donndorf's Bust of Prince Bismarck, and the original model of the group of Queen Louisa and her sister by G. Schadow (1796).

The five CABINETS contain portraits by Tischbein and Anlon Graf; historical paintings by Cornelius (56. Hagen plunging the Nibelungen treasure into the Rhine), Rethel (270. St. Boniface), Veit (359. The two Maries at the tomb), Steinle, the Berlin painters Wach, Rahl, etc., and the Düsseldorf masters Hübner and W. Schadow. Also landscapes by Koch, Bleichen, Ludw. Richter (145. Scene from the Giant Mts.), Rottmann (282. Marathon), Preller, K. Fr. Lessing (206. Silesian landscape, 392. Eifel landscape, etc.), Karl Fr. Schirmer (Düsseldorf) and W. Schirmer (Berlin). Lastly the first attempts at modern genre and animal painting, by Krüger (*809. Prince August of Prussia), Schrödter, Magnus, Hausmann, K. Begas sen. (22. Moor washing), Ed. Meyerham, Spitzweg (720, 721. Hermite), Brendel, etc.

LEFT SIDE. Belgian and French masters of the middle of the present century. 25. Biard, Linnæus as a boy; 26. E. de Bieles, Compromise of the Netherlandish nobles in 1566; Bossuet van Ypern, 37. Andalusian landscape, 38. Procession at Seville; Calame, 49. Lake of Lucerne, 50. Alpine gorge; 62. Dehaussy, The artist's studio; Gallait, 88. Capuchin monk, *84. Egmont before his execution (1568); 143. Huntin, Reading the will; 160. Nicaise de Keyser, Death of Maria de' Medici; Léys, 209. Dutch worship, 210. Dutch party in the 17th cent., 211. Dürer taking the portrait of Erasmus of Rotterdam; 236. Navez, Sick child; 277. Aurel Robert, Baptistery of St. Mark's at Venice; 278. L. Robert, Robber asleep; 283. Quaglio, The castle of Pfalzburg on the Rhine. — Then, modern French painters and foreign artists trained at Paris: 692. Courbet, Mill-dam; *698. Manet, In the hothouse; *694. Cl. Monet, View of Vétheuil; *706. Fantin-Latour, Portr. of a lady; 706. Billotte, Moonrise by the quarry of St. Denis; *688. A. Zorn, Summer evening in Sweden; *699. Thaulow, November day in Normandy; 708. Bisping, Sheep among the downs; *681. Gari Melchers, The family; 129. Degas, The conversation (crayon). Also: 711. Farasyn (Antwerp), The widow. Dutch painters: 700. Jacob Maris, On the canal; 709. Mesdag, Summer evening near Scheveningen. — English and Scottish painters: 197. Ch. Landseer, Cromwell at Naseby; Constable, 690. Village on the Stour; *691. Mill on the Stour; 518. Shade, Lovers; *695. Lavery, Lady in black; 180. Nisbet, Autumn landscape (water-colour); 707. Lechhead, Village in Fifeshire. — Italians: 90. Bisi, Or Sammichele at Florence; 290. Schiavone, Magdalene; 702. Giardi, Canal Grande at Venice; 710. P. Frangiaco, Sadness; *696. Segantini, Melancholy. — Spaniards: 681. Alvarez, King Philip II. on his rock-seat near the Escorial; 685. Rosello, The Espada's wedding; 703. Carbonero, An adventure from Gil Blas; 704. Sorolla, Fishermen of Valencia.

We return to the Cupola Saloon, and proceed through the central door to the —

I. CORNELIUS SALOON, which is tastefully decorated. The paintings of the upper part of the walls were designed by Ed. Bendemann, who has endeavoured to illustrate the composition of a work of art by a series of allegorical figures (beginning with the wall on the left of the cupola-saloon: Grace, Peace, Poetry, Investigation, Humility, Enthusiasm, Strength, Joy). This saloon chiefly contains the "CAROONS FOR THE CAMPO SANTO, a royal burial-place constructed beside the cathedral by Frederick William IV. Soon after his removal to Berlin (1841) Cornelius commenced this work, and he was engaged upon it down to the day of his death (1867). These scenes were intended to extend over the four walls of the Campo Santo, and to represent in close connection with the Apocalypse, the Redemption of Man, the Appearance of Christ on Earth, the Sway of the Church, and the Last Judgment. Above each painting is a semicircular lunette, and below is a narrow painting in which the chief subject is illustrated and explained by ingenious allusions, while between the principal paintings were to be placed eight groups, embodying the Beatitudes of the Sermon on the Mount. The finest of these principal paintings are the Descent of the Holy Ghost (17), the Resurrection (9), and the Apocryphical Riders (6). While in these we admire the richness of conception, the dramatic life, and the boldness of the drawing, the groups of the Beatitudes (14, 15) appeal to us by the beauty and compactness of their outlines, no less than by the expressiveness of their figures. — Of less importance are the cartoons of the frescoes in the LUDWIGSKIRCHE AT MUNICH (1834-40), representing Evangelists, Prophets, and the Last Judgment. — A few oil-paintings are also exhibited in this room: 122. W. von Kaulbach, Battle of Salamis; 626. P. Keller, Emp. William I.

II. CORNELIUS SALOON, the painting of which (Myth of Prometheus) was executed by P. Janssen of Düsseldorf. This saloon contains the cartoons of the frescoes in the GLYPOTHEK AT MUNICH (Hall of the Gods and Heroes), with which Cornelius began his monumental compositions in Germany (1819). The leading ideas of the representation in the Hall of the Gods are partly borrowed from Hesiod, and are embodied by the artist in ceiling and mural paintings; the former are emblematic of the Sway of Cupid, and the Seasons and Hours; while three semicircular pictures represent the three kingdoms of the gods, Olympus, the Ocean, and the Infernal Regions. — In the Hall of the Heroes in the Glyptothek the Myth of Troy is illustrated, the cartoon of the Destruction of Troy (side-wall to the left, No. 51) being considered the most important. — In front of the niche is a colossal bust of Cornelius, by Wittig. — A marble staircase ascends to the — Third Floor. On the walls of the staircase: 482. Brozik, The ambassadors of Ladislaus, King of Hungary and Bohemia, at the French court, soliciting the hand of the daughter of Charles VII. for their sovereign; *443. Makart, Venice doing homage to Catharine Cornaro; *81. Schnorr von Carolsfeld, Siegfried's return from the Saxon war (cartoon); 557. K. Piloty (d. 1896), The dying Alexander receiving the homage of his army (his last, unfinished, work). The ANTE-ROOM at the top of the staircase contains pictures of the seasons by Wieland (401-404), above which are good mural paintings by Paul Meyerheim, representing nature at the different seasons.

The CORNER ROOM, to the right, contains "Frescoes from the history of Joseph, which were skillfully transferred hither from Rome in 1818. They were executed in 1816-18 for the Prussian consul in Rome, by the most eminent German artists then resident in that city, and formerly adorned a room in his house, the Casa Zuccari (since also called Casa Bartholdy). They are interesting as being the first important creation of modern German painting. The "Interpretation of Pharaoh's dream, and "Recognition of the brothers are by Cornelius; the Selling of Joseph, and the "Seven Years of Famine, by Overbeck; Joseph and Potiphar's wife, and the "Seven Years of Plenty, by Vell; Joseph interpreting dreams in prison, and the Brothers bringing the bloody coat to Jacob, by Schadow.

In the adjacent rooms to the left is the COLLECTION OF DRAWINGS, consisting of about 1500 sketches and water-colours by German artists of the present century (Bellermann, Blechen, Carlsens, Frans-Dreher, Henneberg, Ed. Hildebrandt, Klinger, Krüger, Schnorr, Mansel, Preller, Ludo. Richter, Rethel, Steinle, etc.). Visitors are admitted daily, except Sun., on application to the attendant in the ante-room.

The Rooms to the right of the ante-room contain the choice Picture Gallery of Count Raszynski, which has been lent to the government for public exhibition. It is especially rich in modern works, but also contains a few valuable old Spanish paintings (catalogue 75 pf.).

ROOM I. 2. A. Bronzino, Cosimo de' Medici (replica of the portrait in the Uffizi); 3. Juan Carreño, Assumption; 4. Francois, SS. Dominicus and Proculus; *5. Girolamo Siciolante da Sermoneta, Descent from the Cross; 7. Borgognone, Virgin and Child with SS. Christopher and George; Zurbaran, *8. Madonna adored by monks, *11. Judith; 10. Mazzolino, Christ and the Pharisees; *9. Botticelli, Virgin with angels; 13. Bellini (more probably Calena), Virgin and saints.

ROOM II. 16, 17. Velazquez (?), Dog and cat, Head of a blind woman; 20. Innocenzo da Imola, Holy Family; 21. H. Baldung, Fragment of a picture representing Lucretia; 22, 23. Portuguese School (16th cent.), 88. Apollonia, Agnes, Catharine, and Barbara; 24. Cornelius, Christ in Hades; 80. Quinten Massys (copy?), Madonna; *31. After the Master of the Death of the Virgin, Madonna; *83. Castilian School (16th cent.), Crucifixion. — 194. Thorvaldsen, Ganymede (a replica of the well-known marble group); 190. Spanish Terracotta of the 17th cent., Bewailing of Christ.

Room III. 44. Führich, Triumph of Christ; *47. Overbeck, Marriage of the Virgin; *43. Beckm., Mary Magdalen; 51. Steinle, Salutation; 53. Schnorr, Introduction to the Nibelungenlied; 54. Lessing, Forest-scene; *55. Schwind, Father Rhine; 59. Deger, Adam and Eve; 61. Hübner, Melusina; 63. Le Pottier, Pirates on shore; *71, 80. Rottmann, Landscapes; 82. Riedel, Nurse and child; *84. Menzel, Frederick the Great and Gen. Fouquet; *89. L. Robert, Beavers; *90. Preller, Ulysses and Nausicaa; 91. Stilke, Pilgrims in the desert; 92. Kaulbach, Allegorical figure of Tradition; *93. Delaroche, Pilgrims in Rome; Makart, 88. Centaurs; *87. Queen of the Elves (two oil-sketches); 94. Lessing, Confession in the forest; 96. Th. Ihlebrandt, The sons of Edward IV.; 97. Cornelius, Allegorical group ('Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst'); *101. A. Achenbach, Norwegian scene; 102. Begas, Thorvaldsen (said to have been painted in one day); 101. Kaulbach, Italian herd-boy.

Room IV. 109. Verboeckhoven, Ox in a landscape; *110. Ary Scheffer, Götze von Berlichingen and his wife; 114. Preyer, Still-life; 148. Cretius, Cromwell; *148. Schadow, The daughter of Herodias.

Room V. 166. Schnets, Pope Sixtus V. as a shepherd-boy; *186. Canaletto, Election of King Stanislaus Poniatowski; 167. Bassano, Forge of Vulcan; 172. Gillot, Feast of Bacchus; 173. Vamloo, Venus and Cupid; 177. Snyders, Boar-hunt; *187. Bourguignon, Battle; 189. Stroszt, Rape of Europa.

The buildings on the N. side of the Museum-island are to be removed to make way for additions to the Museums. A temporary erection contains the collection of casts of the sculptures found in the Excavations at Olympia, carried on at the expense of the German Government in 1875-81. The chief of these are the Nike of Palaionia, the Hermes of Praxiteles, and the two pediment groups from the Temple of Zeus. Adm., see p. 18; visitors ring.

d. Friedrich-Strasse. Gensdarmen-Markt. Wilhelm-Strasse. Leipziger-Strasse.

To the S. of the Linden begins the FRIEDRICH-STADT (p. 20), the most regularly built quarter of Berlin, founded by Frederick I. and Frederick William I. The N. part of it next the Linden is now the great centre of business and the principal rendezvous of the fashionable world. The most important streets intersecting it are the Friedrich-Strasse from N. to S., the Wilhelm-Strasse to the W. (p. 58), and the Charlotten-Strasse and Markgrafen-Strasse to the E. The principal cross-streets are the busy Leipziger-Strasse (p. 59) and the Behren-Strasse, the latter containing several of the chief banks of Berlin (No. 9, the Deutsche Bank; No. 2, the Mitteldeutsche Credit Bank). Among the other handsome new buildings in the same street is the Unter den Linden Theatre (p. 14; Nos. 55-57), with a fine baroque interior, opening from the first and second balconies on a winter-garden and restaurant (communication with the Linden, see p. 25). — A little to the S., at No. 2 Jäger-Str., is the handsome sandstone front of the Berlin Club, by Kayser & Grossheim (1893).

The Friedrich-Strasse, which runs nearly due N. and S., is the longest street in the inner town, measuring (with its prolongation to the N. of the Linden, p. 79) 2 M. from the former Oranienburg Gate to the former Halle Gate, and $1\frac{1}{4}$ M. from the Linden to the latter. The busiest parts of it are between the Linden and the Leipziger-Strasse (p. 59), and between the Linden and the Friedrich-Strasse Station. Many of the business-houses in this street are built in a most substantial and handsome manner, and the older and less imposing structures are daily giving place to more elaborate successors. At the corner of the Behren-Strasse is the handsome new building of the Pachorr Brewery, the upper floor of which contains Castan's Panopticon (p. 15). The Renaissance pile at the N.E. corner of the Französische-Strasse (No. 79), belonging to Baron Faber, is one of the handsomest houses of business in Berlin. At the S.E. corner of the same street (No. 78) is the office of the Germania Insurance Co., nearly opposite which, in the Friedrich-Strasse, is the gaily-painted façade (by Seitz) of the Münchener Spatenbrauerei. At the corner of the Tauben-Strasse is the handsome new edifice of Baron von Tucher's Brewery (No. 180), adorned within and without with mural paintings. — To the right, in the Tauben-Str. (Nos. 48, 49), is the new building of the Urania (comp. p. 82).

To the E. of the Friedrich-Strasse, a few hundred paces from the square by the Opera House (p. 27) and the Linden, is situated the Gensdarmen-Markt* (Pl. r; I, 3), the central part of which is now called the 'SCHILLER-PLATZ', with the Schauspiel-Haus, the French Church, the New Church, and several handsome private edifices of last century. The three buildings just named form the finest architectural group in Berlin; their outline is very effective by moonlight.

The Schauspielhaus*, or Theatre (Pl. r; I, 3), 84 yds. long, 55 yds. in depth, and 125 ft. in height, was erected by Schinkel in 1819-21, to replace the original building which was burned down in 1817. The skilful application of Greek forms to a modern edifice of several stories and the vigorous articulation render it one of Schinkel's finest works; some defects (such as the entrance) are due to the cramping nature of his instructions and to the necessity of using the old walls. The principal façade towards the E. is embellished with an Ionic portico, approached by a prominent flight of steps, under which are the entrances for the spectators. At the sides of the steps are two groups in bronze by F. Tieck, genii riding on a panther and a lion. The tympanum of the portico contains a group of the Children of Niobe in sandstone, by the same sculptor. The summit of the principal part of the building is crowned with an Apollo in a chariot drawn by two griffins, a group in bronze by Rauch and Tieck, in the tympanum beneath which are Melpomene and Polyhymnia. On the W. summit of the building, corresponding to the Apollo, is a Pegasus in copper. The large

N. tympanum contains the *Triumphal Procession of Bacchus with Ariadne; in the S. tympanum, Orpheus bringing back Eurydice, both by F. Tieck, and probably his finest works. Besides the theatre, with seats for 1120 spectators, the building contains a large *Concert Room. This finely-proportioned hall, richly adorned with paintings and sculptures, and probably the best of Schinkel's interiors, has been restored and is used as a foyer.

In front of the steps of the theatre stands the Monument of Schiller, 19 ft. in height, in marble, by Begas. The figure of the poet, 9 ft. high, stands on a pedestal originally destined to serve as a fountain, and adorned at the corners with allegorical figures of lyric and dramatic poetry, historical composition and philosophy.

To the N. of the theatre is the French Church, to the S. the New Church, or German Cathedral, both dating from the beginning of last century. The former, in which a French service is still held every second Sun., retains its original insignificant appearance, but the latter, with its pentagonal ground-plan, has been cleverly remodelled. The handsome detached towers covered with domes (230 ft. in height) were added in 1780-85 (restored 1881-83).

Opposite the Schauspielhaus (to the E.), at No. 21 Jäger-Str., is the Königliche Seehandlung, now carrying on a banking business. The building at the other corner of the Jäger-Str. is the finest of the few survivals of the private houses erected by Frederick the Great to beautify his capital.

The Wilhelm-Strasse (Pl. r, H, 3, 4, and g, I, 1, 2), which forms the W. boundary of the Friedrich-Stadt, diverges from the Linden near the Pariser-Platz towards the S.E., and like the Friedrich-Strasse terminates in the Belle-Alliance-Platz (p. 67). The N. half of this street is considered the most aristocratic quarter of the city. No. 70, on the right, close to the Linden, is the British Embassy. No. 72, on the right, is the Palace of Prince George of Prussia. Opposite, to the left, No. 67, is Herr Pringsheim's House, with a polychrome façade, and a mosaic frieze executed by Salviati from designs by Anton von Werner. No. 73, on the right, is the house of the Minister of the Household; No. 74 is the Imperial Home Office, where the German Bundesrath meets. No. 65, opposite, to the left, is the residence of the Minister of Justice; No. 63 is the Palace of Prince Stolberg-Wernigerode. Then on the right, Nos. 75, 76, the Foreign Office. No. 77 is the Imperial Chancellery and the Residence of the Chancellor, originally built about 1738, and occupied by Prince Bismarck from 1878 till March, 1890. (The Congress of European Powers for the settlement of the Eastern Question in 1878 took place in the large hall in front.) No. 78 is the Palace of Prince Pless, designed by the French architect Destailleurs, in the style of the period of Louis XIII. Visitors are admitted to most of these palaces, during the absence of the owners, after previous application to the house-steward.

On the opposite side of the street is the WILHELMS-PLATZ (Pl. r; H, 3), adorned with flower-beds and with Statues of six heroes of the three Silesian wars of Frederick the Great: Schwerin, who fell at Prague in 1757; Winterfeldt, Frederick's favourite, who fell at Moys, near Görlitz, in 1757; Seydlitz, the hero of Rossbach, who died in 1773; Keith, who fell at Hochkirch in 1758; the gallant Zieten*, who died in 1786; and Prince Leopold of Anhalt-Dessau*, the victor at Kesselsdorf, who died in 1747. The former marble statues were replaced by bronze statues in 1862, Schwerin and Winterfeldt having been newly designed by Kiss, and the others copied from the original figures (now at the Cadet School in Lichterfelde, p. 90), of which Zieten and Leopold of Dessau are by Schadow.

On the N. side of the Wilhelms-Platz is the Palace of Prince Frederick Leopold (Pl. r; H, 3), erected in 1737 and remodelled by Schinkel in 1827-28. To the E. of the square lies the Kaiserhof (p. 2), built in 1873-75, with its principal façade towards the Zieten-Platz. Behind is the Church of the Trinity (Pl. r, 13; successfully enlarged in 1885-86), of which Schleiermacher, the eminent preacher and philosopher, was pastor from 1809 until his death in 1834. — Adjacent, Mauer-Str. 53, is the house occupied by the poet Heinrich von Kleist in 1809-11 (tablet; comp. p. 90).

On the S. side of the Wilhelms-Platz rises the Imperial Treasury, erected by W. von Möerner in 1873-76.

The VOSS-STRASS, leading to the Königgrätzer-Str., here diverges to the right. At the corner (No. 1) stands the Palace of Herr Borsig by Lucae, a noble structure in the Italian Renaissance style, with sculptural decoration (statues of eminent architects and engineers) by Begas, Encke, Hundrieser, and Lessing. No. 35, at the opposite corner, is the residence of the Minister of Public Works, the staircase of which is adorned with paintings by Meurer and Geselschap. At Nos. 4 & 5 is the Reichs-Justizamts ('Imperial Justice Office'), by W. von Möerner. No. 33 is, perhaps, the most striking of the many other handsome private residences in this street.

A few paces to the S. of the Wilhelms-Platz we reach the busy Leipziger-Strasse (Pl. r; H, I, K, 4), about 1 M. in length, beginning at the Spittel-Markt (p. 70), running parallel with the Linden, and leading to the Potsdamer-Platz. No. 48, near the Dönhoff-Platz, is the Concert-Haus (p. 13). Among the numerous handsome commercial buildings in the Leipziger-Strasse, mostly in the German Renaissance style, may be mentioned No. 43 (at the corner of the Markgrafen-Strasse), the office of the New York Equitable Insurance Co., at the corner of the Friedrich-Strasse, and the office of the New York Insurance Co. (No. 124), at the corner of the Wilhelm-Str., with mosaics of six great towns (London, Paris, New York, Berlin, Vienna, Rome). — At the corner of the Maurer-Str. is the new General Post Office ('Reichs-Postamt'; Pl. r, I 3), a handsome edifice in a rich Italian Renaissance style, erected by Techow and Ahrens in 1893 et seq. The adjacent older building (Leipziger-Str., No. 15), designed by Schwatlo in 1871-73, contains the Post Office Museum (p. 16), a collection of models and drawings of the postal and other conveyances of different epochs and nations, a very extensive collection of postage-stamps, new telegraphic apparatus, telephones, phonographs, etc. The museum is, however, to be transferred to the new building.

No. 5 Leipziger-Str., to the W. of the Wilhelm-Str., is the War Office, another handsome edifice, restored in 1847, according to plans by Stüler. The four figures in terracotta at the portals represent a hussar, a gunner, a grenadier, and a cuirassier. — No. 4, adjacent, is the former Reichstags-Gebäude, hastily fitted up in 1871 in a portion of the old porcelain-manufactory. No. 3 was the Herrenhaus, or Prussian Upper Chamber. In their place a new Herrenhaus is to be erected, with dwellings for the presidents of the two chambers of the Prussian Diet. The new Prussian House of Representatives (see below) will form part of the same group. — No. 2 is the new Ministry of Commerce, in the lower story of which is the attractive depot of the Royal Porcelain Manufactory (p. 13).

A little farther on the Leipziger-Str. expands into the octagonal LEIPZIGER-PLATZ (Pl. r; G, H, 4), adorned with gardens. No. 11 in this Platz is the Ministry of State (Staatsministerium), No. 10 the new Palace of Princess Frederick Charles, Nos. 8, 9 the Ministry of Agriculture, Domains, and Forests; No. 13 on the N. side is the Admiralty. On the right side of the street that intersects the Platz rises the bronze statue of the Prussian general and premier Count Brandenburg (d. 1850), by Hagen. Opposite is a statue of Field-Marshal Wrangel (d. 1877), by Keil.

On the W. the Leipziger-Platz is adjoined by the site of the old Potsdam Gate and the POTSDAMER-PLATZ (Pl. r; G, 4). In the latter are the Palast and Bellevue Hotels (p. 2), both built by Heim, and (S. side) the Potsdam Railway Station (p. 66).

e. Ethnographical and Industrial Museums.

From the Königgrätzer-Strasse, which leads to the S. E. from the Potsdamer-Platz, the PRINZ-ALBRECHT-STRASSE (Pl. r; H, 4) diverges to the left. At the corner is the imposing building of the Ethnographical Museum, adjoining which is the Industrial Museum (p. 62). Opposite is the new building of the Prussian Chamber of Deputies, by F. Schulze (comp. above).

The Ethnographical Museum* (Museum für Völkerkunde; Pl. r, H 4), a massive Renaissance structure by Ende, was opened in 1886 (adm., see p. 16). The building is in the form of an irregular pentagon, enclosing an open court; and the most striking external feature is the huge circular vestibule (diameter 100 ft.) at the corner. On the groundfloor are the prehistoric collections and the Trojan remains discovered by Schliemann, on the first and second floors are the ethnological collections; but the arrangement is not yet completed. Official catalogue, 50 pf.

Passing through the portico, at the N.W. angle, we enter the circular VESTIBULE, the ceiling of which is adorned with a mosaic of the Zodiac, executed by Salvetti from the designs of O. Leasing. Above the Vestibule is a large Asia, used as a lecture-room. — From the Vestibule we pass into the glass-covered COURT, which is surrounded by the exhibition galleries and contains some of the larger objects. In front are antiquities (objects in gold) from Colombia. In the middle is a facsimile of the famous Mexican (Aztec) Calendar Stone. Farther on are objects from Central Brazil, and a modern Siamese reproduction of an ancient Siamese statue of a king. Opposite the entrance is a cast of the E gate of the Sanctuary of Sanchi (India), dating from the 1st cent. A.D. Opposite the left side-entrance is a large 'totem pole' of the Haida Indians of Alaska; opposite the right side-entrance, a chariot with three gods from Poori (Orissa) and a cast of a monolithic gate from Bolivia. Round the sides of the court are two old-Germanic canoes found in the Weser and the Werra, stone sculptures from Mexico and Yucatan, and reliefs from Santa Lucia in Guatemala, many of the representations in which are still obscure.

GROUND FLOOR. To the left are the German and other Prehistoric Collections. In two ante-chambers, antiquities (5-7th cent. A.D.) discovered at Reichenhall, and those from European countries other than Germany. Room I. Brandenburg antiquities. II. Gold and silver objects from various sources. III. Saxony, Silesia, Provinces of Prussia, Pomerania, and Posen. IV. East of N. Germany, Baden, and Bavaria; several tombs of the recent stone period; models of a Roman legionary and of a Frankish warrior of the Merovingian period. E. V is closed. — To the right of the court are the Schliemann Collections, presented to the German empire by the distinguished discoverer (d. 1890). Most of the objects are from the district of ancient Troy, including the famous series of gold articles, formerly designated the 'Treasure of Priam' (in the 2nd Room). Antiquities excavated at Kurnah in Egypt and also from other countries on the Mediterranean are also exhibited here. The ceiling of the 2nd Room is an imitation of one discovered by Dr. Schliemann at Orchomenos.

FIRST FLOOR. Room I, to the left, African Collection. Cases 22-40. Objects from the Congo and Central Africa. — Cases 20, 21. Objects from Abyssinia, including the gold-embroidered cloak of Queen Durenesh and the drinking-horn of King Theodore. — Case 18. Room IV. South Sea Islands. In cases, objects from New Guinea (Kaiser-Wilhelms-Land). Canoe from the Marshall Islands.

Room V. Central and South America. By the front-wall, Mexican stone sculptures, and a case with Peruvian, Mexican, and other gold ornaments. — Central Case 84 (to the right) contains mummified heads and blow-pipes for poisoned arrows, from the valley of the Amazon; objects from Surinam and Guiana; silver filigree work from Ayacucho. — Case 88. Venezuela and Brazil. — Cases 89 and 90. Articles made by the Chibchas (Colombia). — Case 91. Tierra del Fuego; Patagonia. — 92. Ancient and modern objects from Chile. — Cases 92a, 93. Objects from the region of the Shingu. — Central Case 96. Guiana and Paraguay. — Central Case 97 and Case at the exit, Mexico. — Central Case 98 contains a unique series of objects in clay and stone from Yucatan. — 97. Guatemala; Panama. — 98. San Salvador, Nicaragua, and Costa Rica. — 99-107. Ancient Peruvian vessels, many of considerable artistic value.

Room VI. Large and systematically arranged collection of Peruvian Antiquities, found by Reiss and Stübel in the burial-ground of Ancon, to the S. of Lima. Case 109 contains mummies and several 'quippos' or bundles of knotted cords, extensively used in Peru as aids in registering numerical processes.

Room VII. North America. By the entrance-wall: models of the dwellings of the Pueblo Indians. — Central Cases 116, 117. Various Indian tribes and Esquimaux. — Most of the other cases contain the collections made in N. W. America by Capt. Jacobsen (sent out by the Museum in 1881-83) including many objects of great interest.

Room VIII (closed at present) contains terracotta vessels and figures and other Mexican antiquities.

SECOND FLOOR. — Room I (to the left). Collections from Hither India. Cases 1 & 2. Nepal. — 6-9. 8. India. — 14-19. Bengal, Orissa, and Benares. — 23-25. Delhi and Bombay. — 26-28. Panjab (casts and originals of Buddhist sculptures, etc.). — 29, 30. Cashmere.

Room II. Himalayan Countries. — Case 30. Chittagong region. — Room III. Farther India. Cases 42-47. Burmah. — 48, 49. Indian Islands from Malacca. — 53-56. Siam (interesting masks, musical instruments, and 'silhouette' figures). — 57, 58. Anam, Cambodia. — 59. Shan tribes.

Room IV. Eastern Archipelago. — Case 61. Banca. — 61-68. Sumatra. — 69-72. Borneo; figures of head-hunters and specimens of their spoils. — 73-76. First Floor with effective details in terracotta and coloured tiles. The exterior is also adorned with mosaics, executed by Salviati from the designs of Envald and Gezelschap, and representing the principal epochs in the history of civilisation. The terracotta bands of relief contain the names of great artists and scenes emblematic of their work. At the sides of the flight of steps ascending to the door are statues of Petor Vischer and Holbein, by Sussmann-Hellborn. The interior is grouped round a large central court, intended for loan exhibitions and new acquisitions and encircled by two rows of arcades, borne by slender syenite pillars. Above the upper arcade is a frieze in low relief, by Geyer and Hundrieser, representing a procession of the nations most distinguished in art, saluting Borussia. The frieze has been coloured by Schaller in imitation of majolica, and is a very successful attempt at a resuscitation of painted sculpture. — Admission, see p. 16. Director, Prof. Lessing. Official catalogue, 50 pf. — The rooms are numbered in Roman figures over the door. Comp. the Plan.

The Ground Floor contains furniture and domestic equipments arranged in chronological order. We begin on the W. Side, to the right, with Room VIII (through R. IX): Chinese, Japanese, and Indian lacquer and ivory articles. — R. IX. Domestic furniture in the Gothic style, chiefly cabinets and chests of simple construction, adorned with carving and metal work. Gothic hangings. Cases 118, 117 contain a highly valuable collection of carved and painted caskets of the Gothic period; Case 115, early mediæval ivory carvings; Case 120, objects in perforated leather, including a beautiful octagonal 'Casket of the 15th cent., with representations of figures, one of the best specimens extant of this kind of work. — R. X. Gothic church furniture. On the wall, 'Hangings interwoven with gold, Flemish work of the 15th century. In the cases: mediæval works in metal (chiefly ecclesiastical), enamels from the Lower Rhine and Limoges (11-13th cent.), crosses, and censers. — R. XI. Tapestry and furniture of the early Renaissance, mainly from the Lower Rhine. In the Window Frames 95 and 96 and in Cabinet 97 is an admirable collection of objects carved in boxwood, chiefly as goldsmiths' models. The 'Ribbon-Weavers' Frame, carved in boxwood (Nuremberg, ca. 1550), is considered one of the treasures of the collection. 'Chamber Organ, beautifully carved (Flanders, ca. 1580). — R. XII. Furniture of the Italian Renaissance. Wall 74: 'Chests with representations of Niobe and Neptune (Ital., 16th cent.). Wall 72: 'Bridal Chest from the Palazzo Strozzi; thronelike seat from the synagogue of Siena. Extensive collection of Italian picture frames.

E. Side. 'RR. XIII and XIV contain the 'Panelling of two rooms of the 16th century. The richer of the two, elaborately adorned with intarsia and enclosing an old stove, is from the château of Haldenstein, near Coire, and dates from 1548. The other and simpler, from the château of Höllich, near Würzburg, was made in 1560, and comprises a fine ceiling with armorial bearings. — Between these rooms is a space arranged as a chapel, with altar-screens dating from 1500 and glass-paintings of the 15-16th centuries. — Above is R. XV. Collection of mosaics, basket-work, etc. — R. XVI. Furniture of the 17th cent., chiefly heavy and somewhat clumsy articles of Dutch origin. Musical instruments. 'Hangings. Cabinet 59, objects in mother-of-pearl and rhinoceros-horn; Cabinet 60, objects in amber, most of them made at Dantsic. — R. XVII. Inlaid furniture of the 16-17th cent., chiefly German. Spinnet of Duke Alfonso II. of Ferrara, richly inlaid. The cabinets contain objects carved or turned in ivory. — R. XVIII. Baroque and rococo furniture; artistic cabinets; picture-frames. In the niches 39 and 40 are collections of small objects of the Italian and German late-Renaissance. Niche 41. Specimens of Oriental wood-carving. — R. XIX. Rococo furniture. *Writing Table with bronze mounts. Painted piano (Paris, 1730). Furniture from Liège. Wall 35: *Pedestal Table of boxwood (French, ca. 1720). — R. XIXa. Works of the end of the 18th century. *Furniture from the boudoir of Queen Marie Antoinette at Versailles. *Bureau by Riesener. — R. XX. *Room with paintings and carved panelling (Paris, ca. 1720). — The *Windows of nearly all the rooms on the groundfloor are filled with excellent stained glass of the 13-18th centuries.

The S. half of the Gallery round the Central Court (Sections VI, VII) contains large pieces of furniture, such as cabinets and bridal chests, most of them from Italy; also friezes, consoles, brackets, etc., while the N. half (Section IV, V) contains works in hammered iron.

We now ascend by the main staircase on the S. Side to the First Floor, which contains collections arranged in technical groups, including pottery, glass, metal-work, and textile fabrics. We begin, as below, on the W. Side. R. XXVIII (through RR. XXXV and XXXVI). Varying exhibitions. — R. XXXVI. Oriental works in metal. Excellent Chinese representation of a park and summer-house. Large Chinese vases. Cab. 391-394. *Chinese and Japanese enamels. — R. XXXV, with an elaborate painted ceiling, contains objects in the precious metals. Cab. 377. *Lüneburger Bathsilberzeug, a fine service of plate of the 15-18th cent., formerly belonging to the town of Lüneburg and bought in 1874 for 33,000 l. Cabs. 372 and 373 contain *German silver ware of the Renaissance, including specimens of the celebrated goldsmiths Jamnitzer, J. Silber, Petzold, and P. Götlich. Cabs. 375 and 378 contain Italian and German church services, mostly mediæval and some of them enamelled. The *Pommersche Kunstschränk, between the windows, is an exquisite cabinet made in 1617 for Philip II., Duke of Pomerania. Its contents are in Cab. 382 and 383, and the whole forms a splendid testimony to the skill of the goldsmiths of Augsburg (comp. the 'Official Handbook'). Cab. 379: German silver ware of the 17-18th centuries. Cab. 398: objects in the less valuable precious stones (agates, jasper, and the like). Cab. 346: watches, clocks, and mathematical instruments. — The windows contain *Stained Glass from Switzerland. — R. XXXIV. Works in bronze. Italian *Door-knockers. Painted enamels from Limoges (15-17th cent.), including several specimens of great beauty and rarity. The earliest and rarest pieces are in Cab. 392. Cab. 396 contains Venetian enamels. — R. XXXIII. Works in copper, tin, and brass. *Stained-glass window from Nuremberg, probably designed by Albrecht Dürer (1508). — R. XXXII. Collection of glass, one of the most complete departments in the museum. The Venetian glass is particularly good: Cab. 324. *Two enamelled glasses of the end of the 15th cent., extremely rare. Among the German glass may be specified the so-called *Schäper Glass' in Cab. 318. The Bohemian cut glass also deserves notice. Cabinets 313, 318, and 319 contain an almost unique collection of *Chinese glass.

R. Side. R. XXXI. German and foreign porcelain. Berlin porcelain is well represented (Cabs. 258, 259, 281); among the Dresden china (Cabs. 262-267) are some pieces of the celebrated *Swan Service of Count Brühl. Cab. 268, Sèvres. — R. XXX. German stoneware from Siegburg (*Cab. 264), Nassau, Raeren, Frechen, Franconia, etc. Moulds and stamps for earthenware, found in old potters' workshops. Cab. 245. Wedgwood pottery. Cab. 249. Glazed and coloured stoneware; Palissy ware. *Tapestry and stained glass. — R. XXIX contains faience of the 17-18th cent. from Holland (Delft), Germany, Sweden, etc. — R. XXVIII, with an elaborately adorned ceiling in the Italian majolica style, contains the *Collection of Italian Majolica, one of the most extensive of the kind in the world. The art of majolica-painting reached its highest development in 1480-1540, and also flourished at Urbino in the reign of Duke Guidobaldo II. (1558-74). Engravings of works by Raphael were the favourite patterns of the painters. The chief manufactories were at Florence (Cab. 217), Faenza (Cabs. 221, 222, 214, 216), *Gubbio (celebrated for its gold and ruby tints; Cab. 220), and Urbino (213, 219, 223, 225). At a later period majolica was also made at Castelli (Cab. 224). The Hispano-Moorish majolica is adorned with gilding (Cab. 227), that of Deruta in Umbria resembles mother-of-pearl (Cab. 226). Cabs. 212, 218 contain faience from France, Spain, and N. Italy (17-18th cent.). — B. XXVII contains a selection (frequently changed) of textile fabrics. The main collection of *Textile Fabrics is, however, in two adjoining rooms, and is shown only to students of this branch of industrial art, who obtain admittance by ringing the bell at the door. The collection of woven fabrics is the largest in the world, and the rare textile productions of the middle ages can nowhere else be studied to so great advantage. This room also contains needlework of the most various styles, origin, and periods, carpets, and other similar objects.

We now return through B. XXVIII to the GALLERY, to inspect the collection of ornamental objects, arranged in topographical and chronological order. The cases between the pilasters contain small articles of domestic use, such as knives, forks, spoons, combs, fans, and the like, many of them elaborately carved and ornamented. Section XXV of the gallery contains the Oriental pottery, chiefly consisting of Persian tiles and vessels of the 13-18th centuries. Adjacent are Spanish tiles of the 15-17th cent., many of them with Oriental patterns. Section XXIV contains a *Collection of Chinese and Japanese porcelain, affording a complete survey of the development of the ceramic art in these countries. Also six magnificent blue-enamel vases, bequeathed by Prince Charles of Prussia. — Sections XXII and XXIII contain a selection of woven fabrics and embroideries. Cabs. 285-288. Book-bindings of the 15-18th centuries.

In the BASMENT to the left: Stoves, models of stoves, Dutch tiles and flooring-tiles of the 14-17th centuries. To the right is a collection of decorative plaster-casts extending from antiquity to the 18th century.

The Museum possesses a valuable Library (adm., see p. 16).

f. Outer Friedrichstadt. Schöneberg Quarter.

Outside the Potsdam Gate (Pl. r; G, 4) lies the Friedrichs-Vorstadt, or Outer Friedrichstadt, one of the finest quarters of Berlin, and the residence of the wealthier members of the community. The N. half, lying between the canal and the Thiergarten, and also the Schöneberg Quarter, adjoining the Kurfürsten-Str. to the S.W., are chiefly noticeable for their handsome detached villas, surrounded with gardens, which are perhaps the most pleasing efforts of modern Berlin architecture. Nearly all the streets are planted with rows of trees.

The district between the Potsdam Station and the ASCANISCHER PLATZ (Pl. g; H, 1), dating from about 1845-60, is still sometimes called the 'Privy Councillor Quarter' ('Geheimrathsviertel'), though the W. suburb, near the Lützow-Platz, is now the fashionable residence of government-officials. In the Ascanischer-Platz is the extensive Anhalt Station, the finest in Berlin, erected in 1875-80 by Schwechten, and handsomely embellished in terracotta. The cost of erection was 18,000,000 M. (900,000 l.). The departure-pavilion, 200 ft. in breadth, is the largest on the continent. — The Church of St. Luke, in the Bernburger-Str., was built by Möller in 1862. No. 22a. in the same street is the Philharmonie (p. 13), rebuilt by Schwechten in 1888. A little farther to the S., on the bank of the canal (Hallesches Ufer 29-31), is a handsome new District Court (Pl. g; H, 2), built by Kieschke.

At No. 7 Link-Strasse (Pl. r; G, 4), to the W. of the Potsdam Station, the Brothers Grimm dwelt from 1847 till their death (tablet; comp. p. 67).

Farther to the W., beyond the Potsdamer-Strasse, is the Teltower Kreishaus (Victoria-Str. 18), containing two colossal paintings by Koch. Then, near the church of St. Matthew (Pl. r; F, 4), by Stüler (1846), at Matthäikirch-Str. 20, is the Ständehaus of the Diet of Brandenburg, with statues of Albert the Bear, Elector Frederick I., the Great Elector, and Emp. William I. on the façade. — One of the finest houses in the streets that lead hence to the Thiergarten (comp. p. 65) is that of Herr von Tiele-Winckler, Regenten-Str. 15, with a frieze in relief of scenes from Scandinavian mythology.

In the Schöneberg Quarter, beyond the canal (p. 68), Potsdamer-Str. 120, is the Royal School of Music. In the Lützow-Str., Nos. 24-26, is the Elisabeth Hospital (Pl. g; F, 1). A large Market Hall (adm., see p. 16) has been erected in the Magdeburger-Platz (Pl. g; E, 1).

The LÜTZOW-PLATZ, recently embellished with gardens, is one of the chief intersecting points of the tramway-lines (comp. pp. 9, 10). The canal is here crossed by the Hercules Bridge (Pl. g; D, 1), so called from sculptures (by Schadow), which originally decorated an earlier bridge of the same name (now pulled down) near the Börse Station of the Stadtbahn (p. 76).

A little to the S. of this point is the KURFÜRSTEN-STRASSE (Pl. g; E, 2, D, C, 1), a long street running from E. to W. In it, almost due S. from the Magdeburger-Platz, is the Church of the Twelve Apostles, by Blankenstein (1871-74). Farther to the W. (No. 70) are the Headquarters of the Engineers, a dome-covered edifice by Zödeking. The W. end of the Kurfürsten-Str. contains many handsome private residences. The street ends at the Kurfürstendamm (p. 87), opposite one of the main entrances to the Zoological Garden (p. 86).

In the S. part of the Schöneberg Quarter are the Lutherkirche (Pl. g; F, 2, 3), by Otzen, completed in 1894, and the Roman Catholic St. Matthiaskirche (Pl. g; D, 3), by Seibertz (1896).

Adjacent lies the Botanical Garden* (Pl. g, E 34; adm., p. 15; official guide 50 pf.), founded in 1679 and reorganised in 1801. It is one of the most extensive in Europe, and contains 36 hot and cold houses and 20,000 species of plants. The palms and cacti are particularly fine. The extensive Palm House* was built in 1858, and the Victoria Regia House in 1882 (in blossom in Aug.). On the S. side of the garden, in the Grunewald-Str., is the Botanical Museum and Herbarium (adm., see p. 16). It is intended to transfer the garden to Dahlem, near Steglitz (p. 91).

In the same neighbourhood is St. Matthew's Cemetery (Pl. g; F, 4), containing the graves of Jacob and Wilhelm Grimm (d. 1863 and 1859), Kngler (d. 1858), the art-writer, Gustav Richter (d. 1884), the painter, Drake (d. 1882), the sculptor, Sybel (d. 1895), the historian, Gneist (d. 1895), the publicist, and many other modern Germans of note.

g. The South Friedrichstadt. Quarter outside the Halle Gate.

The S. half of the Friedrichstadt is duller and less interesting than the N. half. Most of the principal streets converge on the Belle-Alliance-Platz (see below).

In the S. part of the WILHELM-STRASSE, Nos. 92, 93, is the Architects' Union (Pl. r; H, 4), opened in 1876, containing the Picture Gallery of the Verein der Berliner Künstler (exhibitions, see p. 17). The hall is adorned with frescoes by Prell, representing the history of architecture. At the corner of Wilhelm-Str. and Prinz Albrecht-Str. (in which is situated the Industrial Museum, p. 62) rises the sumptuous Hôtel Vier Jahreszeiten. — In the Wilhelm-Str., No. 102, opposite the Koch-Str., is the Palace of Prince Albert (Pl. r; H 4), erected in 1737-39, and remodelled by Schinkel in 1833. The entrance-court is separated from the street by a colonnade. — No. 62 in the Koch-Strasse, at the other end of which stands the Jerusalem Kirche (p. 70), bears a tablet in memory of General von Zieten (d. 1786; comp. p. 59).

In the part of the FRIEDRICH-STRASSE to the S. of the Bessel-Strasse are a Normal Seminary, with a department for teachers of gymnastics (No. 229), and one of the Public Markets (No. 18, opposite). Chamisso (p. 76) lived at No. 236, denoted by a medallion.

In the Encke-Platz, at the end of the CHARLOTTEN-STRASSE, is situated the Observatory (Pl. g; I, 1), erected by Schinkel in 1836 (no admission; entrance, Linden-Str. 91). The six standard clocks of Berlin are regulated by electricity from the Observatory. The mean height of Prussia above the sea (37 mètres = 120 ft.) is marked on the N. façade.

The Friedrich-Str., Wilhelm-Str., and Linden-Str. converge in the circular BELLE-ALLIANCE-PLATZ (Pl. g; I, 2), which is laid out as a garden. In the centre rises the Friedens-Säule, or Column of Peace, 60 ft. in height, erected in 1840 to commemorate the 25th anniversary of the peace of 1815. It consists of a column of granite with a marble capital, placed on a lofty pedestal, and is crowned with a Victory by Rauch, holding a twig of palm in her left hand, and presenting the victor's wreath to the city with the right. Four groups in marble, representing the four principal powers that took part in the victory of Waterloo (England, Prussia, the Netherlands, and Hanover), designed by Fischer, and executed by Franz and Walger, surround the column. On the S. side of the Platz is a flight of steps ascending from the street, the sides of which are adorned with two allegorical figures in white marble by A. Wolff and Hartzer.

On the S. the square is bounded by the HALLE GATE (Pl. g; I, 2), a monumental edifice by Strack, embellished with figures of the Seasons by L. Drake and Pohlmann. — Just outside the gate is the S.E. end of the Königgrätzer-Str., at No. 88 in which is a tablet commemorating the fact that Prince Bismarck was a pupil at Plamann's School in this street. No. 90 is occupied by the Lette Verein, with commercial and industrial classes for women, and by the Victoria Institution, a ladies' home.

Opposite the Halle Gate the new Canal (Schiffahrt-Canal or Landwehr-Canal) is crossed by the vaulted Belle Alliance Bridge, 110 ft. wide, on the buttresses of which stand marble groups of Navigation, Fishing, Industry, and Trade.

The Tempelhof Quarter, stretching hence to the S., has grown very rapidly since 1887, when it was connected with the Schöneberg Quarter (p. 66) by eight railway-viaducts.

In the Belle-Alliance-Str., which diverges to the right, stand the Barracks of the 1st Dragoon Guards and the Belle Alliance Theatre (p. 14). Opposite is a Cemetery. To the W., in the Wartenberg-Str., is the building of the St. Gertraudi Hospital, by Koch.

About $\frac{3}{4}$ M. from the Halle Gate (tramways Nos. 8-10, 16, 17, see p. 8) is the Kreuzberg (Pl. g, H 4; 210 ft. above the sea-level), a sand-hill rising about 100 ft. above the city, of which, being the only eminence in the environs, it affords a fine survey. On the top rises a Gothic Obelisk in iron, 62 ft. in height, dedicated by Frederick William III. to his people, and inaugurated in 1821. The basement, 26 ft. high, was added in 1878. The obelisk was designed by Schinkel; the statues and reliefs by Rauch, Dieck, and Wichmann. In 1888-94 the Kreuzberg was laid out as a public park (Victoria Park*), which extends E. to the entrance of the Ticoli gardens (p. 6).

In the Tempelhofer Feld, an open piece of ground extending southwards from the Kreuzberg to the village of Tempelhof (tramway No. 17, p. 8; Restaurant Kreldeweise), the annual manoeuvres and reviews of the Berlin garrison have taken place since the days of Frederick William I. (1721; see p. 15). The village belonged to the Knights Templar down to 1819, and the ancient church probably dates from the beginning of the 13th century. Near the village are several large military buildings. Station on the Stadtbahn, see p. 1. — At the beginning of the Tempelhofer Feld lies one of the four large public recreation grounds for the children of Berlin (others in the Humboldthain, Friedrichshain, and Treptow Park).

The Blücher-Str., containing the handsome new Gothic Church of the Holy Rood (Pl. g; K, 5) and the barracks of the Second Dragoon Guards and the Emperor Franz Grenadiers, leads to the S.E. (left) from the Halle Gate to the Hasenheide (Pl. g, M 4; tramway-lines Nos. 2, 18, 45, pp. 8, 10), on which are the infantry rifle-ranges, a Childrens' Hospital, two Garrison Churches, and a large gymnastic ground, with a statue of F. L. Jahn (d. 1852), the German "Turnvater" (father of gymnastics), erected in 1872.

To the W. lie the Military Cemetery, with a large monument to the fallen of 1866 and 1870-71, and the isolated and singular-looking Mohammedan Burial Ground. On the outskirts of the wood are the 'Neue Welt' (p. 15) and other places of popular resort. — In the Urban are the Institution for Deserted Children and a Municipal Hospital. — Farther on is the village of Rixdorf (80,000 inhab.).

Outside the Halle Gate lie several large Cemeteries: the old Jerusalem Kirchhof (Pl. g; L. 3) contains the graves of Chamisso (d. 1838), Iffland (d. 1814), and Noander (d. 1850); the Alte Dreifaltigkeits-Kirchhof those of Mendelssohn (d. 1847) and Varnhagen von Ense (d. 1858); the Neue Dreifaltigkeits-Kirchhof (Pl. g; L. 4) those of Schleiermacher (d. 1834), Tieck (d. 1853), Lachmann (d. 1861), Bopp (d. 1867), and Charlotte von Kalb (d. 1843); and the new Jerusalem Kirchhof that of Charlotte Birch-Pfeiffer (d. 1868).

h. Luisenstadt. Raven's Picture Gallery.

The OBERWALL-STRASSE (Pl. r; K, 2, 3), beginning at the Palace of the Empress Victoria (p. 29), crosses the Französische-Str. near the Werdersche Markt and leads past the E. end of the Jäger-Str. to the Hausvogtei-Platz. Between the Französische-Str. and the Jäger-Str., to the right, is the large Central Telegraph Office (Pl. r; K, 3), with a façade in the Venetian style turned towards the Jäger-Str. Permission to view the interior is generally granted on application in the Inspector's Office.

Farther on, to the left, also facing the Jäger-Str., rises the Deutsche Reichsbank* (Pl. r; K, 3), a noble Renaissance edifice, built by Hüsig in 1869-76, and an admirable example of the fine effects of colouring that can be produced by a judicious mingling of sandstone and brick. The sculptures, representing Germania as patroness of Commerce, Navigation, Cattle-rearing, and Industry, were executed by Frans. The richly-adorned interior is also worthy of inspection. An addition to the bank, facing the Hausvogtei-Platz, was designed by Emmerich & Hasak and finished in 1894.

From the adjacent Hausvogtei-Platz we may now proceed by the Jerusalem-Str. to the DÖNHOF-PLATZ (Pl. r; K, 3, 4), where the Abgeordneten-Haus, or Chamber of the Prussian Deputies (Leipziger-Str. 75), is situated (adm., p. 15; new building, see p. 60). Opposite to it and the Reichshallen Theatre (No. 77; p. 14) rises a monument to the Prussian Minister, Baron vom Stein (1757-1831), inaugurated in 1875. The statue of the great man, who laid the foundation for Prussia's subsequent development, is 11½ ft. high; on the pedestal are allegorical reliefs and figures representing Wisdom, Courage, Truthfulness, and Piety, and a frieze in relief with scenes from his life. The design and part of the execution are by Schiewelbein, after whose death (1868) Hagen completed the work. — The Dönhoff-Platz, like the adjacent Spittel-Markt (p. 70), is an important centre of the tramway traffic.

THE LUISENSTADT, to the S. E. and E. of the Dönhoff-Platz, a manufacturing district that has sprung up since 1855, is now the largest and most populous, but least interesting quarter of Berlin.

At the corner of the LINDEN-STRASSE and Jerusalemer-Strasse stands the Jerusalemer-Kirche (Pl. r; K, 4), a handsome edifice with terracotta details, rebuilt by Knoblauch in 1876-79. — At Linden-Str., No. 41, are the headquarters of the Fire Brigade, which numbers 750 men and is called into requisition on an average 3-4 times a day. — The Government Printing Office (Pl. r; K, L, 4) is at Oranien-Str. 90 (adm. p. 17). — At Linden-Str. 14 is the Kammergericht (Pl. g; K, 1), built by Gerlach in 1734-35, but remodelled in 1880; the court contains a marble statue of the chancellor Cocceji (d. 1755).

At the beginning of the KOMMANDANTEN-STRASSE (Pl. r; K, L, 4) is Geber's large 'Industrie-Gebäude' (No. 77). Opposite, Linden-Str. 48, is a Synagogue, a brick edifice in the transition style, built in 1890-91. — The Jacobikirche (Pl. g; L, 1), Oranien-Str. No. 133, by Stüler, completed in 1846, is a brick edifice in the early-Christian basilica style. — In the Prinzen-Str. rises the spacious Turnhalle (Pl. r; M, 1), or gymnastic establishment (adm., see p. 16.)

A little to the N., at the Engel Becken, formed by the branch-canal that intersects the district, rises the Romanesque Church of St. Michael (Pl. r; N, 4), designed by Soller, and erected in 1853-56 as a Roman Catholic garrison-church. Farther to the S.E. is the Church of St. Thomas (Pl. g; O, 1), built by Adler in 1864-69. Both churches are among the most successful modern buildings in Berlin, exhibiting a happy combination of Romanesque plans with Renaissance details; the former is most remarkable for its exterior, the latter for its interior. — Near the church of St. Thomas, in the Mariannen-Platz, rises the large and gloomy building of the Bethanien (Pl. r; N, 1), an admirably-organised hospital with 325 beds, managed by Protestant sisters of charity (adm., daily 1-4, except Sun.). In front of the hospital is a monument to the celebrated surgeon Wilms (d. 1880), by Siemering.

On the S.E. verge of this quarter, in the Lausitzer-Platz, is the handsome Emmaus Church (Pl. g; O, 2), built by Orth in 1893 and combining an octagonal central structure with a nave and aisles. It is the roomiest church in Berlin, accommodating, with its two galleries, 2600 people. — Close by is the Görlitz Railway Station (Pl. g, Q 2 3; tramway-lines 34 and 44, pp. 9, 10), and a little farther on are the Barracks of the 3rd Foot Guards.

To the E. of the Dönhoff-Platz (p. 69), beyond the Colonnades of the Leipziger-Str., we reach the SPITTEL-MARKT (Pl. r; L, 3), with the Spindler-Brunnen, a fountain in red and grey granite erected in 1891. At No. 5 in the WALL-STRASSE (Pl. r; L, M, 3), which begins beyond the market, is Ravené's Picture Gallery, a choice and admirably lighted collection of about 160 works by modern German and French masters (adm., see p. 17). The following is a list of the chief pictures in alphabetical order (no numbers).

A. Achenbach, Ostend Pier in a storm; O. Achenbach, Italian scene; Baron, Genre scene. Becker, Lady and page; Family portraits; Jeweller and senator; Morning after the ball. A. Beyas, Moor-washing; Biard, Smuggling; Buchener, Landscape; Bussler, Queen Elisabeth of Prussia; Costure, Young noble; Doussie, Moonlight-scene; Fleury, Massacre of the Jews in London on the coronation-day of Edward II. (1307); Gallati, Bohemian musicians; Gemisson, St. Lierre, near Antwerp. Grueb, Fontana Medina at Naples; Near Florence; Interior of Halberstadt Cathedral. Gude, Fishing in Rügen; Gudin, Storm at sea; van Haanen, Winter-landscape. Hasenclever, Portrait of Hilger; Portrait of Preyer; Jobs (a dunce) undergoing examination; Jobs as a night-watchman; Jobs as a school-master; Portrait of himself; Scene in a cellar. Heilbut, Titian and his mistress. Hildebrandt, Irish cabins; The leisure hour; Scenes from Lyons, Rouen, S. Gloria, and Boa Viagem (both near Rio Janeiro); Winter pleasures. Hilgers, Winter-scene; Hoguet, Silvan district; Hübner, Game-law; Jordan, Child's funeral in Heligoland. Knaus, Portrait of Ravené; Girl playing with two cats; Flower girl; The mouse-trap. Koeltzsch, Silvan scene; Körner, Nile scene; Kraus, Farm-house with children; Krauss, Lions; Lessing, Westphalian landscape. Lew, Landslip in Norway; Norwegian landscape; Swiss landscape; Waterfall. Martersteig, Huss at Constance; Luther at Worms. Menzel, Frederick the Great travelling; Munthe, Autumn; Oeder, Environs of Blankenberghe; Ritter, Drowned fisher-boy; Saltmann, Cape of Good Hope; Scheuren, Landscape with thunderstorm; Schmidt, Charles V. receiving the sacrament at St. Just; Schmitton, Hungarian horses (uncompleted); Schrader, Bacchic scene; Schreyer, Prussian hussars attacking artillery; Stevens, Condolence; H. ten Kate, Genre piece. Tidemand, Sunday festival in Norway; Norwegian funeral scene (Gravöl); The wolf-hunter's tale. Troyen, Leash of hounds; Pasture. Vernet, Zouave acting as a nurse; Warmüller, Intermezzo; Weber, Italian landscape; Willem, Picture-sale; De Winter, Beach; Ziem, Doge's palace at Venice.

At Wall-Str. 21 is a tablet commemorating the fact that Jahn (p. 68) lived here in 1817-19. — In the Splittgerber-Strasse (No. 3) is the Loge zu den drei Wellkugeln, a Masonic lodge, founded in 1740. — At the end of the Wall-Str. is the Köllnische Gymnasium, beyond which the new Märkische Provinzial-Museum (p. 72) is to be erected.

i. Alt-Kölln. Berlin Old Town. Stralau Quarter. Königstadt.

To the S. W. of the Schloss-Platz (p. 34) run the Brüder-Strasse and the Breite-Strasse. To the right, at the beginning of the former, stands an imposing pile of offices by Ende & Böckmann, known as the Rothe Schloss. The houses Nos. 33 and 28 Brüder-Str. bear tablets in memory of A. Schlüter (d. 1714; p. 22), and Gotskowsky (d. 1776; p. 88), a patriotic citizen; No. 13, once the property of Fried. Nicolai, was the temporary abode of Theodore Körner in 1811 and 1813 (tablets in memory of both). At the end of the street stands the Gothic Church of St. Peter (Pl. r; L, 3), erected from designs by Strack in 1846-50. The slender tower, 315 ft. in height, is one of the loftiest in Berlin (comp. p. 87). In the Breite-Str., Nos. 32-37, are the Royal Stables (adm., see p. 17), which are soon to be rebuilt. No. 35 is a private house dating from 1624.

In the KÖLLNISCHER FISCHMARKT (Pl. r; L, 3) stands the Kölln

Rathhaus (with an unfinished tower), on the first floor of which is the Märkische Provinzial-Museum, containing an extensive collection of antiquities and natural objects illustrating the historical progress and physical features of the Mark of Brandenburg. Adm., see p. 16. The museum is soon to be removed to a building of its own (see p. 71).

L. Tieck (d. 1853; comp. p. 69) was born in 1773 at Ross-Str. 1 (tablet). — The adjacent Mühlendamm has recently undergone a thorough transformation in the course of the works for the regulation of the Spree. On the bridge are statues of Margrave Albert the Bear and Waldemar I.

To the N. E. of the Schloss-Platz the Lange, or Kurfürsten-Brücke (Bridge of the Elector; Pl. r, L 2), leads to the old town of Berlin. The bridge, built in 1692-95 and rebuilt in the old style in 1895, is adorned with an equestrian Statue of the Great Elector* (d. 1688) in bronze, designed by Schlüter and erected in 1703. This clever and artistic group is one of the few really good works of a period when art was generally in a very debased condition. In spite of the outlandish Roman costume, the figure is remarkable for its air of majestic repose, which is heightened by contrast with the movements of the four slaves round the pedestal.

The König-Strasse, which begins beyond the bridge, and intersects the OLD TOWN, is a great artery of traffic. No. 60 in this street is the extensive Central Post Office (Pl. r, L 2; comp. p. 11), rebuilt from plans by Tuckermann. To the S., in the Post-Str., is the Church of St. Nicholas (Pl. r; L, 1), the oldest church in Berlin, restored in 1877-80 by Blankenstein, who added the second tower, an unexecuted part of the original design. The basements of the towers, consisting of square blocks of granite, date from the beginning of the 13th cent., the choir from the 14th, and the nave from the 15th century.

The INTERIOR* (sacristan, Propst-Str. 14-16, 2nd fl.) deserves a visit for the sake of its picturesque general effect, and also for the numerous tablets, screens, etc., restored in their original form and colouring. Every kind of artistic style, from the end of the Gothic period down to the rococo, is here represented, in some cases by works of great merit. The church contains the tomb of Pufendorf (d. 1694), the celebrated jurist; and on the outside is the monument of Philipp J. Spener (d. 1706). Paul Gerhardt, the hymn-writer (p. 249), was one of the pastors of this church (1657-66).

Farther on in the König-Strasse is the Rathhaus* (Pl. r; L, 2), an imposing brick edifice with tasteful terracotta embellishments and granite facings, built in 1861-70 from the plans of Waesemann. Like many of the other modern buildings of Berlin it exhibits a union of a mediæval structural system (round-arched) with Renaissance details, and resembles the edifices of North Italy. The principal entrance is in the tower, which rises to a height of 243 ft. (to the top of the flag-staff 285 ft.). The dial-plates of the clock measure 15 ft. across, and are illuminated after dusk.

The reliefs on the front of the balcony, representing scenes in old and new Berlin, are by Calandrelli, Schweinitz, Geyer, and Brodwolf.

The bronze statues in the niches by the portal, representing Emperor William I. and Elector Frederick I., were executed by Kell and Encke.

*Interior (admission, see p. 17). The architectural *Decoration of all the apartments is by Wassermann and Kolcher. We enter by the PRINCIPAL PORTAL and ascend the main staircase to the PASSAGE, with its star-vaulting and stained-glass windows bearing the arms of 84 Prussian towns. Towards the right is the LIBRARY, a spacious saloon with vaulted ceiling. The doors of the book-cases are adorned with medallion-portraits of celebrated men connected with the books within, by Zurstrassen. The paintings are by E. Ewald. Beyond the small READING ROOM, the ceiling of which is adorned with *Figures from German legends by Burger, and which contains busts of Bismarck and Moltke by Drake, and of Schlie-mann and Ranke by Grüttner, we reach the handsome *FESTSAAL, with its fine coffered ceiling, massive candelabra, and beautifully-carved oaken doors. Pictures in the lunettes by Begas. Statues of Frederick the Great and Fred. William III. by Sussmann-Heilborn. Bust of William II. by Schott. This hall also contains the well-known picture of the Berlin Congress of 1878, by Werner (comp. p. 58). — Adjacent is the TOWN COUNCIL CHAMBER, with panelled walls and appropriate paintings by Burger. — On the other side of the passage (to the left at the top of the staircase) is the MAGISTRATES' SALOON, with fine panelling and full-length portraits of the Great Elector and the seven kings of Prussia. — The walls of the STAIRCASE leading to the upper floor are adorned with a painting by Mühlenbruch; those of the corridor, and the vestibule of the Magistrates' Saloon with frescoes by Bleibtreu, Vogel, Simmier, and Scheurenberg.

The SUNKEN FLOOR contains the Rathskeller (p. 5), a popular place of refreshment, the central room of which is adorned with paintings by Aug. von Heyden and contains a copy of the column in the Gerichtshalle (p. 97).

The Tower commands an admirable *View of Berlin (adm., see p. 17).

To the N.W. of the Rathhaus, in the Neue Markt (Pl. r; L, 1), rises the *Luther Monument, begun by Otto and completed (1895) after his death by Toberentz. Besides the statue of Luther himself the monument includes seated figures of Hutten, Sickingen, Jonas, Cruciger, Reuchlin, and Spalatin, and standing figures of Melancthon and Bugenhagen. — In the same square is the Marienkirche (Pl. r; L, 1), the second parish-church of Old Berlin, built in the 13th and rebuilt in the 14th cent. (open daily, 12-1). The spire of the tower (295 ft.), in a very peculiar Gothic style, was added by Boumann the Younger from the design of C. G. Langhans in 1790. In 1894 the church was restored by Blankenstein, and a S. aisle added. In front of the principal entrance is the expiatory cross for the murder of the Provost of Bernau (beginning of the 14th cent.). In the hall below the tower is a Dance of Death, a mural painting of about 1470, with naïve rhymes in Low German. The interior contains the tombstone of Count Sparr, a field-marshal under the Great Elector, a pulpit by Schlüter (1703), paintings by Rode, and a bronze font of 1437.

To the E. of the Rathhaus, at the corner of the Jüden-Strasse, is one of the District Courts of Berlin. — The Kloster-Strasse, the next cross-street, still preserves to some extent its mediæval look. No. 36 is occupied by the Museum of Hygiene (Pl. r; M, 2; adm., see p. 16), and No. 36 by the Hygienic Institute of the University (director, Dr. Koch), and by the interesting Museum of German National Costumes and Domestic Industries* founded in 1889 (adm., see p. 16).

Opposite, at Kloster-Str. 75, is the Lagerhaus (Pl. r; M, 2), on the site of the old palace of the Markgraves. Behind it are the State Archives. Adjacent is the School of Art, erected in 1877-80, containing the studios of several sculptors. Beyond this, in rooms once used by Rauch as a studio, is the Rauch Museum (p. 16), a collection of casts and models of the works of that distinguished master, the originals of most of which are in Berlin.

Adjoining the School of Art in the Kloster-Strasse is the Gymnasium zum Grauen Kloster, founded in 1574, and containing the common and chapter-rooms (the latter dating from 1474) of the old monastery, in good preservation. A tablet on the outer wall recalls the fact that Prince Bismarck was a pupil here in 1830-32. The Gothic Klosterkirche (Pl. r; M, 2), erected at the end of the 13th cent. by the Franciscans, is one of the finest and best-preserved mediæval buildings in Berlin. The choir-stalls date from the 15th century. The interior contains a painting in memory of a Count Hohenlohe (d. 1412), a memorial stone of the poet Sam. Rodegast (d. 1708), etc. The church was restored in 1842-47, when the vestibule, towers, and belfry were added. — Beyond it is the Parochial Church (Pl. r; M, 2), erected by Nering in 1695-1703; the tower, containing a peal of bells, was added in 1715; interior restored in 1884.

At the E. end of the König-Strasse is a colonnade (Königs-Kolonnaden), built by Gontard in 1777, and adjacent is the Alexander-Platz Station of the Stadtbahn (p. 1), a tasteful structure by Jacobsthal. To the left of the station is the Panorama of the Battle of Sedan (Pl. r; M, 1), by A. von Werner and Bracht (adm., see p. 16). On one side is represented the valley of the Meuse, from which the Prussian troops are ascending the plateau of Illy-Floing; on the other side are depicted the vain attempts of the French cavalry to break the German lines. Three dioramic views represent the Negotiations between the French and German leaders; the Emp. William receiving the Emp. Napoleon's letter of surrender; and the Meeting of Napoleon and Bismarck.

To the N. of the Panorama is the Central Market (Pl. r; L, 1), an extensive and well-equipped structure, opened in 1886 (adm., see p. 16). On the N. side of the 'Platz' stands a colossal hollow copper figure of Berolina, by Hundrieser (statue and pedestal each 25 ft. high). To the E. of the station, on the other side of the irregularly-shaped ALEXANDER-PLATZ, is the Grand Hôtel (p. 2), a large building in the German Renaissance style. To the S.E. are the Police Headquarters (Pl. r; M, 1), a huge pile erected in 1886-90. The niches at the N.E. angle contain statues of the Great Elector, Frederick I., Emperor William I., and Emperor Frederick III. — At

No. 20 in the street Am Königsgraben, diverging from the Alexander-Platz, are a bust and tablet commemorating the fact that Lessing completed 'Minna von Barnhelm' here in 1766.

To the E. of the old town of Berlin, between the Spree and the Landsberger-Strasse, lies the STRALAU QUARTER, another modern part of the town, with numerous factories, where the Schiller Theatre (Pl. r, N 3; p. 14) and the Residence Theatre (Pl. r; N, 2) are situated. To the S.E. are the Church of St. Andrew (Pl. r; O, 4), in the Stralauer-Platz, erected by Strack in 1863-68, and the Silesian Railway Station (Pl. r; P, 3, 4) by Bömer, the largest in Berlin. — In the N. part, known as the 'Weavers' Quarter', traversed by the Grosse Frankfurter-Str., rises the Church of St. Mark (Pl. r; O, 1, 2), built by Stüler in 1848-55.

The Grosse Frankfurter-Strasse leads via Friedrichsberg (p. 2) to the Public Cattle Market and Slaughter Houses (Pl. r; E, 1), opened in 1881 and among the largest establishments of the kind in existence (tramway-lines Nos. 48, 49; p. 10). The busiest time is on Wednesday forenoon (adm., see p. 15). Good restaurant. In 1894-95 the number of cattle brought to the market was 211,911, of calves 142,488, of sheep 651,326, and of pigs 668,503. — Near the market lie the districts of Friedrichsberg (station on the Ringbahn, p. 2) and Lichtenberg. To the N.E. of the latter is the Herzberge Asylum for the Insane.

To the N.E. of Old Berlin, between the Landsberger-Strasse and Prenslauer-Strasse, lies the KÖNIGSTADT. On a height to the right, near the old Königs-Thor, stands the Gothic Church of St. Bartholomew (Pl. b; N, 4), with a tower 210 ft. in height, erected by Stüler in 1854-58. Outside the Königs-Thor, to the right, and towards the S.E. as far as the Landsberg Gate (Pl. r; P, 1) extends the Friedrichshain (Pl. b; O, P, Q, 4), a pleasant park affording good views of the town, laid out in 1845 (reached by tramway-line No. 1, 'Ringbahn'). At the S.W. end is a monument by Calandrelli, erected in memory of the soldiers of the E. districts of Berlin who fell in 1870-71. The highest point in the park is adorned with a bust of Frederick the Great. — The large Städtische Krankenhaus (Hospital; Pl. b, P 4), with 800 beds, was completed in 1874, on the 'pavilion' system, by Gropius & Schmieden. Farther to the S.E. is the Church of the Resurrection, completed in 1895. — The neighbouring Cemetery of St. Peter contains the handsome mortuary chapel of Herr Wagener (p. 51), erected by Lucæ in 1869.

In the Prenslauer Allée are the new Immanuel Kirche (Pl. b; N, 3), the Old Men's Hospital (750 beds), the Hospital for Incurables (260 beds), and the Home for the Shelterless, with accommodation for 1000 men and 200 women.

k. Exchange. Rosenthal Quarter. Monbijou. Hohenzollern Museum. New Synagogue.

Opposite the Museums (p. 34), on the other side of the Spree, rises the imposing Börse, or Exchange (Pl. r; K, L, 1), erected in 1859-64 by Hüsig, and the first modern building of Berlin executed in stone instead of brick. The chief façade towards the Spree is embellished with a double colonnade, above which, in the centre, is a group in sandstone by R. Begas, representing Borussia as the protectress of agriculture and commerce; on the wings are smaller emblematic groups and figures.

Entering from the Burg-Strasse, we pass through the ANTE-CHAMBER, adorned with a statue of Emperor William I. by Skerning, to the GREAT HALL, the largest in Berlin, 330 ft. in length, 88 ft. in width, and 66 ft. in height. It is lined with imitation marble and divided by arcades into three parts, adorned with appropriate frescoes by Kißer. More than 4000 people congregate here daily. During the business-hours, 12-2, the gallery affords the best survey of the busy scene (admission, see p. 15). — The Corn Exchange occupies an extension of the building towards the S.

Behind the Exchange is the small Heiligegeist-Kirche (Pl. r; L, 1), built at the end of the 13th century. Adjacent, in the Neue Friedrich-Strasse, between Nos. 45 and 46, is the Garrison Church (Pl. r; L, 1), built in 1721-22. The interior, which contains pictures by Rode and K. Begas and the tombs of Marshal Keith (d. 1758) and other military heroes, was altered to its present appearance in 1816. The bronze monument of the Electors John Cicero (d. 1499) and Joachim I. (d. 1535) was begun in the workshop of Peter Vischer of Nuremberg and completed by his son John in 1530. It was brought to this church from the Cathedral (p. 31) in 1893.

To the N.E. of the new Exchange are the Circus Busch (p. 15) and the tasteful little Börse Station of the Stadtbahn (p. 2). Farther on is the Hackesche Markt, beyond which lies the ROSENTHAL SUBURB. Here, at the corner of the Schönhäuser Allée and the Weissenburger-Str. (Pl. b; M, 3), a marble statue was erected in 1892 to A. Senefelder, inventor of lithography (1771-1834).

The Schönhäuser Allée leads hence to the Jewish Cemetery, with the graves of Meyerbeer (d. 1864) and Edw. Lasker (d. 1884). — Near the Rosenthaler-Strasse (Pl. b, L 4; entr. from the Gormann-Str.) is the Old Garrison Cemetery, where Fried. de la Motte Fouqué (d. 1843), author of 'Undine', is buried.

About 3 M. beyond the Schönhäuser Gate (tramway No. 24, p. 9) lies the village of Pankow (Linder's Restaurant), a favourite resort in summer (11,800 inhab.). Beyond is the village of Schönhäuser (Rest. Liedemil), with a royal château built by Eosander von Goethe and long occupied by the wife of Frederick the Great. Fine park. Electric tramway, see below. — To the W. lies (3/4 M.) Schönholz, a station on the Nordbahn, with a large restaurant and pleasure-resort.

Outside the Rosenthal Gate, to the E. of the Brunnen-Strasse, is the Zionskirche (Pl. b; L, 2), erected by Orth in 1866-73, a handsome structure in brick; the tower is 216 ft. high. The Friedenskirche, in the Ruppiner-Str., is also by Orth (1891). — Between the Brunnen-Str. and Wiesen-Str. is the Humboldtthain (Pl. b; H, I, 1), a fine park, 80 acres in extent, begun in 1869, on the centenary of Humboldt's birth, and containing a fine collection of foreign trees, a sub-tropical department, and a botanical garden in which specimens are grown for use in the botanical classes at German schools. It also contains a Monument to A. von Humboldt. — To the E. of the park is the Himmelfahrts-Kirche (1891-93), a Renaissance edifice by Orth, with Romanesque suggestions.

The Brunnen-Strasse ends at the Gesundbrunnen (tramways 7, 8, & 10, p. 8), with various popular resorts. It takes its name from a mineral spring, the yield of which is now extremely scanty. An electric tramway runs hence to Pankow every 10 min. (10 pf.).

The short Präsidenten-Str., to the N.W. of the Exchange Station (see above), leads to the MONBIJOU-PLATZ, which is adorned with a marble bust of A. v. Chamisso (p. 67) by Julius Mosen.

Here, in an old garden (part of which is open till dusk), stands the royal château of Monbijou (Pl. r; K, 1). The nucleus of the edifice consists of a villa erected by Eosander von Goethe in 1708 for Countess Wartenberg, which was afterwards enlarged as a residence for Queen Sophia Dorothea, wife of Frederick William I. The two detached buildings facing the Monbijou-Platz were added by Unger in 1789-90 for Queen Frederica Louisa, wife of Fred. William II. In the Monbijou garden is the tasteful little English Church (St. George's), erected in 1884-85 from the designs of J. C. Raschdorff (services, seep. 17). Adjacent (entr. from the Oranienburger-Str.) stands the Dom-Interimskirche or Temporary Cathedral, built in 1892 and containing the coffins of various electors and kings, transferred from the Cathedral (p. 31).

The rooms of the Monbijou château on the side next the garden contain the Hohenzollern Museum, which consists of personal reminiscences of the Prussian rulers from the time of the Great Elector down to the present day. It includes a large number of objects of genuine artistic interest, and affords a good survey of the progress of the last two centuries.

Admission, see p. 16 (catalogue 50 pf.). The first room is devoted to the Emperor William II., the second, with a memorial chapel (Pl. 3), to the Empress Augusta (1811-90), and the following three, also with a memorial chapel (Pl. 5), to the Emperor William I. (1797-1888). Among the contents are the table at which Napoleon III. signed the declaration of war at St. Cloud in 1870, and various addresses received by the German Emperor at important epochs of his life. The chapels contain funeral wreaths in aliver, porcelain, bronze, and iron, addresses of condolence, etc. — Rooms 8 and 9, with a chapel (Pl. 10), commemorate the Emperor Frederick III. (1831-88).

The rooms (Pl. 11, 12) of Frederick

William IV. (1795-1861) and Queen Elizabeth (1801-78) contain portraits of contemporary artists and savants (brought from Potsdam), pictures, and historical relics. The room of Frederick William III. (1770-1840; Pl. 13) contains personal relics; also Napoleon's table-service captured at Waterloo (1815). — The room of Queen Louise (1776-1810; Pl. 14) contains several portraits and relics of the queen. The adjoining room (Pl. 15) is fitted up in the style of Queen Louise's bedroom at Potsdam and contains her bed and the cradle of Emp. William I. R. 16 contains her sewing-table and piano. — The most striking object in the section (Pl. 17, 18) devoted to Frederick William II. (1744-97) and Queen Frederica Louisa (1751-1806) is a cabinet made at Neuwied, embellished with paintings and marquetry.

We now traverse the Porcelain Room and Gallery (Pl. 19, 20) and reach the four rooms (Pl. 21-24) assigned to Frederick the Great (1712-86), which are the most interesting in the palace. Wax models of Frederick's face after death; his clothes from childhood to death; the chair in which he died; his piano; all the editions and translations of his writings; musical compositions; his horse Condé in its state-trappings; and numerous other personal and historical relics of great interest.

The Gallery of the Busts (Pl. 25) contains busts of members of the royal family, mostly by Schadow and Rauch, and also one of Napoleon I. by Canova and one of Pius IX. by Troschel.

The room of Queen Sophia Dorothea (1687-1757; Pl. 26), mother of Frederick the Great, contains interesting furniture and several views of old Berlin. Next comes a Memorial Chamber (Pl. 27), containing plaster casts of Rauch's monuments of Frederick William II. and Queen Louise, etc. Adjacent are the apartments of Queen Elisabeth Christine (1715-97; Pl. 28), consort of Frederick the Great, and another Gallery (Pl. 29), with busts of eminent personages, chiefly from the time of Frederick William III.

We next pass through Room 30, containing the table-services of the various kings, and a collection of early glass and tankards, dating in part from the days of the Electors and including some relics of the 'Tobacco Parliament'. Then comes the room of Frederick William I. (1688-1740; Pl. 31), containing portraits of his whole family, his turning-lathe, the sandstone trough from Schloss Cossenblatt which he used as a basin, the table and chairs of his 'Tobacco Parliament', etc.

The rooms (Pl. 32, 33) of King Frederick I. (1657-1713) and Queen Sophia Charlotte (1668-1706) contain a fine table in the Renaissance style. — The Room of the Great Elector (1620-88; Pl. 34), fitted up as an exact reproduction of the room at Königsberg in which King Frederick I. was born, contains the hat, boots, and sword worn by the Great Elector at the battle of Fehrbellin; etc. — In the Room of the Early Electors (Pl. 35) are older pictures and relics, some dating from the 15th century. — In the adjacent Gallery (Pl. 36) are casts of historic sculptures connected with the House of Hohenzollern. — The Ancestral Gallery (Ahnengallerie; Pl. 37) contains portraits of the Electors of Brandenburg and Kings of Prussia.

To the N. of the Monbijou-Platz rises the Sophienkirche (Pl. b; K, 4), with an effective rococo spire, 230 ft. high, added by Graß in 1732-34. The churchyard contains the tomb of Leopold von Ranke, the historian (d. 1886). — Opposite, No. 10 Grosse Hamburger-Str., is St. Hedwig's Hospital, a Gothic brick building by Statz, built in 1855, and recently enlarged. The interesting old Jewish Cemetery in the same street (No. 27) contains the grave of Moses Mendelssohn (d. 1786). — A little to the N., in the Elsasser-Strasse, lies the Deaf and Dumb Asylum (Pl. b; K, 3, 4). — At the corner of the Acker-Strasse and Berg-Strasse is the new Cemetery of St. Sophia, where the composer Lortzing (d. 1851) is buried. — To the N. of the cemetery is the Versöhnungskirche (Pl. b; I, 2), consecrated in 1895, with an interesting interior.

To the N.W. of the Monbijou-Platz, Oranienburger-Str. No. 30, rises the New Synagogue (Pl. b; I, K, 4), one of the finest modern buildings in Berlin, begun in 1859 in a modified Oriental style from designs by Knoblauch, and completed in 1866 under the superintendence of Stüler. The façade, which is constructed of brick with details in granite and sandstone, is very effective in spite of its lack of width. The gilded dome attains a height of 168 ft.

The 'Interior, which is most sumptuously decorated with painting and sculpture, is entered by three bronze doors separated by columns of green granite. A vestibule leads to the Small Synagogue, in which minor religious rites are performed, beyond which is the magnificent Chief Synagogue, containing seats for 8000 persons, and measuring 190 ft. in length exclusive of the apse. The curious vaulted ceiling, with its iron tie-beams and cramps, is supported by slender iron columns. The most richly decorated part is the apse. During the evening-service (Fridays at dusk) the 'dim religious light' from the stained glass and the cupolas produces a remarkably fine effect. Admission (see p. 17) on application to the sacristan, who lives in the building.

No. 67 Oranienburger-Str., to the left, farther on, indicated by a granite slab, is the house which Alexander von Humboldt occupied from 1842 to 1859. At the corner of the Artillerie-Str. (Nos. 35, 36) is the Parcel Post Office, a handsome new building.

1. Northern Friedrich-Strasse. Oranienburg Suburb. Luisen-Strasse. Moabit.

The Friedrich-Strasse (p. 57) runs in a straight direction towards the N. from the Linden to the old Oranienburg Gate. The DOROTHEEN-STRASSE, the second cross-street, begins at the 'Chestnut Grove' adjoining the University (see p. 26), with its colossal Bust of Hegel (d. 1831), by G. Bläser. (The house in which the great philosopher died, Kupfergraben 4a, is denoted by a memorial tablet.) Following the Dorotheen-Str. towards the W., we reach on the right (No. 9) the University Library (Pl. r, I 2; comp. pp. 16, 27), a tasteful brick building by Spieker (1871-73). Farther on is the Friedrich-Werder'sche Gymnasium, by Blankenstein. The Central Hotel (p. 2), at the corner of the Friedrich-Str., contains a large winter-garden (concerts, etc.; p. 14). — At the corner of the Neustädtische Kirch-Strasse, which contains the handsome building of the Officers' Union and the Hôtel Continental, stands the DOROTHEENSTADT CHURCH (Pl. r; H, 2), founded in 1678, and entirely remodelled in 1860-62, containing the monument of Count von der Mark (d. 1787), a natural son of Frederick William II., Schadow's first important work, and a marble bust of Chancellor Hardenberg (sacristan, Mittel-Str. 28). Opposite is the Royal York Masonic Lodge, a handsome edifice by Ende & Böckmann. — The Military Academy, at the corner of the Neue Wilhelm-Str., was founded by Scharnhorst in 1810 and is attended by 800 of the most promising young officers in the German army, who go through a course of three years. The library contains 800,000 volumes. To the N. are the Physiological, Pharmacological, and Physical Institutes and the Second Chemical Laboratory (p. 27).

Following the FRIEDRICH-STRASSE towards the N., we reach the Bahnhof Friedrichstrasse, the main station of the Stadtbahn (p. 1). — In the Georgen-Str., No. 34, is the First Chemical Laboratory (p. 27).

Just beyond the station is the Kaiser Wilhelm Academy, founded in 1795, for the training of army doctors. Opposite are the Monopol Hotel, a large Renaissance edifice, with restaurant and café, and the Savoy Hotel.

The Weidendamm Bridge (Pl. r; I, 1), which here crosses the Spree, was reconstructed in 1895-96. To the left, on the N. bank, runs the Schiffbauerdamm, passing near the back of the Circus Renz (entr. in the Karl-Str.; comp. p. 16) and containing the Neue Theater (p. 14), opened in 1892. — To the right (E.) of the bridge and the Friedrich-Str. are the Royal Clinical Institute in the Ziegel-Str. and the Midwifery Institute in the Artillerie-Str.

In the court of Friedrich-Str. 129 is the French Hospice pour les Enfants de l'Eglise de Refuge, with a bust of Calvin and reliefs representing the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes (1685) and the reception of the refugees by the Great Elector.

Outside the ORANIENBURG GATE, which now exists in name only, at the beginning of the Chaussée-Strasse, are the Old French Cemetery, where Devrient (d. 1832), the actor, and Ravend (p. 70), the wealthy merchant and patron of art, are interred (sarcophagus and lifesize figure), and the Old Dorotheenstadt Cemetery, with the graves of Schinkel, the architect (d. 1841), Schadow (d. 1850) and Rauch (d. 1857), the sculptors, Hegel (d. 1831) and Fichte (d. 1814), the philosophers, and Stüler, the architect (d. 1865).

Beyond the Invaliden-Strasse, in which (to the right) lies the Stettin Railway Station (Pl. b; H, 3), are the Friedrich-Wilhelmstadt Theatre and the Fusilier Guards' Barracks.

In the Liesen-Str. (right) is the New French Cemetery, with the grave of L. Angely (d. 1895) and a War Monument. Adjacent is the Roman Catholic Cemetery, where the painter Cornelius (d. 1867) lies. Opposite is the new Dorotheenstadt Cemetery, with the grave of O. Nicolai (d. 1840).

The Chaussée-Str. ends at the WEDDING-PLATZ (Pl. b; F, 1), where stands the Romanesque Dankeskirche, built from a design by Orth to commemorate the Emperor William I.'s escape from assassination in 1878. — Farther on, in the Müller-Str., beyond the Wedding station of the Ringbahn (p. 2), is the Nasarethkirche, built in 1891-93. — In the Schul-Str. (No. 97) are the imposing buildings of the Emp. William and Empress Augusta Institute.

The N. prolongation of the Wilhelm-Strasse (p. 58), running parallel with the Friedrich-Strasse, intersects the Friedrich-Wilhelm-Stadt, and leads to the Neue Thor (Pl. b; G, H, 4). As far as the Marschalls-Brücke (Pl. r; H, 2) it is called the NEUE WILHELM-STRASSE, and beyond it the LUISEN-STRASSE. This neighbourhood is the 'Quartier Latin' of Berlin, and contains several institutes connected with the medical faculty of the university. At Luisen-Str. 32 is the Patent Office. A tablet on No. 24a, opposite, marks the house where the historian Ranke died (p. 78). Farther on the Luisen-Str. crosses the Karl-Str., with the Lessing Theatre (p. 14; at its W. end), and the Schumann-Str., with the Deutsche Theater (p. 14).

At the corner of the Schumann-Str. and the Luisen-Str. is a handsome monument to Prof. von Gräfe, the oculist (d. 1870), by Siemering, erected in 1882. Farther on is the Charité (Pl. b; G, 4), a hospital founded in 1710, with accommodation for 1500-1800 patients; united with it is the Pathological Institute. The sheds adjoining the Stadtbahn belong to the Institute for Infectious Diseases.

The composer Lortzing died at No. 53 Luisen-Str. (tablet). Adjacent is the Veterinary College (Pl. b; H, 4), erected by Hesse in 1840; in the garden is the Anatomie, or Dissecting Room, built by Cremer in 1863-65. At No. 57 Luisen-Str. is the Imperial Sanitary Institute.

Outside the Neue Thor runs the long INVALIDEN-STRASSE (Pl. b; G, H, 4, 8), which begins on the E. beyond the Stettin Station (p. 1) and ends on the W. at Alt-Moabit. Immediately to the N. of the 'Platz vor dem Neuen Thor' are three dignified and monumental buildings by Tiede: the handsome new Mining and Geological Institute to the left, the Agricultural Museum and Academy to the right, and in the middle, set a little back from the street, the Museum of Natural History (comp. the Plan).

The Mining Institute (120 students) contains the Geological Museum (see p. 16), affording an admirable opportunity for studying the geological structure of Prussia, and also a Mining Museum (see p. 16). Among the features of popular interest is a fine collection of amber from Königsberg.

The Agricultural Museum (adm., see p. 16; official guide 50 pf.) includes a collection of agricultural implements, mineralogical, geological, botanical, and zoological cabinets, and an interesting collection of hunting and fishing apparatus. The academy is attended by about 700 students.

The Museum of Natural History* (adm., see p. 16), built in 1883-89, contains two main sections: the Exhibition Department on the groundfloor, to which the public is admitted, and the Main Collections on the first and second floors, which, like the Zoological Institute, in the W. wing, are reserved for students. On entering, we have the Palaeontological Museum to the right and the Mineralogical Museum to the left, while the rest of the groundfloor is occupied by the Zoological Museum.

Among the chief objects of interest in the Palaeontological Museum are the collection of amber (small room to the right), and the fossils of the chief types of antediluvian animals (large room to the left); remains of the mammoth, etc., at the N. end. By one of the windows in the large room is an archæopteryx, the chief glory of the collection. — In the Mineralogical Museum the collection of crystals is especially worth of notice. That of meteorites is one of the largest in existence. The three Gothic cabinets by the main door contain the finest specimens of a collection originally belonging to the Archduke Stephen of Austria. — The Zoological Museum is especially rich in the fauna of Germany. The court contains skeletons of whales and elephants and a few of the larger stuffed animals. The rooms immediately to the N. of the court contain the Mammalia, with the Native Birds to the W. and the Reptiles to the E. The wing to the N. of the E. staircase is devoted to Invertebrate Animals; that to the N. of the W. staircase to the excellent general collection of Birds. The Insects are shown in the N.E. wing, while the S.E. wing is occupied by the Zoological Institute (comp. the accompanying Plan).

The pretty Invaliden-Park (Pl. b; G, 4, 3), to the W. of the Mining Institute, contains the Gnadenkirche (open daily, 12-1), a Romanesque building by Spitta, erected in 1892-94 to the memory of the Empress Augusta. In front of the church stands an obelisk commemorating the loss of the corvette Amazone in 1861, and a little to the N. is the Warriors' Monument, a Corinthian column of iron, 145 ft. high, erected in 1854 to the memory of soldiers who fell in 1848-49 (view from the top; apply to porter of Invalidenhaus; fee). — The Invalidenhaus (Pl. b; G, 3), erected by Frederick the Great in 1748 'læso et invicto militi', is devoid of architectural interest.

The adjoining INVALIDEN-KIRCHHOF (Pl. b; F, G, 3) is the burial-place of many distinguished officers, including Scharnhorst (d. 1815), over whose grave a marble monument 18 ft. in height, designed by Schinkel, crowned with a recumbent lion in iron, was erected in 1828 'by his comrades of 1813'. — Opposite the cemetery are the Augusta Hospital (Pl. b; G, 3), erected by the Empress Augusta in 1868, and the 'Central Turn-Anstalt', for training teachers of gymnastics for the army.

To the W. of the Invalidenhaus, beyond the Berlin and Spandau Canal, which is crossed by the Invaliden-Strasse and is connected with the Spree by means of the Humboldt-Hafen, is situated the old Hamburg Station (Pl. b; G, 4), now used for goods traffic only. Farther to the left are the Lehrte Terminus (Pl. b, F 4; r, F 1) and the Lehrte Station of the Stadtbahn. Opposite is the Zellengefängnis, or Prison (Pl. b; F, 4), a model establishment for the reception of 560 inmates, consisting of a central structure with wings radiating from it in the form of a star. Adjacent are the Uhlans Barracks, and at the opposite end of the adjoining drilling-ground are those of the 1st Artillery Guards.

The space to the W. of the Lehrte Station has been occupied since 1879 by various exhibitions. The Exhibition Building, or Ausstellungs-Gebäude (Pl. r; F, 1), is a structure of glass and iron, tastefully fitted up in the interior and adorned with sculpture and painting. The annual exhibitions of the Academy, either alone or in conjunction with the Verein der Berliner Künstler, are held here in summer (catalogue 50 pf., with illustrations 1 M.). Among the permanent attractions of the Exhibition Park (Ausstellungs-Park; concerts in the evening; comp. p. 16) are reconstructions of the chief façade of the Temple of Jupiter at Olympia and of the Altar of Pergamus. In the N. part of the park (entr. also from Invaliden-Str. 57) is the Urania, a popular-scientific institution, with an observatory, collections, lecture-theatre, etc. (adm., see p. 18; comp. p. 57). — Adjacent, adjoining the Stadtbahn, is the so-called Ostaria, adorned with humorous paintings by Berlin artists (restaurant).

Several of the last-named buildings belong to the suburb of Neabit, which extends along the right bank of the Spree to a point opposite Charlottenburg (p. 87), and has recently been much improved (tramways Nos. 14, 15, 20, 21, 27, 29, 32, 42). It was so named by French immigrants, chiefly gardeners, who on account of the sandy and sterile nature of the soil styled the country 'Pays de Moab'. Among the principal buildings are the Provincial-Steuergebäude (Pl. r; F. 1), or Office of the Local Tax Commissioners, the Posthof (Pl. r; F. 1), or Customs' Warehouse, the Criminal Courts (Pl. r, E 1; adm., see p. 17), and the Johanniskirche (Pl. b; D. 4), erected by Schinkel in 1834. Opposite the Criminal Courts is a bronze group of a lion and a serpent, by A. Wolff. Among the manufactories are the locomotive works of Borsig (Pl. r; D. 1), a little to the E. of which is the Villa Borsig (Pl. r; B. C. 1), with its interesting 'Hot Houses and Palm Houses (adm., p. 15). Opposite is the Kleine Thiergarten, with a war-monument by Neumann, and the new Holländische Kirche (1892-94). To the N. is a large Hospital (750 beds). — To the N. of Moabit, near the Plötzensee and $\frac{1}{2}$ M. from the Beussel-Strasse station of the Ringbahn (p. 2), is the Penitentiary (Pl. b; A. 1), a model establishment for 1200 prisoners.

m. Königs-Platz. Thiergarten. Zoological Garden. Charlottenburg.

Outside the Brandenburg Gate (p. 24) the Friedens-Allée leads to the right to the KÖNIGS-PLATZ (Pl. r; G. 2), which with its environs forms one of the most imposing parts of the city. The Platz is embellished with flower-beds and two fountains.

The Monument of Victory (Pl. r; G. 2) in the centre, 200 ft. in height, designed by Strack, and inaugurated on 2nd Sept., 1873, stands on a circular terrace approached by eight steps of granite.

The massive square pedestal is adorned with reliefs in bronze, commemorating the great victories of 1870-71 and others of earlier campaigns. On the E. side is the Danish War of 1864, by A. Calandrelli, which is probably the finest composition; on the N. the Battle of Königgrätz, 1866, by M. Schultz; on the W. the Battle of Sedan, 1870, by K. Kell; on the S. the Return of the troops, 1871, by A. Wolff. The base of the column is surrounded by an open colonnade, and embellished with Venetian 'Mosaics designed by Anson von Werner and executed at Venice by Salsati, illustrating, in figures partly allegorical, partly historical, the war of 1870 and the restoration of the German empire. Below are the names of the battles and the generals. Above, in the flutings of the column, which consists of yellowish grey sandstone, are placed three rows of captured Danish, Austrian, and French cannon (80 in all). The summit consists of a capital formed of eagles, crowned with a Borussia, 48 ft. in height, by Drake. (Fine view from the capital, 152 ft. high; tickets obtained at the entrance, 50 pf.)

The Königs-Platz is bounded on the E. by the new Reichstags-Gebäude (Hall of the Imperial Diet; Pl. r, G 2), which was begun in 1884 from the designs of Paul Wallot and finished in 1894. The building, in the florid Italian Renaissance style, is the most important monument of architecture in Berlin, in respect both of its imposing proportions and of its clear and well-ordered ground-plan. Its chief dimensions are: length 430 ft., breadth 290 ft., height (to the main cornice) 88 ft. The external material is Silesian sandstone. The cost was 22,000,000 marks (1,100,000*l.*). The central structure is covered by a huge glass dome, bearing a lantern encircled with columns and surmounted by an imperial crown (225 ft.). At the corners are four towers. 195 ft. high. The entrance for members is on the S., that for the public on the N., that for the court and members of the Federal Diet on the E. The W. entrance is used only on ceremonial occasions.

The chief (W.) façade, turned towards the Königs-Platz, is the richest in plastic adornment. To the right and left of the door are *Reliefs of the Rhine and the Vistula, by O. Lessing; above the door is a figure of St. George (with the features of Bismarck), designed by Siemering; in the pediment is a relief by Schaper, representing Art and Industry protected by German shield-bearers; on the apex of the pediment is a colossal Germania, led by two genii, by R. Begas (in copper). — Over the S. door is a lion by Klein, over the N. door a figure of Truth by Brütt. — The E. façade is to be embellished with seated figures of Bismarck, Roon, and Moltke; two mounted heralds by Maison; and huge representations of the imperial coat-of-arms. — The figures on the corner-towers typify the different industries and occupations of the German people. The inscriptions between them give the names of the German princes in whose reign the empire was founded. — The windows of the principal floor show the arms of the federal states and free cities.

Interior (admission, see p. 17). Entering by Portal V, on the N. side, we first reach the N. Vestibule, to the right of which is a Waiting Room, whence we ascend to the principal floor. Here we enter the Wandel-Halle*, or Promenade Hall, which is 810 ft. in length and richly adorned with coloured marbles, ceiling-paintings, reliefs, stained glass, etc. The central portion consists of an octagon, surmounted by a dome and separated from the side-halls by galleries and rows of columns. In the centre is the finishing stone laid by Emp. William II., which is to be covered by a monument to Emp. William I. Above hangs a huge bronze chandelier (26 ft. in diameter and 11 tons in weight) for the electric light.

To the W. of the N. end of the Wandel-Halle, overlooking the Königs-Platz, is the Reading Room, with panelled walls and ceiling. About 300 newspapers are laid out here. Adjacent, in the N.W. tower, is a Writing Room. — The corresponding rooms to the S. of the main entrance are the Restaurant and Refreshment Room, also with rich and appropriate decorations.

The central space under the dome is occupied by the Hall of the Diet*, 92 ft. long, 68 ft. wide, and 42 ft. high. The panelled walls are adorned with painting and gilding. In the middle of the E. side is the seat of the president, with the tribune, or speaker's desk, in front of it. To the right and left are the places for ministers and members of the Federal Council. The seats for the 397 deputies are arranged amphitheatrically. The doors to the N. and S. lead to the division lobbies. Above, on three sides, are the public galleries; the imperial box is on the N. side. The room is surrounded by a broad corridor, the beams of which are supported by small half-figures, each bearing a gilded letter of the motto 'Erst das Vaterland, dann die Partei'.

We now descend to the S. Vestibule, with rich portals by Vogel, and two fine stained-glass windows.

The S.E. part of the main floor contains the rooms of the Government and of the Federal Council. The Vorsaal des Bundesrates*, or Waiting Room of the Federal Council, one of the finest apartments in the building, is adorned with sculpture and painting. — The Hall of the Council, in the S.E. tower, contains seats for the 50 members round a table. The rich wooden ceiling is adorned with paintings, and the walls are hung with tapestry. This room is used only when the Reichstag is in session. — The last room shown to visitors is the E. Vestibule, with portals by O. Lessing.

The N.E. part of the same floor is occupied by the rooms of the President of the Reichstag and by a Reference Library. — On the second floor are the assembly-rooms of the various 'fractions' or parties, and the large library. — The basement floor is occupied by offices, committee rooms, the residences of officials, and so forth.

To the N. of the Königs-Platz lies the ALSEN-PLATZ (Pl. r; G, 1), adorned with fountains, flower-beds, and four groups of sculpture representing scenes from military life (Setting out for the campaign, by Wittig; the Battle, by Schweinitz; the Care of the Wounded, by Brodowicz; and the Return, by Calandrelli). To the W. are situated the extensive premises of the General Staff, the two different portions of which were built in 1867-71 and 1877. Count Moltke died here in 1891. Opposite its N.E. side, Moltke-Str. 3, is the Austrian Embassy, built in 1873-75 by Mörmel. The Moltke-Brücke unites this suburb with Moabit (p. 82).

On the W. side of the Königs-Platz is Kroll's Establishment (p. 14). Farther on, on the Spree, are the popular places of recreation known as the Zelte (i.e. Tents, from their original construction). These are simply 'al fresco' restaurants and beer-gardens. Zelte Nos. 1 and 2 are the most frequented.

Farther to the W. is the royal château of Bellevue (Pl. r; D, 2), with a park (open till dusk) containing a monument to Prince Augustus of Prussia. The Luther-Brücke here crosses the Spree to Moabit (p. 82). Beyond is the Bellevue Station of the Stadtbahn (p. 1), between which and the Thiergarten Station (Pl. r; B, 3) a fine new quarter has sprung up in the last few years. Near the Thiergarten station are the popular Charlottenhof Restaurant (p. 5) and the new Kaiser Friedrich Gedächtnis-Kirche, a Gothic building by Vollmer (1895).

The broad Sieges-Allée, or Avenue of Victory, which leads to the S. from the Königs-Platz through the Thiergarten, is one of the most fashionable promenades of the Berliners, especially in spring. It is to be adorned with statues of Prussian rulers and eminent men of their times. At the S. end of the avenue, where it meets the Thiergarten-Str., Lenné-Str., Bellevue-Allée, Bellevue-Str., and Victoria-Str., stands the Wrangel Fountain (Pl. r; G, 3), cast in bronze from designs by Hagen. The roads skirting the Thiergarten (see below) on the E. and S. are also favourite drives.

The Thiergarten* (Pl. r; B-G, 3, 4), the largest and most attractive park near the town, lies to the W. of the Brandenburg Gate, and is bounded on the N. by the Spree, and on the S. by the Aussen Friedrichstadt (p. 65). It is about 2 M. in length and $\frac{3}{4}$ M. in breadth, and covers upwards of 600 acres of ground. It is enlivened by several sheets of water, and combines the character of a natural forest with the trimmer beauties of a public park. The pleasantest parts are the Seepark (Pl. r; C, 3), on the W. side, and the neighbourhood of the Rousseau Island (Pl. r; E, 3), where numerous skaters display their skill in winter. The finest statue in the Thiergarten is the marble Monument of Frederick William III.* (Pl. r; F, 3), admirably executed by Drake in 1849, the pedestal of which, 18 ft. in height, is adorned with Reliefs* representing the enjoyment of nature. The corresponding Statue of Queen Louise (Pl. r; F, 3, 4), by Encke, was erected in 1880; the reliefs on the pedestal represent woman's work. The Monument to Goethe*, by Schaper, facing the Königgrätzer-Str. (Pl. r; G, 3), was erected in 1880; on the pedestal are allegorical figures of Lyric Poetry, Tragic Poetry, and Science. To the S., in the Linné-Str., a Monument to Lessing, by O. Lessing, was erected in 1890. Near the Bellevue-Allée stands a Vine-dresser by Drake, and in the avenue diverging to the left from the Brandenburg Gate is a group of lions by Wolff. In the so-called 'Grossfürsten-Platz' (Pl. r; E, 2), near the Spree, are sandstone groups representing the chief rivers of Prussia. The remoter parts of the Thiergarten should be avoided after dark. — On the S. the Thiergarten is bounded by the Thiergarten-Strasse (Pl. r; F, E, D, 4), containing many handsome villas (comp. p. 65).

The following Drive of 1-1½ hr. includes the most interesting points in the Thiergarten. — From the Brandenburg Gate by the Königgrätzer-Str. (Goethe monument), Lenné-Str. (Lessing monument), Kemper-Platz (Wrangel fountain: View of the Column of Victory), and Thiergarten-Str. to the monuments of Frederick William III. and Queen Louise; thence by the Grosse Weg, passing the Rousseau Island and the Neue See, to the Thiergarten Station, by the Charlottenburg Chaussée to the Grosse Stern, by the Spree-Weg, past the Grossfürsten-Platz and the Zelte, and finally by the Zelte and the Friedens-Allée back to the Brandenburg Gate.

Opposite the Seepark, on the S. bank of the canal, lies the Zoological Garden* (Pl. r, BC4; adm., p. 17; tramways Nos. 31, 33, 34, 40, 43), opened in 1844. It now contains one of the finest collections of animals in the world. The extensive, well laid-out grounds attract numerous visitors, and concerts are frequently given in the afternoon (see p. 13; guide 20 pf.). The present director is Dr. Heck. The houses and sheds for the animals were erected from appropriate designs by Ende & Böckmann; the most striking are the Antelope House, in an Arabian style (with a large scene in majolica, from a design by Meyerheim), the Elephant House, a gaily-coloured structure resembling an Indian pagoda, and the Monkey House, with, perhaps, the best collection of monkeys in Europe. To the N. of the Bears' Dens are busts of the naturalist Lichtenstein, one of the founders of the garden, and Dr. Bodinus (d. 1884), the late director. There is a second entrance to the gardens at the corner of the Kurfürsten-Str. and the Kurfürstendamm, and a third on the W. side, opposite the station of the Stadtbahn (p. 2). Comp. the Plan.

Adjoining the gardens on the N.W. lies the Hippodrome (Pl. r; B, 4), one of the numerous free spaces in Berlin reserved as childrens' play-grounds, beyond which rises the Artillery and Engineering

School. Adjacent, at the corner of the Kant-Str. and the Fasanen-Str., is the new Theater des Westens (p. 14), by Sehring. At No. 11 Fasanen-Str. is the Künstlerheim (Pl. g; A, 4), in the mediæval style, by Sehring, containing artists' studios and many treasures of art.

In the Kurfürstendamm (steam-tramway, see p. 10), to the S. of the Zoological Garden, stands the Emperor William Memorial Church* (Pl. g; B, 1), a late-Romanesque edifice by Schwechten, erected in 1891-95, at a cost of 3,200,000 M (180,000 l.; sacristan, Tauentzien-Str. 9). The main W. tower, 370 ft. high, is the loftiest building in Berlin. There are four smaller towers at the angles. The choir is adorned with a dwarf arcade, and there are huge rose-windows in the W., N., and S. façades.

The W. entrance leads into the Gedächtnis-Halle, or Memorial Hall (66 ft. long and 24 ft. wide), terminating to the N. and S. in apses with stained-glass windows, with scenes from the life of Elijah (left) and John the Baptist (right). The mosaic floor has a figure of St. Michael in the centre. The walls are to be adorned with scenes from the life of the Emp. William, and the ceiling with glass mosaics. Over the three handsome doors leading to the church are sandstone reliefs of Biblical subjects.

The well-proportioned interior of the church, with its three galleries, can accommodate 2000 persons. It has received a portion only of its intended adornment. The triumphal arch of the Choir is framed in glass mosaics. The lower parts of the walls are to be ornamented with coats-of-arms and emblems in glass mosaic, and the windows are to be filled with stained glass. The statues of the Evangelists are by Janensch and Wenck; those of SS. Peter and Paul by Haverkamp; those of Luther and Melancthon by O. Lessing. Over the altar is a figure of Christ by Schaper. — The two rose-windows of the Transepts represent the Ascension and St. Simeon in the Temple. In the centre of the crossing hangs a fine chandelier, with heads of the Apostles. — The upper windows of the Nave will represent scenes from the life of Christ; those below, the Christian virtues. The organ gallery accommodates 80 musicians and 300 singers. The organ, with a case in forged copper, has 80 stops and 4800 pipes.

The belfry of the Tower affords an extensive view of the W. environs of Berlin.

The Romanesque house opposite the church is also by Schwechten. To the S.W. is the Joachimsthal Gymnasium (Pl. g; A, 2), founded in 1607.

The CHARLOTTENBURG ROAD leads from the Brandenburg Gate across the Thiergarten, which it divides into two unequal parts, to (3 M.) Charlottenburg: tramways Nos. 41-43 (see p. 10); cab to the Charlottenburg Bridge (Pl. r; A, B, 3), 1st class 1-2 pers. 1½ M, 2nd class 1 M (see p. 6). Those who use the Stadtbahn (p. 1) should alight at the Thiergarten station and take the tramway thence, or go on to Westend, as the Charlottenburg station is far from the town.

As soon as we quit the Thiergarten we reach the beginning of Charlottenburg (Hippodrom, Türkisches Zelt, both with restaurants; Thiergartenhof Restaurant*; Union Restaurant; Flora, D. from 3 M), a town with about 133,000 inhab., which is now practically part of Berlin, though it still retains an independent municipality. It lies on the site formerly occupied by the village of Lietzow, where Sophia Charlotte, wife of Frederick I., founded a country residence at the end of the 17th century. Its present size and prosperity is entirely owing to the recent rapid advance of its large neighbour.

At the end of the Thiergarten, to the right of the highroad, stands the Royal Porcelain Factory (Pl. r; B, 2, 3), under the management of Dr. Heinecke. Adm., see p. 17; see also p. 13.

The Porcelain Manufactory was founded in 1761 by a merchant named Gotschowsky, and was acquired for the state by Frederick the Great two years later. It soon employed 500 workmen, and its wares were at one time preferred even to those of Meissen. The artistic style impressed upon it by the taste of subsequent monarchs did not usually commend itself to the public, though the ware was always in demand for chemical and industrial vessels on account of its hardness and capacity of resisting heat. Latterly, however, the director has been more successful in meeting the popular taste, and the manufacture has been largely increased. The show rooms of the factory contain about 2000 models.

Beyond the canal-bridge, to the left, rises the Technical Academy (Pl. r; A, 3), a building of imposing style and dimensions, designed by Lucas and Hitsig, constructed under the superintendence of the latter and Raschdorff, and completed in 1884.

The main building, 760 ft. long and 295 ft. deep, is surmounted by a series of allegorical groups representing the various branches of studies prosecuted in the institution. In front of the attic story are realistic figures of the technical handiworks, between which are bas-reliefs of processes used in the technical arts and industries. The balustrade in front of the aula is adorned with bronze busts (by K. Begas) of Gauss, Eytelwein, Schinkel, Redtenbacher, and Liebig, selected as typical representatives of the five departments of the academy. The niches in the projecting wings and in the central structure are filled with statues of six celebrated architects and engineers: Erwin von Steinbach and Bramante, by Encke; Andreas Schlüter, by Hundrieser; Leonardo da Vinci, by Eberlein; Stephenson and Watt by Keil. The main building encloses five courts, the most central of which, covered with a glazed roof and surrounded by arcades with granite columns, has been fitted up as the public examination and exhibition room. It contains a bronze statue of Frederick William III. in classical costume by Kiss, the Genius of Steam by Rensch, and busts of Beuth and Schinkel, and of eminent teachers, etc. A room adjoining the vestibule contains a collection of Plaster Casts, and in the corresponding room on the other side is the Technological Museum. The building also contains the Beuth-Schinkel Museum*, an Architectural Museum (drawings and models), and several other collections (adm., see p. 16). The Aula contains a statue of Emp. William I. by Hundrieser and is adorned with mural paintings by Spangenberg, Körner, and Jacob. — To the left of the main structure is the Chemical Laboratory, and the large garden (1800 acres) also contains the Mechanico-Technical Experimenting Room and the Testing Room for Building Materials. — The institution is at present attended by about 2400 students.

To the right, nearly opposite the Technical Academy, diverges the Sophien-Strasse, containing March's Pottery Works, an extensive and well-known establishment, with interesting show-rooms. No. 25 March-Str., on the same side, is the Physical-Technical Institute (president, Prof. Kohlrausch), built in 1891; the rear building, not yet completed, is to contain the technical section at present housed in the Polytechnic at Westend.

The Berliner-Strasse here makes a bend to the right and then leads straight to the Royal Palace. To the right lies the Lützow Cemetery, with the graves of Helmholtz (d. 1894) and Werner von Siemens (d. 1892). At the end of the street, also to the right, are the garden and park of the Flora* society, containing a large palm-house, a winter-garden, and a spacious concert-room, which attract numerous visitors (adm., see p. 16). The tasteful brick and timber building containing the concert-room was erected by Stier in 1873.

The Royal Palace consists of a large group of buildings, of a total length of 550 yds. The central portion, erected by Schlüter in 1696-99, was enlarged by Eosander von Goethe (p. 31) in 1701-7 and provided with its effective dome. The right wing was added by Knobelsdorff in 1741-42, while the theatre at the end of the left wing and the belvedere in the park were erected by Langhans in 1788. Emp. Frederick III. spent ten weeks of his last illness here (March 11th to June 1st, 1888).

At present only the apartments formerly occupied by Frederick I., in the central part, next the garden, are shown. The rococo decorations are well worthy of inspection. Visitors should note the Porcelain Chamber, with Chinese porcelain presented to Queen Sophia Charlotte by English merchants; and the chapel, containing a ceiling-painting by Cocceji and a marble statuette, by Schadow, of the youngest child of Queen Louise. Admission, see p. 16.

The entrance to the pleasant Palace Garden, laid out by the eminent French landscape-gardener Le Nôtre in 1694, a favourite promenade for Berliners and Charlottenburgers, is near the small guard-room, adjoining the W. wing. Crossing the orangery to the right, turning to the left and skirting it on the farther side, and then following an avenue of pines to the right, we reach (in 10 min. from the entrance) the Mausoleum* (tickets obtained at the Palace), erected by Gentz in the Doric style, where Queen Louise (d. 1810) and her husband Frederick William III. (d. 1840) repose, together with their second son, Emperor William I. (d. 1888), and the Empress Augusta (d. 1890).

The recumbent figures of the first-named pair, executed in marble by Rauch's masterly hand, are strikingly impressive. The beautiful figure of the queen, executed at Carrara and Rome in 1812-13, was placed here in 1815 and at once established the sculptor's fame. At the sides are beautiful candelabra, that on the right with the three Fates by Rauch, that on the left with the Horæ by Teck; the crucifix by Achtermann of Rome. Above the crucifix is a fresco by Pfannschmidt, representing Christ in benediction, with kneeling figures of the king and queen. The heart of Frederick William IV. is placed at the feet of his parents in a marble casket. — In 1888-90 a small apse was added on the N. side for the reception of the sarcophagi of Emp. William I. and the Empress Augusta, by Encke.

On an eminence on the Spandau road, beyond Charlottenburg, lies Westend, a number of villas which have sprung up within the last few years (station of the Stadtbahn). To the right is one of the reservoirs of the Berlin water-works, which derive their supply from springs near the Tegeler-See (see p. 90); to the left is the course for trotting-matches.

The Spandauer Bock, $\frac{3}{4}$ M. farther on (tramway from Charlottenburg, 15 pf.), beyond the racecourse, is a popular beer-garden commanding a view towards Spandau. Pleasant walk hence to (2 M.) Pichelsberg, situated among woods on a bay of the Havel, opposite the island of Pichelswerder (ferry 5 pf.).

The shooting-lodge of Grunewald, situated on the lake and in the forest of that name, $3\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the S.W. of Charlottenburg, is another favourite point; it may be reached by the 'Ringbahn' (passing Halensee, a popular resort, also reached by a steam-tramway starting near the Zoological Garden), by the Stadtbahn, or by the steam-tramway (p. 10) to Hundeshöhe, about 1 M. to the S. of Grunewald station. Large herds of fallow-deer are frequently seen at Grunewald in winter. — The next station in the direction of Potsdam (comp. p. 91) is Wannsee (Kaiser Pavilion Restaurant), on the lake of that name, a group of picturesque villas in the midst of a characteristic N. German landscape of wood and water. Near the station is the grave of the poet Heinrich von Kleist, who shot himself here in 1811. — A shady forest-path leads hence to (1 hr.) Gliencke (p. 97).

n. Environs of Berlin.

Most of the pleasant points have already been mentioned, vis. the Thiergarten (p. 85), Charlottenburg (p. 87), the Zoological Garden (p. 88), Schöneberg and the Botanical Garden (p. 86), Moabit (p. 82), Pichelsberg (p. 89), Pankow, Schönhausen, and the Gesundbrunnen (p. 76), the Kreuzberg (p. 68), and Tempelhof (p. 68).

A pleasant excursion may be made by the Spree (steamers, see p. 11) to Stralau, Treptow, and Köpenick (1½ hr.). — Stralau (Tübbecke's Restaurant; Alte Taverne) has a picturesque old church. — Treptow (Zemmer; Riemer), on the left bank (connected with Stralau by an underground railway), consists mainly of villas belonging to Berlin merchants and has a large public park, where the Berlin Industrial Exhibition of 1896 was held (tramway 20, p. 9; station of the Ringbahn 1 M. from the place). — Farther on the steamer passes several pleasant river-side restaurants. — Köpenick (17,300 inhab.) has an old château, where Frederick the Great was tried by court-martial when crown-prince.

From Köpenick we may either return to Berlin by train or go on by train to Friedrichshagen on the Müggelsee and to (15 M. from Berlin) Erkner, whence a steamer plies to Rüdersdorf in ¾ hr. (35 pf.). Steamers (see p. 11) also ply from Köpenick to Friedrichshagen and to Grünau on the Lange See, two favourite points for rowing and sailing regattas. From Grünau, which may be reached from Berlin by the Stadtbahn, a pleasant walk leads through the woods to the Müggelsberge.

About 5 M. to the S.W. is Gross-Lichterfelde, a group of villas, with stations on the Anhalt and Potsdam railways (see pp. 91, 279; fares 70, 50, 30 pf.; return-tickets available on either line). The principal German Cadet School was transferred hither from Berlin in 1873, and occupies a large building surmounted by a dome 200 ft. high, with 1000 pupils. The building is crowned by a colossal bronze figure of the Archangel Michael, by Engelhardt. In the vestibule are the marble statues formerly in the Wilhelms-Platz at Berlin (p. 59). The Protestant and Roman Catholic chapels are both richly decorated. The 'Field Marshal Hall' contains the portraits of 61 Prussian marshals, and a frieze by Pühl representing the campaign of 1870-71, the training of the cadets in the old school, and the opening of the new building. The 'Fienburg Lion' stands in the court (comp. p. 191). An electric railway runs from the Anhalt Station, past the Cadet School, to the Potsdam Station and Steglitz (p. 91). From Lichterfelde a visit may be paid to the extensive fields near Osdorf, where the experiment of utilising the Berlin sewage as manure is being tried (steam-tramway to Teltow, 25 pf.).

Pleasant excursion by tramway (No. 22, p. 9) or steamer (from Spandau, p. 106) to (9 M.) Tegel (Restaurant at the château; West, in the village), formerly the residence of the Humboldt family. The château, originally a hunting-lodge of the Great Elector, was altered by Schinkel in 1822 in imitation of a Roman villa. The interior is decorated with valuable works of art and casts. The park contains the burial-place of William (d. 1835) and Alexander (d. 1859) von Humboldt, marked by a granite column with a copy of a statue of Hope by Thorvaldsen (original in the château).

The traveller whose stay at Berlin is short will hardly be repaid by a visit to any of these points, but he should not omit to devote a day to Potsdam with its environs (see R. 2). — Spreevald, see p. 249.

Luggage 25 pf.

Fares by time: 6 hrs. 12 M., 12 hrs. 15 M., for 1-5 persons. Double fares at night. Larger vehicles according to bargain.

Steamboats in summer. From the Lange Brücke (p. 92) to Gliencke (p. 97), Sacro (p. 98), Moorlake, the Pfaueninsel (p. 97), and Wannsee (p. 90), several times every afternoon, a pleasant trip; also 8-4 times to Tornow, Templin, Cappeln, Baumgartenbrück, and Werder. On Mon. a trip is generally made round the 'Island of Potsdam' (4 hrs.; 1 M.). Comp. also p. 11.

Tramways. From the Railway Station: 1. To Gliencke (p. 97); carriages changed at the canal); 2. By the Wilhelms-Platz to the Brandenburger Thor (near Sanssouci) and by the Luisen-Str. to the Victoria-Strasse, near Charlottenhof (p. 95); 3. By the Wilhelms-Platz (with change of carriages) to the Russian Colony (p. 96), near the New Garden (p. 96). — 4. From the Wilhelms-Platz to Gliencke. Fares 10-20 pf.

Plan of Excursion. After a glance at the town, visit the Friedenskirche*, Picture Gallery, Sanssouci*, the Orangery, the Stollan Garden, Charlottenhof, the Neue Palais*, and then return to the town. Drive by the Pfingstberg to the Marble Palace, and via Gliencke to Babelsberg*; then to the railway-station, from which a visit may be paid to the Brauhausberg, an admirable point of view, especially by evening-light. It is possible to visit all these points by carriage in one day, but very fatiguing. — Smoking is prohibited in the royal gardens, except at Babelsberg and at the Orangery.

The Fountains of Sanssouci usually play in summer on Sundays, from noon till 7 p.m. The great fountain also plays on Tuesday and Thursday, 3-7 p.m.

The Royal Palaces are usually open from 10 to 6 (Sun. 11-6) in summer; 10-4 in winter. Admission to the Town Palace, the New Palace, the Marble Palace, Babelsberg, Sanssouci, the Orangery, and Emp. Frederick's Mausoleum (8-6; Sun. 12.80-6, in winter 8-4 and 12.30-4) is granted by ticket (25 pf. for each pers.; no fee).

Potsdam (58,000 inhab., garrison 7300), the seat of government for the province of Brandenburg, is charmingly situated on the Potsdamer Werder, an island in the Havel, which here expands into a series of lakes and is bounded by wooded hills. The town is of ancient Slavonic origin, but was of no importance until the Great Elector founded his palace and park in the neighbourhood. It is indebted for its modern splendour to Frederick the Great, who generally resided at Potsdam, and in whose reign the palace of Sanssouci, the New Palace, and a number of handsome private residences were erected, and the grounds greatly extended.

The handsome Lange Brücke, which leads from the station to the town, is adorned with eight typical figures of Prussian soldiers by Hertter (1895). Beyond the bridge, in front of the Royal Palace, stands the lime-tree (protected by a metal covering) where petitioners used to station themselves to attract the attention of Frederick the Great. To the S. of the palace, enclosed by two rows of columns, extends the Lustgarten, in which there are bronze busts of York, Blücher, and twelve other celebrated personages, by Rauch, and a series of statues and groups, executed at the beginning of last century, of little artistic value. A bronze statue of Frederick William I. by Hilgers (a replica of that in the Berlin Arsenal) was erected here in 1885 on the side next the parade-ground, where he used to drill his gigantic grenadiers.

The adjoining Palace* (castellan in the N.E. angle of the court), originally erected about 1670, but dating in its present form from 1750, is interesting for its reminiscences of Frederick the Great.

His rooms, adorned with pictures by Pater, Lancret, and Peasne, have been preserved in their original condition. His ink-stained writing-table, music-stand, autograph notes, travelling-cup, etc., are shown here. Adjoining the Library, which is separated from the Bedroom by a massive silver balustrade only, is a Cabinet with double doors, from which the dining-table could be let down by means of a trap-door, and where the king occasionally dined with his friends without risk of being overheard by his attendants. The Study in the S.E. angle is noteworthy. — The Marble Saloon and the Reception Rooms contain various works of art. The Bronze Room is an excellent example of rococo decoration. — The so-called Russian Suite is used for distinguished guests. — The Apartments of Frederick William I. contain a few pictures painted by that monarch 'in torment' (i.e. during an attack of gout), and also a large equestrian portrait of him by Camphausen. — The Oranienkammer contain some old tapestry. — The Apartments of Frederick William III. and his consort Queen Louise are not generally shown.

The Church of St. Nicholas, in the Altmarkt, to the N. of the palace, erected in 1830-37 from a plan by Schinkel, a lofty edifice of cubical form, with a dome added in 1842-50, contains a large fresco in the apse, of Christ with the apostles and evangelists, designed by Schinkel, and four prophets by Cornelius in the angles of the vaulting under the dome. The tympanum of the entrance-porche contains a relief of the Sermon on the Mount, by Kiss, from designs by Schinkel. Fine view from the open colonnade of the dome. (Sacristan at the parsonage, adjoining the church on the right.)

The neighbouring Rathhaus, the gable of which is adorned with a gilded figure of Atlas bearing the globe, was built in 1754. The Obelisk in front of it, 75 ft. in height, is embellished with medallion busts of the Great Elector and the first three kings of Prussia. Adjoining the royal palace is the Barberini Palace, erected by Frederick the Great in imitation of the palace of that name at Rome but practically rebuilt in 1850-52, containing large assembly-rooms for scientific and other societies.

A vault under the pulpit of the Garrison Church, more to the W., contains the remains of Frederick the Great and of his father Frederick William I., the founder of the church. A number of flags, chiefly French, captured in 1813-15 and in 1870-71, are suspended on each side of the pulpit. Sacristan, Kiez-Str. 24.

The Wilhelms-Platz is adorned with a Statue of Frederick William III., designed by Kiss.

The Military and the Civil Orphan Asylums, the Casino, the French Church, built in 1752, the Artillery Barracks, the Roman Catholic Church, both in the Bassin-Platz, the District Courts, in the Mauer-Str., the Theatre and the Barracks of the Gardes du Corps, Hussars, and Uhlans, are also handsome buildings. The Weinbergthor, in the N.W. part of the town, was designed by Hesse, and is adorned with terracotta sculptures and reliefs by Schievelbein and Bläser, representing the return of the Prince of Prussia (Emperor William I.) from the campaign against Baden.

Outside the (W.) Brandenburg Gate, erected in the form of a Roman triumphal arch by Unger in 1770, with a handsome new allegorical fountain-group of five figures near it, an avenue to the right leads to the Park of Sanssouci. At the entrance to the park, 1½ M. from the station, rises the Friedenskirche*, or 'Church of Peace', in the early-Christian basilica style, designed by Persius, and completed in 1860, the favourite building of Fred. William IV.

We first enter a QUADRANGLE, enclosed by arcades, in the N.E. angle of which rises the clock-tower, 130 ft. in height. At the foot of the tower are some interesting Romanesque Italian sculptures. Beyond the cloisters, the entrance to which from the park is formed by a modern Romanesque portal in terracotta, we enter the somewhat smaller Atrium (the 'paradise' of the ancient basilicas), where stands Rauch's *Group of Moses, Aaron, and Hur, and in the centre a copy of Thorvaldsen's Risen Christ. The somewhat bare INTERIOR of the basilica, borne by sixteen Ionic columns in black marble, contains, in front of the chancel, the burial-vaults of Frederick William IV. (d. 1861) and his Queen Elizabeth (d. 1873). The angel in Carrara marble is by Tenerani of Rome; the marble candelabrum to the right by Steinhäuser. The apse is adorned with an old Venetian mosaic from the church of S. Cipriano di Malamocco, representing Christ, Mary, and Peter on the right, and John the Baptist and St. Cyprian on the left. The Emp. Frederick III. (d. 1888) rests in a mausoleum on the N. side, erected in imitation of the chapel of Innichen in Tyrol (adm., see p. 92). The marble sarcophagus is by R. Begas. In the altar-niche is a Pietà* by Bietschel (1845).

Entering the *PARK OF SANSSOUCI and bearing to the right, we soon reach the Great Fountain (p. 92), the water of which rises to a height of 130 ft., and several others near it. Of the twelve figures surrounding the basin (18th cent.), the Venus by Pigalle alone merits inspection. The equestrian Statue of Frederick the Great in Carrara marble, to the S. of the Great Fountain, is freely copied from Rauch's celebrated work (pp. 25, 26), and the reliefs on the neighbouring bronze vase are repetitions of those on the pedestal of the monument of Fred. William III. in the Thiergarten (p. 86).

A broad flight of steps, 66 ft. in height, intersected by six Terraces, ascends from the great fountain to the palace. Frederick the Great's greyhounds are buried at the E. end of the highest terrace. The king expressed a wish to be buried at the foot of the statue of Flora here ('Quand je serai là, je serai sans souci').

The Palace of Sanssouci*, a building of one story, erected by Knobelsdorff for Frederick the Great in 1745-47, and that monarch's almost constant residence, stands on an eminence above the town. His rooms are still preserved almost unaltered.

The castellan lives at the W. end of the N. side. The main interest of the palace consists in the numerous reminiscences it contains of its illustrious founder, who died here. A clock, which he was in the habit of winding up, is said to have stopped at the precise moment of his death (2.20 a.m., 17th Aug., 1786). The chair on which he died and his spinet are also shown. His portrait by Graff represents him about the age of fifty-six. The walls are hung with pictures by Pater, Peene, Laocret, Watteau, and others. The Library* contains a few busts, the best of which is one of Homer. The W. wing contains the room in which Frederick William IV. died (kept unaltered) and also that once occupied by Voltaire. In the latter are some curious wood-carvings and embroidery.

The Picture Gallery (fee), in a separate building, the interior of which is lavishly decorated with stucco and Italian marbles, contains a few good works by Rubens, Van Dyck, Rembrandt (a small, early work, of 1628), Cranach, Cornelis van Haarlem, Hans Baldung Grün, and P. Molenaar. There are also several works by Van der Werff, some good examples of Jan Brueghel, and paintings by Peene, Graff, etc. A small room at the back contains a costly vase of bloodstone.

From Sanssouci a path leads in $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. to the Ruinenberg (see Plan), an eminence with artificial ruins, beneath which is the reservoir for the fountains of Sanssouci. The water is pumped into it from the Havel by means of steam-engines. The tower (see) commands a beautiful and extensive prospect.

The way to the Orangery leads past the famous Windmill, the owner of which is said to have refused to sell it to Frederick the Great (now royal property), and through the Northern Garden.

The Orangery*, an extensive structure in the Florentine style, 330 yds. in length, was completed in 1856, the W. wing from plans by Hesse. On the terrace are two columns with statues of Ceres and Flora, and a copy of the Farnese Bull. Below are two ancient sarcophagi, used as fountain-troughs. The long façade is adorned with numerous statues: the Seasons and the Months by Schievelbein, Wittig, Franz, and others; in the centre, Agriculture, Architecture, Industry, and Science by E. Mayer and Stützel. In front of the building is a statue of Fred. William IV., by Blaeser.

The CENTRAL SALOON contains forty-eight Copies from Raphael and numerous original sculptures by Steinhäuser, Troschel, Imhof, Voss, and Berges. — BLUE SALOON: Franz, Butterfly-catcher; Wilsack, Ball-player (in bronze). — MALACHITE SALOON: Thorvaldsen, Head of Antinous, and Head of a shepherd; Troschel, Bacchus; Casew, Statuette of Fred. William IV. Paintings: Stange, Palace of the Doges (funeral of the last doge at night); O. Achenbach, Park near Frascati; Hagen, Wieland at the court of Weimar; Oehr, Frederick the Great in a boat, playing the flute. — LOGGIA: Troschel, Woman spreading flax; E. Mayer, Girl putting on earrings; Steinhäuser, Boy playing at ball. — AMBER ROOM: Rauch*, Danaid; good Berlin and Dresden china. — TORTOISE-SHELL ROOM: E. Hildebrandt, Views in Palestine. — Extensive *View from the towers.

From the Orangery we may proceed to the W. to the Paradies-Garten*, which contains a charming Atrium in the Greek style. The Belvedere at the N.W. end of the garden, beyond the Drachenhau (key; ruins.), commands a pleasing view.

Turning to the S. from the Orangery, we proceed through the 'Sicilian Garden', containing tropical plants, fountains, and statues (Girl* drawing water, in marble, by E. Wolff), and then between the Sea-horse Fountain, by Kiss, and the Japanese House (called the 'ape-saloon' by Frederick the Great from the figures with which it is decorated) to (1 M.) the Charlottenhof. Before reaching the château we pass on the left the Roman Bath House (see), containing a valuable bath of jasper, a fine group of Ganymede and Hebe in marble by Hentschel, and some old engravings.

The Charlottenhof, originally an unpretending country-house, was tastefully transformed by Schinkel in 1826 into an Italian villa. The vestibule contains reliefs by Thorvaldsen, a bust of Schinkel by Rauch, and two vases of jasper from the Ural. In one of the rooms is a chair of steel and silver, made by Peter the Great. In the dining-room, Ganymede by Wredow, and David by E. Wolff. Two rooms contain memorials of A. von Humboldt. (Castellan on the sunk floor.) — The Wildpark Station (p. 91) is $\frac{3}{4}$ M. from here.

To the W. of the park of Sanssouci, 1 M. from the Orangery and about the same distance from the Charlottenhof, rises the New Palace (or Palace of Friedrichskron), founded by Frederick the Great in 1763, after the termination of the Seven Years' War, and completed by him in 1769 at an expense of about 450,000*l.* It is now the summer-residence of Emp. William II., whose family occupies the N. wing; it is generally closed to visitors from May till towards Christmas (comp. p. 92). The chief façade, 375 ft. long, is turned towards the E., overlooking the park. The entrance is in the S. wing. Many of the 200 apartments are richly decorated. Emperor Frederick III. died here in a room facing the park, 15th June, 1888.

The SHELL SALOON is inlaid with shells, the friezes with minerals and precious stones, and contains reminiscences of William II.'s visits to N. Europe. The APARTMENTS OF FREDERICK THE GREAT contain relics of that monarch and a portrait of Voltaire drawn by him. In the other rooms are good French works by Watteau, Lamoret, and Pater. The THEATRE has seats for 500 persons. In the MARBLE or CONCERT ROOM (100 ft. long): Vanloo, Ganymede introduced to Olympus (ceiling-painting), Sacrifice of Iphigenia; Peme, Rape of Helen. — In the BALL ROOM: G. Rem., Lucretia, Diogenes; L. Giordano, Judgment of Paris, Rape of the Sabinas.

The castellan also keeps the key of the Antique Temple or Mausoleum, containing an admirable marble Statue of Queen Louise by Rauch, somewhat more realistic than that at Charlottenburg (p. 89). Opposite to it is the elegant Temple of Friendship, erected by Gontard by order of Frederick the Great to the memory of his sister the Margravine of Baireuth, and containing her statue.

To the N. of Potsdam, about $\frac{1}{2}$ M. from the Nauener Thor, is the Russian colony of Alexandrowka, consisting of fourteen houses and a Greek chapel, built in 1826 by Fred. William III. for the accommodation of the Russian singers who were at that time attached to the 1st Regiment of Guards.

To the E. of the Russian colony lies the NEUE GARTEN, or New Garden, laid out by Fred. William II. At the N. corner of the garden is the Meierei (Restaurant) or dairy, prettily situated on the Jungfern-See (boats to Sacrow, Glienicke, etc.). In the E. part of the garden, on the Heiligen-See, rises the Marble Palace, erected in 1786-96 by Fred. William II., who died here in 1797, and completed by Fred. William IV. in 1844. Adm., see p. 92; the custodian lives in the right wing.

In the COURT, in front of the palace, Prometheus, by E. Wolff. In the ARCADIES, scenes from the Niebelungenlied and views of the Rhine and the Danube by Kolbe and Hesse. The INTERIOR contains marble sculptures by Rauch, Tassaert, E. Wolff, and Troschel, pictures by Hacker and others, valuable clocks and furniture, and elaborate ceiling and mural decorations. — The Kitchen looks externally like a temple sunk in the lake.

On the Pfingstberg, which rises in the vicinity, stands a handsome ornamental building, part of a projected villa, designed by Hesse, the towers of which (152 steps) afford an extensive view of the environs, with Berlin, Spandau, Nauen, and Brandenburg in the distance, most striking by evening-light. A carriage road ascends to the summit of the hill. The castellan lives in the N. E. tower. To the W. lies the extensive Drill Ground (Bornstädter Feld). About 3 M. to the N. is the village of Nedlitz (p. 98).

At Klein-Glienieke (Café Fernau, see p. 91), on the Berlin road (tramway, see p. 92), on the left bank of the Havel, is situated a PALACE, built by Prince Charles, now the property of Prince Frederick Leopold, with a beautiful garden and park.

The *Park is accessible with special permission only. Close to the road to the Glienicke bridge are the 'Neugierde' or entrance-court, and a Rotunda, built by Schinkel in imitation of the monument of Lysicrates at Athens. Farther on are the 'Casino', with a number of antique sculptures, and a 'restoration' of the court of an old monastery, the older parts of which came from Padua. In the park itself the chief points are the White Bench* and the Victoria Bench, both commanding admirable views.

In the vicinity ($\frac{3}{4}$ M.) is the entrance to the park and the palace of Babelsberg, the property of Emperor William II., a visit to which occupies $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr. — Those who visit Babelsberg first leave the railway at Neu-Babelsberg station (p. 91).

The picturesque château of Babelsberg* was erected in the English Gothic style by Schinkel in 1835, and extended in 1843-49 by Strack. It stands in a beautiful park, laid out by Prince Pückler.

The *INTERIOR of the château is simply but tastefully decorated, and contains numerous works of art, mainly of the early Berlin and Düsseldorf schools. Emp. William I. invariably spent the latter half of summer here, and his study and bedroom are shown to visitors. Also memorials of the campaigns of 1864, 1866, and 1870-71. Charming Views, through the dense foliage, of Potsdam, Sanssouci, the Pfingstberg, the Marble Palace, Glienicke, the broad expanse of the Havel, and the wooded hills. — The water of the fountains opposite the palace is forced to the height of 120 ft. from the Havel by means of a steam-engine. In front of the palace is the Gerhard Fountain; and behind the palace is a monument with the Archangel Michael, by Kiss.

To the S.W. stands the Gerichtslaube, a Gothic portico originally attached to the old Rathhaus in Berlin. Extensive view. — To the S. rises the Flatow-Thurm, a copy of the Eschenheimer-Thor Thurm at Frankfort, erected in 1856 and commanding a fine *View. — To the E. of the latter is the Feldherrn-Bank, with busts of generals in the war of 1870-71; a little higher up is a Column of Victory.

The Pfaueninsel, 3 M. to the N. of Klein-Glienieke, once a favourite resort of Frederick William III., was converted by him into a park, and abounds in beautiful oaks. The Château is in the form of a ruined castle with two round towers connected by a bridge, and the Farm at the extremity of the island in that of a Gothic ruin. Steamer to the Pfaueninsel, see p. 91; the road leads along the Havel, passing the forester's house of Parklake (restaurant), and reaches the ferry at the church of SS. Peter and Paul, at Nikolskoß. — Between Glienicke and the Pfaueninsel, on the right bank of the Havel, lies Sacroo (restaurant on the river), with the Church of Our Saviour, a basilica built by Persius for Frederick William IV. A pleasant walk may be taken through the wood from here to the Römerschanze, opposite the village of Nedlitz (p. 97).

The Braunhausberg* (Restaurant, p. 94), to the S. of the main railway-station of Potsdam, commands a beautiful view of the town and the wide expanse of the Havel, finest by evening-light. — Farther to the S., on the Telegraphenberg, stands the Astro-Physical Observatory, an admirably-equipped institution, built in 1875-79 (adm. Frid., 3-6; custodian in the main building).

Other pleasant points in the neighbourhood of Potsdam are the Wildpark* (rail. stat., p. 91), with the Entenfinger (*View) and the Bairische Häuschen, built by Fred. William IV. for his queen, a Bavarian princess ($\frac{3}{4}$ -1 hr. from the station); the forester's house of Templin (restaurant), on the Havel, a drive of $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. or row of 1 hr.; Baumgartenbrück (inn), $\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the S. W., at the point where the Havel emerges from the Schwielow-See; Caputh, on the Schwielow-See, farther on; and Werder, a little town partly built on an island in the Havel.

3. From Cologne to Berlin viâ Hanover and Stendal.

RAILWAY to Hanover (208 M.), express in $5\frac{1}{2}$ hrs., ordinary trains in $9\frac{1}{2}$ -11 hrs. (express fares 29 \mathcal{M} 60, 21 \mathcal{M} 90, 15 \mathcal{M} 80 pf.; ordinary 28 \mathcal{M} 20, 19 \mathcal{M} 70, 13 \mathcal{M} 10 pf.). — Express (D trains, see p. xiv) from Cologne to Berlin (386 M.) in $10\frac{1}{4}$ hrs. (fares 52 \mathcal{M} 80, 38 \mathcal{M} 80, 27 \mathcal{M} 20 pf.); comp. p. 106.

At Oberhausen this route unites with the direct through-route from London to Berlin viâ Flushing. Passengers leaving London (Victoria, Holborn Viaduct, or St. Paul's), either in the morning or evening, reach Berlin in $23\frac{1}{2}$ -24 hrs. The stages of the journey are as follows: from London to Queenboro' $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr.; from Queenboro' to Flushing by steamer $6\frac{1}{2}$ -7 $\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.; from Flushing to Oberhausen (change carriages; time allowed for dinner) $5\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.; from Oberhausen to Berlin 9 hrs. Comp. Baedeker's Belgium and Holland and Baedeker's Rhine.

From Cologne to (24 M.) Düsseldorf, see Baedeker's Rhine. — 31 M. Calcum, $2\frac{1}{2}$ M. from Kaiserswerth, on the Rhine (diligence thrice daily). Near ($34\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Grossenbaum is the château of Heltorf, adorned with frescoes by Lessing.

$39\frac{1}{2}$ M. Duisburg (Europäischer Hof; Berliner Hof; Hof von Holland), an ancient town, connected with the Rhine and the Ruhr by a canal, is a rapidly-increasing manufacturing place, with 70,200 inhab., and one of the chief depots of the Ruhr coal-traffic. The Salvatorkirche, of the 15th cent., contains some curious wall-paintings. In the Burgplatz is a monument to Gerhard Mercator, the geographer, who died here in 1594. — The train now crosses the Ruhr.

44 M. Oberhausen (Hof von Holland; Rail. Restaurant), a town of very recent origin, with 30,200 inhab., is the junction of the Cologne-Minden, Mülheim-Ruhrort, and Wesel-Emmerich lines (Flushing train, see above). Extensive iron-works in the vicinity.

51 M. Altenessen is the junction for ($1\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Essen (see p. 117). —

56 M. Gelsenkirchen. — 59 M. Wanne, the junction for Osnabrück, Bremen, and Hamburg.

The line to Dortmund traverses one of those flat agricultural tracts so characteristic, even in the time of Tacitus, of this part of Germany, with the addition of frequent signs of modern industry.

73 M. Dortmund. — Hotels. LINDENHOF, R., L., & A. 2-3, B. 1, D. 2½ M; REHMISCHER HOF (Pl. e; D, 1), R., L., A., & B. from 2¼, D. 1½-2 M; KAISERHOF, these three near the main railway-station; ROMISCHER KAISER* (Pl. b; E, 3), R., L., & A. from 3, B. 1, D. incl. wine 3 M; KÖLNISCHER HOF (Pl. c; E, 3), near the market-place; MIDDELDORF (Pl. a; E, 2), R., L., & A. 2¼ M, well spoken of. — Dortmund beer at the Krone, in the market-place, and at Stade's, Beten-Str. 5; wine at Schwering's, Viktoria-Str. 8, and the Gildenhaus, Ostenhellweg, in a restored Gothic house. Cab for 1-4 pers., per ½ hr. 1, 1½, 2, and 2½ M; 1 hr. 2 M, 2 M 60, 3 M 30 pf., 4 M. Double fares at night. Luggage 50 pf. — Electric Tramways to Fredenbaum, Hörde, Dorstfeld, and the Funkenburg.

Dortmund (260 ft.), the largest town in Westphalia, with 111,300 inhab., is the centre of an important mining district, with numerous foundries. It is mentioned in history as early as 899, was probably fortified in the 10th cent., and frequently chosen for the meetings of imperial diets and ecclesiastical assemblies. It afterwards became a free imperial and fortified Hanseatic town, and in 1387-88 successfully resisted a siege of 21 months by the Archbishop of Cologne and 48 other princes. After the Thirty Years' War the place lost its importance. The massive walls have been entirely removed and their site occupied by promenades, and the town now wears a modernised aspect.

The church of St. Reinoldi (Pl. E, 3), in the transition-style of the 13th cent., contains stained glass, a font (1469), and a brazen reading-desk of the 15th century. Adjacent is the Marienkirche (Pl. E, 3), a Romanesque structure built after 1150, with a Gothic choir of 1350; the high-altar-piece is by a master of the early Cologne school. — The Petriskirche (Pl. C, 3), completely restored, contains a late-Gothic altar-piece and carvings. — The Roman Catholic Pfarrkirche (Pl. D, 3), once a church of the Dominicans, is a Gothic edifice, finished in 1353; it contains an interesting but badly-preserved altar-piece by Victor and Heinrich Dinwegge of Dortmund (1521). — The weather-beaten Rathhaus (Pl. D, E, 3), in the market, was begun in the latter half of the 13th century. A large War Monument (Pl. C, 3) was erected on the Hohe Wall in 1881, and there are two smaller ones (for 1866 and 1870-71) on the Königs-Wall (Pl. C, 2). — The new Post Office, on the Hiltrop-Wall, is in the early-Gothic style (1895). — To the N.W. are the new harbour-works for the Dortmund and Ems Canal now under construction.

About 1½ M. to the N. of the market is the Fredenbaum (beyond Pl. D, 1), a favourite resort, with a large park, and about 1 M. to the E. is the Funkenburg (tramways, see above). — The Kronenburg and the Kaiser-Wilhelm-Hain (with a statue of Emp. William I.

by Schilling), are 1 M. to the S.E., on the Hörde tramway (p. 99). — To the W. of the town are the large ironworks of the Dortmund Union, employing upwards of 7000 hands.

The Vehmgericht, a celebrated Secret Tribunal, was founded in Westphalia after the fall of Henry the Lion, at a time when anarchy and lawlessness prevailed throughout Germany, and in the 14th and 15th centuries had extended its sway over the whole empire. The number of the initiated, bound by the most fearful oaths to execute the decrees of the tribunal, is said to have exceeded 100,000. In Westphalia alone the Freigraf, or president, was privileged to hold meetings for receiving new members. Dortmund was the seat of the supreme court, and here, in the 'Königshof under the Linden', the Emp. Sigismund was himself initiated in 1429. Latterly, however, the tribunal degenerated to little more than a police-court, before which the inhabitants of Dortmund and the neighbourhood carried their grievances. The last meeting held by this society here was in 1803. One of the lime-trees (Vehmkinde; Pl. C. 2), 360 years old, is still standing near the railway-station, with old stone benches and tables below it.

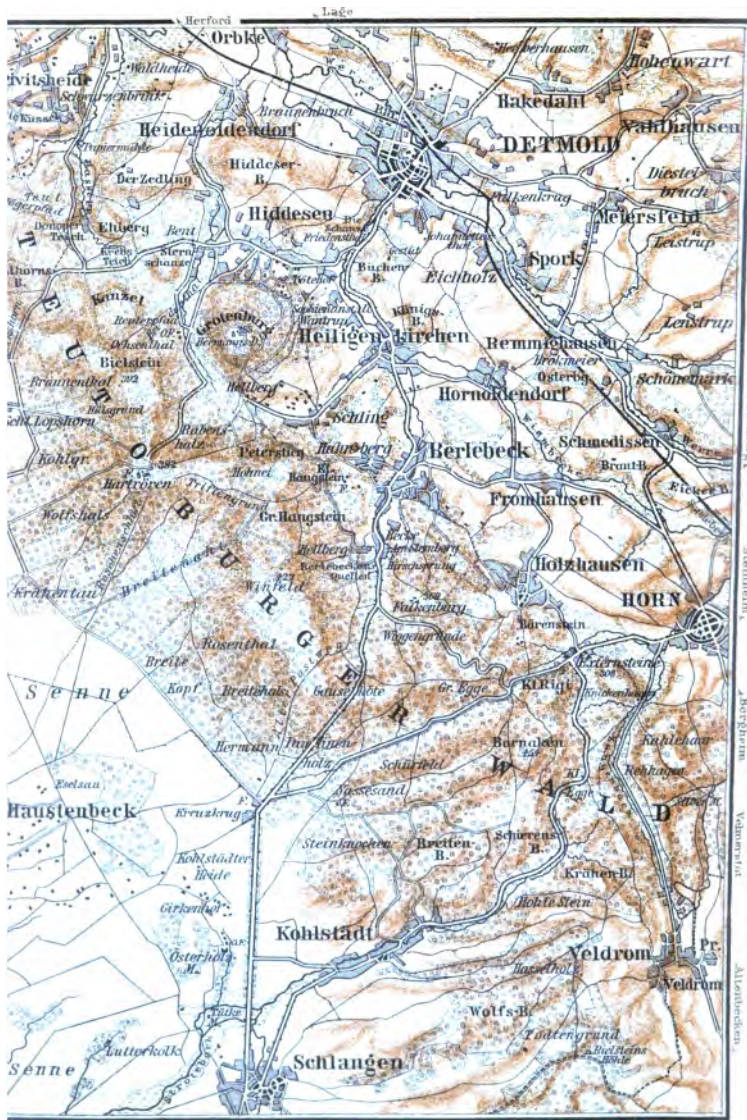

FROM DORTMUND TO DÜSSELDORF, 44 M., a line of the Bergisch-Märkisch Railway runs viâ Langendreer, Bochum, Steele, and Essen (see E. 6), and thence down the pretty Ruhrthal. — 27½ M. Werden (Deutscher Kaiser; Grüter), an ancient town, with 9400 inhab., was formerly the seat of a Benedictine abbey, now used as a penitentiary. The main tower dates from the 9th cent., and the rest of the church is in the transition-style of the 12-13th centuries. In the crypt is the burial-vault of St. Ludgerus (d. 809). — 30 M. Kettwig (Kaiserhof), with old-established cloth-factories, is prettily situated. Branch-line to Mülheim an der Ruhr (p. 117). — 44 M. Düsseldorf, see Baedeker's Rhine.

FROM DORTMUND TO DÜSSELDORF by the Rhenish Railway, 48½ M., in 2½ hrs. (fares 5 M. 80, 4 M. 40, 2 M. 90 pf.). This line runs viâ Herdecke (p. 118) and Hagen (p. 106), beyond which it coincides almost exactly with the Bergisch-Märkisch Railway; comp. E. 6, p. 106, and Baedeker's Rhine.

Branch-lines also run from Dortmund to Witten and Hagen (E. 6), to Sterkrade viâ Wanne (p. 99), and to Gronau (p. 157).

93 M. Hamm (Graf von der Mark*, R. & B. 3½ M.; Stadtkeller*, R., L., & A. 2-3, B. ¾-1, D. incl. wine 3 M.; Rheinischer Hof, R., L., A., & B. from 2, D. 1½ M.; Railway Hotel), with 27,000 inhab., once the fortified capital of the County of Mark, which in 1660 was annexed to Brandenburg, has considerable manufactures of iron. The large Protestant Church was built in the 13th and 14th centuries. The Roman Catholic Church, built in 1510, is remarkable for its great length and narrowness, there being only one aisle (that on the S.). About ½ M. from the town are the thermal baths of the same name. — Hamm is the junction of the Westphalian lines: N. to Münster (p. 153) and Emden (p. 157), S.E. to Soest (p. 107), and S.W. to Unna and Schwerte (p. 107).

The train crosses the Lippe. — 106 M. Beckum, the junction for a short branch-line to the (4 M.) small town of that name (Post; Jürgens). 111 M. Oelde. Near (117 M.) Rheda the Ems is crossed. — 124 M. Gütersloh (Schmale; Barkey), with 6700 inhab., is a great depot of Westphalian hams and sausages, which are largely exported. The 'Pumpernickel' of this district, a dark brown bread made with unsifted rye-flour, is considered extremely nutritious. — Beyond (132 M.) Brackwede the train enters a more hilly district; to the right is the 'Colonie Bethel', a settlement for epileptic patients.

FROM BRACKWEDÉ TO OSMABRÜCK, 33 M., railway in ca. 2¼ hrs. — 16 M. Dissen is the station for Rothenfelde, with saline springs. — About 4½ M. to the S. of (26 M.) Ossede (omnibus) lies Iburg, with an old episcopal chateau and Benedictine abbey. View from the neighbouring Dörberg (1025 ft.). — 33 M. Osmabrück, see p. 133.

135 M. Bielefeld (400 ft.; Drei Kronen, R., L., & A. 3, B. 1 M; Spengler; Ravensberger Hof, R., L., & A. 2-4, B. ¾-1, D. incl. wine from 3 M; Kaiserhof; Westfälischer Hof; Teutoburg*, D. 1¾ M; Post*, plain, R. 1¼, D. 1½ M), with 47,500 inhab., the central point of the Westphalian linen-trade, which was introduced here by Dutch settlers in the 16th cent., is a busy manufacturing town. The Marienkirche, with a fine altar-piece (14th cent.), and the Nicolaikirche, with a carved altar of 1509, date from the 13th century. The castle on the Sparenberg, rising above the town, erected in the 12th cent., was partly destroyed by fire in 1877, but has been restored. It is surrounded with pleasant grounds. The Berglust, a restaurant at the foot of the castle, commands a fine view. The Hünenburg (1 hr.) and the Johannisberg*, to the S.W., are other good points of view.

143½ M. Herford (Stadt Berlin, R., L., & A. 2 M, well spoken of; Rorig's Hotel, Central Hotel, at the station; Stadt Bremen), with 21,600 inhab., possesses numerous cotton and flax mills. It owes its origin to a nunnery of the 9th cent., the abbess of which ranked with the princes of the empire. The Münster, a Romanesque structure of the beginning of the 13th cent., with a Gothic apse of the 15th cent., contains a font of the 15th century. The Marienkirche, or Abbey Church (outside the town), founded about 1030, and re-erected in 1325, is a handsome building with remains of old stained glass, a stone altar of the 14th cent., and an old carved-wood altar.

Enger, a small town 5 M. to the W. of Herford (diligence five times daily), was the seat of Charlemagne's obstinate opponent, the Saxon Duke Wittekind, after he became a Christian. His bones are still preserved here in the Abbey Church, which was built in the 12th cent. but afterwards much altered.

FROM HERFORD TO DETMOLD, 17 M., railway in ¾-1¼ hr. (fares 2 M 30, 1 M 70, 1 M 20 pf.); diligence thence to (12 M.) Bergheim, see p. 109. — The first station is (5 M.) Salzuflen (Stadt Bremen; Cur-Hotel), with salt-baths and a large starch-factory. — 7 M. Lage (Nolte's Inn; Arminius Hotel), a small town in a hilly district on the Werre.

From Lage a branch-railway runs to (5½ M.) Lemgo (Wülker; Loesch), a small town of 7400 inhab., with a Romanesque church altered in the Gothic style about 1280, a handsome town-hall, and many gabled houses (in stone and timber-work) in the Renaissance style of the 16th century. Meerscham pipes are extensively made here. — The railway is being continued to Hamein (p. 108).

17 M. Detmold. — Hotels. STADT FRANKFURT*, Lange-Str.; LIPFISCHER HOF, Hornsche-Str., R. & L. 1¼-3, B. ¾, D. 2 M, well spoken of; DEUTSCHES HAUS, Lange-Str., good cuisine; KAISERHOF, at the station;

TEUTOBURGER HOF; PREUSSISCHER HOF. — Restaurants at the hotels; also, Meyer; Geissler; Odeon; Neuer Krug*, with garden.

Carriage to the Arminius Monument (Hermannsdenkmal) 8 M., to the Monument and the Externsteine 15 M.

Detmold, the pleasant little capital of the principality of Lippe-Detmold, with 11,200 inhab., is situated in the pretty valley of the Werra. In the middle of the town lies the Residenz-Schloss, a Renaissance structure, dating from the 16th cent. and worthy of a visit. It contains some fine tapestry. To the N. of the palace square are the prince's stables ('Senner', see below). At the S. end of the town is the New Palace (built 1708-18, enlarged in 1850). The beautiful palace-garden, with fountains, is accessible (bell at the gate in the Garten-Str.). In the Hornsche-Str. are a Natural History Museum (open 10-12 and 1-5; 25 pf.) and the Library (60,000 vols., including several incunabula, and about 70 MSS.; open on Wed., 2-4, and Sat., 12-1). Pleasant walks on the Büchenberg, to the S. of the town.

About 3 M. from Detmold, to the S.W., rises the Grotenburg; the route, which cannot be mistaken, leads through the avenue by the canal, traverses the entrenchment, and follows the road to Lopshorn for five minutes. At the Tütschhof we diverge by a footpath to the left, which farther on passes some ancient German fortifications called the Kleine Hünenring and is indicated by stone pillars. On the (1 hr.) Grotenburg* (1160 ft. above the sea, 840 ft. above Detmold; Zum Hermannsdenkmal*), one of the highest points of the Teutoburgian Forest, rises the colossal Hermanns-Denkmal or Monument of Arminius, which was inaugurated in 1875. Upon an arched substructure, 100 ft. in height (constructed in 1890-46), stands the figure (56 ft.) of the Prince of the Cherusci, with raised sword. (The point of the sword is 30 ft. above the top of the helmet, so that the total height is 186 ft.) The work was executed by the sculptor Ernst von Bandel (d. 1876), who devoted to it a great part of his life. The different parts of the statue are cast in copper, and attached to a strong iron framework. The cost of the work amounted to about 270,000 M. The gallery of the monument (adm. 25 pf.) commands an admirable Panorama. The traces of the Grosse Hünenring (comp. above) are now very scanty. The precise position of the battlefield where in the year A.D. 9 Arminius the Cheruscan gained a signal victory over the Roman general Varus, cannot now be determined, but it is probable that it is to be looked for in the Wiehengebirge, near Osnabrück, and not in the Teutoburgian Forest at all (comp. p. 134).

About 3½ M. to the S.W. of the Grotenburg lies Lopshorn, where a sturdy race of horses called 'Senner' is bred.

FROM DETMOLD TO THE EXTERNSTEINE there are several routes, which may be entirely or partly traversed by carriage (2-3 hrs.; see above). The pleasantest is the following walk from the Grotenburg (see above). We follow the telegraph-wires from the hotel to (8 min.) the deer-fence and pass along the outside of this for 9 min. more. We then follow the broad green path inside the fence to (17 min.) a gate, where we take the narrow path to the right, which rejoins the broad path 5 min. later. We follow the latter, along the fence, to (½ hr.) the Berlebeck Springs*, near which is the Villa Johannaberg (pens. 5 M.). Here we ascend the highroad to the right and after ½ M. a broad road leading to the left through the Wiggengründe. After 2 M. more we reach the Horn, Kreuzkrug, and Schlangen road, which leads to the left to (1¼ M.) the Externsteine. — By passing through the above-mentioned gate we reach the village of Berlebeck (Kanne, Schmidt, Forelle, D. 1½-2 M.), whence we may proceed to the Externsteine via the Stenberg (1860 ft.) and Holzhausen (Hartmann, pens. 3½ M.), or through the Wiggengründe (see above).

The Externsteine* (Ulrich's Inn, Kaiserhof, R., A., & B. 2-2½, D. 2-2½, pens. 4-5 M) are a curious group of five rocks 100-130 ft. in height, protruding from the earth like gigantic teeth, which may be ascended by steps and afford a fine view of the wooded environs. The name occurs in documents of 1083 in the form of 'Agistersteine'. In one of the rocks is a grotto, 33 ft. in length, 9½ ft. in breadth, and 6¼ ft. in height, into which opens the mouth of a cave (17 ft. in length, 11 ft. in width, and 7½ ft. in height). According to an inscription of 1116 in the grotto itself, it was fitted up by Bishop Henry of Paderborn in imitation of the Holy Sepulchre. Outside the entrance to the grotto, and hewn in the rock somewhat in the old Oriental style, is a relief representing the Descent from the Cross (16 ft. high, 10 ft. broad) in two sections; in the upper are represented, in colossal figures, the dead body of Christ being removed from the Cross by Joseph of Arimathæa and Nicodemus, with the Virgin and the Evangelists. Above hovers God the Father with the banner of the Cross, and the figure of a child (the soul of the Saviour?), or perhaps Christ himself; at the side, the sun and moon. In the lower section are seen a man and a woman kneeling (Adam and Eve), entwined by a serpent (Sln), waiting for redemption.

From the Externsteine we may proceed viâ (1¼ M.) Horn (Teutoburger Hof; Bathskeller) to (1 M.) Horn-Meinberg (see below), or we may follow the picturesque forest-path viâ the Knickenhagen and the Vömlerst (1540 ft.) to (2½ hrs.) Leopoldsthal (see below), to (3 hrs.) Sandebeck (see below), or to Altenbeken (see below). — From the Externsteine to Paderborn, see p. 106.

Beyond Detmold the railway (see p. 101) goes on to (35 M. from Herford; fares 4 M 60, 3 M 50, 2 M 30 pf.) Altenbeken, passing Remmighausen, Horn-Meinberg, Leopoldsthal, Sandebeck, and Himmighausen (p. 109).

151 M. Löhne (*Railway Hotel), the junction for Hameln (p. 110) and for Osnabrück and Rheine (R. 9).

154 M. Bad Oeynhausen. — Hotels. VOGELER'S HOTEL*; CUR-HOTEL*, R. from 3, D. 2½, B. 1¼, pens. from 8½ M; ROSE; PAVILLON; STARKE; VIKTORIA; KRONPRINZ. — Sanatorium, adjoining the Cur-Park, open throughout the year.

Restaurants at the Curhaus, the Concordia, and at the hotels.

Visitors' Tax 9 M, each additional pers. 3 M. — Music Tax 6 M, family 9-10½ M. A band plays thrice daily near the Curhaus.

Bad Oeynhausen, or Rehme (230 ft.), a watering-place with about 6000 patients annually, is picturesquely situated on the right bank of the Werre, an affluent of the Weser. In the Cur-Park, three warm saline springs (92°, 80°, and 78° Fahr. respectively) issue from a shaft 2030 ft. in depth, the principal fountain rising in a jet 30 ft. in height. The water is considered especially beneficial in paralysis. Handsome bath-house. Favourite walks to the Siel, to Melbergen, to Eidinghausen, etc.

The train crosses the Weser near the village of Hausberge, and soon enters the Weserscharte, or Porta Westphalica, a narrow defile by which the Westphalian mountains are quitted. 160 M. Porta (Hôtel Grosser Kurfürst, R. from 1½ M; Bellevue, with garden, R., L., A., & B. from 1¾, D. 1¾, board from 3½ M, both on the right bank; Kaiserhof, on the left bank, at the foot of the Wittekindenberg, R. from 1½, B. ¾, D. 2, board 3 M). The railway-station, at the foot of the Jacobsberg (615 ft.), on the right bank, resembles a small castle. On the opposite bank of the Weser, which is crossed by a chain-bridge, rises the Wittekindenberg (820 ft.), on which the province of Westphalia erected in 1896 an imposing Monument to the Emperor William I.*, designed by Bruno Schmitz, and including a colossal statue by Zumbusch. In the adjacent Margarethen-Klus, a chapel, of which the outer walls and a rude altar and font alone remain, the Saxon Duke Wittekind is said to have been baptised under Charlemagne's compulsion (comp. p. 101). The neighbouring quarries of excellent sandstone afford an interesting survey of the stratification of the rock.

164 M. Minden (Rail. Restaurant; Victoria Hotel*, R., L., & A. 2-4, B. 1, D. 2-2 $\frac{1}{2}$, omn. 1 M.; Stadt London*, R., L., & A. 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ -2 $\frac{3}{4}$, B. $\frac{3}{4}$, D. 2, omn. $\frac{1}{2}$ M.; Müller; Westfälischer Hof, all in the town, $\frac{3}{4}$ M. distant), with 21,000 inhab., lies on the Weser, which is crossed here by two bridges. From the time of Charlemagne down to 1648, when it fell as a secular principality to Brandenburg, the town was the seat of a bishop; after 1529 the bishops were Protestants. The Roman Catholic Cathedral* is a well-proportioned edifice, of which the tower dates from 1062-72 and the nave from the end of the 13th cent.; the choir, built in 1377-79, has been recently restored (sacristan, Dom-Str. 16). The window-tracery is very rich. The cathedral treasury contains numerous valuable works of art. The handsome Government Buildings, constructed of the same brown, veined sandstone which has been used for many other buildings in the town, were erected in 1832-41. The Gymnasium contains a tastefully decorated aula, with two large historical paintings. The fortifications were levelled in 1872.

From Minden (Löhne) to Osnabrück, Rheine, and Oldenzaal, see B. 9.

168 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Bückeburg (Deutsches Haus*, R., L., & A. 2-3, B. $\frac{3}{4}$ -1, D. 1 $\frac{3}{4}$ -2 $\frac{3}{4}$ M.; Berliner Hof; Rathskeller), the capital of the principality of Schaumburg-Lippe, is a dull town, with 5600 inhab., a palace, and a pleasant park. The Protestant church, erected in 1613, bears the appropriate inscription, 'Exemplum Religionis Non Structuræ'.

The Papenbrink* (990 ft.), 3 M. to the S. of Bückeburg (reached by following the Rinteln road to Klein-Bremen, and then turning to the left), commands an extensive panorama. The descent may be made to Rinteln (p. 110) in 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. — About 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the N.W. of Klein-Bremen are the small sulphur-baths of Nammen; 5 M. to the S.E. of Bückeburg (diligence twice daily in 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ hr.) those of Eilsen.

176 M. Stadthagen (Stadt London), an ancient town with an old chateau and Rathhaus, chalybeate baths, and many timber-buildings; by the church is the mausoleum of the princely family. — 186 M. Haste, whence a branch-line runs via the small baths of Neundorf (to 15 M.) Weetzen (p. 110). — 190 M. Wunstorf (Bahnhofs-Hotel), the junction for Bremen (p. 158), with a large seminary and a monastery founded in 871, the church of which has been successfully restored. — Hence to the Steinhuder Meer, see p. 158.

203 M. Hanover, see p. 134; from Hanover to Göttingen and Cassel, see R. 8; to Altenbeken, see R. 4.

FROM HANOVER TO LEIPZIG VIA MAGDEBURG, 165 M., railway in 5-6 hrs.; fares 21 M. 10, 17 M. 90, 12 M. 50 pf. — At (10 M.) Lehrte (see below) the line diverges from the Stendal and Berlin line and runs via (23 M.) Peine (*Tüllmann), near which petroleum springs were discovered in 1880, and (29 M.) Vechede to (33 M.) Gross-Gledingen (p. 110) and (37½ M.) Brunswick (p. 145). From Brunswick to (91 M.) Magdeburg, see pp. 110, 111; from Magdeburg to (185 M.) Leipzig, see p. 311. Through-carriages by this line run to Dresden and Vienna.

213 M. Lehrte, the junction of the Harburg (R. 17), Brunswick (see above), and Hildesheim (15 M.; p. 141) lines.

238 M. Isenbüttel; 246½ M. Fallersleben, where the poet Hoffmann von Fallersleben (1780-1874) was born; 252 M. Vorsfelde, to the left of which is the large château of Count Schulenburg-Wolfsburg; 258 M. Oebisfelde, the junction of lines to Magdeburg (p. 111) and to Salzwedel (p. 106); 268 M. Mieste; 276½ M. Gardelegen (Deutsches Haus), an old town with dilapidated walls and a Romanesque church (7600 inhab.).

296 M. Stendal (Nicolai, by the railway-station, with garden; Adler*; Eudolphi; Rail. Restaurant; tramway from the station to the town), a town with 20,100 inhab., founded in the 12th cent. by Albert the Bear on the site of a Slavonic settlement, was once the capital of the Altmark. The Cathedral, a noble late-Gothic structure, was erected in 1423-66 and restored in 1893. The W. portions with the towers, in the transition style, date from 1257. In the choir, stained glass of 1480. The Gothic cloisters of 1460 are now fitted up as a Provincial Museum (open on Sun., 11-12, and Wed., 2-3). The imposing late-Gothic Marienkirche was completed in 1447. Adjacent is the late-Gothic Rathhaus, in front of which is a Roland's Column of 1535. In the open space behind the choir of the Marienkirche is a bronze statue of the celebrated archaeologist Winckelmann (1717-68); the house in which he was born, near the Unglinger Thor, is marked by a tablet. The only remains of the old fortifications are two gates, the Ünglinger and Tangermünder Thor. Outside the latter is a bust of G. Nachtigal (1834-85), the African traveller.

A branch-railway runs from Stendal to Tangermünde (Schwarzer Adler), picturesquely situated on the lofty bank of the Elbe, 7 M. to the S. E., and remarkable for its highly ornate brick-buildings of the 14th cent., the finest of which are the gateways, the church of St. Stephen, and the recently-restored Rathhaus*. The Schloss, most of which is now modern, was long the residence of the Margraves of Brandenburg.

FROM STENDAL TO BREMEN, 145 M., in 3¼-6¼ hrs. (fares 17 M. 5, 12 M. 80, 8 M. 60 pf.). Country flat and uninteresting. The most important station is (35 M.) Salzwedel (Deutscher Hof*), on the navigable Jeetze, one of the oldest places in the Mark (10,000 inhab.), and once a Hanseatic town, containing several interesting buildings. The chief of these are the Marienkirche of the 13th and 14th cent. (containing various works of art); the Katharinenkirche, begun in 1247, altered in the 15th cent.; the Lorenzkirche (Rom. Cath.), of the 13th and 14th cent.; and a number of late-Gothic timber buildings. The Allstadt-Rathhaus (of 1509) was burned down in 1895. Railway to Oebisfelde, see p. 105. — 66 M. Uelsen (p. 166) is the junction for Hamburg and Hanover. From (109 M.) Visselhövede a line runs S. through the Lüneburg Heath to Hanover. At (127 M.) Langwedel our line joins that from Hanover (p. 153). — 145 M. Bremen, see p. 153.

From Stendal to Hamburg (120 M.) and to Magdeburg (38 M.), see R. 49; to Wittenberge, see also R. 49.

Beyond (301 M.) Hämerten the train crosses the Elbe. 304 M. Schönhausen, the property of the Bismarck-Schönhausen family since 1562, and the birthplace of Prince Bismarck in 1815. Most of the estate afterwards passed into other hands, but it was purchased by the 'German People' in 1885 and presented to Prince Bismarck on his 70th birthday. The mansion is now a museum, containing gifts presented to the prince (adm. 10-12 and 2-5).

From Schönhausen diligence daily in 1 hr. to (7½ M.) Jerichow (Blümner), with the interesting Romanesque church of a Premonstratensian convent founded in 1144. — From Jerichow a diligence plies daily to (6 M.) Tangermünde (p. 105).

317½ M. Rathenow (Grosser Kurfürst), with 18,400 inhab., manufactures glass and spectacles. Several unimportant stations.

354½ M. Spandau (Friedrichshof, Kaiserhof, both at the station; Pohrt's Restaurant, Breite-Str.), at the confluence of the Spree and the Havel, with 55,800 inhab., is strongly fortified and contains extensive military establishments. The imperial military reserve fund of six million sterling is kept in the imposing old Julius Tower in the Citadel. The church of St. Nicholas, of the 14th cent., contains interesting monuments and a metal font of 1398. A monument in front of the church, unveiled in 1889, commemorates the Elector Joachim II.'s profession of Protestantism here in 1539. Near the Charlotten-Brücke is a monument to Emp. Frederick III. (1892).

366 M. Berlin, see p. 1.

4. From Cologne to Berlin viâ Hildesheim.

368 M. RAILWAY in 9½-13¼ hrs. (express fares 52 M 30, 38 M 80, 27 M 20 pf.; ordinary 36 M 80, 27 M 30, 19 M 20 pf.). Dining and Sleeping Cars are attached to the principal trains.

The train starts from Deutz, opposite Cologne. Hence to (44 M.) Hagen viâ (28 M.) Elberfeld, (30 M.) Barmen, and (35 M.) Schwelm, see Baedeker's Rhine.

44 M. Hagen (Lünenschloss*, R. 2½, B. 1 M; Römer, R. & B. 2½ M, well spoken of, these two at the station; Kaiserhof*, Glitz*, R., L., & A. 2¼, D. 2¼, B. ¾ M, in the town), a flourishing manufacturing town with 41,800 inhab., is the junction of several railways, which diverge in all directions to the industrial valleys of the Ennepe, Volme, Lenne, and Ruhr. Railway to Siegen, see p. 119; to Witten and Dortmund, see pp. 119, 118.

The train crosses the Ruhr just below its confluence with the Lenne; to the left rises an abrupt hill with the tower of Hohensyburg* (adm. 25 pf.; restaurant), once a stronghold of Wittekind (p. 101). A little to the W. is a monument to Emp. William I. — 50 M. Westhofen.

52½ M. Schwerte (Sternberg), a small town with a Romanesque church, altered in the early-Gothic period (carved altar of 1523; stained-glass windows of the 14th and 15th cent.), is the junction for the line to Arnsberg, Scherfede, and Cassel (R. 7).

From (58 M.) Holswickede a branch diverges to Hörde and Dortmund (p. 99). — 63 M. Unna (König von Preussen; Strube; Deutscher Kaiser), a town of 12,400 inhab., with salt-works, the junction for Hamm and Dortmund (R. 8). Königsborn, ¾ M. to the N., is visited for its salt-springs (lodgings at the Curhaus).

81 M. Soest (320 ft.; Overweg*, R., L., A., & B. 3, D. 3. M; Voswinkel), an old town with 15,400 inhab., in the fertile Soester Börde, is mentioned in documents as early as the 9th cent., and afterwards became a fortified Hanseatic town of much importance. It possessed the most ancient and excellent municipal code in Germany (termed the 'Schraa'), which served in the 12th cent. as a model to Lübeck and other towns. The town is still surrounded by broad walls; the moats have been converted into gardens. Of the ancient gates the Osthoventhor (1526) alone is preserved. The Rathhaus (1701) contains interesting archives. Opposite lies the Romanesque Cathedral, founded by Bruno, brother of Otho the Great, in the 10th cent., and dating in its present form from the 12th cent.; the mural paintings in the choir were executed about 1166. The adjacent Chapel of St. Nicholas contains mural paintings of the early 13th cent. and an altar-piece by Conrad of Soest (ca. 1400). — The Petrikirche dates from the 12th century. — The finest church, however, is the Gothic Wiesenkirche* ('St. Mary of the Meadow'), founded in 1314, completed in the 15th century, and restored in 1850-82. The picturesque apse should be observed. The N. aisle contains an altar-piece of 1473, with wings, another by Heinrich Aldegrever (1502-1560), and a curious embroidered altarcloth of the 14-15th century. The stained glass in the window (15th cent.) over the N. side-entrance represents the Last Supper, at which the Westphalian ham, the staple dish of the country, takes the place of the Paschal lamb. A wooden antependium, in the Westfälische Kunstverein, is the earliest known example of German easel-painting (1166).

Drüggelte, on the road to Arnsberg (p. 120), 7 M. to the S. of Soest, possesses a curious twelve-sided chapel of the middle of the 12th century. The road then traverses the extensive Arnsberger Wald.

From Soest to Hamm, 15 M., railway in 35-40 minutes. This line forms part of the direct route from Cassel to Münster and Emden (R. 13).

From Soest via Dortmund and Essen to Düsseldorf, see p. 100.

84 M. Sassendorf (Löhöfer), with salt-works; 89½ M. Benninghausen. — 94 M. Lippstadt (Köppelmann), a town with 11,100 inhab., on the Lippe, which here becomes navigable. The extensive Marienkirche, built in 1189 and 1290, contains fine carved choir stalls. A branch-line diverges here to (19 M.) Warstein, near which are the fine stalactite Bielstein Caverns (adm. 75 pf.).

121 M. Paderborn (Union, Deutscher Hof, at the station; Weisser Schwan, Preussischer Hof, Westfälischer Hof, in the town), an ancient town with 19,900 inhab., where Charlemagne held a diet in 777, has been an episcopal see since 795 and a town since 1000.

The Cathedral has been repeatedly ravaged by fire, and was restored in 1891-93, when the columns and pillars were painted. The crypt and the massive W. tower belong to the original Romanesque building (ca. 1143); the rest dates from the 13th century. The principal *Portal, on the S. side, is adorned with 13th cent. reliefs of the Crucifixion, the Virgin Mary, and saints. The other sculptures on the same side of the church, belonging to the original church, consist of New Testament subjects and of a frieze with animals from the old German lore.

INTERIOR. In the N. transept stands a finely-carved late-Gothic altar of the 15th century. The choir contains the monuments and brasses of several bishops. In the treasury is the silver Reliquary of St. Liborius, a substitute for one carried off by Duke Christian of Brunswick in 1622, of the silver of which he caused dollars to be coined, bearing the inscription, 'Gottes Freundt, der Pfaffen Feindt' (God's friend, the priests' foe). Other valuable objects of art are a portable altar of 1100, two silver chalices of the 12th and 15th cent., and silver statues of SS. Kilian and Liborius, executed in the 14th century. — The Cloisters contain numerous tombstones. Above the central window is a curious sculpture representing three hares with three ears only, but so placed that each appears to possess two.

On the N. side of the cathedral is the old Chapel of St. Bartholomew, erected in 1009-36 by Italian builders, restored in 1852, and containing dome-like vaulting, borne by slender columns. Beneath the cathedral and on its N. side the Pader takes its rise from 198 springs, which are so copious as to turn seven mills within 200 yards of their source. Hence the name of the town, Pader-Born, or 'source of the Pader'. The water is cold in summer, but in winter so warm as to give off steam. — The Protestant Church, originally belonging to a Benedictine abbey, is a flat-roofed basilica with two towers. The Busdorfkirche was originally erected on the model of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre at Jerusalem; the present edifice dates from the 14th century. The choir contains a large Romanesque candelabrum, with seven branches. — The Rathhaus, of 1477 and 1618, has recently been well restored.

The Inselbad (Curhaus), with mineral springs, used for vapour and other baths, is $\frac{3}{4}$ M. from the Paderborn station.

From Paderborn a diligence runs daily to Lippspringe (385 ft.; Old and New Curhaus, Concordia, open in summer only; Hôtel Wegener, R. & B. $2\frac{1}{2}$ M., well spoken of), situated 6 M. to the N.E. It possesses a thermal spring (70° Fahr.), containing Glauber's salts, which is beneficial in the case of chest complaints, and attracts upwards of 2500 visitors annually. The sources of the Lippe burst copiously from the earth here at two places; one of these, $\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the N. of the Curhaus, was called the Jordan, in commemoration of the baptism of Charlemagne's Saxon converts; the other rises near the mineral spring, below the lofty ruins of the old castle, which was founded before 1310 by the Paderborn Chapter. — From Lippspringe viâ Schlangen (Koch's Inn) to the Externsteine (p. 103), 9 M.; from Schlangen the old highroad leads through fine avenues of oaks to Deimold (p. 101).

122 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Neuenbeken. The railway now crosses the Dune Viaduct, 237 yds. long and 84 ft. high, immediately beyond which is another, 528 yds. long and 114 ft. high, crossing the Becke Valley.

124 M. Altenbeken, the junction for Kreilensen and Magdeburg (R. 5) and for Warburg and Cassel (R. 7).

FROM ALTENBEKEN TO CASSEL, 55 $\frac{1}{2}$ M., railway in 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ -2 $\frac{1}{4}$ hrs. (fares 7 M. 20, 5 M. 40, 3 M. 60 pf.). Stations: 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Bake; 11 M. Willebadessen; 16 M. Bonesburg. — 23 M. Warburg, and thence to (55 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Cassel, see R. 7.

The train now passes through the Egge Hills by a tunnel 1 $\frac{1}{3}$ M. long. 129 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Himmighausen (p. 103); 133 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Bergheim; 136 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Steinheim; 143 M. Schieder (Deutsches Haus), with a château and park of the Prince of Lippe. The train crosses the Emmer. 148 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Lügde, with a late-Romanesque church.

149 M. Pyrmont. — Hotels. *LIPPISCHER HOF, R., L., & A. 2-3, B. 1, D. 2-3 M.; KRONE, R. & A. 3, B. 1, D. 3 M.; WALDECKER HOF, R., L., & A. 2-3, B. 1, D. 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.; GROSSES BADE-HOTEL; VOGEL'S PENSION & RESTAURANT, on the hill behind the new Protestant church, moderate and well spoken of. Several Lodging Houses. — Furnished Apartments to be had in most of the houses of the place; double-bedded room, 20 M. a week and upwards. — Meyer's Wine Rooms. — Visitors' Tax 15 M., each addit. member of a family 7 M. — The station is about 2 M. to the S. of the town; tramway 30 pf., omn. 50 pf., cab with one horse 1 $\frac{1}{2}$, with 2 horses 2 M.

Pyrmont, a pleasant little town (1500 inhab.) in the valley of the Emmer, at the foot of the Bomberg, with mineral springs which have been known since the 16th century, was formerly one of the most famous watering-places in Europe, and is still visited by 13,000 patients annually. The principal springs are the chalybeate Stahlbrunnen and the Salzbrunnen, a saline spring near the station, both with bath-houses. The water has exhilarating and refreshing properties. The Haupt-Allée, an avenue extending from the spring to the château of Prince Waldeck, flanked with the Cursaal, theatre, cafés, and shops, is the chief rendezvous of the visitors. The veranda of the railway restaurant commands a good view of Pyrmont and the surrounding hills. — Excursions may be made to the Bomberg, the Königsberg, Friedensthal (penn. from 4 M.) the Schellenberg, etc.

Beyond Pyrmont the train crosses the Emmer. 153 M. Welsede. At (156 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Emmerthal it quits the valley of the Emmer; on the hill rises the (3 M.) château of Haemelschenburg, an imposing Renaissance edifice of 1588-1612. We then cross the Weser and the Hamel, passing the châteaux of Hastenbeck (right) and Ohr (left).

161 M. Hameln (Thiemann*, Sonne*, Oster-Str., R., L. & A. from 2, B. 3 $\frac{1}{4}$ -1, D. 2 M.; Bremer Schlüssel*, on the Weser, near the suspension-bridge, R., L. & A. 1 $\frac{3}{4}$ -2 $\frac{1}{4}$ M.; Stadt Bremen, R., L., & A. 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ -2 M.; Kaiserhof, at the station, well spoken of; omn. to the town 25 pf.), a town with 16,500 inhab., is pleasantly situated on the right bank of the Weser, which is crossed here by a suspension-bridge, below the influx of the Hamel. The salmon-fishery here is important. The handsome Münster, near the bridge, dedicated to St. Boniface, was founded in the 11th cent., rebuilt after a fire in the 14th cent., and thoroughly restored in 1870-75 (sacristan, Münsterkirchhof 10). The town also contains a large number of Renaissance buildings, of which the Demptersche Haus (1607; Markt 7), the Rattenfängerhaus (1642), and the Hochzeithaus (1610), in the Oster-Str. (Nos. 7 and 2), are the finest. An old legend called the 'Rat Catcher of Hameln', made familiar to English readers by Browning's ballad, has been explained in various ways. One of the latest theories is based on the alleged fact that some of the youth of Hameln were seized in 1284 with the 'dancing mania' ('choreomania'), left the town, and never returned; but it is possibly a distorted recollection of the Children's Crusade of 1211. An inscription on the Rattenfängerhaus records the legend. The Post Office and the Marktkirche are also imposing buildings.

The Klüt (855 ft.), a hill on the left bank near the town, once fortified, is a good point of view and a favourite resort (cafés, etc.). On the right bank are the forester's house of (1¼ hr.) Heisenbüche and the summer-resort of Friedrichswald (pens. 4 M.).

Steamboat in summer from Hameln to Carlshafen (p. 121) and Münden, see p. 130.

FROM HAMELN TO HANOVER, 33 M., railway in 1½ hr. (fares 4 M. 40, 3 M. 30, 2 M. 20 pf.). 4½ M. Hasperde; 7 M. Münder. — 12 M. Springe (Meyer's Hotel), with a large deer-park belonging to the emperor. In the foreground rise the wooded Deister Hills. — At (23 M.) Weetzen diverges a branch-line to Haste. Beyond (29 M.) Linden we cross the Leine. — 33 M. Hanover, see p. 134.

FROM HAMELN TO LÖHNE, 33 M., branch-line in 1¼ hr., descending the beautiful valley of the Weser (from Hameln upwards to Else, see below).

15 M. Binteln (Stadt Bremen*; Stadt Cassel), formerly the capital of the County of Schaumburg, with a stone bridge across the Weser, was the seat of a university from 1619 to 1806. The Paschenburg (1070 ft.; View*) is situated 6 M., and the Papenbrink (p. 104) 4½ M. to the N. — A shadeless road leads from Binteln viâ Mollenbeck, with an ancient Gothic church, to (5 M.) Varenholt, with a château of 1596. About 3 M. to the N. lies Steinbergen (inn), whence a walk may be taken to (6 min.) the Arnsburg and (½ hr.) the Luhdener Klippe (view). — 25 M. Flototh. — 33 M. Löhne (p. 103).

Our line now diverges from that to Hanover (see above) and runs to the E. (right) to (179 M.) Else (see p. 132). At (183 M.) Nordstemmen (p. 132) we again diverge to the right and run towards the E. to (201 M.) Hildesheim (see p. 141). Beyond Hildesheim the train runs towards the N.W., passing some unimportant stations. 221 M. Gross-Gleidingen is the junction of the line to (33 M.) Hanover (p. 105), viâ Peine and Lehrte (p. 105).

226 M. Brunswick (p. 145; Refreshment Room*), junction for the Harz line (R. 61) and for Hanover (p. 134) and Seesen (p. 112). The train skirts the ducal park and the châteaux of Alt-Richmond and Neu-Richmond (comp. p. 153).

241 M. Königslutter (Stadtkeller), a small town on the Lutter, once the seat of a nunnery, converted by Emp. Lothaire II. into a Benedictine abbey in 1135. The Church* is a fine example of the pure Romanesque style, the nave dating from about 1150, the richly decorated choir and transept from the end of the 12th century. In 1894 it was adorned with painting. The main tower dates from the 13th, the upper part of the W. towers from the 15th century. The handsome cloisters were built about 1200. The church contains the tomb of Lothaire, his wife, and his son-in-law. The altar-lamp (12th cent.) and the Easter candlestick (13th cent.) are interesting.

A pleasant excursion may be made from Königsutter to Schöppensiedt (Deutsches Haus) via the Tettel-Denkmal.

251 M. Helmstedt (Erbprinz; Deutsches Haus; Kaiserhof), an ancient town with 12,900 inhab., was in 1576-1810 the seat of a university. The old university building, in the Renaissance style (1592-97), contains a library and the aula of the gymnasium. The town boasts of several handsome dwelling-houses of the 16-17th centuries. The Stephanskirche dates from the 13-15th centuries. On the Marienberg, a hill to the W., stands the old church of a suppressed Augustine nunnery, consecrated in 1256, now a Protestant place of worship (transition-style). The tower-chapels contain interesting mural paintings and antependia (13th cent.). — A little farther on are the dolmens known as the Lübbensteine. — To the E. of the town is the Benedictine abbey of St. Ludgeri, secularised in 1803, the church of which is still used for Roman Catholic worship. The crypt (ca. 1050) was originally an independent church. — About 2¼ M. farther on are Bad Helmstedt and the Clara-Bad, two small watering-places with mineral springs.

The old Cistercian convent of Marienthal, 4½ M. to the N. of Helmstedt, possesses an interesting Romanesque church of the 12th century.

From Helmstedt a branch-railway runs to the S. to (14 M.) Oebisfelde (p. 106).

Several unimportant stations are passed. 262 M. Eisleben, the junction for Holzminden (p. 112) and of branch-lines to Blumenberg (p. 341) and Neuholdensleben; 278 M. Sudenburg (p. 113), a suburb of Magdeburg.

280 M. Magdeburg (p. 113); thence to (368 M.) Berlin, see R. 5.

5. From Cologne to Berlin via Holzminden and Magdeburg.

359 M. RAILWAY in 11¼-12 hrs. (express fares 52 M 30, 38 M 80 pf.; ordinary 36 M 80, 27 M 30, 19 M 20 pf.). — Sleeping Cars are attached to the night-trains.

From Cologne to (124 M.) Altenbeken, see R. 4.

130 M. Driburg (Englischer Hof, pens. from 4½ M; Stadt Driburg, both these well spoken of; Eisenbahn; Evers). About ½ M. to the E. (omn. from the station 50 pf.) lies Bad Driburg, a favourite watering-place in a healthy situation among wooded hills, with powerful chalybeate springs and good baths (lodgings at the bathing establishment, with 200 rooms). Near the station is the Kaiser-Wilhelm-Bad (pens. 4½-6 M). Excursions may be made to (1 $\frac{1}{4}$ M.) the Iburg, (4 M.) Neuenheerse, with an old abbey church, etc.

137 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Brakel. From (144 M.) Ottbergen a branch-line diverges to Carlshafen (p. 121) and to Nordhausen viâ Northeim (p. 132). 146 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Godelheim. On the hill to the right are the white buildings of Schloss Fürstenberg (p. 120).

150 M. Höxter (Berliner Hof, Stadt Bremen, both well spoken of), once a free imperial town and a member of the Hanseatic League, with 7200 inhabitants. The Protestant Church of St. Kilian, with two towers and a rectangular choir, was consecrated in 1075, rebuilt in the Romanesque style in 1391, and restored in 1882. It contains a pulpit of 1592 and a font of 1631 (by Berent Kraft). Adjacent is the Minoritenkirche, also Protestant, but at present unused, a fine Gothic edifice of ca. 1400, with one low aisle (on the S. side; apply to the verger of St. Kilian's). The Roman Catholic Nicolai-kirche, in the market-place, contains a lectionary with an ornamental metal cover of the 12th century. Among the most interesting Renaissance timber-buildings are the (restored) Tilly House and others in the Heisterhof, lying a little way back from the Westerbach-Strasse. — Steamers ply on the Weser from Höxter to Münden and Hameln (p. 109).

An avenue of chestnut-trees, passing the station, leads from Höxter to (1 M.) Corvey (Inn), once the most celebrated Benedictine abbey in N. Germany, founded by Louis the Pious in 822. The abbots were of princely rank. In 1798 it was created a bishopric, but it was suppressed in 1803. The castellated building, with its numerous towers, farm offices, and church, encloses several courts. In the upper cloisters are portraits of all the abbots. The château contains a fine library of 160,000 vols., of which Hofmann von Fallersleben, who is buried behind the church, was custodian from 1860 to 1874. The first six books of the Annals of Tacitus which had been believed to be lost, were found here in 1514.

The train now crosses the Weser; on the left bank lies Corvey (see above). — 155 M. Holzminden (Buntrock*; Udde; Deutsches Haus, at the station), a Brunswick town with 9100 inhab., possesses a famous old grammar-school, and a modern school of engineering, with a monument to Haarmann, its founder. Railway to Scherfede, see p. 121. — Beyond Holzminden we have a passing glimpse of the vale of the Ihne, with the old Cistercian convent of Amelunxborn (1129).

182 M. Kreiensen (Railway Restaurant, D. 2 M.), the junction of the Hanover and Cassel line (B. 8). — 186 M. Gandersheim (Weisses Ross), an old town, formerly the seat of a nunnery founded about 844. Romanesque abbey-church, dating from 1172.

195 M. Seesen (Kronprinz*; Wilhelmsbad), one of the oldest places on the margin of the Harz Mts. (4500 inhab.). Railway to Nordhausen viâ Herzberg, see p. 392. — 199 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Neuekrug, the junction of a branch-line to Grauhof (p. 395) and Vienenburg (p. 395). — 203 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Lutter. At Lutter am Barenberge, $\frac{3}{4}$ M. to the E., Tilly gained a victory over Christian IV. of Denmark on 27th Aug., 1626.

207½ M. Ringelheim, junction of branch-lines to Vienenburg and to Hildesheim (p. 141) via Derneburg (p. 145).

220 M. Börsum (Rail. Restaurant, D. 2 M.), the junction of the Brunswick and Harzburg line (p. 392). 229 M. Mattiersoll; 234½ M. Jerzheim, the junction of the line from Brunswick to Oschersleben (p. 391) and Magdeburg. At (252 M.) Ellisleben our line unites with that from Hanover and Brunswick (p. 111).

271 M. Magdeburg. — Hotels. Near the station: *CENTRAL HOTEL, R. from 2, B. 1½ M.; CONTINENTAL HOTEL (Pl. d; A, 3), R., L., & A. from 2, B. 1, D. 2½ M.; FÜRST BISMARCK (Pl. h; A, 4), R., L., & A. from 1½, B. ¾-1, D. 2 M.; these three opposite the station; RHEINISCHER HOF, Victoria-Str. (Pl. A, 4), B. 1½ M.; EVANGELISCHES VEREINSHAUS, Bahnhof-Str. 29, R. 1½-3 M. — In the town: *WEISSER SCHWAN (Pl. b; B, 3), Breite Weg 161, R., L., & A. 2-4, B. 1, D. 2½ M.; *MAGDEBURGER HOF (Pl. k; B, 3), with electric light and lift, these two of the first class; CITY HOTEL, Alte Ulrichs-Str. 8 (Pl. B, 8); STADT PRAG (Pl. e; B, 4), Bär-Platz, with restaurant, KAISERHOF (Pl. a; B, 8), Kutscher-Str. 10, both well spoken of.

Restaurants. Wine: Jordan, Kaiser-Str. 28; *Führmann, Himmelreich-Str. 4; *Dankwarth & Richlers, Breite Weg 65; *Rathskellererei, Altenmarkt; *Est Est, Prälaten-Str. 1; Continental Bodega Co., Alte Ulrichs-Str. 10. — Beer: *Central, Central Hotel; Grosser Kurfürst (Pl. k; B, 6), Hasselbach-Platz; Hofbräu, Hasselbach-Str. 1 (Pl. A, 4); *Frankfurter (Pl. f; B, 3), Breite Weg; Stadthaus, Jakob-Str. (Pl. C, 2); Franks, Schönebeck-Str. 1; Reichshalle, Kaiser-Str. 19; Weisses Bär, Weinfass-Str. 6. — Cafés. Peters, National, Tamborini, Breite Weg 20, 12, and 213; Dom, Oranien-Str. 12. — Confectioners. Café Hohensollern (Pl. c; B, 2), Breite Weg; Meffert, Breite Weg 166.

Baths, Fürsten-Str. 28b and Gneisenau-Str. 3.

Theatres. Stadt-Theater (Pl. 23; A, B, 4), see p. 114; Wilhelm-Theater (Pl. 24; C, 3); Victoria (Pl. 25; E, 2), a summer-theatre in the Werder (p. 116). — Concert Rooms. *Fürstehof, Kaiser-Str. 93; Theater-Garten, at the Stadt-Theater; Hofjäger, Ring-Str.

Cabs. Per drive within the town, for 1-2 pers. 60 pf., 3 pers. 80 pf., 4 pers. 1 M. — By train: ½ hr., for 1-2 pers. 1 M., 3 pers. 1 M. 30 pf., 4 pers. 1½ M.

Tramway every 6 min. in the forenoon and every 4 min. in the afternoon from Neustadt along the Breite Weg to Sudenburg and Buckau; from the Alte Ulrichs-Thor across the Altenmarkt and over the Elbe bridges to the Friedrichstadt and (steam-tramway) Herrnenkrug; from the Alte Ulrichs-Thor through the Wilhelm-Str. to the Hofjäger and the Stadtfeld; from the Breite Weg through the Kaiser-Str. and Wilhelm-Str. to the Hofjäger.

United States Consul, Herr Julius Muth; vice-consul, Herr R. Weichsel.

Magdeburg (165 ft.), the capital and seat of government of the Prussian province of Saxony, and a fortress of the first rank, with 220,000 inhab. (includ. suburbs), is chiefly situated on the left bank of the Elbe, which is here divided into three arms. It consists of the town proper and the four suburbs of Sudenburg and Buckau to the S., Neustadt to the N., and Friedrichstadt to the E., on the right bank of the so-called Alte Elbe. An island in the river is occupied by the Citadel. As the point of intersection of numerous railways (to Berlin, Hamburg, Bremen, Hanover, Brunswick, and Leipzig), Magdeburg is also one of the most important commercial towns in N. Germany. It is the headquarters of the German sugar industry, and the cultivation of the beetroot from which the sugar is obtained is carried on very extensively in the neighbourhood. The most important of its numerous industries are iron-founding and machine-making.

Magdeburg, which was founded as a commercial settlement at the beginning of the 9th cent., is chiefly indebted for its early prosperity to Emp. Otho the Great (866-973) and his consort Editha (see below) who founded a Benedictine monastery here in 937. In 968 the town was raised to the rank of an archiepiscopal see of equal rank with Cologne and Mayence. In the 13-15th cent. Magdeburg was a flourishing and powerful commercial place, with supremacy over an extensive territory, and a member of the Hanseatic League. The turbulent citizens gradually threw off the archiepiscopal yoke, and towards the close of the 15th cent. compelled the prelates generally to reside elsewhere. As early as 1524 they eagerly espoused the cause of the Reformation. During the Thirty Years' War Magdeburg suffered terribly. In 1629 it successfully resisted the attacks of Wallenstein during seven months, but it was taken by storm by Tilly in 1631, and almost wholly destroyed. Otto von Guericke, the inventor of the air-pump, was burgomaster of the town from 1616 to 1681. After the Reformation the see was presided over by three Protestant archbishops, and at length in 1680 became incorporated with the Mark of Brandenburg. The extension of its line of fortifications in 1686 and 1670 has led to a great development of the town on the W., S., and N.

The chief street of the new quarter near the railway-station is the KAISER-STRASSE (Pl. B, 3-5), containing the Theatre (Pl. 23; A, B, 4). Among the other handsome buildings of this quarter are the Real-Gymnasium and the School of Art (Pl. 14; A, 3).

The BREITE WEG (B, 1-6), the principal business-street of Magdeburg, intersects the old town from N. to S. and contains numerous handsome shops. The houses in it date mostly from the 17th century. The inscription on No. 146, 'Gedenke des 10. Mai 1631', is a reminiscence of the capture of the town by Tilly. — The sculptures in the pediment of the handsome Reichs-Bank, in the Grosse Münz-Str. (Pl. B, 3), were taken from the old house of Otto von Guericke (d. 1686; see above).

The Cathedral* (Pl. 6; B, C, 5), or Church of SS. Maurice and Catharine, a noble and massive structure, erected after 1208 on the site of the ancient Benedictine church (comp. above), was the earliest attempt in the Gothic style in Germany. The elaborate polygonal choir, the two unfinished E. towers, and the E. bays of the nave were erected before 1274. The choir with its two-storied ambulatory and series of chapels recalls the French style of building, though many of the details are essentially German in spirit. The purely Gothic nave dates from 1363, the W. towers from 1310-1520. The rich W. portal is worthy of inspection. The whole edifice was restored under Frederick William III. Length 230 yds., breadth of nave 35 yds., height of N. tower 337 ft.

The CHOIR, which contains richly carved stalls, is separated from the nave by a late-Gothic Screen (1448). The antique columns below the painted figures of saints and Saxon emperors (13th cent.) are supposed to have been previously utilized in the earlier church of the Emp. Otho I. (d. 973), who reposes beneath a simple marble slab in the choir. — The RETRO-CHOIR contains the tomb (1447) of Otho's consort Editha (d. 947), daughter of Edmund of England, two fine brasses, and a curious Chapel (18th cent.) with painted figures of the imperial pair. — In the S. TRANSEPT are a Madonna and the tomb of Archbp. Otho of Hessen (d. 1561), both in the Gothic style and painted. — The NAVE contains numerous other monuments of the 16th and 17th cent. of inferior interest. Pulpit in alabaster, 1597. — In the chapel beneath the towers is the Monument of Archbishop Ernest*, one of the earlier works of the celebrated Peter Vischer of Nuremberg, completed in 1484; on the sarcophagus reclines the archbishop, on the sides are the Twelve Apostles, SS. Maurice and Stephen, and a variety of decorations. Here also is a large candelabrum, cast in 1494, probably by P. Vischer. Tilly's helmet, marshal's staff, and gloves, and an indulgence-chest of the notorious Tetsel are also shown. — Outside the portal of the N. transept is a Gothic portico with figures of the Ten Virgins (originally painted) and of the Old and New Covenant (ca. 1800).

The TOWERS (488 steps) commands a fine view, to which, however, that from the gallery (168 steps) is almost equal. The sacristan (1. A) lives in the handsome adjoining Cloisters (13th and 14th cent.), with old sgraffito embellishments. The old Chapter Room*, adjoining the cloisters on the E., is now occupied by the public archives. — The large bell weighs 13 tons.

The Civic Museum, Domhof 5, occupies the old Royal Palace, to which various additions have been made (open free on Sun. and holidays, 11-2, and on Mon., Thurs., and Sat., 11-1 and 3-5, in winter 11-3; adm. on Tues. and Frid., at the same hours, 50 pf.). The ground-floor and first floor of the front-building are occupied by the Industrial Collections and the Engravings; in the side-building to the left are the Pictures and Sculptures; to the right are the Pre-historic Collections. The Natural History Collection is on the second floor of the main building.

A little to the N. of the cathedral rises the Liebfrauenkirche (Pl. 10, C 4; sacristan, Klosterkirchhof 7) or Church of Our Lady, begun about 1070 as a cruciform Romanesque basilica, altered and added to in the Gothic style about 1220, and restored in 1890-91. The Romanesque Cloisters* (12th cent.) and the abbey-buildings have been converted into a school (entr., Regierungs-Str. 4).

In the ALTENMARKT (Pl. B, C, 3), in front of the Bathhaus (Pl. 19; 1691), rises the Monument of Otto I.* (Pl. 1), an equestrian figure, 8 ft. high, on a pedestal 18½ ft. in height, erected by the municipality about 1290, and several times restored. At the corners are the Duke of Saxony, the Margrave of Brandenburg, and two other figures in armour. Beside the emperor are two allegorical female figures. The statues are all in sandstone and of life-size.

The small Platz near the Hauptwache (Pl. 4) contains a bronze Statue of Franke (d. 1851; Pl. 2), burgomaster of Magdeburg. A little to the E. is a large new building, containing municipal offices and the Public Library. — In front of the Johanniskirche (Pl. 8; C, 3) stands a Luther Monument, by Hundrieser, erected in 1886.

The Fürstenwall (Pl. C, 4, 5), on the Elbe, is a favourite walk. At the S. end are pleasure-grounds, with a War Monument.

The Friedrich-Wilhelms-Garten (Pl. B, C, 7, 8) includes the grounds of the once celebrated Kloster Bergen, destroyed in 1812. The eminence on which the latter once stood is now occupied by a restaurant with ball-rooms, etc. In the W. part of the park are the Gruson Palm Houses (open 8-12 and 1-3). On the S. side lies the manufacturing town of Buckau (p. 113), with numerous villas and the large Gruson Iron Works (3000 men), now belonging to Herr Krupp (p. 117). — Opposite, on the right bank of the Elbe, the Rothe Horn Park (Pl. D, E, 7, 8), with the Schützenhaus-Restaurant.

On the Werder (Pl. D, E, 1, 2) are situated the Victoria Theatre (Pl. 25) and a number of pleasure-resorts, such as the Odeon (Pl. 17). — On the right bank of the Elbe, 2 M. below Magdeburg, lies the Herrenkrug* (frequent steamers in the afternoon, 15-25 pf.; tramway, see p. 113), on the left bank the Vogelsang (tramway), both favourite resorts, with pleasant grounds.

The country between Magdeburg and Brandenburg is uninteresting. Beyond (277 M.) Magdeburg-Neustadt the train crosses the Elbe. At (280 M.) Biederitz our line unites with that from Zerbst and Leipzig (p. 345).

286 M. Burg (Roland; Hesse), with 19,400 inhab., and large cloth-factories, founded by French Protestants who settled here after the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes in 1685.

321 M. Brandenburg (Schwarzer Bär*, Stein-Str. 60; Schwarzer Adler*; Schwan; Cramer's Wine Rooms; Ahlert's Berg, with garden and open-air theatre; Stadtpark Restaurant; Wilhelms-Garten), a dull town with broad streets and 42,700 inhab., lies on the Havel, which here forms a broad lake called the Plauesche See, and divides the town into the Altstadt, Neustadt, and Domininsel.

Brandenburg occupies the site of Brennabor, a stronghold of the Slavonic Hevell, which was taken by Emp. Henry I. in 927. It afterwards again fell into the hands of the Wends, but was taken in 1157 by Albert the Bear, Count of Ascania, who thenceforth styled himself Margrave of Brandenburg. The town was the seat of an episcopal see from 849 to 1544, and was long the chief place in the Mark. Several interesting old buildings still exist.

From the station (comp. Plan C, D, 5) we proceed by the Schützen-Strasse, Annen Thor-Brücke, and the St. Annen-Strasse to the Rathhaus (Pl. C, 3), dating from the 14th cent., but modernised and disfigured in the 18th. Near it stands a Roland (see p. 161), 18 ft. in height. Opposite rises the Church of St. Catharine*, a Gothic brick edifice, the nave of which was erected in 1381-1401, the choir about 1410, and the tower above the W. front in 1583-85. The elaborate ornamentation of the exterior is worthy of careful inspection, especially that of the Corpus Christi chapel, adjoining the nave. In the interior are a fine old altar in carved wood of 1474, recently gilded and painted, a bronze font of 1440, and several monuments. — We next cross the Molkenmarkt and the Mühlendamm, past the early-Gothic Petrikirche (Pl. D, 2; 14th cent.), to the — CATHEDRAL (Pl. D, 2), originally a Romanesque basilica of 1165-1187, rebuilt in the Gothic style in the 14th cent., and restored by Schinkel in 1834-36. It contains a fine reredos of 1518, and remains of an earlier one of 1375. The altar-candelabrum, with statuettes of angels, dates from 1441. The sacristy contains an interesting collection of mediæval vestments.

The Grillendamm (Pl. D, 1) leads hence to the Altstadt, where the church of St. Godehard (Pl. B, 1), partly Romanesque of 1160, and partly Gothic of 1348, and the old Altstadt Rathaus (Pl. 2; B, 2), of the 13-14th cent., are the most interesting buildings.

Fine view from the Marienberg (Pl. A, 1), an eminence (200 ft.) to the N.W. of the town, on which rises a tower 114 ft. in height, designed by the architect Stier, and adorned with reliefs by Siemering and Calandrelli, erected in 1890 to the memory of about 4000 Brandenburgers who fell in the wars of 1864, 1866, 1870-71.

The first station beyond Brandenburg is (330 M.) Gross-Kreutz, from which a diligence runs thrice daily to (7½ M.) Lehmin (Kronprinz; Preussischer Hof), with the fine church of the old abbey of Himmelpfort, founded in 1180 and restored in 1871-79. — As we approach Potsdam we obtain a fine view of the Havel, which the line crosses.

343 M. Potsdam, and thence to (359 M.) Berlin, see R. 2.

6. From Duisburg to Hagen and Siegen viâ Langendreer.

105 M. RAILWAY to Hagen in 1¾-2¼ hrs. (fares 5 M 20, 3 M 80, 2 M 70 pf.); thence to Siegen in 2½-3½ hrs. (fares 8 M 50, 6 M 40, 4 M 30 pf.).

The line at first traverses the Westphalian Coal Measures, which are among the most productive in the world, extending to the E. from the Rhine as far as Unna and Camen, about 32 M. in length and 8-14 M. in width, and yielding 10-12 million tons of coal annually. The innumerable chimneys on both sides of the line testify to the enormous industrial activity of the district. The population is very dense, frequently averaging 1800 per Engl. sq. mile. The produce of the mines, manufactories, foundries, etc., is conveyed in different directions by numerous railways, forming a dense network without parallel in Germany.

Duisburg, see p. 98. — 5 M. Mülheim an der Ruhr (Im Zulast; Retze), a prettily-situated town with 36,000 inhab., the junction of several railways and surrounded by coal-pits and iron-works. The Grosse Kirche dates from the 13-14th centuries. On the left bank of the Ruhr is the old château of Broich, where Queen Louisa of Prussia spent part of her youth.

As Essen is approached we gain a view to the left of Krupp's Cast Steel Works, a vast establishment of world-wide celebrity. The tallest (220 ft.) of the numerous chimneys belongs to a huge steam-hammer, 50 tons in weight. The factory, to which visitors are not admitted, employs 20,000 workmen and supplies many railway and steamboat-companies in Europe and other parts of the world with rails, wheels, etc., and several of the great powers of Europe and Asia with steel guns.

12 M. *Essen (*Essener Hof; Rheinischer Hof), at the Bergisch-Märkisch station; Berliner Hof*, R., L., & A. 2 M 30 pf., B. 1, D. 2½ M; Deutscher Hof; Victoria; Stemme, a town with 96,100

inhab., founded at the end of the 9th century. Being the central point of a great coal-mining district, where upwards of six million tons of coal are raised annually, it has increased rapidly within the last forty years (in 1854 there were 10,488 inhab. only), and is surrounded by lofty chimneys in every direction. An extensive and rapidly increasing iron-industry has sprung up in consequence of the abundant supply of fuel.

The Münsterkirche*, founded by Bishop Alfred of Hildesheim, and consecrated in 874, is one of the most ancient churches in Germany. It was restored in 1881-86. The W. choir, with an octagon resembling that of the cathedral of Aix-la-Chapelle, dates from the 10th cent.; the crypt under the E. choir dates from 1061; the Gothic nave and choir were completed in 1316.

The INTERIOR contains an altar-piece by B. de Bruyn (1522-27), a large seven-branched candelabrum of the 10th cent., and various interesting objects in the precious metals. The Goldene Kammer, or treasury, contains several curious Romanesque works of art of the 10th century (sacristan, Berg-Str. 17). — To the N. are handsome Gothic Cloisters.

In front of the handsome Rathhaus is a Statue of Alfred Krupp (d. 1887; see p. 117), by Schaper, erected in 1889.

Essen is also a station on the Rhenish Railway from Düsseldorf to Dortmund (p. 98), and on the Cologne-Minden Railway (Altenessen; see p. 98).

15 M. Steele (Badenberg), an old town on the Ruhr, is surrounded by coal-mines (pop. 10,000). The station (Restaurant*) is at Königstele (Lindemann), 1 M. from the town. Steele is the junction of branch-railways to Vohwinkel, Herdecke (see below), and Osterfeld.

22 M. Bochum (Neubauer, R., L., & A. from 2½, D. 2½ M; Kaiserhof), an important industrial place with 53,900 inhab., possesses very extensive cast-steel works and several large factories and foundries.

25½ M. Langendreer, where the line diverges from that to Martien and Dortmund (p. 98).

29 M. Witten (265 ft.; Voss*, in the town; Dünnebacke, near the station, R., L., A., & B. 2½, D. 2½ M), an industrial town with 28,800 inhab., pleasantly situated on the Ruhr. The train ascends the valley on the right bank, and Volmarstein is seen opposite.

34 M. Wetter (Brandes), picturesquely situated on a height, with a ruined castle and a belvedere. The train crosses the river and skirts the Kaisberg, where Charlemagne is said to have once encamped; the tower on the top is a monument to Baron Stein, the eminent Prussian minister, who was afterwards president of Westphalia (d. 1834).

36½ M. Herdecke (Zweibrücker Hof), a town with 4300 inhab., opposite the influx of the Volme into the Ruhr. The valley of the Ruhr is here crossed by the imposing viaduct (to the left) of the Rhenish line from Düsseldorf to Dortmund (p. 98). The Hohen-syburg (p. 106) is about 5 M. to the N. of Herdecke.

The train now crosses the valley by a viaduct, 345 yds. long and 100 ft. high, and ascends first along the left bank of the Volme and then along the left bank of its affluent the Ennepe.

39 M. Hagen, the junction of several railways; see p. 106.

The Ruhr-Sieg-Bahn from Hagen to Siegen connects the busy and picturesque valley of the Lenne with the coal-measures of the Ruhr.

50 M. Hohenlimburg (Bentheimer Hof; Post), a small town with 7100 inhab., is commanded by the château of Prince Bentheim on a precipitous wooded height. *View from the top.

52 M. Letmathe (Post), with 3000 inhabitants. Large zinc-foundry near the station.

FROM LETMATHE TO ISEERLOHN AND FRÖNDENBERG, 15½ M., branch-line in 1 hr. (1 M. 25, 85 pf.). — 1½ M. Dechenhöhle, see below.

8¼ M. Iserlohn (Sander*; Post), with 24,700 inhab. is one of the most important manufacturing places in Westphalia, the chief products being iron and brass wares, needles, and wire. Extensive trade. The picturesque environs are crowded with factories of every kind. The Stadtkirche contains a fine carved altar of the 15th century. Near the station is the Alexanderhöhe, a place of popular resort, whence a pleasant walk, commanding admirable views, may be taken along the Kulturweg. — Beyond Iserlohn the line proceeds to (8½ M.) Heimer, a thriving industrial place, (12½ M.) Menden (Beiderlinden), and (15½ M.) Fröndenberg (p. 120).

At the Grüne (inn), part of the valley of the Lenne between Iserlohn and Letmathe, rise two detached rocks styled the 'Pater' and the 'Nonne', near which is the Grüermannshöhle, a cavern containing numerous fossil bones.

On the railway (see above), 10 min. to the E., is situated the highly-interesting 'Dechenhöhle', a stalactite cavern discovered in 1868 (tickets of admission sold at the station, 1-2 pers. 1 M. 20, each member of a party 40 pf.), lighted with gas, and extending about 330 yds. into the hill.

Pleasant route from Iserlohn to Menden (10 M., see below), or to Arnsberg (21 M.). The road leads to the E. to (3½ M.) Sundwig (Weber's Inn), with an interesting stalactite grotto (adm. 50 pf.), in which bones of antediluvian animals have been found. On the hill (10 min.) is the Felsenmeer, a basin containing groups of rocks interspersed with trees. From Sundwig we proceed either by the highroad or by a footpath to the (3 M.) Klusenstein, a very picturesque ruin, with farm-buildings, rising precipitously above the wild valley of the Hönne. From this point down the valley of the Hönne to Menden (rail. stat., see above), 1 hr., passing the Schleibetquelle, a clear and copious spring on the left. Or we may follow the highroad in the valley from Klusenstein, viâ Binolen (with the Beckenhöhle, adm. 50 pf.) to (3 M.) Sansouci, a good inn, where the Hönne is quitted (about 1½ M. farther on is the Balver Höhle, a large cave with numerous fossils). Thence over the hill to (6 M.) Hachen on the Röhr, from which a path (guide necessary) crosses the hills to Arnsberg in 2 hrs. (see p. 120).

58 M. Altena (Klincke; Post) is a picturesquely-situated little town, with the ancestral Schloss of the old Counts von der Mark. Pop. 12,100. The grounds on the hills to the S. of the castle afford beautiful views. Conspicuous war-monument. — Several small stations. From (77 M.) Finnentrop a branch diverges to Olpe and Rothemühle. At (92 M.) Welschen-Ennest the watershed of the Ruhr-bacher Höhe (1310 ft.) is penetrated by means of a tunnel. 99 M. Creuzthal. Branch to Marburg (p. 416).

105 M. Siegen (Goldner Löwe*, R. & B. 2 M. 80 pf.; Deutscher Kaiser*), a busy old mining town (19,200 inhab.), with two castles of the Princes of Nassau-Siegen who became extinct in 1743. Rubens (1577-1640) was born here while his parents were living in exile from Antwerp, their native place. Comp. also Baedeker's Rhine.

At Betzdorf, 10½ M. beyond Siegen, the line unites with the Cologne and Giessen railway (see Baedeker's Rhine).

7. From Cologne to Cassel via Arnsberg.

171 M. RAILWAY in 5½-10 hrs. (fares, 22 M 50, 18 M 85, 11 M 20 pf.; express, 24 M 80, 18 M 40, 12 M 90 pf.). One fast train only runs daily by this line; the usual route from Cologne to Cassel, though a little longer, is via Soest and Altenbeken (R. 4; two quick trains daily in 6¼ hrs.; fares as above).

Journey to (52½ M.) Schwerte, the junction for Soest and Altenbeken, see R. 4. Then (59 M.) Langschede. — 62 M. Fröndenberg (branch-line to Menden and Iserlohn, see p. 119).

74 M. Neheim-Hüsten. Schloss Herdringen, ¾ M. to the W., is the seat of Count Fürstenberg, the owner of some exquisite goldsmith's work by Meister Anton Eisenholdt of Warburg (1585-1618). Near Arnsberg the train passes through a tunnel below the Schlossberg.

79½ M. Arnsberg (Husemann*, R. 2¼, B. 1 M; Helmert; Höyneck, at the station, R. & B. 2½ M), once the capital of the ancient Duchy of Westphalia, with 7000 inhab., is prettily situated on a height skirted by the Ruhr. The hill to the N., crowned with the ruins of a castle which was blown up in 1762, commands a charming prospect. Another excellent point of view is the Eichholz, a beautiful park on the S. side of the town. At the foot of the hill is the former Præmonstratensian abbey of Wedinghausen, now a grammar-school.

The winding river is crossed five times between Arnsberg and Meschede. — 92 M. Meschede (Hoff; Gercken), an ancient town with 3000 inhab., prettily situated on the Ruhr, was once the seat of a nunnery founded in the 9th cent., with a late-Gothic church.

From (102 M.) Olsberg (Padberg) an excursion may be made to the Kahle Astenberg (2770 ft.), a fine point of view. Beyond Olsberg, on the hill to the right, are the huge Bruchhauser Steine. The train now quits the Ruhr and penetrates the watershed between the Rhine and Weser by a long tunnel.

107 M. Stat. Brilon is 4½ M. (diligence) from the town of that name (Lohmann, R. & B. 2½ M; Teuto), one of the most ancient in Germany, mentioned as early as the year 1100. Pop. 4500. It possesses a large Romanesque church with a late-Gothic choir and a huge tower; the sculptures on the N. portal are Romanesque (1150).

The line then descends the narrow Hoppeke-Thal. At (117½ M.) Bredelar are iron-works, established in an old Cistercian monastery. 122½ M. Nieder-Marsberg or Stadtberge (Post; Poelmann), a small town with a large lunatic asylum and important copper-works, lies at the foot of a hill, on which is situated the old town of Ober-

Marsberg, once a strong fortress, but destroyed during the Thirty Years' War. This was the site of the ancient Saxon fortress Eresburg, near which stood the most celebrated of the 'Irmensäulen', or columns dedicated to the Germanic deity Irmin. The castle and column were destroyed by Charlemagne in 772, who founded here the first church on Saxon soil. The church of St. Peter dates from the 12th and 13th centuries; in front of it stands a Roland's Column (p. 161). The chapel of St. Nicholas is an interesting structure in the transition style.

132 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Scherfede (Railway Restaurant), the junction of a line to Holzminden (p. 112).

138 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Warburg (Hôtel zum Desenberg; Dodt), an ancient town (5300 inhab.), picturesquely situated on an eminence on the Diemel, is the junction of the railway to Allenbeken (p. 109). To the left rises a conical hill, surmounted by the ruined tower of the castle of Desenberg.

FROM WARBURG TO CORBACH, 27 M., railway in ca. 2 hrs. (fares 3 M. 60, 2 M. 70, 1 M. 80 pf.). — The only intermediate station of importance is (16 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Arolsen (Waldecker Hof), with 2800 inhab., charmingly situated, the seat of Prince Waldeck, father-in-law of the late Prince Leopold of England (Duke of Albany), with a valuable collection of antiquities from Herculaneum and Pompeii. Rauch (1777-1857), the sculptor, and Kaulbach (1806-74), the painter, were both born at Arolsen. The Church contains three statuettes in marble by the former. — 27 M. Corbach (Waldecker Hof), a small town with 2300 inhabitants.

Beyond Warburg we obtain a view to the right of the pleasant valley of the Diemel. — 151 M. Hümme is the junction of a branch-line to (10 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Carlshafen (Schwan; Brandes), a small town prettily situated at the influx of the Diemel into the Weser, whence steamers ply in summer to Hameln (p. 109) and Münden (p. 130).

155 M. Hofgeismar, with a mineral spring. — 159 M. Grebenstein, with ancient watch-towers, at the foot of the Grebenburg. — 164 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Mönchehof; 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the W., in a beautiful park, lies Wilhelmsthal, formerly a château of the Elector of Hesse, built in 1760, containing handsome rococo decorations and several pictures by Tischbein.

171 M. Cassel. — Hotels. Near the Station: *HÔTEL DU NORD (Pl. b; C, 2), R., L., & A. from 2 $\frac{1}{2}$, B. 1 $\frac{1}{4}$, D. 3 M.; *HÔTEL ROYAL (Pl. a; C, 2), similar charges, with restaurant, both opposite the station; STÜCK'S HOTEL, Museum-Str. 4, with restaurant; *CASSELER HOF (Pl. g; D, 2), R., L., & A. 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ -3, B. 1, D. 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ -2 $\frac{1}{2}$ M., with restaurant; PRINZ FRIEDRICH WILHELM (Pl. c; C, 2), R. & L. 2 $\frac{1}{2}$, D. 2 $\frac{1}{2}$, B. 1 M., both in the Friedrich-Wilhelms-Platz; DEUTSCHER KAISER (Pl. d; D, 1), Bahnhof-Str. 1; HÔTEL GOLZE, Spohr-Str. 6, in these two R., L., & A. from 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ M., B. 80 pf.-1 M., D. 2-2 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.; EVANGELISCHES VEREINSHAUS, Kölnische-Str. 17, R. 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ -3 M. — In the Town: *KÖNIG VON PREUSSEN (Pl. e; D, 2), *HÔTEL SCHIRMER (Pl. f; D, 3), these two in the Königs-Platz and of the first class, R., L., & A. 3-4, B. 1, D. 3-3 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.; RATTEN (Pl. h; E, 2), Mittelgasse 42, with restaurant; REICHKANZLER, Obere Gasse 56; BAYRISCHER HOF, Grosse Rosen-Str. 16. — Pensions: Frau Hagst, Hohenzollern-Str. 88; Fräulein Werenberg, Grosse Friedrich-Str. 12 (pens. 4-5 M.). — Hotels at Wilhelmshöhe, see p. 128.

Cassel (490 ft.), an important railway-centre, formerly the capital of the Electorate of Hesse, and since 1866 the seat of government of the Prussian province of Hessen-Nassau, lies on the Fulda, which separates the Altstadt from the small Unter-Neustadt. To the S.W. of the Altstadt are the Ober-Neustadt and the new West-Viertel or Hohenzollernstadt. The town has assumed a busier and more prosperous aspect since its annexation to Prussia in 1866. Its manufactures of locomotives, turbine-wheels, railway-carriages, surgical instruments, and fine tools are important. Pop. (1864) 35,980; (1896) 81,700.

From the station the short Museum-Strasse leads to the S.E. (right) to the FRIEDRICH-WILHELMS-PLATZ (Pl. C, D, 2), in the middle of which is the Löwenbrunnen, an ornamental fountain by Schneider, erected in 1881, with figures of the rivers Werra, Fulda, Lahn, and Eder by Echtermeyer. On the N. side (corner of Museum-Str.) is the Industrial and Technological Museum (open free 10-1; at other times 20 pf.), adjoined by the School of Industrial Art. — To the S.W. of this square is the STÄNDE-PLATZ (Pl. C, 3), with its double avenue of limes, in which are the Ständehaus (House of the Estates; Pl. 11), built in 1836, and the *Kunsthau*s (Hall of Art; Pl. 5; see p. 122). — From the Friedrich-Wilhelms-Platz the Königsche-Strasse leads to the E. to the KÖNIGS-PLATZ (Pl. D, E, 2, 3), containing the Post Office and the above-mentioned hotels. The Königs-Platz is the starting-point of the tramway to Wilhelmshöhe. — A little to the N. E., in the Martins-Platz, rises the Protestant Church of St. Martin (Pl. 6; E, 2), in the Gothic style, of the 14th and 15th cent., judiciously restored in 1842. The towers were completed in 1889-91. Sacristan, Hohenthor-Str. 21.

CHOIR. The Monument of Philip the Generous (d. 1567) and his wife the Landgravine Christina of Saxony (d. 1549), erected in 1568-70 by El. Gottfried and Adam Beaumont, in black marble with alabaster reliefs, stands in the apse. By the N. wall of the choir is a monument to Prince Philip of Hesse, son of the Landgrave Moritz (1582-1632), who fell in the battle of Lutter am Barenberge (p. 112), opposite to it is a brass, with a likeness of the Landgravine Christina.

The OBERE KÖNIG-STRASSE (Pl. D, C, 3, 4), which leads to the S.W. from the Königs-Platz, is the chief business street of the town. It passes the Friedrichs-Platz, the Opern-Platz (see below), and the Mess-Platz (Pl. C, D, 4), containing a bronze bust of Burgomaster Schomburg, and terminates at the Wilhelmshöher-Platz (Pl. C, 4), at the beginning of the Wilhelmshöher-Allée (p. 128). The large building at the end of the street is the new Wilhelms-Gymnasium; to the right the Oberpraesidium (Pl. 8).

The spacious FRIEDRICHS-PLATZ (Pl. D, E, 3, 4), between the Altstadt and the Ober-Neustadt, is 335 yds. long and 165 yds. wide. It is bounded on the E. by the old electoral Palace (Pl. 10), which was built in 1769, and enlarged in 1821 (shown by the castellan); by the Museum Fridericianum (see p. 124), the Royal Military School, and the Roman Catholic Church (1770-76; containing a St. Francis from Rubens's studio). In the centre rises the Statue of the Landgrave Frederick II., a prince who in 1776-84 sent 12,000 of his subjects to aid the English in America in consideration of a sum of 22 million dollars. — The N.W. part of the Friedrichs-Platz, on the other side of the Obere König-Strasse, is named the OPERN-PLATZ. Here stands the Court Theatre (Pl. 3), in front of which rises a bronze statue of Louis Spohr, who was conductor of the orchestra at Cassel from 1822 to 1859, by Hartzer (1883).

The S. side is terminated by the handsome Aue-Thor (Pl. E, 4), which was built in the reign of Frederick II., and enlarged in 1824. It is embellished with two bronze *Reliefs by Siemering (the farewell and return of the warriors), placed here in commemoration of the victories in 1870-71, and crowned with a large eagle by Brandt. From this point we obtain a fine view of the *Karlsau*e (p. 128), the valley of the Fulda, and the distant hills, of which the Meissner (p. 418) to the left is the most prominent. From the lower end of the Friedrichs-Platz we observe towards the N.E. a large building (1876-80), which contains the Law Courts and Government Offices (fine view from the terrace at the E. angle).

The Museum Fridericianum (Pl. 7), erected in 1769-79 by Landgrave Frederick II., contains a few good ancient sculptures and collections of plaster-casts, coins, prehistoric relics, etc. It is open free on Thurs. 10-1, and in summer on Tues. and Sat. also, 3-5 (entrance in summer by the principal portal, in winter at the back, through the court); at other times on application to the custodian, who lives in the little house by the S.E. passage at the back of the museum. Catalogue 50 pf.

I. HALL OF THE FOUNDERS. 1. Bust of Landgrave Frederick II.; on the right and left busts of the Napoleonic family, some of them by Canova (?).

II. SEMICIRCULAR ROOM, containing the Ancient Sculptures. *Youth about to anoint himself, a Greek work; Victor, after Polyclethus; Athena, after Phidias; two statues of Apollo, one archaic; Replica of the Doryphoros of Polyclethus (inaccurately restored); *Head of a Diadumenos, a later Attic adaptation of that of Polyclethus.

The other rooms contain the extensive collection of Plaster Casts. Through the CORRIDOR (VI) to the S.E. of the Rotunda and Room IV we reach Room V (the first entered in winter), which contains small objects of ancient art, terracottas, and a collection of antique coins. On a pedestal: *Bronze statuette of Victory, a Greek work.

We now return to the rooms on the other side of the Rotunda. — ROOM VIII. Thirty-six cork models of ancient Roman buildings, executed at the end of last century. Rooms IX and X contain antiquities, mostly found on Hessian soil.

The LIBRARY (open daily, 10-12.45), occupying a large hall on the first floor of the building, in front, contains 170,000 vols. and 1600 MSS. (e. g. the oldest MS. of the 'Hildebrandslied', 9th cent.). A representative selection of the MSS. and bibliographical rarities is shown on Mon. and Thurs., 11-12. Jacob and William Grimm were librarians here for about 15 years.

At No. 2 Steinweg, behind the Military School (p. 123), stands the Natural History Museum (Pl. 13; open on Mon. and Thurs. 10-1, Tues. and Sat. 3-5). The Natural History Collections (including the oldest herbarium in Germany, formed in 1556-92, and a collection of different woods in the shape of books) occupy the ground-floor and first floor; the Ethnographical Collection (models of boats, etc.) is on the second floor. An inscription on the N. outside wall records that Papin here made his first important experiments on the application of steam-power (1706).

From the S.W. side of the Friedrichs-Platz runs the SCHÖNE AUSSICHT (Pl. D, 4, 5). The large Bellevue Schloss (Pl. 1), the residence of King Jerome in 1811-13, is now that of the general of the 11th Corps d'Armée, and the seat of the Academy of Arts.

At the end of the street rises the Picture Gallery (Pl. 2), an extensive Renaissance edifice with two corner-pavilions and a loggia in front of the principal story, erected in 1871-77 from plans by Dehn-Rothfels. The plastic embellishments are by Hassenpflug, Echtermeyer, and Brandt. The main entrance, at the N.E. end, is flanked with statues of Rubens and Rembrandt. — The FIRST FLOOR, reached by a marble staircase, contains the valuable collection of pictures, in 4 large saloons and 20 cabinets. Admission free: Sun. 11-1, Tues., Wed., Frid., & Sat. 10-1; in summer on Mon. and Thurs. also, 3-5; at other times on application to the custodian. Catalogue 2 M., short catalogue 50 pf.

The Cassel Gallery was founded by the Landgrave William VIII., who, when governor of Friesland in the early part of last century, availed himself of that opportunity to collect a number of Dutch pictures, and after his return to Germany caused others to be purchased for him by his agents at Amsterdam and Hamburg. The gallery, though distributed throughout several different buildings, was more complete during the second half of last century than at present, as several of its gems were taken to Paris by the French in 1806 and not all restored after the second Peace of Paris. Moreover several important works, such as Potter's Farm, Rembrandt's Descent from the Cross, and Claude Lorrain's landscapes were purchased by the Emperor Alexander and sent to St. Petersburg, where they now grace the Eremitage.

Among the best Italian works in the gallery are a fine portrait by Titian (No. 488, Room IV), painted about 1550, and a vigorous Tintoretto (No. 497, R. IV). — The Flemish and Dutch departments contain numerous gems. The Enthroned Madonna with saints by Van Dyck (No. 119, Room I), obviously composed under Venetian influence, the portraits by him (Nos. 120-129, various rooms), a family-piece by the rare Antwerp master Gonzales Coques (No. 151, Cab. 7), and the Barber's Shop by David Teniers the Younger (No. 147, Cab. 10) are all specimens of the golden era of the Flemish school. — In works by Hals and Rembrandt, Holland's two greatest masters, the Cassel gallery is probably the richest in Germany. Among those of Frans Hals, the master of Haarlem, the following deserve special notice. His Laughing Toper (No. 216, Cab. 11) and above all the Cavalier with the broad-brimmed hat (No. 219, Cab. 12; a late work) afford admirable specimens of his humorous and dashing style. His Two young musicians (No. 215, Room II) and the portraits of a Dutch gentleman and his wife (Nos. 213, 214, Room I) also display the master's individuality, but are comparatively tame in execution. Of Rembrandt's pictures the most striking is his Jacob blessing the sons of Joseph (No. 249, Cab. 8), painted in 1656, a marvel of artistic skill and profound religious sentiment. The Woodcutter's Family (the Madonna with the Infant Christ in the foreground, and Joseph splitting wood in the background; No. 240, Cab. 14) shows the master's familiarity with idyllic subjects. Among the portraits both of the master's earlier and later period the palm is carried off by one of Saskia, the happy young wife of the painter (No. 236, Cab. 7), dating from 1634. To the same period belongs a portrait of the master himself in a helmet (No. 237, Room I). The old heads in Cabinets 11, 14, and 8 date from 1630-32. Coppenol, the writing-master (No. 234, Cab. 7), and Krul, the poet (No. 235, Room II), were also painted soon after Rembrandt's removal from Leyden to Amsterdam (1630). To his later period (1655-58) belong the so-called Six (No. 239, Room II), the Spear Bearer (No. 245, Room III), his own portrait (No. 229, Cab. 8), and that of Nicholas Bruynningh (No. 243, Cab. 14). Rembrandt's landscapes, particularly the Mountain and the Winter Scene (Nos. 242, Room I; 241, Cab. 8), are also well worthy of inspection. — The Dutch masters Ph. Wou-verman, Jan Steen, Adr. van Ostade, Metsu, and Terburg are also admirably represented.

The STAIRCASE is embellished with 8 marble statues, by Echtermeyer, of the nations most prominent in the history of art.

CAB. 16 contains Netherlandish works of the 17-18th centuries. — CAB. 17. Paintings by J. H. Tischbein (1722-89), court-painter of Landgrave William VIII. of Hesse, and other German artists of the 17-18th centuries. — From CAB. 20, which contains a few modern paintings, we again reach the staircase.

The beautiful vaulted *LOGGIA (entered from Room I) contains busts of painters and allegorical mural paintings.

The ART COLLECTIONS ON THE GROUND FLOOR are open free on Mon., 10-1; in summer also on Wed. and Sat., 3-5; at other times on application to the custodian. Catalogue 50 pf.

We first reach the Collection of Casts, chiefly of modern, mediæval, and Renaissance sculptures. From the 1st Gallery we enter the collections of industrial art and smaller objects of art. ROOM I: Works in gold and silver, watches and clocks, miniatures. — To the right is the HESSIAN TEMPLE OF FAME, containing flags, trophies, weapons, and the like. — We then return through Room I to Room II: Objects in ivory and amber, medals, and gems. — Room III: Objects in wax, clay, bronze, and other materials. — Room IV: Objects in glass, stone, clay, and wood. — Room V: Majolicas, mosaics, and scagliola work (imitation mosaic). — Rooms VI, VII: Porcelain and faience.

The building is surrounded with pleasure-grounds, in which is a bust to E. von Müller (d. 1880), the first Prussian governor of Hesse. Fine view from a pavilion farther on. A stone bridge across the Frankfurter-Str. brings us to the Weinberg (Pl. C, 5), with its modern villas (to the left, the way to the Felsenkeller, p. 122).

The Karlsruhe* or Aue, near the Friedrichs-Platz (p. 123), and bounded by the Fulda on the E., the favourite promenade of the inhabitants, was planned by Le Nôtre, the French landscape-gardener, in 1709, and contains beautiful trees. Descending from the Aue-thor, we soon reach the large Orangery (Pl. E, 4, 5), built in 1709-11. The pavilion adjoining it on the W. is the Marmorbad, a bath-room erected in 1720-28, adorned with marble statuary, chiefly by Monnot, a French sculptor of last cent. (Faun, Bacchante, Bacchus, etc.; reliefs from Ovid's Metamorphoses). Admission on Mon., Wed., and Sat. 10-12, Sun. 11.30-1; or by giving the custodian, who lives in the nearest corner-pavilion of the orangery, a fee of $\frac{1}{2}$ -1 M. Garden-restaurants in the Aue, see p. 122.

In the vicinity, below the Schöne Aussicht, rises a Monument by Kaupert, representing a sleeping lion, erected in 1874 to the memory of Hessians who fell during the French domination.

WALKS. To the N.E. to ($\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Wolfsanger, in the valley of the Fulda (restaurant in the hydropathic establishment, also pension); above the village is Raabe's Felsenkeller, commanding a fine view. — To the W. to the Drusel-Thal (restaurants), whence the Hirschstein and (2 M.) Hohes Gras, two good points of view, may be visited. — To the S. by the Kölnische Allée (Pl. A, B, 2) to the ($\frac{1}{4}$ M.) Reservoir (view).

FROM CASSEL TO WILHELMSHÖHE.

Carriage and pair to the Pensionshaus 8, to the Hôtel Schombardt and the Palace 9, to the Cascades 12, to the Riesenschloss 15 M., including the drive back and fee. Cab with one horse ('Droschke') to the Hôtel Schombardt or Pensionshaus, 1 pers. 2 M., 2 pers. 2 M. 20, 3-4 pers. 2 M. 50 pf.; return-fare one-half; the driver is bound to wait $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. without extra charge. On Sundays more is demanded.

Steam Tramway from the Königs-Platz at Cassel, through the Obere König-Str. and the Wilhelmshöher Allée (Pl. D, C, B, A, 3, 4), to Wilhelmshöhe (terminus near the Hôtel Schombardt) in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr., starting every 15-20 min.; fare 30 pf., return (except on Wed. and Sun.) 50 pf.

Railway from Cassel to stat. Wilhelmshöhe in 7 min. (fares 40, 30, 20 pf., return-tickets 70, 50, 30 pf.); thence to the entrance of the park nearly 1 M. (tramway).

Guides (unnecessary except to save time), per hr. 75 pf. and fee (to be found at the hotel).

Hotels. SCHOMBARDT'S HOTEL, in the park, open throughout the year, R. 2½, D. (1 p.m.) 3, board 5 M. — DR. WIEDERHOLD'S CUR-ANSTALT, R. 1-3, board 4 M., medical treatment 15 M. per week; BAD WILHELMSHÖHE, a hydropathic, R. 1-4, board 4 M.; PENSIONSHAUS WILHELMSHÖHE, R. 1½-3½, D. 2, board 3½ M.; GOSMANN'S NATURHEILANSTALT, pens. 50-90 M. per week; WILHELMSHÖHER HOF, on the tramway-line; HÔTEL-CAFÉ MOULANG, R. 1½-4, D. 2, board 5-6 M. Numerous private apartments with or without board.

Restaurants at the hotels and also at the Octagon and at the foot of the Cascades.

The Fountains play from the beginning of May till October on Sun. at 3 and on Wed. at 3.30 p.m. (the 'Cascades' and the 'New Waterfall' on Sun. only); also on Ascension Day and Whit Monday. The visitor is recommended to be at the foot of the Cascades in good time (thence to the Teufelsbrücke, Aqueduct, Great Fountain, and New Waterfall), as the supply of water is limited and the exhibition therefore of brief duration.

From the Wilhelmshöher-Platz (p. 123; Pl. C, 4) the Wilhelmshöher-Allée (Pl. B, A, 4), a fine avenue of limes, flanked with handsome new houses in the villa style, leads by the villages of Wehlheiden and Wahlershausen to (3 M.) Wilhelmshöhe*, formerly the summer-residence of the Electors of Hesse, and celebrated for its park and fountains. The beautiful grounds, partly laid out at the beginning of the 17th cent., are chiefly indebted to the Landgrave Karl (d. 1730) and the Elector William I. (d. 1821) for their present extent.

The Schloss, erected in 1787-92, and occupied by Napoleon III. when a prisoner of war in 1870-71, is a somewhat heavy building, the body and wings of which are disposed in the form of a semi-circle. The interior (shown on week-days) is sumptuously fitted up. The castellan lives on the ground-floor, close to the entrance. When any members of the imperial family are in residence, the Schloss and part of the grounds are closed to the public. Near the Schloss are the Guard House, the Marshall, or stables, which have been converted into a barrack, and Schombardt's Hotel (see p. 128).

A visit to the finest points in the Park*, which requires about 4 hrs., may be made in the following order (compare Plan).

From the Hôtel Schombardt winding paths lead to the New Waterfall, 130 ft. in height. We ascend thence to the left to the Temple of Mercury, and proceed by wood-paths to the Riesenschloss, or Octagon, the highest point in the grounds, 1360 ft. above the Fulda, a bold structure consisting of three vaulted stories, the highest of which is borne by 192 clustered columns 48 ft. in height. The platform, which is easily ascended, and commands a beautiful Panorama*, bears an obelisk, 98 ft. in height, surmounted by a colossal statue of the Farnese Hercules in copper (33 ft. in height; room in the club for 8 pers.; fee 50 pf.; when the fountains are playing, free). The Grotto in front of the Octagon, to the right, contains a water-puzzle. — The Eleven Beeches (Elf Buchen), 1½ M. to the N. of the Octagon, command a fine view (tower); the route to them passes the restaurant and crosses the plateau of the Habichtswald. Equidistant to the S. is the view-tower on the Hohe Gras (p. 128).

The Cascades descending from the Octagon are 300 yds. in length, with large basins at intervals of 50 yds. On each side are long flights of steps (842 steps in all). Pleasant walks descend to the right, passing the Steinhöfer Waterfall, to the Löwenburg, an imitation of an ancient castle (1793-96). The view from the platform of the tower is the chief attraction here (fee).

To the N.W. of the Löwenburg is the Teufelsbrücke (devil's bridge), a little to the E. of which is the Aqueduct, with a fine waterfall. Thence a path leads in 5 min. to the Great Fountain*, one of the highest in Europe, and the chief boast of Wilhelmshöhe, which sends up a jet of water 1 ft. in thickness and 200 ft. in height. The Grosse Lac, another large pond to the E. of the château, near the road to Cassel, is one of the finest points.

The Fürsten-Allée or Rasen-Allée leads from Wilhelmshöhe to (5 M.) Wilhelmshthal, see p. 121.

8. From Cassel to Hanover.

103 M. RAILWAY in 3-5 hrs. (express fares 15 M 10, 11 M 20, 7 M 80 pf.; ordinary 13 M 40, 10 M 10, 6 M 70 pf.).

The train crosses the Fulda at (6½ M.) Kragenhof, by a bridge 130 ft. high, and for a long distance skirts the picturesque banks of the stream.

15 M. Münden (Hessischer Hof*, near the station, R., L., & A. 13¼-2¼, B. 3¼, D. 2 M; Krone, Burg-Str., R., L., A., & B. 2¼, D. 1¼-1½ M; Andree's Berg*, 1 M. from the station, D. 2, pens. 4½ M; Tivoli, pens. 4½ M; Knocke's Bergschlösschen, R. from 1½ M), charmingly situated on a tongue of land at the junction of the Fulda and Werra, the united waters of which form the Weser, is a pleasant, old-fashioned little town. Pop. 8000. To the left of the road from the station to the town is a War Monument in commemoration of the campaign of 1870-71. The Church of St. Blasius, of the 14th cent., contains the tomb of Duke Erich I. of Brunswick (d. 1540) and his wife; fine view from the gallery of the tower. The Renaissance Rathhaus was completed in 1619. The recently restored rooms of the extensive Schloss, built by Duke Erich II. of Brunswick about 1571, are occupied by the district-court, a chapel, etc. Near the Schloss is the Forst-Academie, founded in 1869. Picturesque views are obtained from Andree's Berg (10 min.; see above) beyond the suburb of Blume, on the other side of the Werra, and from the Watch Tower on 'Tilly's Schanze' among the woods on the left bank of the Fulda, about 1½ M. from the town.

FROM MÜNDEEN TO HAMELN. A steamboat descends the Weser from Münden to Hamelu daily in summer, when the water is high enough, in 10½ hrs., returning (against the stream) in 15½ hrs. This is the pleasantest way of visiting the pretty Valley of the Weser. The following are a few of the most noteworthy points. To the left (½ hr.), Hilwischhausen, with an ancient nunnery (founded in 980 by Otho the Great). r. Bursfelde, at the mouth of the Nieme, with a famous Benedictine monastery (1098-1542), now suppressed. — l. Carlsafen (p. 121), also a station on the railway. — l. Herstells, with the ruined Zugdwytsburg. — l. Beverungen, on the Holzmindeu and Scherfede railway (p. 121); opposite (r.) is Lauenförde, a station on the Ottbergen-Northeim railway. The imposing chateau of Wehrden now rises on the left. On the right bank the elevated village of Fürstenberg (Hôtel Lüding), with its old porcelain-factory, is conspicuous. The mountains seen to the E. are the isolated Sollinger Wald. The steamer now shoots the bridge of the Ottbergen-Northeim railway, passes the Brunsberg on the left, and reaches Höxter (see p. 112). — In ¼ hr. more we pass under the Westphalian railway bridge and reach (l.) Corvey (p. 112), and in another hour we reach the station of Holzmindeu (p. 112). — l. Polle (Stadt Hannover), with a ruined castle; just beyond is the Teufelsmühle, at the foot of the cliff, with a waterfall. — l. Bodenwerder (Goldener Anker), the residence of Baron Münchhausen, famous for his marvellous adventures; l. Kennede, with an ancient abbey-church. At Hehlen (l.) rises the imposing chateau (18th cent.) of the counts of Schulenburg. — l. Emmerthal (station), on the Hannover and Altenbeken railway, which here crosses the river. — r. Hamelu, see p. 109.

The train crosses the Werra (fine retrospect of Münden), follows the valley of the Weser for some distance, ascends gradually to (26 M.) Dransfeld, the culminating point of the line, and finally descends to the valley of the Leine.

36 M. Göttingen. — Hotels. GERHARD'S HOTEL, Allée-Str. 23, near the station, R., L., & A. 2-3, B. 1, D. 1½-2½ M.; *KRONK, Weender-Str. 41, R., L., & A. 2-3, B. 1, D. 2-2½ M.; ROYAL, Barfüßer-Str. 11, these two well spoken of; DEUTSCHER HOF, Weender-Str. 64, cheaper. — Pens. Internationale, Hainholsweg 6 (4 M.).

Burkhen's Garten, outside the Geismar-Thor, and the Stadt-Park, in the Theater-Platz, are popular resorts (concerts almost daily in summer).

Göttingen, an old town with 25,500 inhab., is famous for its University (Georgia Augusta, 800 students), founded in 1737 by George II. Many of the houses bear inscriptions to the memory of distinguished scholars and students: thus, in the Allée-Str. 6, are recorded the names of Jacob and Wilhelm Grimm (1829-37), and on the ramparts close to the Leine, is a one-storied house, bearing the name of Prince Bismarck (1832-33). Near the station are the War Monument, the Post Office, the Anatomical Institute, and the Natural History Museum, containing Blumenbach's collection of skulls. — The Rathhaus, in the market-place, is a picturesque building of the end of the 14th cent.; the main hall, restored in 1880, is adorned with mural paintings by Schaper. The adjoining streets contain several old timber houses. — In the Wilhelms-Platz, which is adorned with a statue of King William IV. (d. 1837), rises the Aula, containing a Picture Gallery, with several early German and Dutch pictures (such as Christ on the Cross by Joh. Raphon of Eimbeck, Antony and Cleopatra by Jan Steen), a collection of casts, and a cabinet of coins (fee in each case). Adjacent, at No. 13 Burgstrasse, is the municipal Collection of Antiquities (open free on Sun., 11-1, and Wed., 2-4; on other days, 10-4, fee 30 pf.). — The extensive University Library (upwards of 400,000 vols. and 5000 MSS.) is kept in an old monastery near the church of St. John and in a modern addition in the same style (open daily, 11-1 and 2-3). At the end of the Weender-Str. rises a large building for Lectures, in front of which is a statue of Wöhler (d. 1882), the chemist, by Hartzer. Adjacent is the Botanical Garden (daily, 7-12 and 2-6), beyond which is the Agricultural Institute. The Chemical Laboratory and the Institute for Physical and Electrical Chemistry are near the Geismar-Thor. The town is encircled with ramparts planted with lime-trees, and affording a pleasant walk. — On the Hainberg is a memorial stone to the Göttinger 'Hainbund'. Above, to the left, is the Rohrs, a pleasure-garden. On the top of the hill is the Bismarck Tower (view). — In the cemetery, outside the Weender-Thor, is a bronze bust of G. A. Bürger (d. 1794), the poet.

A favourite excursion is to the ruin of Plesse (p. 132), with its two towers, on a wooded height, commanding a charming view, and thence down to Mariaspriing (2½ hrs.; music in summer on Sun. and Wed.). — In the pleasant Bremker-Thal to the S.E. lies (3 M.) Reinhausen, at the foot of the wooded Gleichen, which are surmounted with ruins.

FROM GÖTTINGEN TO EICHENBERG (12 M.) by railway in 35 min., ascending the broad valley of the Leine. Thence to Bebra (and Frankfort), Gotha, Erfurt, and Halle, see R. 51.

40 M. Bovenden, commanded by the ruin of Plesse (p. 131). Above (42 M.) Nörten rises the ruin of Hardenberg; below, a modern château. — 48 M. Northeim (Sonne; Englischer Hof), an old town, with a good church of 1519 (old carving on the altar; remains of fine stained glass of 1404 in the choir), is the station for travellers intending to explore the Harz Mts. from this side. Pop. 7200. A branch-line diverges here to Wehrden and Otbergen (p. 112).

From (56 M.) Salzderhelden, with a saline spring and ruined castle, a branch-line runs to (2½ M.) Einbeck (Goldener Löwe), once celebrated for its beer, and (11 M.) Dassel.

60 M. Kreiensen (p. 112) is the junction for the Holzminden and Magdeburg line (R. 5). — 66 M. Freden is situated in one of the prettiest parts of the valley of the Leine, on which the ruins of Freden and the Winzenburg look down from the heights. — 72 M. Alfeld (Peck's Hotel), with 4700 inhab., lies at the base of the Sieben Brüder, a group of hills, the highest of which is 1480 ft. above the sea-level. Various pleasant excursions may be made hence. The mountainous district is now quitted.

Beyond (83 M.) Elze, the junction for (18 M.) Hameln (p. 109), the Leine is crossed. On an eminence to the left rises Schloss Marienburg*, built in the mediæval style by Hase, with a frieze by Engelhard, illustrating northern lore.

87 M. Nordstemmen is the junction for the Hildesheim-Ringelheim line (pp. 113, 110).

103 M. Hanover, see p. 134.

9. From Rotterdam to Hanover viâ Salzbergen.

265 M. RAILWAY in 9¼-13 hrs. (fares 19 fl. 95, 15 fl. 25, 10 fl. 3 cts., or 31 fl. 80, 24 fl. 50, 16 fl. 50 pf.). — Shortest route between Rotterdam and Berlin (express in 13 hrs.). Custom-house formalities at Bentheim (see below).

From Rotterdam to (96 M.) Zutphen, see Baedeker's Belgium and Holland. The line then crosses the Yssel, traversing a district intersected by numerous canals. Five unimportant stations. Branch-lines diverge from (114 M.) Hengelo, N. to Almelo, S. to Enschede and Münster (p. 153). Beyond (121 M.) Oldenzaal the line crosses the Prussian frontier. The custom-house is at (141 M.) Bentheim (Bellevue*; Bad Bentheim*, open from June to Sept. only; Hôtel Wallis, commercial), a small town with an old château (partly of the 12th cent.) and a cold sulphureous spring. — 149 M. Salzbergen (Restauration Oberhuus, with beds; junction for Emden, p. 157). — 154 M. Rheine (p. 157; Rail. Restaurant), the junction for Münster and Hamm, where carriages are changed.

The Osnabrück line crosses the Ems. The wooded chain of hills on the left, the N.W. spurs of the Teutoburgian Forest (p. 102), enhances the picturesqueness of the scenery. On a slope covered with summer-houses and orchards, on the left as the station is entered, stands the lunatic asylum of Gertrudenberg, formerly a Benedictine nunnery (suppressed in 1803).

183 M. Osnabrück. — Hotels. HOHENZOLLERN, opposite the Central Station (Pl. D, 3), R., L., A., & B. from 2 M, well spoken of; SCHAUMBURG* (Pl. a; C, 3), at the W. station, R., L., & A. 2 1/4-3 1/2, B. 1, D. 2 1/2 M; CENTRAL, Möser-Platz (Pl. Osnabrück (190 ft.), a prosperous town on the Hase, with 45,100 inhab., the capital of a bishopric founded by Charlemagne in 783, but suppressed in 1803 (governed alternately by a Roman Catholic and a Protestant prince after the Peace of Westphalia in 1648), has since 1858 again been the seat of a Roman Catholic bishop.

The Cathedral (Rom. Cath.; Pl. B, 2), of the 12-13th cent., partly Romanesque and partly transitional, is a spacious cruciform structure, with an octagonal tower above the crossing and two square W. towers (of the original building). Fine sculpture (ca. 1220) above the S. portal. The interior contains a font of about 1300, and a treasury with beautiful crucifixes, reliquaries, and an ivory comb and set of chessmen, said to have belonged to Charlemagne, but probably of the 12th century. The cloisters are also fine. The verger lives at No. 16, Kleine Domsfreiheit.

The large Platz ('Domsfreiheit') to the N. of the cathedral is adorned with a bronze Statue of Justus Möser, the patriotic author and philanthropist (d. 1794), by Drake.

The Marienkirche* (Prot.; Pl. 4, B, 2), or Church of St. Mary, is a noble Gothic structure, borne by very lofty, slender columns. The nave was erected in 1306-18, the choir and the retro-choir about 1420. The carved altar dates from the beginning of the 16th cent.; the sculptures on the Paradieses-Pforte are modern copies. The tower, partly in the Romanesque and partly in the transition style, dates from the 12th century. — In front of the church is a bronze statue of the Hanoverian statesman Stüve (d. 1872), by Pohlmann.

Adjacent is the Rathhaus (Pl. 6; custodian at the police guard-house), erected at the close of the 15th cent., where the negotiations for the Peace of Westphalia were carried on from 1643 to 1648. The statues of emperors on the façade are modern. The 'Friedenssaal', restored in 1890, contains portraits of princes and ambassadors, and other reminiscences of that period (comp. p. 155). — In the market-place are some gabled houses in the Gothic style, and several timber buildings of the Renaissance period. — In the Neumarkt is a War Monument in memory of 1870-71.

The Gothic Katharinenkirche (Prot.; Pl. 3, B, 3) dates from the 14th cent., and contains chalices in the transition-style. In 1881 the edifice was thoroughly restored; the tower is 330 ft. high. — In the Johanniskirche (Pl. 2; C, 4), of the 13th cent., are some interesting wood-carvings, statues, etc. — The Lunatic Asylum (Pl. C, 1), the Civic Hospital (Pl. A, 2), and the Modern School (Pl. A, 3) are among the most imposing modern buildings in the town; the Aula of the last contains a fresco by Gey, representing the Proclamation of the Peace of Westphalia. — The Museum (Pl. A, 3), founded in 1879, contains a natural history cabinet and Germanic antiquities (open free on Sun., 11-1; at other times 50 pf.). — The Bürger-Park (to the N.), the Schinkelberg (500 ft.), and (2 M.) Steinkamp are pleasant resorts for walkers.

About 15 M. to the N. of Osnabrück lies the village of Barenau (carr. from Osnabrück in 2 hrs., 7 M.), where, as well as throughout the entire Venner Moor lying in front of the N.W. slope of the Wiehengebirge, Roman coins of the Augustan era have frequently been found. This fact, supported by topographical and military considerations, renders it probable that this neighbourhood was the scene of the great victory of Arminius over Varus in B. C. 9 (comp. p. 102).

Osnabrück is the junction for the Cologne and Hamburg line. Railway to Quakenbrück and Oldenburg, see p. 168; to Brackwede, see p. 101.

190 M. Wissingen; 197 M. Melle (Möller's Inn), on the Elbe; 207 M. Bünde (Deutscher Kaiser), also on the Elbe.

212 M. Löhne, where the Cologne and Hanover line is reached. From Löhne to —

265 M. Hanover, see R. 3.

The Anglo-American Agency, Laves-Str., supplies gratuitous local information of every kind.

Hanover (255 ft.), formerly the capital of the kingdom of Hanover, and now that of the Prussian province of that name, and the headquarters of the 10th Corps d'Armée, with 209,000 inhab. (245,000, including the suburb of Linden), is situated in a well-cultivated plain on both banks of the Leine, which here becomes navigable, just above the influx of its small tributary the Ihme. The irregularly-built old town still contains a number of antiquated houses of the 15-17th cent., while handsome new quarters have arisen to the N. and E. In contrast to the older stucco fronts, most of the modern buildings are constructed of sandstone or brick, an improvement mainly due to the architect K. W. Hase (b. 1818).

In the spacious ERNST-AUGUST-PLATZ (Pl. D, E, 4), in front of the Railway Station (built in 1876-80 by H. Stier), rises an Equestrian Statue of Ernest Augustus* (Pl. 4), in bronze, designed by A. Wolff, the king (d. 1851) being represented in the uniform of a hussar. — Ernst-August-Platz No. 26 is the Post and Telegraph Office (Pl. 26), a Renaissance edifice by Böttger (1881).

The Bahnhof-Strasse leads direct from the station to the GEORG-STRASSE (Pl. D, 4, 5), the chief thoroughfare of the town. Following this to the left, we reach the THEATER-PLATZ (Pl. D, 5), in which rises the Royal Theatre (Pl. 31), built in 1845-52 by Laves, with seats for 1800 spectators. The principal façade is adorned with a handsome portico, under which there is a broad carriage-approach. On the balcony above are placed statues of twelve celebrated poets and composers. In front of the building rises a monument (Pl. 7, D 5; designed by Hartzer of Celle) erected in 1877 to the composer Marschner (d. 1861), who, till within a few years of his death, was conductor of the royal orchestra. The 'Platz' is also embellished with a monument in white marble (Pl. 8a) to the famous surgeon Stromeyer (d. 1876), and with a bronze statue of the technologist Karmarsch (d. 1879; Pl. 5a), the founder and director of the Polytechnic Academy at Hanover. Both statues are by Rassau of Dresden. — On the E. side of the Theater-Platz is the Military Service Insurance Office (Pl. 34), a Romanesque edifice by Hauers and Hagemann.

In the Georgs-Platz, to the S. of the Theater-Platz, is the Lyceum and Real-Gymnasium (Pl. 19; D, 5), in front of which rises a colossal bronze Statue of Schiller (Pl. 8), by Engelhard (1863). At the corner of the Landschaft-Str. is the Permanent Industrial Exhibition (Pl. 38; open 11-12, 25 pf.; Sun., 11-1, 10 pf.). On the W. side of the square is the Imperial Bank (Pl. 1). — To the S. of the Georgs-Platz lies the ÆGIDIEN-PLATZ, an important tramway-centre (p. 135). To the E., in the Marien-Str., is the Gartenkirche (Pl. D, E, 6), rebuilt in the Gothic style in 1887-91. In the churchyard lies Charlotte Kestner, Werther's Lotte (d. 1828), who lived at Ægidien-Str. 4. — To the E. of the Georgs-Platz, at the beginning of the pleasant street named AM SCHIFFGRABEN (Pl. E, 5), which leads to Eilenriede (p. 141), stands the House of the Provincial Diet, an edifice in the Italian Renaissance style by Wallbrecht (1880). — Near this point is the —

Hanoverian Provincial Museum (Pl. 21; D, 5), Sophien-Str. 2, a Romanesque edifice by Hase, completed in 1855, and adorned with statues of Leibnitz, A. von Humboldt, Dürer, and Peter Vischer. In front of the entrance are copies of two Egyptian lions in the Cap-itoline Museum. The groundfloor is occupied by the rooms of the Artists' and Architects' Clubs (introduction necessary) and the Collection of Casts. The other collections are upstairs (open daily 10-3, Sun. and holidays 11-2; closed on the chief festivals). [A new building for the museum is now being erected in the Marschrand-Str. (Pl. C, 6).]

The best departments of the Natural History Collection (1st and 2nd floors) are the minerals, birds, and butterflies.

The Historic Collection (2nd floor and on the groundfloor of the addition) includes valuable pre-Christian antiquities and Hanoverian coins.

Art Collection.* On the groundfloor are casts from the antique, sculptures by Bandel, Engelhard, Henschel, Dopmeyer, etc. and models and sculptures by Kämmel (d. 1866). — PICTURE GALLERY on the first floor: Rooms I-III contain landscapes by Kotsch and cartoons by Gey. — R. IV contains pictures by Netherlandish and later Italian masters, other old masters, and modern paintings, including: 71, A. Achenbach, Beach; 76a, Beisch, Cattle; 76, C. Becker, Belisarius; 86, Busse, Landscape; R. Jordan, Interior; 121, Hübner, The soldier's story; 132a, Kaulbach, Children; 138, Knitte, Immuring of a nun; 185-187, Northern, Battle-pieces; 191, Oppenheim, Mignon; 215, 216, Schrömer, Landscapes; 221, W. Schuch, Village doctor; 224, Seel, Monks; 246, G. F. Waldmüller, Peasant at evening-prayer; H. Friederich, Portrait; Rolling, Battle of Beaune-la-Rolande. A separate section is devoted to the older pictures, among which are: 1-4, Canalotto, Views of Venice; 23, P. Horemans, Fiddler. — The adjoining Cabinet contains drawings by K. F. Lessing, and L'Allemand and cartoons by E. Koken. — R. V: 139, Koken, Forest-scene; 112, Geyer, Reception of the prince; 260, Spangenberg, Vandals; 222, Schuch, Landscape; 107, G. Flüggen, Legacy-hunter; 193, K. von Piloty, Death of Cæsar; 79a, L. Bokelmann, Arrest; 116, Gude, Norwegian coast; 165, Kreling, Erwin von Steinbach; 131, 132, Kaulbach, Portraits; Busse, The Palatine; Vogel, Duke Ernest the Confessor receiving the Eucharist in 'both kinds'.

An addition to the Museum, built by Götze, contains the Gallery of the Family of Brunswick (pictures and sculptures), the former Hausmann Collection of Pictures, an Ethnographical Collection, and the Guelph Museum (transferred from Herrenhausen in 1896).

The Picture Gallery is on the first and second floors. FIRST FLOOR: ANCIENT MASTERS. Cabinet I. Mierevelt (?), Portraits. — Cab. II. Snyders, Still-life; Mierevelt, Portrait; Netscher, Pensionary De Witt. — Cab. III. Dou, The old secretary; Mierevelt, Old woman. — Cab. IV. Ruyssdael, Landscape. — Cab. V. Rembrandt, Portrait of himself; Ph. de Champaigne, Portrait. — Cab. VI. Honthorst, Electress Louisa Henrietta of Brandenburg (d. 1684). — Cabinets VII-VIII. Panini, Piazza Navona, St. Peter's at Rome; Bordone, The birth-room. — Cab. IX. Rubens, Rape of Dejanira; landscape by Ruyssdael. — Cab. X. Brueghel, Ruyssdael, Landscapes. — Cab. XII. Holbein the Younger, Prince Edward, Melanchthon (medallion). — In the central passage are some ancient busts of Roman emperors.

SECOND FLOOR: MODERN PAINTERS. Cab. I. Lessing, Emp. Henry IV. at the convent of Prüfening; Northern, La Haye Sainte; Bergmann, Rembrandt. — Cab. II. Hübner, Deserted; Kretschmer, Desert tower. — Cab. III. Hübner, Return of the sons; Blanc, Gretchen; Oesterley, Leonore. — Cab. IV. Mets, Scene in the Peasants' War. — Cab. V. Bleibtreu, Battle on the Katsbach; Oesterley, Jephtha's Daughter; Begas, Lorelei; A. Achenbach, Briel harbour; Schrömer, Wood; Rottmann, Sicily. — Cab. VI. Köhler, Semiramis; Becker, Norwegian scene. — Cab. VII. Bergmann, Emp. Charles V. at St. Just; Morgenstern, Valley of the Isar. — Cab. VIII. Knitte, The dead Cid; Adam, Napoleon at the battle of Ratisbon. — In the central corridor: Camphausen, Puritans; Köhler, The child Moses; also a few marble sculptures.

The collection of ANCIENT AND MODERN SCULPTURES, mainly on the staircase, includes works by Rauch, Kümmel, Canova, and Hasemann.

On the GROUND FLOOR is the Guelph Museum, including altar-furniture, tapestry, and armour. Here also are the antiquities of the Provincial Museum.

In the centre of the ALTSTADT is the market-place with the Marktkirche (Pl. 15; C, 5), a brick building of the 14th century. The interior, restored in 1855 and adorned with painting by Schaper in 1893, contains fine modern stained glass and a modern altar carved in oak. The glass in the choir is of the 14th century. In the chapel under the tower are the banners of the Anglo-German Legion of 1803-15. Tower 300 ft. high. — The old Rathhaus (Pl. 27; C, 5), opposite the church, erected in the late-Gothic style in 1439-55, was restored in 1878-79 and enlarged in 1890-91. The large reception-hall and the Rathskeller (p. 135) are decorated with frescoes by Schaper. — In front of the Rathhaus is a Gothic Fountain, in bronze (1881), and a market-hall (Pl. 35) has been built on the S. side. At the corner of the Markt-Str. and the Gruben-Str. is a bronze figure of Hannovera, by Wegener.

The Markt-Strasse and Köbelinger-Strasse running to the S. from the market-place, and the Knochenhauer-Strasse and Schmiede-Strasse to the N., contain a number of picturesque late-Gothic brick buildings with lofty gables, of the 15th and 16th centuries. At the end of the Markt-Str. is the Gothic Egidienkirche (Pl. 11, C 5; 14th cent.), with a Renaissance tower. — In the Schmiede-Str., near the Marktkirche, is a Statue of Pastor Bödeker, erected in 1880. No. 10 in the same street, at the corner of the Kaiser-Strasse, was once Leibnitz's House (Pl. 18; C, 4), a sandstone building of 1652, with rich plastic ornamentation, restored by Haupt in 1891-92. The interior, which now contains the Kunstgewerbe-Museum, an interesting collection of art-industrial objects and antiquities (open daily 10-2, Sun. 11-3), affords an excellent idea of a German merchant's house of the period. — The neighbouring Kreuzkirche (Pl. 14; C, 4) contains a good altar-piece by Gonne.

The extensive Royal Palace (Pl. 29; C, 5), with its back to the Leine, is situated in the Lein-Strasse, to the S.W. of the market-place. It was built in the 17th cent., and altered in 1817 (open daily, 10-6, 25 pf.; entrance by Portal No. 2). The N. wing is at present occupied by Prince Albert of Prussia, Regent of the Duchy of Brunswick. The chapel contains an altar-piece by L. Cranach, representing the Crucifixion, and frescoes of the Ascension by Oesterley.

Opposite the palace is the Alte Palais (Pl. 22; C, 5). — At the corner of the Friedrich-Str. is the old palace of George V. (d. 1878), now the Rathhaus (Pl. 28; C, 5). [A new Town Hall is to be built in the Masch-Anlagen.] Farther on in the Friedrich-Str. is the Art-Industrial School.

The Kestner Museum (Pl. C, 5), in the grounds adjoining the Friedrich-Strasse (open daily, 11-2, also in summer 8-6; catalogue 20 pf.), contains the collections presented to the town in 1884 by Herr Hermann Kestner (grandson of Charlotte Kestner, the original of Lotte in Goethe's 'Werther'; comp. p. 136), consisting of Egyptian, Greek, Etruscan, and Roman antiquities, coins, cameos, paintings, and engravings, and a library of 10,000 volumes. It also contains the collection of mediæval works of art, rare books, autographs, and paintings left by Senator Culemann, and bought by the town for 600,000 M (30,000*l.*), and the Town Library (open in summer 11-12, in winter 12-1). — On the S. side of the Friedrich-Strasse Grounds is a Fountain with a statue of Gutenberg.

To the W. of the Friedrich-Str. flows the Leine, beyond which extends a spacious drill-ground called the WATERLOO-PLATZ (Pl. B, 5), at the farther end of which rises the Waterloo Column, 154 ft. in height, erected in 1826-32 'by the grateful Fatherland' to about 800 Hanoverians who fell at the battle of Waterloo. Good survey of the town from the top (188 steps; in summer opened by a keeper for a trifling fee; in winter the key is obtained at the barracks to the right, No. 3). On each side are barracks, and to the left are also the spacious Arsenal built in 1846 (adm. to the 'Fahnenhalle' on Wed. & Sat., 10-11.45, gratis; at other times on application at the Artillery Depot, 50 pf.) and the Military School. At the N. end is the Statue of Count Alten (d. 1840; Pl. 5), the Hanoverian general at Waterloo, and commander of the Foreign Legion in Spain. In the grounds between this and the barracks is a small temple (Pl. 6) with a bust of Leibnitz (d. 1716), by the Irish sculptor Hewetson (1790). Leibnitz is interred in the neighbouring Neustädter Kirche (Pl. 16; B, 4).

At the back of General Alten's monument is the building of the Royal Archives and Library (Pl. 4; B, 5), erected in the Renaissance style in the 17th cent. and enlarged in 1891-92. Adjacent are the Ministerial Offices (Pl. 36), a Romanesque structure by Hunäus. — The Ernst-August Palais (Pl. 23; B, 5), in the Adolf-Str. (No. 2), now contains the military headquarters of the province.

The Poor House in the Neue-Strasse (Pl. B, C, 4) bears an inscription to the effect that the Duke of Brunswick dined here in 1809 (the house being then an inn) when on his expedition from the Erzgebirge to the North Sea (comp. p. 152). — In the vicinity is the Synagogue (Pl. 30; B, 4), built in an oriental style by Oppler (1870). — In the Goethe-Platz (Pl. B, 3, 4) is the Romanesque Garrison Church (Pl. 17a), built by Hehl in 1891-93. Adjacent is a Panorama. — No. 3 in the Lange Laube is the so-called Haus der Väter (Pl. C, 3), of 1619, now occupied by the Men's Choral Union.

The Christuskirche (Pl. 12; C, 2), a handsome modern Gothic church (1864), with stained glass, is worthy of a visit (sacristan, Gustav-Adolf-Strasse 1). — The Nicolai Chapel (Pl. 17; D, 3), in the Nicolai Cemetery (disused), is now the English Church (p. 135).

THE HERRENHÄUSER ALLÉE (Pl. C, B, 2, 1), a fine avenue of limes, $1\frac{1}{4}$ M. long and 120 yds. wide, laid out in 1726 by Le Nôtre, leads on the N.W. side of the town to Schloss Herrenhausen. On the right (E.) side of it, near the town, is the imposing Welfenschloss, or Palace of the Guelphs, in the Romanesque style, with five towers, fitted up in 1878-80 as a Polytechnic School (Pl. 25; C, 1). Above the portal are statues of Henry the Lion, Ernest the Confessor, the Elector Ernest Augustus, and King Ernest Augustus; the corridor is adorned with a frieze by Engelhard, representing scenes of Northern Mythology. The collections it contains may be inspected on application to the castellan. In the square in front is a colossal figure of the Saxon Horse. Behind the Palace is the pretty Welfen-Garten. — To the N. stands the Prinzenhaus, recently removed from the Goethe-Str. and re-erected here. In 1774-95 it was occupied by Charles, Duke of Mecklenburg, father of Queen Louise of Prussia and Queen Frederica of Hanover. — On the other side of the avenue is the Georgen-Park (Pl. B, 2), which extends to Herrenhausen and contains a royal Palace and a café.

Schloss Herrenhausen, at the farther end of the avenue, was the favourite residence of George I. (d. 1727), George II. (d. 1760), and George V. (d. 1878). The interior contains numerous portraits. The *Garden, 120 acres in area, laid out by Le Nôtre in the old French style, contains statues copied from antiques, monuments of Hanoverian princes, fountains, and hot-houses. The colossal statue of the Electress Sophia, by Engelhard, stands on the spot where she expired in 1714. The fountains play every Wed. and Sun. from June (after Ascension Day) to Aug. (in May, June, and Aug. 5-7, in July 5.30-7.30, in Sept. 3-5). The waters of the great fountain rise to the unusual height of 222 ft. — To the N. of the carriage-road is the Berggarten, containing a fine collection of palms (two between 65 and 80 ft. high), orchid and Victoria Regia houses, etc. (fee). — At the end of the garden is the Mausoleum*, built in 1842-46, containing the monuments of King Ernest Augustus (d. 1851) and his Queen Frederica (d. 1841) by Rauch (open from April to Sept. 9-6, Oct. to March 10-4; closed on Sun.; apply to the castellan at the Schloss).

The large Prison (Pl. E, 4) was built by Schuster in 1865-75. Adjacent are the new Law Courts, some new Schools, and two new Gothic churches, the Apostelkirche and the Dreifaltigkeitskirche.

The quarter to the S., especially the KÖNIG-STRASSE (Pl. E, F, 5), and Am Schiffgraben (p. 136), is distinguished by numerous handsome villas. The circular space at the end of the König-Str. is embellished with a War Monument* (Pl. F, 5) by Voltz, erected in 1884. The handsome pedestal of Swedish granite supports a colossal figure of Germania crowned with the imperial diadem by two genii; in front is a mourning figure of Hanover, with two lions.

Immediately behind extends the Eilenriede, a wood belonging to the town, affording beautiful walks and containing numerous restaurants (Ourhaus*, pens. from 4 M; Pferdethurm; Neues Haus; Bischofshole; Steuerndieb, etc.). On the S. side of it, $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. from the town (comp. Pl. F, 5; tramway, see p. 135), is the Zoological Garden, with well-kept grounds and a good restaurant (adm. 50 pf., Frid. 75 pf., first Sun. of each month from April to Oct. 30 pf.; concerts several times a week).

In the Vahrenwalder-Strasse, to the N.E. of the town, is the Military Riding Institute (Pl. 20; F, 1), for providing a uniform training for the riding and fencing-masters of the army. — In the Paul-Str., to the W. (Pl. D, 1, 2), is the Roman Catholic Marienkirche, a late-Gothic building by Hehl (1890), with a tower 300 ft. high.

To the S.E., on the Misburgerdamm, the road to the Pferdethurm (tramway, see p. 135), is the new Veterinary College. Farther on are the large Cattle Market and Slaughter House.

Visitors are admitted on week-days to the Municipal Waterworks on the Lindener Berg by tickets obtained at the 'Stadtbaupamt', in the old Rathhaus (p. 138). Extensive view.

To the W. of Linden is the little bathing-place of Limmerbrunnen, with sulphurous springs (electric tramway, see p. 135).

The Deer Park at Kirchröde (railway on Sun. and holidays 25 pf.; carr. 4, through the Eilenriede $\frac{4}{5}$ M), which contains tame deer, is much visited.

From Hanover to Visselhövede, see p. 106.

Hotels. HÔTEL D'ANGLETERRE* (Pl. a; C, 3), Hoherweg, R., L., & A. from 2, B. 1, D. $2\frac{1}{2}$, pens. from 5 M; HILDESHEIMER HOF (Pl. f; C, 1), Bernward-Str., with restaurant, R. & L. from $2\frac{1}{2}$, A. $\frac{1}{2}$, B. 1, D. $2\frac{1}{2}$ -3, pens. from $6\frac{1}{2}$ M; WIENER HOF (Pl. b; C, 3), Friesen-Str. 5, R. & B. from $2\frac{1}{4}$, D. $1\frac{1}{4}$ -2 M, well spoken of; KAISERHOF* (Pl. c; C, 1), Hotopp, bot hat the station; BAIERISCHER HOF, Alms-Str. 49 (Pl. e; C, 2), Alms-Str. 42.

Restaurants. Railway Restaurant*; Unionhaus, in the old Paulinerkirche (Pl. 11; C, 4); Hasse, Markt-Str. 11, opposite the Rathhaus; Knaup's Logen-saal, An der Zingel; Zum Neuen Schaden, Kreuz-Str. — Wine. Domschenke*, at the E. corner of the Domhof; Rathskeller, under the Rathhaus; Limpricht, in the market-place.

Railway Station (Pl. C, 1), on the N. side of the town. — Railway to Lehrte, see p. 105; to Nordstemmen, see p. 132; to Ringelheim, see p. 113.

Hildesheim (280 ft.), an ancient town with 39,000 inhab. ($\frac{1}{3}$ Rom. Cath.), situated on the Innerste, has retained many mediæval characteristics. It became an episcopal see in 818, and attained its greatest prosperity in the 15-16th centuries. After the inhabitants had succeeded in shaking off the supremacy of the bishops it became a member of the Hanseatic League (1241), and was a free town of the Empire down to 1803.

At a very early period Hildesheim attained great importance as a cradle of art, chiefly owing to the exertions of Bishop Bernward (983-1022). According to tradition, the bishop himself was a practical worker in several branches of art, and it is at least well authenticated that he patronised all alike and that he personally superintended the various studios founded by him. A number of buildings were erected by him; and in particular several fine specimens of Bronze Workmanship, such as the cathedral doors, the Bernward Column, and the candelabrum and chalice in the cathedral-treasury, were executed under his auspices. Under the fostering care of Bernward and his successors Godehard (d. 1038) and Hartlo (1064-79), and that of bishop Bernhard (1130-54), Hildesheim became one of the most important seats of ROMANESQUE ART in Germany. Nor is the interest attaching to this venerable town confined to its mediæval art, for one of its most attractive and characteristic features consists of its timber-architecture in the German RENAISSANCE style. In several of the buildings the traveller will observe traces of the obstinate resistance offered by the Gothic forms to the more modern ideas, the full sway of which was not established till the middle of the 16th century. The richly-decorated façades, executed by wood-carvers and sculptors, bear testimony to the taste, the humour, and the enterprise of the burghers of that period.

Entering the town from the station, we reach the ALTSTÄDTEN MARKT*, a fine mediæval square surrounded by several interesting buildings. The late-Gothic Rathhaus (Pl. 16; C, 3), with its arcades, was erected in 1443 and skilfully enlarged in 1883. The hall is adorned with ceiling-paintings by Mittag (after those in St. Michael's, see p. 143) and with Frescoes* by Prell. To the S. is the Templer-Haus (Pl. 22), also in the late-Gothic style, with a handsome oriel and two round corner-turrets. To the E. stands the Knochenhauer-Amthaus* (Pl. 19), or former guild-house of the butchers, built in 1529, and probably, though injured by fire in 1884, the finest timber building in Germany. It is adorned with admirable carving (comp. p. xxx) and is now used as a savings-bank. The Wedekind House (Pl. 24), dating from 1598, is also adorned with carving. The Fountain in the middle of the Platz, with a small figure of Roland on the top, was erected in 1540 (comp. p. 161). — In the Roland-Str. is the Roland Hospital (Pl. 21), a building of 1611. The Kaiserhaus (Pl. 25), Langer Hagen No. 12, is a Renaissance edifice of 1586, adorned with medallion-reliefs and statues of Roman emperors.

In the ANDREAS-PLATZ, near the market-place, is the Protestant Andreaskirche (Pl. 2; C, 3), with a choir of 1389 and a tower 385 ft. high, completed in 1893. The hall between the church and the tower is occupied by the new Museum of the Hildesheim Society of Antiquaries, with remains, sketches, and models of timber houses, stone sculptures, etc. (open free on Sun., 11-12; on other days key obtained at Andreas-Platz 5). — The Trinity Hospital, Andreas-Platz No. 21, the lower part of which dates from 1334, has been recently restored and converted into a factory. Opposite is the Mercers' Guildhouse (1482; restored).

St. Michael's Church* (Pl. 10, A 3; sacristan, Michaelis-Platz 3), formerly belonging to the Benedictines, founded by Bishop Bernward and built in 1001-33, was restored in 1186 after a fire in 1162 and finally by Hase (p. 136) in 1864-57, when it was fitted up as a Protestant parish-church. It is one of the finest Romanesque churches in Germany, and possesses aisles, a double transept, and an elevated W. choir (restored about 1200); the crypt beneath it was consecrated in 1015. The church once boasted of six towers. The E. choir was torn down in 1660.

The INTERIOR is borne by pillars and columns alternately, two of the latter being placed between two of the former; this arrangement dates from the time of Bernward. The pillars are the original ones, and two of the old columns (last section to the N.E.) are preserved. Part of the three-decked galleries of the transepts dates from the same period. The other columns, with their fine capitals, belong to the building of 1186. The interesting PAINTINGS* on the flat wooden ceiling of the nave (genealogy of Christ up to Jesse, prophets, fathers, Christ as Judge, on a deep blue ground) date from the close of the 12th cent., and are the only ancient works of the kind on this side of the Alps. They were restored in 1866. — In the N. transept are clumsy stucco figures of the 11th cent. (Mary, four apostles, St. Benedict, St. Bernward holding a model of the church). Above them, facing the choir, are finely executed stucco-reliefs of angels (ca. 1186). The bronze font in the S.E. transept was made by Dietrich Mente of Hildesheim (1618). — The CARR (used by the Roman Catholics), resting on 10 pillars and 8 columns, contains the stone sarcophagus of St. Bernward and his monument, of the 14th cent., surrounded by a spring. The paintings are by Schaper. The adjacent abbey-buildings are now used as a lunatic asylum. The cloisters (1241-59), to which visitors are admitted on application at the gate, are in the Transitional style.

St. Magdalen's Church (Pl. 8, A 3; sacristan, No. 21, opposite the church, to the S.W.), built in 1234-94 and entirely renewed in 1794, contains several interesting works from the studio of Bishop Bernward (p. 141), including a gold cross (994), several candelabra, and a fine late-Gothic chalice.

The Römer Museum (Pl. 9; B, 4), endowed by Senator Römer (d. 1894), occupies the Gothic St. Martin's Church and the adjoining New Museum added in 1890 (open free on Sun., 11-1; on other days on application to the care-taker, fee; catalogue 20 pf.). It contains casts of interesting mediæval and classical antiquities, some carved altars, a number of paintings of the early-German school, and cartoons by Cornelius and Kaulbach; also a natural history collection, in which the geological section is especially rich, and an ethnographical collection. In front of the museum is a bronze bust of the founder, by Hartzer.

The Cathedral (Pl. 1; B, 4), in the Romanesque style, erected in 1055-61 (under Bishop Hezilo) on the site of an earlier church (before 872), with late-Gothic aisles and N. transept subsequently added (1412), was entirely disfigured in the interior in 1730, while the W. towers were rebuilt in 1839 without reference to their original form (sacristan, Domhof 10).

The brazen Doors which separate the W. vestibule from the nave, executed by Bishop Bernward in 1015, are adorned with sixteen reliefs (the Fall and Redemption) of considerable interest. The brazen Font of the 13th cent., with reliefs, in the first chapel on the left, and the large Candelabrum in the nave (walls and gates of the Heavenly Jerusalem), presented by Bishop Hezilo (d. 1079), are also worthy of notice. A small polished column of calc-sinter near the choir is erroneously said to have been an Irmensäule (p. 121). The Rood Loft is a fine Renaissance sculpture in stone, executed in 1546. On the right and left of the high-altar are the gilded Sarcophagus of St. Godehard, with figures of the Apostles of the beginning of the 12th cent., and the gilded Tomb of St. Epiphanius, with silver reliefs, of the beginning of the 11th century. To the right of the choir rises a bronze Easter Column (Christus-Säule) by Bishop Bernward (1022), 15 ft. high, with 28 groups in low relief of scenes from the life of Christ. — The modernised Crypt contains the tomb of St. Godehard (p. 142). — The Cantabona or large bell of the cathedral weighs 8½ tons.

The Cloisters*, in the late-Romanesque style, on the E. side of the cathedral, in two stories, date from the 11th century. In the upper story are the Cathedral or Bevern Library, and the old Rittersaal (closed). The Chapel of St. Anne in the centre of the Cloister Garth*, was erected in 1321 and adorned with painting in 1388; the windows have been embellished with fine tracery. On the outside of the apse of the cathedral-crypt grows a venerable Rose Bush, upwards of 50 ft. in height, and 30 ft. in width, connected by tradition with Louis the Pious and the founding of Hildesheim. It is said to be 1000 years old, and its history is known since the 16th century. The Romanesque Chapel of St. Lawrence (1226), on the S. side of the cloisters, has a later bay in the Gothic style.

The Treasury*, above the sacristy (shown on application by the sacristan on week-days 10.30-12.30 and after 3, on Sun. and festivals 12-1 and after 4; 1 pers. 1½ M., each member of a party 1 M., ten or upwards 10 M.), contains a number of very valuable works of art of the 9-12th cent.: e.g. a silver cross, a Byzantine work, with portraits of Constantine the Great and his mother Helena; an octagonal casket of the 10th cent. enclosing the head of Oswald, King of Northumbria (d. 642); reliquary of the 8th cent., said to have belonged to the chaplain of Louis the Pious; the silver Bernward's Chalice (15th cent.); Head of St. Bernward, silver-gilt (13th cent.); a drinking-horn and fork of Charlemagne; a small winged altar-piece by Fra Angelico da Fiesole (1387-1455); several codices with miniatures (11th cent.); silver statues, ivory carvings, croziers, enamels, etc.

In the quiet and shady Domhof, on the N. side of the cathedral, rises a Statue of St. Bernward, by Hartzler, erected in 1893. — In the same Platz stands the Post Office (Pl. 17), with a late-Gothic oriel dating from 1518.

St. Godehard's Church* (Pl. 3, C, 5; sacristan, No. 16 Godehards-Platz), built in 1133-72, restored in 1848-63, and like the church of St. Michael, one of the finest Romanesque edifices in Germany, is a basilica with aisles and flat ceiling, a handsome choir in the French style, and three massive towers. The sculptures in the arch of the N.W. portal (13th cent.) are worthy of note.

The body of the church rests on 6 pillars and 12 columns, the choir on 2 pillars and 6 columns. The candelabrum, an imitation of that in the cathedral, and the mural paintings in the choir in the Romanesque style, by Welter of Cologne, are modern. The church possesses a pyx of St. Godehard, supposed to date from the beginning of the 11th cent., a Gothic monstrance of the 15th cent., and a valuable Romanesque chalice executed in 1146-53 (shown by permission of the Dean).

Besides these buildings, Hildesheim contains many handsome private houses of the 16th and 17th cent., chiefly in the late-Gothic style (e.g. in the Oster-Str., Markt-Str., Domhof, Eckenmecker-Str., and Brühl). Many of them are adorned with quaint inscriptions. — The ramparts afford pleasant views. On the High or Michaelis Rampart (Pl. A, 2) is a monument to the Hildesheim soldiers who fell in 1870-71.

The suburb of Moritzberg, ¾ M. to the S.W. of Hildesheim, possesses an abbey-church founded in 1040, the only pure columnar basilica in N. Germany, but partly modernised. The Bergholz*, to the S. of Moritzberg and 1 M. from Hildesheim, is a beautiful point of view (concert at the restaurant two or three times a week). — Near the Galgenberg (500 ft.), another very fine point of view to the E. of Hildesheim, some valuable

Brunswick, Ger. Braunschweig (240 ft.), the capital of the Duchy of that name, with 114,700 inhab., lies on the Oker, which flows through the town in several arms, in a fertile plain bounded on the

S. by wooded hills. It is now an important industrial place, the staple products being sugar, tobacco, woollen goods, machinery, and carriages; and its sausages, cakes, and asparagus are also exported.

Brunswick is said to have been founded in 861 by Bruno, the son of Duke Ludolph of Saxony, and named after him Brunonis Vicus, or Brunswick, the thousandth supposed anniversary of which event was celebrated with great festivities in 1861. The place first acquired importance under Henry the Lion (1139-95), whose favourite residence was a fortified castle here. His son Emp. Otto IV. granted the town important exemptions from customs, and it gradually attained to almost entire independence, while its favourable situation on the great route from Lübeck and Hamburg to S. Germany soon rendered it one of the most important commercial places in the interior of Germany. The town enjoyed its highest prosperity during the latter half of the 14th, and the beginning of the 15th cent., when it was the capital of the Saxon-Westphalian section of the Hanseatic League (p. 194). The Brunswickers afterwards eagerly embraced the reformed faith, and as early as 1528 appointed the eminent Reformer Bugenhagen their preacher. With the decline of the Hanseatic League Brunswick fell into decay. After various vicissitudes and internal dissensions during the 16th and 17th centuries, the town at length succumbed to the power of the dukes in 1671. It has been the ducal residence since 1753. On the death of Duke William I. in 1884 (p. 148), Prince Albert of Prussia was elected Regent of Brunswick.

Like Dantsic and Lübeck, this city of the Guelphs (from whom Queen Victoria and the ex-royal family of Hanover are descended) has externally preserved a marked mediæval aspect, and occupies an interesting position in the history of art (comp. pp. xx, xxi). In pleasing contrast to the large public buildings are numerous fine specimens of Timber Architecture, both of the late-Gothic and the Renaissance period. A peculiar feature of these buildings is, that the gable-end is turned towards the street, and not the façade.

The ALTSTADT-MARKT (Pl. B, 5), where the Altstadt-Rathhaus, the Church of St. Martin, and several fine old private buildings (e.g. the 'Huthaus', No. 8, of the end of the 17th cent.) are situated, forms the centre of the S.W. quarter of the town, which adjoins the railway-station. The Platz is embellished with a Fountain, cast in pewter in 1408, and restored in 1847, bearing ornaments, arms, and texts from Scripture in the Low German dialect.

The Altstadt-Rathhaus (Pl. 1; B, 5), consisting of two parts, one 56 ft., the other 62 ft. long, at right angles to each other, is an elegant Gothic edifice, begun about 1250, continued in 1393-96, and completed in 1447-68. Facing the market-place, both stories of both wings have open arcades with graceful tracery, on the nine pillars of which are statues of Saxon princes, from Henry the Fowler to Otto the Child, and their wives, most of them executed about 1455 by Hans Hesse.

The beams supporting the Gothic roof of the Great Hall (or 'Dornse') in the interior are richly carved (restored in 1852). The Small Hall contains the picture-gallery of the Brunswick Kunst-Verein (open on Sun., 11-1), with several modern pictures by Hildebrandt, Lessing, and Kudler, and others chiefly by Brunswick painters. When the town lost its independence in 1671 the Rathhaus was closed, and subsequently opened on the occasion of fairs only.

St. Martin's Church (Pl. 22; B, 5), opposite the Rathhaus, originally a Romanesque basilica of the end of the 12th cent., was enlarged in the Transition style about 1250 and converted into a Gothic building in the 14th cent.; the Chapel of St. Anne, added on the S.W. side in 1434-38, is of the late-Gothic period; the choir was built in 1490-1500. On the S. and N. façades are rich portals and fine sculpturing; to the S. is the so-called Priests' Gate, to the N. the Bridal Portal (14th cent.). The W. portal is Romanesque.

A tombstone built into the wall at the corner towards the Rathaus represents the Ensign von Rauchhaupt in full armour, who fell in the service of the duke during a siege of the town in 1615.

In the INTERIOR (sacristan in the house No. 9, to the S.E.) the brazen Font with reliefs of 1441, by Berthold Spanken, is of considerable artistic merit. The Pulpit, by G. Röttger, 1617, is adorned with reliefs in marble. Opposite to it is the monument of a burgomaster by Hans Jürgen, the inventor of the spinning-wheel, adorned also with a likeness of himself (1554).

In the streets adjoining the Altstadt-Markt are many handsome old private houses, such as Post-Strasse No. 5 (Renaissance, 1591). At No. 38 Gürdelinger-Str., opposite the end of the Post-Str., rises the Gothic Gewandhaus (Pl. 12; B, 5); the E. gable in the Renaissance style was constructed in 1590.

At the corner of the Stein-Str. stands the Synagogue (Pl. 40; B, 6), built by Uhde in 1875 in a Moorish-Byzantine style (apply to the custodian of the adjacent school). Nos. 11 and 13 Knochenhauer-Str. are interesting old edifices of 1489, with statues. No. 3 Stein-Str. (1512) is adorned with a curious relief. No. 1 Bank-Platz, is a Renaissance edifice of 1592.

Traversing the Kohlmarkt and the Schuh-Str., we observe several other handsome dwelling-houses, the finest of which is *No. 5, in the Sack, a little to the N., with rich burlesque ornamentation (1536; restored 1890). In the BURG-PLATZ (Pl. D, 5) rises the —

*Cathedral of St. Blasius, or Burgkirche (Pl. 20; D, 5), with a vaulted interior borne by pillars, and a spacious crypt. It was begun in 1172-73 in the Romanesque style by Henry the Lion, after his return from the Holy Land, and completed in 1194. The Gothic S. aisle (double) was added after 1322, the N. aisle (also double) with its spiral columns in 1469-74. The towers were burned down in 1195, and have never been wholly rebuilt. The chapel in front of the S. transept was completed in 1891.

*Interior. (The sacristan lives at No. 5, opposite the W. portal; fee for showing the church and the vaults, which require to be lighted, 1-4 pers. 2 M., 5-8 pers. 3 M., 9-12 pers. 4 M.; for the church alone a smaller fee; printed guide to the cathedral 50 pf.). — NAVE. The Monument of the founder (d. 1195) and his consort Matilda (d. 1189), in the Romanesque style, executed about 1250, with lifesize recumbent figures in sandstone, is a work of great value in the history of art (Henry holds a model of the cathedral in its original form). Nearer the choir, beneath a brass with a long inscription, reposes Emp. Otto IV. (p. 146). Monument of Duke Lewis Rudolph (d. 1735), in zinc, in the S. aisle. The old figures of saints on the pillars have been restored; the nave has been painted from the designs of Prof. Essenwein. The candelabrum suspended in the nave is a copy of that in the cathedral at Hildesheim (p. 143). The Romanesque altar, a slab of marble resting on five columns of metal, in front of the choir, was presented by the Duchess Matilda in 1188. The seven-branched candelabrum, adorned with quaint monsters, was executed by order of Henry the Lion. To the right and left of it are Romanesque sandstone and alabaster figures of Henry the Lion and Bishop Hermann of Hildesheim, and wooden figures of St. Blasius and John the Baptist (all of the 13th cent.). The walls and vaulting of the choir and the S. transept are adorned with Romanesque Mural Paintings, dating from about 1224, and representing scenes from the Bible and from the lives of Thomas Becket and other saints; those in the N. transept are modern. The N. TRANSEPT, now fitted up as a chapel, contains the stone coffin of the Margravine Gertrude (d. 1117), grandmother of Henry the Lion. Adjacent is the end of the passage leading from the castle (see below) to the new royal gallery in the N. aisle. Here, too, are some wood-carvings (figure of Christ of the 9th or 10th cent., passion-pillar of the 15th cent.); the drinking-horn of Henry the Lion (?); an ancient crozier; Gothic monstrosities, etc. — The CHURCH, with its three apses, partly supported by pillars and partly by columns, situated below the choir and the transept, was converted in 1681 by Ferdinand Albert I. into a burial-vault for the Bevern line of the house of Guelph. Nine of the forty-five members of the last branch of the elder Brunswick line buried in this crypt fell in battle (comp. p. 150). The last interment was that of William I., who died in 1884, without issue. The Margrave Ebert II., who is said to have been assassinated in 1090 at the instigation of Emp. Henry IV., lies in the crypt, beneath a slab with an inscription. — The cathedral possesses an admirable peal of bells.

In the Burg-Platz, on the N. side of the cathedral, rises a bronze Lion* (Pl. 11; D, 5), on a modern pedestal, erected here in 1166 by Henry the Lion as a symbol of his supremacy, and restored in 1858. Down to 1486 the Burggrafen, or ducal bailiffs, publicly administered justice here. — To the E. of the Lion is the old Palace of Henry the Lion (Pl. 4; D, 4, 5), built in 1150-60 in the Romanesque style on the site of the old castle of Dankwarderode. The building, repeatedly injured by fire, rebuilt, and enlarged, long served military purposes, and has lately been restored in a uniform Romanesque style and adorned with painting by Quensen. It has two stories, and is 130 ft. long and 42 ft. wide. The tower marks the site of the old chapel. The passage to the cathedral (p. 147) has also been restored.

In the Ruhfäutchen-Platz, to the N. of the cathedral, is the Finance Office, a Gothic edifice by Wiehe, erected in 1894. Opposite is the new Stadthaus, by Winter. To the E., in the Münz-Str., are the Court House and the Police Office (Pl. D, 5), two edifices in the Italian Renaissance style.

We next visit the Schloss-Platz (Pl. E, 5), in which, in front of the palace, admirable equestrian Statues of the Dukes Frederick William* (Pl. 7) by Hähnel, and Charles William Ferdinand (Pl. 8), by Pönninger, were erected in 1874.

The Palace* (Pl. D, E, 5), erected by K. Th. Ottmer in the Renaissance style on the site of the 'Graue Hof', which was burned down in 1830, and almost entirely rebuilt after the destructive fire of 1865, is a sumptuous modern edifice, now occupied by Prince Albert of Prussia. The principal façade towards the town is 137 yds. in length and 110 ft. in height. The imposing portal is crowned by a celebrated Quadriga* designed by Rietschel, and executed by Howaldt in copper. The colossal statues of Otho IV. and Otho the Child, and also the group in the pediment are by Bildser. The façade at the back is tastefully adapted to its position overlooking the gardens. The interior is shown on application to the castellan at the portal. The public are permitted to pass through the portal and to visit the gardens.

The Church of St. Magnus (Pl. 23; E, 6), at the back of the palace, consecrated in 1031, dates in its present form from the 13th and 14th cent., and was restored in 1877. The interior contains some interesting monuments.

From the palace we proceed to the N. through the Bohlweg to the Hagenmarkt, passing the old Pauline Convent, the church of which, dating from the 14th cent., was converted into an arsenal at the beginning of the 18th century. Adjacent is the Provincial Museum (Pl. 42; D, 4), open free on Sun., 11-1 (in summer on Wed. also, 3-5). The HAGENMARKT (Pl. D, 4) is embellished with a Fountain Statue of Henry the Lion (Pl. 9) by A. Breymann, executed in bronze by Howaldt. — The Church of St. Catharine* (Pl. 19, D 4; the sacristan lives at No. 3, to the S.) is a handsome edifice, probably begun by Henry the Lion, altered and enlarged in 1252 and in the 14th cent., and recently restored. It contains numerous tombstones of the 16-18th cent., including that of Count Georg von der Schulenburg, of 1619. The choir dates from about 1500. — There are several handsome old buildings in the neighbouring Wenden-Str. (thus No. 2, of 1490), in the Fallersleber-Str. (No. 8), and in the Wilhelm-Str. (No. 95, of 1619, now a school).

St. Andrew's (Pl. 17; O, 3) was begun in the transition-style about 1200, but the greater part was rebuilt in the Gothic style in the following centuries; the S. tower, built in 1518-32, destroyed by lightning and rebuilt in 1740, is 300 ft. high. The gable of the S. aisle is adorned with curious sculptures of 1419, representing the Annunciation and the Magi, the Flight into Egypt, and Christ on a throne, on the steps of which cripples of every description are standing. This is an allusion to the tradition that the church was founded by wealthy cripples. The adjoining street still bears the name of Kröppel-Strasse. A chapel-like edifice here was erected after 1422 as the library of St. Andrew's. — The Alte Waage* (Pl. 43), opposite the church, to the S.E., is a handsome late-Gothic timber structure of 1534, restored in 1856. Among the old private houses in this neighbourhood are No. 3 Reichen-Str. (Pl. C, 3, 4), a Renaissance structure of 1630, and No. 9 Lange-Str. (Pl. C, 4), dating from 1536, with curious wood-carving. The house Bäckerkliint No. 11 (Pl. B, 4) is said to have been the scene of one of Till Eulenspiegel's pranks.

The Neustadt-Rathhaus (Pl. 34; C, 4), a late-Gothic edifice, sadly disfigured in the 18th cent., a little farther to the W., contains the Town Archives, the Town Library (27,000 vols.; Mon. and Frid., 10-1), and the Town Museum*, a collection of old German ecclesiastical and national antiquities, coins, dies, plans, casts, etc.

(open on Sun., 11-1, and in summer also Thurs., 3-5). The council-chamber contains some fine panelling of 1573.

The Brüdernkirche (Pl. 18, C 4; sacristan, Schützen-Str. 23), a large Gothic edifice, completed in 1451, and restored in 1866, contains a late-Gothic font in copper of 1450, with reliefs, borne by four standing figures, and an admirable Gothic winged altarpiece with numerous gilded and painted figures, dating from the close of the 14th century. Fine stained glass and choir-stalls. The Refectory of the old Franciscan convent attached to the church, erected in 1486 and now a military magazine, has a fine Renaissance portal of 1604. Late-Gothic cloisters. — Opposite the church is the Commercial School (Pl. 14), in a Gothic style (1875).

The ancient fortifications of the town were levelled in 1797, and their site has since been converted into beautiful Promenades. In the midst of those on the S. side of the town is the Railway Station (Pl. C, 6, 7), in the Renaissance style, designed by Th. Ottmer; to the E. of it are the Waterworks, with a tower commanding a good view. — In the Sieges-Platz (Pl. D, 7) rises the Monument of Victory in memory of the campaign of 1870-71, designed by Breymann and Dietz, and consisting of a colossal Germania on an obelisk adorned with reliefs in bronze. — To the N. of the Sieges-Platz is the Lessing-Platz, with a Statue of Lessing (Pl. 10; D, 6, 7), in bronze, erected in 1853, and designed by Rietschel. Lessing died at No. 12 Ægidienmarkt on 15th Feb., 1781. — In the vicinity is the Ægidienhalle (Pl. 16; D, 6), a Gothic church of the 13-14th cent., now employed for exhibitions of art and industry.

Near the August-Thor (Pl. D, 7) rises the Windmühlenberg, which commands a good view of the town. To the N.E. is the Monuments-Platz (Pl. E, 6), adorned with an iron Obelisk, 40 ft. in height, erected in 1822 by the citizens of Brunswick to the memory of Dukes Charles William Ferdinand (d. at Ottensen in 1806) and Frederick William (d. at Quatrebras in 1815).

The space between the Steintor and the Fallerleier-Thor (Pl. E, F, 5-3) is occupied by the Ducal Park (Theater-Park; open to the public).

On the S. side of the park stands the Ducal Museum (Pl. 33; E, F, 5), a handsome building erected in 1883-87 from the design of Oskar Sommer. The foundation of the valuable collections it contains was laid by Duke Anton Ulrich of Brunswick-Lüneburg, who purchased a number of paintings and works of art during his travels in the middle of the 17th century. With these and other materials Duke Charles I. formed a museum at Brunswick in 1755. The Picture Gallery, like most of the German collections founded in the 17th cent., is especially strong in the Dutch School. Another important feature of the Museum is the extensive collection of Italian Majolica, while the Collection of Enamels is the most important public collection of the kind in Germany. The Museum is open daily, except on festivals: June-Sept. 10-4, Sun. 11-2; March, April, May, & Oct. 10-3 and 11-2; Nov.-Feb. 11-2; it is closed for cleaning for one week in spring and another in autumn. Director, Prof. Herm. Riegel. Catalogue 1 M.

Second Floor. Continuation of the Collection of Antiquities. — Room XXXV (to the right of the staircase) contains prehistoric antiquities, chiefly from North Germany and Denmark. — Rooms XXXVI, XXXVII, and XXXVIII contain the *Ceramic Collection, including the highly valuable Italian Majolicae of the 16-17th cent., etc. — In Room XXXIX is the valuable *Collection of Enamels, Jewels, etc., chiefly from Limoges, (16-17th cent.). Also, 220. Luther's 'doctor's ring'; 221. Catharine von Bora's wedding-ring; 222. Seal-ring of Queen Mary Stuart; silver reliefs and statuettes; objects in agate, etc. — R. XL. Objects in tortoise-shell and mother-of-pearl, glass, etc. — R. XLI. Objects in wax. — R. XLII. Wood-carvings. — R. XLIII. Ivory carvings of the 17-18th centuries. — R. XLIV. Collection of Bronzes, from Italy, France, Germany, and the Netherlands (15-18th cent.). — R. XLV. Smaller works in stone. — R. XLVI. Embroidery, Lace, Book-Bindings. — R. XLVII. Chinese and Japanese articles, etc. — R. XLVIII. Coins (22,000), Medals, and Gems. Among the last is the so-called Mantuan Vase (No. 300), which fell into the hands of a soldier at the taking of Mantua in 1630, came in 1688 into the possession of the Princes of Brunswick, and has been preserved in the Museum since 1767. In 1830 it was carried off by Duke Charles, but was restored to the Museum on his death in 1874. It is cut out of a single sardonyx, consisting of five variously shaded laminae, and is almost certainly of ancient workmanship.

In the park rises the handsome Theatre* (Pl. E, 4), in the Romanesque style, opened in 1861 on the thousandth anniversary of the foundation of the town. On its N. side is a monument erected in 1891 to Frans Abt, the composer. — Outside the Fallersleber-Thor, opposite the large Infantry Barracks (Pl. F, 3), is the Botanical Garden (Pl. E, F, 2, 3), open the whole day except 12-2, closed on Sundays and festivals. — Farther on, towards the Wenden-Thor, in the New Promenade, stands the Ducal Polytechnicum (Pl. E, 2), a college founded in 1745, and converted into a technical school in 1862. The present Renaissance building was completed in 1877 from the designs of Uhde and Körner.

Interior. The vestibule contains two groups by Echtermeyer, representing Art and Science. The staircase is adorned with two ceiling-paintings by Groll of Vienna. — The groundfloor is occupied by extensive collections illustrative of Architecture, Engineering, Mechanics, and Physics (with Guericke's air-pump and other historical relics), and by a Cabinet of Minerals. — The N. staircase ascends to the Natural History Collection (Sun. 11-1, Wed. & Sat. 2-4), the ornithological section of which is particularly fine.

The Ducal Hospital (Pl. 27; D, 2), by the Wenden-Thor, contains a good Anatomical Museum. — On the S.W. side of the Gaussberg (Pl. D, 2) rises a Statue of Gauss* (1777-1855), the great mathematician, by Schaper. Gauss was born at No. 30 in the adjacent N. Wilhelm-Str. Between the Gaussberg and the Petri-Thor, to the right of the Insel-Promenade, is the Bammelsburger Teich (Pl. B, 2, 3), a pretty little artificial lake.

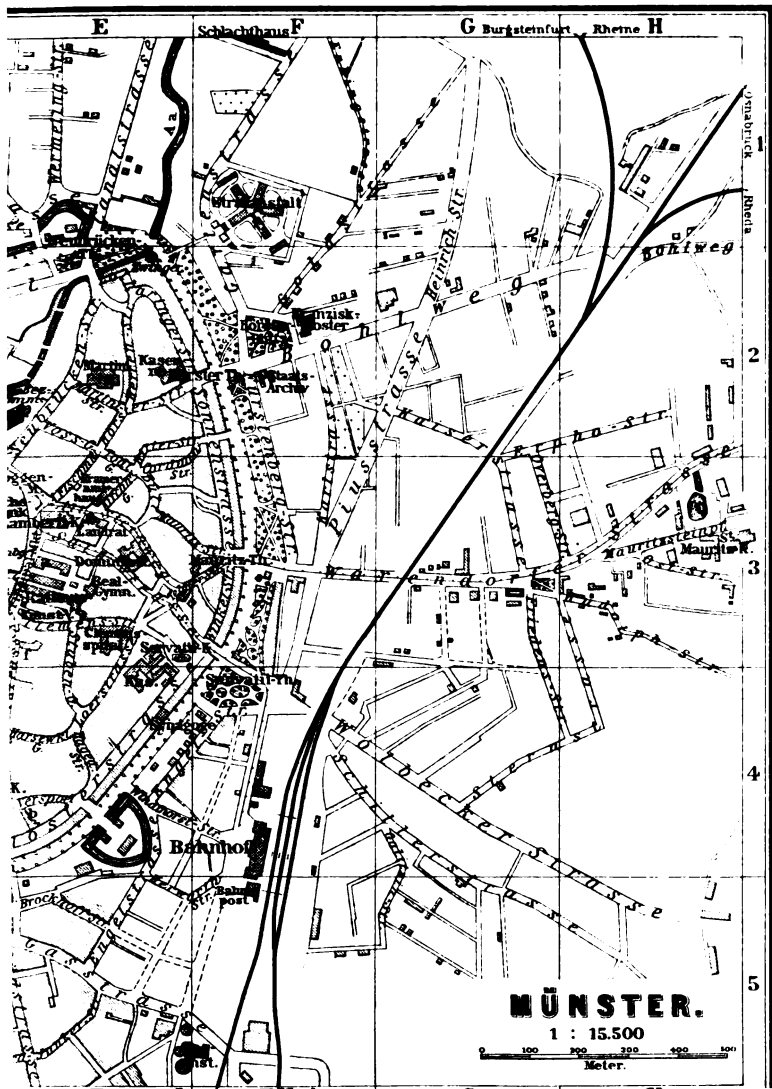

An oak enclosed by a railing, near the Petri-Thor (Pl. A, 3), and an iron obelisk at the village of Osiper, 1½ M. farther, are memorials of the spirited march from the Erzebirge to the North Sea accomplished by Duke Frederick William of Brunswick in 1809 (comp. p. 139).

Outside the Steinthor (Pl. F, 5), in the drill-ground, is a column to the memory of Gen. Olfermann, the commander of the Brunswickers at Waterloo after the death of the Duke.

Farther to the S. lie the Cemeteries (Pl. F, 7) of the Domgemeinde and Magnimgemeinde (i.e. of the Cathedral and St. Magnus parishes). Lessing's grave in the latter is marked by a monument with a relief by Th. Strümpel.

At the S.E. corner of the St. Leonhard's Platz, bounded by the cemeteries on one side and the quarter of St. Leonhard on the other, about $\frac{3}{4}$ M. from the Steinthor, rises the Monument of Schill, erected in 1837 to that officer and the fourteen soldiers of his corps who were shot on this spot, where their remains and Schill's head are interred (see p. 211).

The small Chapel adjoining the custodian's house contains memorials of Schill and his period (1809), 'a year full of glory and disaster', as it is termed by the inscription.

About 1 M. beyond the Augustus-Thor (Pl. D, 7) are situated the chateau of Alt-Richmond, erected in 1768, and the villa Neu-Richmond, a Norman-Gothic edifice of 1890, with beautiful grounds, both now belonging to the Duke of Cumberland. Visitors admitted to the former.

To the E. of Brunswick, 2 M. from the Steinthor, lies Riddagahausen, with a fine church in the transition-style, once belonging to a Cistercian monastery, and consecrated in 1278. Handsome W. portal.

Münster, situated on the Münstersche Aa, in a flat district, the capital of the Prussian province of Westphalia and headquarters of the 7th Corps d'Armée, with 57,300 inhab., has been an episcopal see since the 9th century. In the 13th and 14th cent. it was a prosperous Hanseatic town, and even carried on commerce beyond seas on its own account. At the time of the Reformation it was the scene of the fanatical excesses of the Anabaptists under Johann of Leyden (1534-36; see below), and in 1661 it finally succumbed to the episcopal yoke of the warlike Bishop von Galen. In the 18th cent., when Fürstenberg, Hemsterhuis, the Princess Galitzin, Hamann, Count F. L. von Stolberg, etc. resided here, Münster was a place of some literary importance. Of the university established at this period, the theological and philosophical faculties still exist under the name of an Academy (p. 156; 300 students). The bishopric was secularised in 1803 and annexed to Prussia.

The town still retains many mediæval characteristics, which are most conspicuous in the Prinzipal-Markt and Roggen-Markt with their arcades, picturesque old gabled houses, the church of St. Lambert, and the Rathaus. Besides these Gothic buildings, there are many dwelling-houses of the Renaissance period, and even those of the 17th cent. present a mediæval appearance, with their lofty gables and arcades on the ground-floors. Amongst the peculiarities of Münster, are the 'Höfe', or mansions of the wealthy noblesse (Romberger-Hof, Erbdrosten-Hof, and others), some of which are in the rococo style of last century. The fortifications of the town were converted into promenades after the Seven Years' War, the only relic of them being the Zwinger and the Buddenthurm. New quarters have sprung up outside the old line of fortifications.

To the right as we enter the town from the station, by the new Windthorst-Strasse, is the Church of St. Servatius (Pl. E, F, 3), erected in the Romanesque style in 1197, rebuilt in 1537, and judiciously restored in 1864-68. The fine domed Clemenskirche belongs to the large public Hospital of St. Clement.

The beautiful Gothic Church of St. Lambert* (Pl. E, 3), built in the latter half of the 14th cent. on the site of an earlier church, with its chief portal of the beginning of the 15th cent., has recently been restored. On the outside, over the S. portal, the genealogy of Christ. The edifice is characterised by graceful proportions, bold vaulting, rich window-tracery, and imposing exterior. The old tower was removed as unsafe in 1881, and an imposing new one has been built to replace it.

On the old tower were suspended the three iron cages in which the bodies of the fanatics John of Leyden, Knipperdolling, and Krechting, the leaders of the Anabaptists, were placed after they had been tortured with red-hot pincers and executed in 1536. The cages are now deposited in the museum of the Society of Antiquaries (p. 156).

The Anabaptists, a sect widely spread over Germany and the Netherlands about the beginning of the Reformation, added at that period to their rejection of infant-baptism a number of other startling and pernicious doctrines. One of their most fanatical adherents was Thomas Münzer, leader of the insurgent peasantry. In Holland they were known, and still exist, under the name of Mennonites, derived from their founder Menno Simons. In 1533 a number of Dutch Anabaptists, headed by John Bockhold, a tailor from Leyden, and Matthiesen, a baker from Haarlem, settled at Münster, where with the aid of the Pastor Rottmann and Councillor Knipperdolling they succeeded in establishing their supremacy in the town and in banishing the episcopal party. Bockhold (John of Leyden) was proclaimed king of the 'New Zion' in 1534. A reign of terror now began, polygamy was introduced, and many atrocities committed, while famine and pestilence devastated the town. The following year, however, Münster was compelled to capitulate to the bishop and his army.

To the S. of the Lambertikirche is the Prinzipal-Markt, surrounded by Gothic arcades (comp. p. 154). Here stands the Rathhaus* (Pl. E, 3), with a beautiful Gothic gable, containing the 'Friedenssaal' where the Peace of Westphalia was signed on 24th Oct., 1648. The W. façade dates from the second half of the 14th century. Entrance from the back.

The FRIEDENSSAAL, built in 1577 and restored in 1853, contains a picturesque chimney-piece of 1577, and portraits of several ambassadors and princes, present at the conclusion of the peace, said to have been painted by Terburg, the well-known Dutch master. On the first floor is the LAREN SALOON, in the Gothic style, designed and executed by Salsenberg, which was added in 1862, and is adorned with twelve historical portraits.

Adjoining the Rathhaus, Prinzipal-Markt 8, is the old Weight House, a Renaissance building of 1615, with a gable and balcony. — On the other side of the Rathhaus, Prinzipal-Markt 18, is the old Stadtkeller, another Renaissance edifice with traces of the mediæval style (1569-71); it contains the collections of the Kunstverein (Pl. E, 3), consisting mainly of early Italian and German paintings. The Westphalian school is represented by Ludger tom Ring (d. 1547), his son Hermann (d. 1599), and other masters.

We now proceed through the Michaelis-Platz to the DOM-PLATZ, which is shaded with lime-trees and embellished with a bronze Statue of Fürstenberg, the statesman (d. 1810). To the left are the Government Offices (Pl. D, 3; 1886-89) and the Gothic Post Office.

The Cathedral* (Pl. D, 3), begun in 1225 on the site of an earlier building, and consecrated in 1265, was not completed till the next century. The altar stands in a pentagonal apse, round which runs an ambulatory. The S. vestibule contains statues of apostles, saints, etc. (after 1261). The W. portal dates from 1516; the so-called 'Servator Gable', at the S. end of the second transept, is of somewhat later date.

Interior. The ancient decorations were almost entirely destroyed by the Anabaptists, and the harmonious proportions of the building have lately been disguised by gaudy painting. In the W. part of the NAVE, a Pietà by Achtermann. Over the S. portal the Last Judgment in relief, 1692. Opposite to it, over the N. portal, is an old painting of the 14th cent., Frisians offering tribute to St. Paul. — RETRO-CHOIR: to the right, Crucifixion by Hermann tom Ring. On the wall, an astronomical clock, constructed in 1400. Behind the high-altar, the chapel and monument of the warlike bishop Bern. von Galen (d. 1678). Farther on, Raising of Lazarus by Ludger tom Ring. — CHOIR. Paintings of the Romanesque period on the vaulting (restored). Tombstones of bishops. Ciborium of 1536. Achtermann's Descent from the Cross, a fine group in marble, is in a side-chapel. — The Chapter House is adorned with the finest wood-panelling in Germany, carved by Joh. Kupper in 1544-52.

In the Dom-Platz is the Episcopal Residence (Pl. D, 3). Adjoining it are the Academy (see p. 154) and the unimportant Museum of Christian Art (No. 25; always open to strangers). — To the S. of the cathedral is the handsome Ludgerus Fountain, by Fleige, erected in 1889, with statues of St. Ludgerus, first bishop of Münster (d. 809), Bishop Suitger (d. 911), and Bishop Erpho (d. 1097).

Behind the Academy, in the old Jesuit College, is the Pauline Library, containing fine carved wood-work and interesting portraits of John of Leyden and others. Beyond is the Pauline Gymnasium (Rom. Cath.), one of the largest in Prussia, with a chapel.

Opposite the cathedral is the Ständehaus (Pl. D, 3), or Chamber of the Estates; at the entrance, the statues of Arminius and Wittekind. — Behind it are the Ludgerianum and the Borromaeum, two halls for theological students; part of the latter was the house of John of Leyden.

The noble Gothic Church of Our Lady or Ueberwasser-Kirche (Pl. C, D, 2) dates from the 14th cent., but most of the internal decorations belong to a recent period. In the choir are three fine stained-glass windows. The mural paintings, by Mosler and Settegast, depict the foundation of the original chapel on this site by Bishop Ludger (802-809), and the foundation of the Convent of the Virgin in 1040. Below the organ-loft are two votive pictures by Ludger tom Ring, and in the sacristy are paintings of the Evangelists by the same artist. The finest part of the Tower, which was begun at the beginning of the 14th cent., is the upper story, dating from the 15th century. — The small Ludgeri Chapel, adjoining the Liebfrauenkirche, is the oldest building in Münster, dating from the 11th century. Adjacent is the large Priests' Seminary, with a handsome sandstone façade.

St. Ägidius (Pl. D, 4), once the church of the Capuchins, of the 18th cent., is adorned with frescoes executed by Settegast, Welsch, and Mosler from Steinle's designs. The small Kreuzcapelle, behind the high-altar, contains a group (Christ and the disciples at Gethsemane) by Fleige.

St. Ignatius (Pl. D, 4), a modern Gothic church of the Jesuits (1857-58), is sumptuously fitted up.

The Ludgerikirche (Pl. D, E, 4), with a *Tower terminating in a picturesque lantern, was erected in the Romanesque style in 1170 and extended in the Gothic style after a fire in 1383. The whole was judiciously restored in 1856-60. — By the Ludgeri-Thor (Pl. D, E, 5) is a War Monument in memory of 1870-71, by Allard.

Outside the Mauritz-Thor is the abbey-church of St. Maurice (Pl. H, 3), founded about 1070, and rebuilt in 1862 in the Romanesque style, with three towers and a Gothic choir of 1451. The chief tower dates from the 12th century. The monuments of the founders, Bishop Frederick (1063-84) and Bishop Erpho (1084-97), were demolished by the Anabaptists, but restored in 1620 and 1768. The stained glass and mural paintings are modern. Near it is the modern Gothic Hospital of St. Francis.

The Gothic Church of St. Martin (Pl. E, 2), begun in 1187, and finished towards the end of the 14th cent., was restored in 1859.

Other noteworthy public buildings are the Schoehaus (1625), or old guild-hall of the shoemakers, Alter Fischmarkt 27 (Pl. E, 3), and the Krameramthaus (Pl. E, 3), Alter Steinweg 7, built about 1620 (with the library of the Historical Society). On the S. side of the Neu-Platz are the Low Courts (Pl. B, O, 3), and on the W. side is the Schloss (Pl. B, 3), formerly the episcopal palace, built in 1767 on the site of the old citadel. It is adorned with allegorical sculptures, and possesses a chapel with an altar-piece by Tischbein.

At the back of the Schloss is the pleasant Schloss-Garten (restaurant), occupying the site of the old citadel and including the Botanical Garden of the Academy. The Zoological Garden (Pl. B, 3, 4; adm. 50 pf.), on the so-called 'island', to the S. of the latter, is a favourite place of resort. It also contains the interesting collections of the Westphalian Antiquarian Society.

A branch-line (85 M. in $1\frac{1}{4}$ - $2\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.) runs from Münster to Burgsteinfurt and Gronau (p. 100); another ($45\frac{1}{2}$ M. in 5 hrs.) to Lippstadt (p. 107) viâ Warendorf and Rheda (p. 100).

The train next traverses a flat, moorland country, passing several unimportant stations.

46 M. Rheine (Rail. Restaurant; Hôtel Schulze, R. & B. 3, D. 2 M.), a cotton-manufacturing town on the Ems, with 8600 inhab. and a fine late-Gothic church, is the junction of the line to Oldenzaal and Hanover (R. 9).

51 M. Salzbergen (p. 132); $77\frac{1}{2}$ M. Meppen, the capital of the duchy of Arenberg-Meppen, with 4000 inhab., at the confluence of the Haase and the Ems. In the market-place is a statue of Windhorst (d. 1891), leader of the German clerical party. — 106 M. Papenburg (7000 inhab.; Brit. vice-consul), the largest settlement on the Hoch-Moor, a marshy district 120 sq. M. in extent, intersected by canals. 112 M. Ihrhove, whence a line diverges to Neuschans and other places in Holland (see Baedeker's Belgium and Holland).

116½ M. Leer (Prinz von Oranien, R., L., & A. $2\frac{1}{2}$ -3, D. 2 M., wellspoken of; Victoria; Union, R., L., A., & B. 2, D. $1\frac{1}{4}$ M.), a busy mercantile place, with 11,500 inhab., lies on the Leda, at its union with the Ems, in the most fertile part of Ostfriesland. (Railway to Oldenburg and Bremen, see R. 16. Steamboats to Borkum, see p. 165.)

182 M. Emden (Weisses Haus, opposite the Rathhaus, R., L., & A. from 2, B. 1, D. $2\frac{1}{2}$ -3 M.; Bellevue, Union, R., L., & A. $1\frac{1}{2}$ -2, D. $1\frac{3}{4}$ -2 M.; Heeren's Hotel, these three near the station and steamboat-quay; Prinz von Preussen, plain; Brit. vice-consul), with 14,500 inhab., formerly situated on the Ems, but now $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. distant from it, is a prosperous, Dutch-looking place, intersected by navigable canals, which are connected with the Ems and the Dollart, and at high tide are $11\frac{1}{2}$ ft. in depth. The Rathhaus, a rich Renaissance structure of 1574-76, contains an interesting armoury, where a number of very curious old firearms of the Thirty Years' War are preserved. There are also various French weapons, captured in 1870-71, and presented by the emperor. The tower commands a good survey of the town and environs (fee 50 pf.). In front of the Rathhaus is a Monument to Emp. William I. (1896). The Grosse Kirche contains the marble monument of Count Enno II. of Ost-Friesland (1548). The Natural History Museum possesses a fine collection of specimens of amber (adm. 50 pf.). The Museum of the Gesellschaft für Kunst und Vaterländische Alterthümer contains a collection of pictures (mostly Flemish and Dutch), coins, and antiquities, and also a library of works referring to E. Friesland.

Emden is a good starting-point for the islands of Norderney and Borkum (pp. 165, 166).

FROM EMDEN TO JEVER, 51 M., railway in $4\frac{3}{4}$ - $5\frac{1}{4}$ hrs. — Most of the stations are unimportant. From (11 M.) Georgsheil a branch-line diverges to (7 M.) Aurich (Deutsches Haus; Piqueurhof), the principal town of E. Friesland, pleasantly situated, with 5900 inhabitants. — 20 M. Norden (Dippel, R., L., & A. 2-3, D. 2 M.; Deutsches Haus), an industrial town of 4000 inhab., with a pretty church of 1445. — 38 M. Zeens (Wessel's Inn, R. 2 M), chief town of a marshy but fertile district called the Harlingerland. — 51 M. Jever (Hof von Oldenburg, R. & B. 3 M., well spoken of; Hôtel Buck; Rail. Restaurant), with 5300 inhab., was formerly fortified. It is united with the Jade by a canal. In the palace is a fine casseted ceiling of oak (1607-16), one of the finest Renaissance works in Germany. The Jeverland was independent down to 1573, and has belonged to Oldenburg since 1814. — Continuation of the railway to Wilhelmshaven and Oldenburg, see p. 168.

14. From Hanover to Bremen.

77 M. RAILWAY. Express in 2 hrs. (fares 10 M 20, 7 M 60, 5 M 30 pf.); ordinary trains in $3\frac{1}{4}$ hrs. (9 M 10, 6 M 80, 4 M 60 pf.).

From Hanover to (13 M.) Wunstorf, see p. 104. Country poor, flat, and sandy. In the distance, to the W., we observe the Steinhuder Meer, a lake 3 M. in width, on an artificial island in which Count Wilhelm von der Lippe (d. 1777) erected the Wilhelmstein, a small model fortress, where he established a military school. The fortress is carefully kept up, and contains a collection of cannon and weapons of various kinds. Rehburg (Knoop; Walsen; Menke), on the W. bank, is a pleasant watering-place, with baths and whey-cure, $2\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the S. of the small town of the same name.

Wilhelmstein is most conveniently visited from Wunstorf by taking the diligence to (8 M.) Hagenburg (four times in summer), and rowing thence across the lake (1-6 pers., 3 M).

Several unimportant stations. From (44 M.) Eystrup a branch-line diverges to (5 M.) Hoya. The train crosses the Aller. 54 M. Verden (Hôtel Hannover), with its cathedral destitute of tower (1290), where Charlemagne founded an episcopal see; pop. 9600. 58 M. Langwedel, junction of the Berlin line (p. 106). $72\frac{1}{2}$ M. Sebaldebrück, junction for the Osnabrück line, is connected with Bremen by a tramway-line. To the left the handsome new church of Hastedt. — 77 M. Bremen.

Bremen.

Hotels. *HILLMANN'S (Pl. a; E, 4), R., L., & A. from 4, B. $1\frac{1}{4}$, D. $3\frac{1}{2}$ M; *HÔTEL DE L'EUROPE (Pl. b; E, 4), R., L., & A. from 8 M, both on the S. side of the Wall Promenade, with restaurants; *GRAND HÔTEL

Tramways (Nos. 1, 2, & 3 electric). 1. From the Market (Pl. E, 4) to Horn, through the Schlüsselkorb (Pl. E, 4) and Bahnhof-Str., past the railway-station (Pl. E, F, 3), and via the Weide and Schwachhausen. — 2. From the Market to the Freihafen (Pl. A, 2, 3), through the Langen-Str. and Hafen-Str. — 3. From the Exchange (Pl. 2; D, E, 5) to the Hohenthor (Pl. A, 6). — 4. The Walle, Bremen, and Sebaldsbrück line, traversing the whole town from the Doven-Thor (Pl. C, 3) on the W. to the Osterthor (Pl. E, F, 6) on the E. (via the Faulen-Str., Obern-Str., and the Markt, Pl. D, 5). — 5. Kingbahn, or Circular Line, from the Arsterdamm through the Buntethor-Steinweg and Oster-Str. (Pl. C, 7, 8), across the Grosse Brücke, over the Markt, through the Osterthor-Str. and the Dobben, and past the railway-station, to the Kaiser-Str. (Pl. C, 4), where it joins the main line.

Steamboats to Bremerhaven (p. 165) thrice daily in summer in 3½ hrs. — From Bremerhaven to London (40 hrs.) twice and Hull (36 hrs.) once weekly; to New York (North German Lloyd) twice weekly (in which travellers for England may return to Southampton). For particulars apply at the offices of the North German Lloyd (Norddeutscher Lloyd), Papen-Str. 5-16 and Grosse Hunde-Str. 80 (Pl. D, 4). — A steamboat also plies fortnightly from Bremerhaven to Leith (50s. or 25s.).

Consulates. British Vice-Consul, Robert Boyes, Esq., Börsennebengebäude 28. United States Consul, George Keenan, Esq., 15 Söge-Str. (9.30 a.m.-2 p.m.).

Bremen, the second in importance of the three independent Hanseatic cities, with 142,000 inhab., one of the chief commercial places in N. Germany, lies in a sandy plain on both banks of the Weser, about 44 M. from its influx into the German Ocean. On the right bank is the Altstadt, formerly enclosed by ramparts, round which the Suburbs are situated, and on the left bank the Neustadt. Many well-preserved old buildings testify to the mediæval importance of the place, while the numerous handsome new edifices entitle it to a respectable rank among the modern cities of Europe.

The Bishopric of Bremen was founded in 788 by Charlemagne. In the 10th cent. the town, in consequence of certain privileges accorded to it by the archbishops, began to flourish as a seaport and a commercial place; but in the 13-14th cent. the citizens contrived gradually to shake off the archiepiscopal yoke. They joined the Hanseatic League (p. 194) in 1276, but for a long time kept aloof from its proceedings. In 1286 they were formally excluded from it, and, although admitted again in 1380, they were afterwards repeatedly expelled. In 1522 Bremen embraced the Reformation, and in 1547 gallantly repelled an attack by the Imperial army. The citizens bravely defended themselves against the Swedes also (1686), who had obtained possession of the episcopal see by the Peace of Westphalia, and stoutly maintained the position of Bremen as a free city of the Empire. The town is now chiefly indebted for its importance to its seaport, Bremerhaven (p. 165), which is entered yearly by about 6000 sea-going vessels of $2\frac{1}{2}$ million tons' burden. Bremen joined the Zollverein, or German Customs Union, in 1888. The annual value of the imports amounts to about 700 million, of the exports to 675 million marks. The staple commodities are tobacco, petroleum, rice, grain, wool, and cotton. In 1895 the merchants of Bremen possessed 408 sea-going vessels of 426,490 tons, including 191 steamers, more than half of which are engaged in the Atlantic traffic. Bremen is one of the principal emigration-ports in Germany (in 1894, 170,000 emigrants).

On the W. side of the BAHNHOF-PLATZ (Pl. E, 3), adjoining the railway-station, stands the Museum of Natural History, Ethnology, and Commerce (Pl. E, 2, 3), completed in 1896 (open in summer, free on Sun., 10-3, and Wed. and Sat., 2-6; adm. on Tues. and Frid., 10-2, 50 pf.). The collections are admirably mounted and arranged.

The GROUND FLOOR and FIRST FLOOR contain the Ethnological Collections. To the left of the room devoted to the Polar races is an Exhibition of Fishery, connected with which is a small Aquarium. A Moorish arch leads from the Fishery Exhibition to the extensive Commercial Collection.

On the SECOND FLOOR are the Zoological, Mineralogical, and Palaeontological Collections.

The THIRD FLOOR is devoted to the Prehistoric and Botanical Collections.

To the S. of the Museum is the Civic Library (Pl. E, 3), containing 110,000 vols. (open daily 11-1, also on Mon., Wed., Thurs., and Sat., 3.30-5.30).

The Promenades*, or Wall-Anlagen, laid out after 1815 by Altmann (bust near the Doven-Thor; Pl. C, 3), on the old ramparts, and separating the old town from the suburbs, constitute the principal ornament of the city. — The moat is crossed by six bridges, named after the old gates. Nearest the station is the Heerden-Thor (Pl. E, 4), and farther W. the Ansgarii-Thor (Pl. D, 4). To the E. of the Heerden-Thor is the Bischofs-Thor (Pl. F, 5), near which is the Theatre (Pl. 23). In the promenades, not far from the Heerden-Thor, is a Marble Vase with reliefs by Steinhäuser, representing the so-called 'Klosterochsenzug', which formerly took place here annually. — Near the Ansgarii-Thor is a Monument* (Pl. D, 3) to the natives of Bremen who fell in 1870-71; the bronze relief represents the battle of Sedan. — The Kaiser-Strasse leads from the Ansgarii-Thor to the Kaiserbrücke (p. 164).

The principal business part of Bremen consists of the three squares, the Domshof, Domsheide, and the Market, situated near each other in the Altstadt; from the market diverge also the Langenstrasse (containing several buildings of the 16th cent.; e.g. Nos. 13, 16, 75), the Oberrn-Strasse (p. 163), and the Söge-Strasse.

In the *MARKET PLACE (Pl. D, 5) are the Rathhaus, the Exchange, the 'Schütting', and several handsome old houses. Among the last is the Rathsapotheke, furnished with a new façade in 1894.

The *Rathhaus (Pl. 19), mainly a Gothic building, was erected in 1405-10; at a late period of the Renaissance (after 1612) a new façade was added on the S.W. side, resting on twelve Doric columns, and remarkable for its richly-decorated oriel-window and handsome gable. The sixteen statues between the windows are mediæval, those towards the market represent the Emperor and the seven Electors.

Traversing the lower corridor, we ascend a winding wooden staircase to the *GREAT HALL, which is always open to the public (about 49 yds. long and 15 yds. wide). On the left is a large painting by Hüntel, representing the battle of Loigny (Dec. 2nd, 1870). From the ceiling, which is adorned with medallion-portraits of German emperors from Charlemagne to Sigismund, are suspended old models of ships. The stained-glass windows contain names and armorial bearings of councillors of Bremen. In a corner of the hall stands a marble Statue of Smidt (d. 1857), Burgomaster of Bremen (p. 166), by Steinhäuser.

On the W. side is the entrance to the celebrated *Rathskeller, considerably enlarged in 1874 and adorned with admirable frescoes by Figier. The cellar, which contains Rhine and Moselle wines exclusively, is open daily till 11 p.m. (on Sundays not before 8 p.m.). Wine may be purchased by the glass or bottle; oysters and other viands are also supplied. The oldest casks are the 'Rose' (dating from 1658) and the 'Twelve Apostles', which are kept in another part of the cellar, and are shown to the curious. The 'Rose' derives its name from a large rose painted on the ceiling, beneath which the magistrates are said in ancient times to have held their most important meetings, such deliberations 'sub rosa' being kept profoundly secret. Travellers versed in German literature will recognise several of the 'dramatis personæ' in Hauff's 'Phantasien im Bremer Rathskeller', to which some of the frescoes refer. The cellarer enquires from time to time in the upper rooms whether any of the visitors desire to inspect the cellars (gratuity).

In front (to the S.W.) of the Rathhaus stands the Roland* (Pl. 7), a colossal figure in stone, 18 ft. high, erected in 1404 on the site of an earlier figure of wood, a symbol of free commercial intercourse and supreme criminal jurisdiction, and the palladium of civic liberty. In his left hand the giant bears a shield with the imperial eagle, and a naked sword in his right, while the head and hand of a criminal at his feet indicate the extent of the municipal jurisdiction. — To the N.W. of the Rathhaus is an Equestrian Statue of Emp. William I. (Pl. 4; D, 5), by Bärwald, erected in 1893.

On the S.E. side of the market rises the *Exchange (Pl. 2; D, E, 5), designed by H. Müller, an imposing edifice in the Gothic style (1861-64). The W. façade is adorned with six figures emblematical of the different branches of commerce and manufacture. At the N. portal are figures of Peace, Diligence, the Weser, and the Ocean. The handsome *Hall, with a coffered ceiling, and richly decorated with gilding, has double aisles supported by twelve columns. The staircase is adorned with mural paintings by Arthur Fitger, and the S. wall of the hall is occupied by a large painting by Janssen, representing the colonisation of the Baltic provinces by the Hanseatic League. Opposite rises a figure representing Brema, by Kropp. Business-hour 1-2 o'clock (adm. in the forenoon).

To the W. of the Exchange, opposite the Rathhaus, is the Schütting (Pl. 20), or Chamber of Commerce, erected in 1538-94. To the N.W. is the Liebfrauenkirche (Pl. 14), dating from the 12th and 13th cent.; the W. façade has been recently restored. The modern Stadthaus (Pl. 22) adjoins the Rathhaus on the N.E. side.

The Cathedral* (Pl. 12; E, 5), a Romanesque edifice with double choir, the main parts of which belong to the original building, was begun in the 11th cent. and greatly altered in the 13th. The N. aisle, which is of equal height with the nave, was added in the 16th century. The S. tower fell in 1638, and the N. spire was burned in 1767; but the whole of the W. façade, including the towers, was restored in 1888-93.

The INTERIOR (entered through the house of the sacristan, Sand-Str. 9) has been restored and fitted up for Protestant worship. Admirable Organs. In front of it are fine reliefs dating from 1500, representing Charlemagne, St. Willehad with the model of the cathedral, bishops, and others; the modern stained-glass Windows, with portraits of Luther and Melancthon, were executed at Nuremberg. Rococo Pulpit, presented by Queen Christina of Sweden (1654). In the low S. Aisle is a Fountain, in bronze, of the 11th century. A few steps here descend into the Bleikeller (i. e. lead-cellar, where the lead for the roof was melted), which contains several mummies, the oldest having been 400, the most recent 100 years in this undecayed condition. This vault still possesses the property of preventing decomposition, a proof of which is afforded by the dried poultry suspended in it some years ago.

In the DOMSHOF (Pl. E, 5), an extensive Platz on the N. side of the cathedral, is the Museum (Pl. 17), beautifully decorated in the interior, and dedicated to social purposes; strangers may be introduced by a member. — The neighbouring Rutenhof, a private edifice erected in 1875, contains in the court (open to the public) a frieze with frescoes from German history, painted by Fitger. — At the S.E. corner of the Platz stands St. Peter's Orphanage (Pl. C, 4), the chapel of which is adorned with a frieze by Fitger, representing the 'Golden Garden' described in Luther's well-known letter to his son Hans (contribution to funds of the institution expected).

Adjoining the S. tower of the cathedral, at the back, is the Gothic building of the Künstlerverein (artists' association; Pl. 10). The staircase is adorned with portraits of the Reformers and their contemporaries by Fitger.

The DOMSHEIDE is adorned with a Statue of Gustavus Adolphus (Pl. 3; E, 5), designed by the Swedish sculptor Fogelberg, and cast in bronze at Munich. It was destined for Gothenburg, but the vessel in which it was conveyed having been wrecked, the statue was rescued by boatmen of Heligoland, and purchased by merchants of Bremen in 1856. — The handsome Post Office, in the Renaissance style, was completed in 1878. Opposite are the new Law Courts (Pl. E, 5, 6). Beyond are the Hauptschule, the Roman Catholic Orphanage, and the Synagogue.

The Roman Catholic Johanniskirche (Pl. 13; E, 6) is a lofty edifice, with a nave 60 ft. in height, borne by eight slender columns; it contains some fine stained glass.

Near the Oster-Thor, in the Wall-Anlagen, is the Kunsthalle (Pl. 9; E, F, 6), containing pictures, chiefly modern, a few sculptures, and a good collection of drawings by Dürer, old engravings, woodcuts, etc. Admission on Sun. 2-4, 20 pf.; Tues. 11-2, 50 pf.; at other times on application to the keeper. Entrance on the left side.

GROUND FLOOR. Leutes, Washington's passage of the Delaware in 1776; on the right a number of sculptures in marble and casts by Steinhäuser, Hirt, and others. — STAIRCASE. Stilke's cartoons of two frescoes at Stolzenfels: King John of Bohemia at the battle of Crécy, and Emp. Frederick II. receiving his bride Isabella of England. — FIRST FLOOR. Saal, The midnight-sun in Norway; Schwerdgeburt, Departure of the Salzburg Protestants; Zimmermann, Forest-scene; A. Achenbach, Westphalian mill; Böcklin, Knight in search of adventure; Max, Christ at Bethany; Meyer of Bremen, Penitent daughter; Bamberger, English coast near Hastings; Gude, A coast-scene in Norway; Calame, Swiss mountains; Ritter, The son's last letter; Camp-hausen, The passage to Alsen. Also several Dutch, early German, and Italian works; Backgammon-players, by Terburg; sea-pieces by Grayler and Keeckock. Amongst the sculptures: Violin-player, Psyche, Mignon, etc., by Steinhäuser.

The Altmanushöhe (Pl. E, 6; comp. p. 160), at the S. end of the promenades, affords a pleasant view of the busy Weser and the Neustadt; opposite lie the water-works of the town. — To the W. of this point, on the Körner-Wall, is a monument to Theodore Körner (Pl. 5; G, 6). — In the promenades, to the N. of the Kunsthalle, rises the marble Statue of Olbers* (d. 1840; Pl. 6, E 5), a distinguished physician and astronomer, by Steinhäuser.

The new quarters of the town outside the Oster-Thor and Bischofs-Thor (Pl. E, F, 5, 6), especially the Osterdeich on the banks of the Weser (Pl. F, G, 7), An der Schleifmühle, and the Bismarck-Str. (Pl. G, H, I, 4, 5), contain many handsome private houses. The modern Gothic Bernbertikirche (Pl. 16; F, 4), built in 1870, is also noticeable.

From the market-place the Obern-Strasse (see p. 161) leads to the N.W. to the 13th cent. Ansgariikirche (Pl. 11; D, 4; restored), with an altar-piece by Tischbein and modern stained-glass windows. The tower, 375 ft. in height, commands an extensive view. Opposite the W. portal is a group in sandstone by Steinhäuser, representing St. Ansgarius, the apostle of the north, and first archbishop of Bremen and Hamburg (d. 865), in the act of releasing a heathen boy from the yoke of paganism. — Beyond it is the Gewerbehaus (Pl. 8), erected in 1609-21 as a guild-hall of the cloth-merchants, with a well-preserved Renaissance façade in sandstone. The interior is restored, and has been employed for commercial purposes since 1863. The Kaiser-Saal, containing portraits of Burgomasters of Bremen, is shown on application to the steward. — Adjoining the tower of the Ansgarikirche is the Savings Bank, in the Renaissance style. — St. Stephen's Church (Pl. B, 3) has a tower of 1644 surmounted by a spire of 1856.

Several Bridges connect the Altstadt on the right with the Neustadt on the left bank of the Weser. In the centre of the town the Grosse Brücke (Pl. D, 6) crosses from the Wacht-Strasse to the Werder, from which a smaller bridge crosses the Kleine Weser to the Neustadt. Below the Werder is the Kaiser-Brücke (Pl. C, 4, 5), which connects the Kaiser-Strasse (p. 160) with the Grosse Allée in the Neustadt. Nos. 20-22 in the Kaiser-Str. contain the Industrial Museum (adm. daily, except Sat., 10-1). The ancient Haus Seefahrt, an asylum for aged seamen and their widows, founded in 1525, was removed on the construction of the Kaiser-Str.; the famous inscription above the door, 'Navigare necesse est, vivere non est necesse', has been placed on the new institution (Pl. B, 2, 1) outside the Stephani-Thor. The hall of the new building is adorned with paintings by Fitger. — At the lower (W.) end of the town the river is crossed by the Railway Bridge (Pl. A, 3, 4).

The accession of Bremen to the Zollverein in 1888 (see p. 160) necessitated the creation of a large FREE HARBOUR (Freihafengebiet; Pl. A, 2, 3) in the Waller Wied, on the right bank of the Weser, below the bridges. The construction of the large bonded warehouses, apparatus for loading and unloading ships, and other necessary features here has greatly changed the appearance of the W. part of the town. The new Hafen-Strasse (Pl. B, 3) is one of the most important of these improvements.

To the N.E. of the town, about $\frac{1}{4}$ M. from the central railway-station, is situated the "Bürger-Park" (Pl. F, G, H, 1, 2), laid out since 1866, and now a favourite resort, especially on evenings when concerts are given (restaurant). — To the E. of Bremen is Schwachhausen (on the tramway-line to Horn, p. 159), another popular resort.

From Bremen to Geestemünde and Bremerhaven.

4 M. Ostebshausen (to the right the new prison of Bremen); 7 M. Burg-Lesum (branch-line to Veegesack, with large shipbuilding yards, and Farge). Then several small stations.

38 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Geestemünde (Hôtel Hannover, opposite the quay of the steamers; Union, Bülow-Str. 40; Lehrke, at the station), situated on the left bank of the Geeste, at its influx into the Weser, and lately united with Geestendorf to form one community (17,500 inhab.), was founded by the Hanoverian government as a rival of Bremerhaven. It carries on important deep-sea fisheries and a trade in fish. The harbour, completed in 1863, has excellent magazines and cranes, and there is a separate harbour for petroleum. A branchrailway runs from Geestemünde to (27 M.) Cuxhaven. — On the opposite bank of the Geeste lies —

Bremerhaven. — Hotels. BEERMANN'S, R., L., & A. 8, B. 1, D. 2½, omn. ¾ M; HOMFELD, R., L., & A. 1½-2, D. 1½ M; LÖHN, R. 2½ M; HERMANN; SPECHT; LLOYD, at the harbour, R. from 1½, D. 1¼ M.

Bremerhaven, the prosperous seaport of Bremen, was founded by the advice of the burgomaster Smidt (p. 161; to whom a monument was erected in 1888 in the market-place), on a small piece of land purchased from Hanover in 1827, and enlarged by later treaties with Hanover and Prussia. It is now a rapidly-increasing town with 18,400 inhab. and extensive shipping traffic. The Free Harbour, retained after Bremen joined the Zollverein, embraces the mouth of the Geeste and the harbour-basins, which are to be enlarged. The Docks are commodious and well organised, and, in practical arrangement, equal to those of Antwerp. A visit may be paid to the extensive workshops and dry-docks of the Norddeutsche Lloyd, and also to one of the large Transatlantic steamers usually lying here (tickets at the Lloyd Office). The Lighthouse commands a good survey of the environs. The 'time-ball' falls at noon by Bremerhaven time, and 24 min. later falls again at noon by Greenwich time. The lofty open spire of the modern Gothic church is a conspicuous object for miles around. — Steamer to Norderney, see below.

On the N.E. Bremerhaven is adjoined by Lehe, a small town of 19,200 inhab., connected with Bremerhaven and Geestemünde by tramway.

15. The East Frisian Islands.

Norderney. Borkum.

These islands, especially Norderney and Borkum, are very popular among the Germans as sea-bathing resorts, but scarcely come within the purview of the ordinary British or American tourist. A very brief sketch of them is therefore alone offered here; those who require greater detail may be referred to the German edition of this Handbook.

Numerous steamers ply in summer to Norderney from Bremerhaven, Hamburg, Norden, etc. The usual length of the voyage is 5-9 hrs., but on the route via Norden and Norddeich the sea-passage is scarcely ¾ hr. — The ordinary starting-points of the Borkum steamers are Emden (2½-3 hrs.) and Leer (3½-4 hrs.). — Full particulars as to the above routes and also of the communications with the smaller islands are given in the German time-tables.

Norderney (Kaiserhof; Strand-Hotel; Europäischer Hof; Kaiser Wilhelm; Bellevue, Schuchardt; Deutsches Haus, at these, pens. from 6 M, R. extra; Ebeling, Reichsadler, Central, Engelhausen's Family Hotel, etc., less expensive; numerous private apartments), i. e. 'northern island', with 3500 inhab., about 8 M. long, and 1½ M. broad, is the largest and the most populous of the East Frisian islands, and like the rest of the group is sandy and almost entirely destitute of vegetation. The village, which is at present the most popular German sea-bathing place (23,000 visitors yearly), lies at the S.W. angle of the island and owes its reputation to its fine beach, excellent drinking-water, and mild climate. It is also frequented as a winter-residence by persons with delicate chests, and a large institution has been built for scrofulous children.

At the S. end of the village is the Conversationshaus, surrounded by grounds. Near it are the Bazaar with its shops, the old and new Warmbadehaus, and the Grosse Logierhaus. — From the Conversationshaus towards the E. runs the Marien-Strasse, commanding a view of the opposite coast and of the 'Wattenmeer', or-shallow sea between the island and the mainland. Along the downs towards the N.W. extends the Victoria-Strasse, facing the sea. At the end of it is the Strand-Etablissement, with a glazed veranda on the side next the sea (frequent concerts in the evening). The Beach to the N. of the village is the principal rendezvous of the visitors. The N.W. part, adjoining the Victorihalle, is the Damenstrand (from which gentlemen are excluded till 2 p.m.); the N. part is the Herrenstrand (with the 'Giftbude' Restaurant).

The island is bounded on three sides by Dünen, or sand-hills, 30-50 ft. in height, formed by the action of the wind, partly overgrown with the peculiar 'Heim' grass, and presenting a barrier to the encroachments of the sea. The island, however, has frequently suffered seriously from storms, and bulwarks of masonry have therefore been constructed for its additional protection.

Borkum (Kaiserhof, Köhler's Hotel, Bakker's, Victoria, and several other hotels; private rooms 15-40 M weekly), situated at the mouth of the Ems, 9 M. from the Dutch coast and between the channels called the Oster Ems and Wester Ems, is the westernmost of the E. Frisian islands. It is 5 M. long and $2\frac{1}{2}$ M. broad, and possesses pleasant green pastures, which support an excellent breed of milch cattle. The island is visited by about 12,500 sea-bathers annually. Excellent beach for bathing, $\frac{3}{4}$ M. from the village, but suitable at high tide only. There is also an establishment with warm baths. In the village is an old lighthouse, 153 ft. in height, and near it a new one, 40 ft. higher. — The E. side of Borkum and the Dutch island of Rottum are the haunts of thousands of sea-fowl, which breed there (ticket of admission to breeding-place 30 pf.).

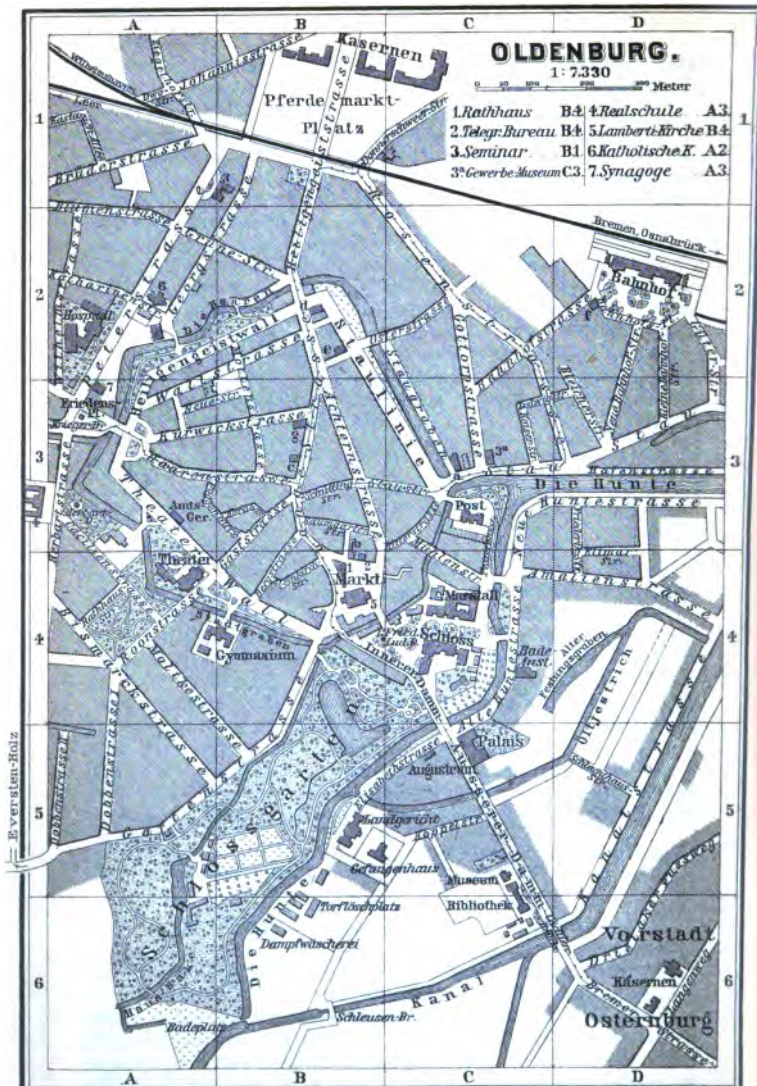

The most important of the other E. Frisian Islands are Wangeroog, Juist, and Spiekeroog, all also frequented for sea-bathing.

16. From Bremen to Leer and Emden.

77 M. RAILWAY from Bremen to Leer in $2\frac{3}{4}$ -3 hrs. (fares 6 M, 4 M 50 pf., 3 M); from Leer to Emden in $\frac{1}{2}$ - $\frac{3}{4}$ hr. (fares 2 M 10, 1 M 80, 1 M 10 pf.).

From (16 M.) Hude, with a picturesque ruined monastery (begun 1296), a branch-line runs to (27 M.) Nordenham (Friesischer Hof), the starting-point of the mail steamers of the North German Lloyd (steam-ferry to Geestemünde, p. 164).

Oldenburg, the capital of the grand-duchy of that name, is a quiet and pleasant town on the Hunte, with 25,500 inhab., surrounded by handsome avenues and modern dwelling-houses, which have superseded the old ramparts.

In the market-place are the new Rathhaus (Pl. 1; B, 4), built in 1885-87, and the Lamberti-Kirche (Pl. 5; B, 4), dating from the 13th cent. but rebuilt in the 18th cent. and restored in 1874-86.

Near the centre of the town is the grand-ducal RESIDENZ-SCHLOSS (Pl. C, 4), erected in the 17th and 18th cent.; it contains some modern pictures (by Willers, Tischbein, Rahl, Preller, Verboeckhoven, Kaulbach, Gabriel Max, etc.), cartoons of the 'Nibelungen-lied' by Schnorr von Carolsfeld, a few sculptures, a library (open daily, 10-12.30), and a considerable collection of engravings and coins. Opposite the palace are the Ducal Stables (open to visitors). To the W. of the palace is a Statue of Duke Peter Frederick Lewis (d. 1829), by Gundelach. — To the S., between the Hunte and the Garten-Strasse, lies the Palace Garden*, with the new palace of the crown-prince. In the vicinity is a fine park named the Everstenholz.

Crossing the Hunte and pursuing a straight direction, we observe the PALAIS (Pl. C, 5), the residence of the Grand Duke, on the left, which also contains a number of good modern pictures and a few sculptures. — A few hundred paces farther, to the S., we reach the Museum (Pl. C, 5), a Renaissance edifice, containing extensive collections of Germanic and other antiquities, and of objects of natural history (adm. on Wed. and Sat. 3-6, Sun. 12-2; at other times on application; fee). Adjacent is the Public Library, containing about 110,000 vols. and MSS. (adm. 10-1. 30).

To the right of the Palais, in the Elisabeth-Strasse, rises the Augustinum*, a handsome edifice in the late-Renaissance style (1866), containing the valuable grand-ducal picture-gallery of old masters (adm. daily 10-1, Sun. 12-2). Catalogue 75 pf.

The staircase is adorned with frescoes by Griepenkerl, representing the development of art in antiquity, the middle ages, the Renaissance, and modern times.

Among the most valuable pictures are the following: 7. Fra Angelico, Madonna; 8. Massaccio (?), Portrait of himself; Guido Reni, 64. St. James, 65. Archangel Gabriel; 69. A. Carracci, Death of St. Francis; 83. L. Lotto, Cavalier; 108. Murillo, Madonna; 108. Lucas van Leyden, Count Etzard I. of E. Friesland; 121-125. Rubens, Prometheus, Shepherds, Portrait of a Man, St. Francis, Nymphs, Satyrs, and Amoretti; 192-197. Rembrandt, The artist's Mother, The Apostle Philip, Old man, Angel in the house of Tobias, Before the Storm. 271. Schongauer, Madonna. 275-279. Lucas Cranach, Martin Luther, Erasmus, Fragment of a picture of the Sermon on the Mount; Conversion of St. Paul; Melancthon. 306-308. J. H. Tischbein, Amazons, Bashkyri, Study of a head, Idylls.

The Theatre (Pl. A, 4) was rebuilt after a fire in 1891. The Industrial Museum (Pl. 3a; C, 3) is open from 10 to 1. Other important edifices are the Railway Station (Pl. D, 2), the Gymnasium, or grammar-school (Pl. A, B, 4), and the Modern School (Pl. 4, A, 3); in front of which last is a bust of Herbart the philosopher (b. at Oldenburg in 1776). In the Friedens-Platz is a monument in memory of the war of 1870-71.

FROM OLDENBURG TO WILHELMSHAVEN, 32½ M., railway in 1½ hr. (fares 3 ℔ 20, 2 ℔ 40, 1 ℔ 80 pf.). — 8 M. Rastede, once a large Benedictine abbey, founded in 1121, was converted into a château in 1550, and is now a summer-residence of the Grand Duke of Oldenburg; fine park in the English style. — 19 M. Varel (Hôtel Ebold*; Victoria, R. & B. 2¼ ℔; Schütting), a cheerful little town amid pretty scenery (favourite walks to the Stadtwald and Mühlenteich, with restaurants). A branch-line runs hence to (12 M.) Neuenburg, passing (7 M.) Bockhorn, whence an excursion may be made to the 'Neuenburg Urwald.' — From (24 M.) Ellenser-Damm a branch-line runs to (5 M.) Grabsteede. — 28 M. Sande, the junction of the railway to Norden (p. 158) and Emden (p. 157).

32½ M. Wilhelmshaven (Hempel*, Roon-Str., R., L., & A. from 2½, B. 1, D. 2-2½ ℔; Prinz Heinrich*, Kronprinzen-Str.; Kronprinz, Königs-Str.; Burg Hohentoller, at the station), the second war-harbour of Germany, constructed by the Prussians in 1866-69, on the N.W. side of the Jade-Busen. This basin, formed in the 18th cent. by an inundation, is upwards of 60 sq. M. in area, and is connected with the German Ocean by the Jade, a channel 3 M. wide. Wilhelmshaven, which now contains about 20,000 inhab., is a pleasant-looking town, laid out on an ample scale, with wide streets shaded by trees.

In front of the station is the Wilhelms-Platz, with a Monument to Emp. William I. (1896). To the S. are the Elisabethkirche and a Statue of Admiral Prince Adalbert of Prussia (d. 1873). — The Königs-Str. leads hence to (½ M.) the —

New Harbour (17 acres in area, and 25 ft. deep), for war-vessels in commission, for merchant vessels, and for torpedo boats (separate section). It is connected by locks with the New Channel ('Neue Einfahrt') and the Ems and Jade Canal. On the N. it communicates with the Fitting-out Harbour ('Ausrüstungs-Hafen'), to the E. of which are the Outer Harbour ('Vorhafen') and the 'Alte Einfahrt.' To the W. of the Fitting-out Harbour is the Bauhafen (building harbour; 400 yds. by 240 yds.). Connected with the latter are three dry-docks and two slips for the construction of vessels of all kinds. The dockyard, which is enclosed by a lofty wall, is not shown without a ticket of admission from the 'Registatur' of the 'Oberwerft-Direktion', Götter-Str. 8 (50 pf.; 8-11.30 and 1.30-6). In the Bauhafen lie all the vessels on the North Sea station which are not on service, chiefly large iron-clads. Ships in commission may be visited on application to the sentry on duty. — Strong fortifications have been erected at different points for the protection of the whole establishment. — To the N.E. of the town, beyond two large barracks, is the Observatory, with a time-ball. A good panorama is obtained from the 'Wasserturm' in the park (adm. 25 pf.).

FROM OLDENBURG TO OSNABRÜCK, 69½ M., railway in 2¼-3¼ hrs. (fares 6 ℔ 80, 5 ℔ 10, 3 ℔ 40 pf.). Unimportant stations. From (39 M.) Quakenbrück (Rothes Haus), an industrious little town on the Haase, possessing an old abbey-church, a line diverges to (102 M.) Oberhausen (p. 68) passing Rheine, Burgsteinfurt, and Coesfeld. — Osnabrück, see p. 133.

37 M. Zwischenahn (Kurhaus; Röben), pleasantly situated on a lake and visited as a summer-resort. — The line intersects the extensive Hoch-Moor (p. 157). Beyond (47 M.) Augustfehn, with large iron-works, the train crosses the Prussian frontier.

61½ M. Leer, and thence to (77 M.) Emden, see p. 157.

17. From Hanover to Hamburg.

112 M. RAILWAY. Express in 3¼ hrs. (fares 18 M 30, 12 M 10, 8 M 50 pf.); ordinary trains in 4½-5¼ hrs. (fares 14 M 50, 10 M 90, 7 M 30 pf.).

Hanover, see p. 134. — 10 M. Lehrte, the junction of the Berlin-Hanover-Cologne (p. 105), Brunswick-Magdeburg (p. 105), and Hildesheim (p. 141) lines.

26½ M. Celle (Bockstöver's Hotel; Hôtel de Hanovre*; Sasse), on the Aller, with 19,400 inhab., is the seat of the higher provincial tribunal of Hanover. The old Schloss, formerly the residence of the Dukes of Brunswick-Lüneburg, is partly late-Gothic, and partly in the Renaissance style. The altar-piece of the interesting Chapel is by Martin de Vos of Antwerp (1569). The old Parish Church contains the ducal burial-vaults, in which also rests the Danish queen Caroline Matilda (d. 1775). In the 'French Garden', outside the town, rises a monument to that queen; in the grounds of the 'Trift' is one to A. Thaer, the agriculturist, born at Celle in 1752 (d. 1828).

60 M. Uelzen, junction for the Stendal and Bremen line (p. 106). Beyond (68 M.) Bevensen the dreary Lüneburger Haide is traversed.

81 M. Lüneburg (Wellenkamp*; Deutsches Haus*; Hamburger Hof; Hoffnung), an old town with 22,300 inhab., on the navigable Ilmenau, possessing salt-works which have long been of some importance, was a prominent member of the Hansa in the middle ages. A number of public, and many handsome private buildings, in the late-Gothic and Renaissance styles, are memorials of the town's prosperity in the 14-16th centuries.

On quitting the station (Pl. F, 2), which lies to the E. of the town, and crossing the Ilmenau, we may reach the market either by the Allenbrücker-Thor (Pl. F, 3) to the left, or by the Lüner-Thor (Pl. E, 1) to the right. By the former route we pass the church of St. John* (Pl. E, 3), a Gothic edifice with double aisles, dating from the middle of the 14th cent., with a lofty tower and handsome carved altar of the 15th cent. (sacristan, Johanniskirchhof 25). If we choose the other way we pass the church of St. Nicholas* (Pl. D, 2), with a lofty nave and double aisles, dating from 1409 and containing some good paintings and valuable old embroidered vestments.

In the Market Place, which is adorned with a fountain of 1530 with a modern basin, rises the RATHHAUS (Pl. D, C, 2), a pile of various buildings dating from the 13th down to the 18th century (custodian, Lichter, in the Marien-Platz). The most remarkable part is the so-called Laube*, of the 14th cent. (restored in 1888), with beautiful stained-glass windows, cabinets, and interesting mural decorations (about 1525). The Körgemach, or election room, dates from the 16th century. The Fürstensaal, dating from the 16th cent., contains electroplate copies of the Lüneburg silver service now in Berlin (p. 64); the Rathsstube*, of 1566-83, contains admirable carved work by Albert von Soest, an elaborately wrought iron gate by H. Ruge of 1576, etc. The W. part of the Rathhaus, called the Kämmereigebäude, contains a beautifully carved wooden door and a fine panelled and carved room of the end of the 16th cent. (first floor). — The Town Library (Pl. C, 2) possesses several MSS. with beautiful miniatures of the 15th cent. (Thurs., 11-1). — The Gymnasium (Pl. E, 4) contains natural history and other collections (adm. 50 pf.). — The church of St. Michael (Pl. B, 3), with a crypt, erected in 1376-1418, contains the burial-vault of the Guelph-Billung princes.

The Kalkberg (Pl. A, 3), a little to the W. of the town, is a good point of view. — About $\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the N.E. of the Lüne-Thor is the Benedictine nunnery of Lüne, founded in 1172, a brick building dating from the end of the 14th cent., with many additions of the 18th. In the church is an early-Gothic Altar-Antependium*, with paintings of the 13th century. Fine cloisters.

FROM LÜNEBURG TO BÜCHEN, $18\frac{1}{2}$ M., railway in $\frac{3}{4}$ hr. (fares 3 M 20, 2 M 40, 1 M 70 pf.). — 11 M. Lauenburg (Weisser Schwan), a small town with 5300 inhab., the capital of the former duchy of Lauenburg. — $18\frac{1}{2}$ M. Büchen, on the Berlin and Hamburg railway (p. 207); thence to Lübeck, see R. 22.

Beyond Lüneburg the train passes Bardowiek, once the chief commercial town of N. Germany. It was destroyed by Henry the Lion in 1189, and fragments of the vast cathedral now alone remain, incorporated with a Gothic church (date about 1400). Pop. 1700.

105 M. Harburg (Weisser Schwan; König von Schweden; Stadt Lüneburg, second-class; Brit. vice-consul; steamer from Hamburg, see p. 173), an increasing town with 42,600 inhab., and a busy seaport, is the junction for the Bremen and Cuxhaven lines (p. 186).

Beyond Harburg the line crosses the Süder-Elbe, traverses the fertile island of Wilhelmsburg (comp. Map, p. 186), crosses the Norder-Elbe, and enters the handsome 'Hanover Station' at — 112 M. Hamburg (see below).

18. Hamburg.

Railway Stations. There are four main railway-stations in Hamburg and Altona: 1. Berlin Station (Pl. G, 3), for Berlin, Leipsic, and Mecklenburg (R. 22); 2. Hanover Station (Pl. G, 4), for Hanover, Bremen, Cologne, Magdeburg, and Leipsic; 3. Lübeck Station (Pl. G, H, 3), for Lübeck, Mecklenburg, and Pomerania; 4. Altona Station, in Altona. — Besides these there are the stations on the JUNCTION RAILWAY ('Verbindungsbahn') between the Hanover station in Hamburg and the station in Altona: vis. Klosterthor (Pl. G, 3), Dammthor (Pl. F, 2), Sternschance (Pl. D, 1), and Holstenstrasse (Pl. B, C, 2). The Junction Railway is 5 M. long (20 min.; fares 30, 20, 15 pf.). — Cabs, see p. 172. — Numbers are given out as at Berlin (p. 1).

Hamburg, with 626,000 inhab., is the largest of the three free Hanseatic towns of the German Empire, and next to London, Liverpool, and New York, the most important commercial place in the world. It is advantageously situated on the broad lower Elbe, in which the tide rises twice daily so as to admit of the entrance of vessels of 23 ft. draught, and is also connected by railways with every part of Europe. The town consists of the Altstadt and Neustadt, the former suburb of St. George (N.E.), and the suburb of St. Pauli (W.), together with a number of adjacent villages. Besides the Elbe, there are two small rivers at Hamburg called the Alster and the Bille. The former, flowing from the N., forms a large basin outside the town, and a smaller one within it, called the Aussen-Alster (p. 184) and Binnen-Alster (p. 179) respectively, and then intersects the town in two main branches. The Bille comes from the E. Both are finally discharged through locks into the canals (Fleete) which flow through the lower part of the town.

Nothing certain is known of the origin of Hamburg, but as early as 811 (?) Charlemagne founded a castle here, to which he soon added a church, presided over by a bishop, whose mission was to propagate Christianity in these northern regions. The Counts of Holstein, within whose jurisdiction Hamburg was situated, and particularly Adolph III. and IV., became great benefactors of the town, and procured for it many privileges and immunities which formed the foundation of its subsequent independence. Hamburg joined the Hanseatic League (p. 184), at an early period, and played a prominent part in its contest with the Danish kings in the 13th and 14th centuries. The city was also honourably distinguished in the good work of sweeping the sea of pirates. The discovery of America and of the sea-route to India was not without effect in stimulating the trade of Hamburg, which, however, did not compete with that of England and Holland. In 1529 the citizens adopted the reformed faith, and at the same time established a free political constitution. Hamburg fortunately remained unaffected by the Thirty Years' War, chiefly owing to the powerful fortifications constructed at the beginning of that struggle, and now partly converted into promenades. Dissensions, however, which frequently arose between the Council and the citizens, proved very detrimental to the welfare of the city. Towards the middle of last century her prosperity began to return, chiefly owing to the establishment of that direct communication with America, which to this day forms the mainspring of her commercial importance; but at the beginning of the present century the citizens were doomed to an overwhelming reverse. In 1810 Hamburg was annexed to the French Empire, and the citizens having in 1813 attempted to rebel against the foreign yoke, Davoust wreaked his vengeance on them with unexampled barbarity (p. 183). During those years of disaster, from 1806 to 1814, the direct loss sustained by the city is estimated at 240-270 million marks, an enormous sum in proportion to the population and the value of money at that period. After the Peace of Vienna Hamburg rapidly increased in extent, and notwithstanding the appalling fire which raged from 5th to 8th May, 1842, and destroyed nearly a quarter of the city, and the temporary disasters occasioned by frequently recurring commercial crises, she has never ceased to prosper since she regained her independence. The most important event of her recent history has been her accession to the German Customs' Union (Zollverein) in 1838.

Down to the beginning of the present century Hamburg enjoyed no inconsiderable reputation in the literary world. In 1678 the first theatre in Germany for operas was founded here; in 1767 Lessing visited Hamburg with a view to assist in the foundation of a national theatre; and Klopstock resided in the König-Strasse (No. 62) here from 1774 to 1803.

The history of the city, together with the enterprising character of its inhabitants, and partly, likewise, the above-mentioned fire of 1842, sufficiently account for the almost entire disappearance of all relics of the past, and for its thoroughly modern aspect. In a few streets, however, such as the Reichen-Str. (Pl. F, 3), the Wandrahm (Pl. F, 3, 4), and the Cremon (Pl. E, 4), there are still many handsome residences of Hamburg merchants of the 17th and 18th centuries.

The Harbour, where numerous vessels from all quarters of the globe generally lie, presents a busy and picturesque scene. The quays stretch along the right bank of the Norder-Elbe from Altona to the Elbe bridge (p. 176), a distance of 5 M., and accommodate upwards of 400 sea-going vessels, as many from the upper Elbe, and a large number of barges and smaller river-craft. The greater part of the port forms a Free Harbour or Bonded Warehouse District (Freihafengebiet), which comprizes 1750 acres of land and 750 acres of water, and is bounded by floating palisades in the Elbe and by the Zoll-Kanal on the side of the city. The total cost of the harbour-works executed in 1879-88 was 140 million marks. The Freihafengebiet is approached by the Kaiser or Brooks-Brücke (Pl. F, 4), adorned with statues of Germania and Hammonia, and by several other bridges. Nothing liable to duty should be taken inside the Free Harbour limits.

Statistics. In 1894 the port of Hamburg was entered by 9165 vessels, of an aggregate burden of 6,223,821 tons, including 6506 steamers, and was quitted by 9175 vessels of 6,243,875 tons, of which 6490 were steamers. The total value of the imports in 1894 amounted to 2359 million marks. The chief articles of commerce are coffee, sugar, spirits, dyes, wine, iron, grain, butter, hides, and fancy goods, the last five of which constitute the most important exports. The number of emigrants who embarked here in 1894 was 90,000. At the end of 1894 the Hamburgers were proprietors of 289 sailing-vessels, and 365 steamboats of 473,934 tons. The English trade with the north of Europe is chiefly carried on via Hamburg.

The best view of the port is obtained in the course of one of the circular trips (see p. 173). To the left beyond the customs boundary is the SANDTHOR-HAFEN, 1100 yds. in length and 100-140 yds. in width, bounded by the Sandthor-Quai and the Kaiser-Quai, where Mediterranean, British, and Dutch steamers lie, and also some emigrant vessels. It is interesting to watch the discharging of the English colliers here, for which a limited time (12-15 hrs.) is granted. At the W. end of the Kaiser-Quai is a Government Granary, capable of accommodating 15,000 tons. To the S. is the GRASBROOK-HAFEN, with the Dalmann-Quai and the Hübener-Quai, for the Atlantic liners and French and Swedish steamers. By the Strand-Quai, the outer wharf, lie the S. American emigrant-ships, the white-painted mail-steamers for E. Africa, the Woermann steamers for W. Africa, and the Norwegian tourist steamers. Farther on are Passenger Waiting Rooms. Beyond the Gas Works and the MAGDEBURGER HAFEN, both to the left, opens the BAAKEN-HAFEN, between the Versmann-Quai and the Petersen-Quai, used by Atlantic liners. At the Petersen-Quai lie the emigrant-steamers of the Hamburg-American Steam Packet Co., the express steamers of which are too large to ascend above Brunshausen (p. 186). — Our steamer now proceeds up the Elbe, passing the Kirchenspauer-Quai (for smaller ships), to the large railway-bridge (see below), which marks the end of the free port, and then descends by the S. bank. Passing the MOLDAU-HAFEN (rivercraft) at the Veddelhöft, and a lofty Steam-Crane with a lifting-power of 150 tons, we reach the Asia Quai (N.) and America Quai (S.), between which lies the SEGELSCHIFF-HAFEN (1320 yds. long and 150-300 yds. wide), in which lie the large sailing-vessels (visit to an emigrant-ship, see p. 173; tickets to view ships obtained also from the gate-keeper of the America Quai, 30 pf.). At the end of the America Quai is a cheap Dining Hall, the upper rooms of which command a fine view of the harbour. Next follow the Hansa-Hafen (opened in 1894), the India-Hafen, the Petroleum-Hafen, and a series of Wet and Dry Docks, Ship-building Yards, etc.

An interesting walk may also be taken by the Brooks-Brücke (p. 175) to the Sandthor Quai (p. 175) with its huge granaries. From the W. end of the quay a ferry-boat (p. 173) may be taken to the Elbe bridge (see below); thence by tramway to the town.

Between the Brookthor-Hafen and the Oberhafen, to the S., is situated the large Hanover Station (Pl. G, 4). A little to the E. of the station is the handsome Iron Railway Bridge, erected in 1868-73 and widened in 1894. About 250 yds. farther up is an iron Bridge (completed in 1888) for carriages and foot-passengers.

The Elbhöhe* (Pl. D, 3), above the landing-place of St. Pauli, commands one of the finest views near the harbour, embracing the Elbe, with its numerous islands, forest of masts, and gaily-coloured flags, and St. Pauli and Altona. On the height in front stands the Meteorological Station of the German Admiralty (adm. on Tues. and Frid., fee; the tower is open every day). On the adjacent height to the W. rises the Seemannshaus, where unemployed mariners are accommodated at a cheap rate, and the aged and sick are received gratuitously. — A similar view is enjoyed from Wiesel's Hotel (Restaur., see p. 171), on the hill opposite the Seemannshaus to the E.

St. Pauli (restaurants, see p. 171; tramways, see p. 173), the suburb contiguous to Hamburg on the W., also known as Hamburger Berg, is principally frequented by sailors, for whose amusement booths and shows of every description abound. The scene witnessed here on a Sunday or Monday afternoon, especially at the Spielbuden-Platz, is a characteristic phase of Hamburg low life. In the Circus Weg is the handsome Circus Benz. — Adjacent, in the large Heiligengeist-Feld, are two Panoramas, one representing the Battle of Mars-la-Tour (adm. 1 M., Sun. 50 pf.), and another depicting the 'Augusta Victoria' in the English Channel. — In the Neue Pferdemarkt No. 13, is Hagenbeck's extensive Animal Collection (Pl. D, 2; on sale); feeding-time 3 p.m.; adm. 50 pf., Sun. 30 pf.

We may now return by the Zeughaus-Markt (Pl. D, 3) and the Neue and Alte Steinweg, forming the Jews' quarter, where brokers' shops abound. — A few paces to the S. rises the large St. Michaeliskirche* (Pl. E, 3), erected in 1750-62. The boldly-constructed interior, which is destitute of pillars, can contain 6000 persons. The tower, 426 ft. in height and completed in 1786, commands an admirable view of the city and the river, best by evening-light (adm., 1 pers. 1 M. 20, 2 pers. 1 M. 80, 3-8 pers. 2 M. 40 pf.; apply to the castellan, Englische Planke 2).

At the Exchange*, or Börse (Pl. F, 3), the great focus of business, four or five thousand brokers, merchants, and ship-owners congregate daily between 1.30 and 2.15 o'clock (admission gratis). The building, erected in 1839-41 and enlarged in 1880-84, was provided with a sandstone façade in 1894. The groups surmounting the edifice on either side of the pediment are by Riss. On the first floor is the Börsenhalle, a reading-room well supplied with newspapers (ticket necessary). The Commercial Library, belonging to the Exchange, contains about 100,000 vols. (open 10-4). In the extension on the Alte Wall is an Art Exhibition (adm., see p. 172).

Adjoining the Exchange on the N.E., and facing the Rathhaus-Markt, is the new Rathhaus* (Pl. F, 3), an imposing edifice in the German Renaissance style, begun in 1886 from designs by Grotjan, Haller, Hanssen, Hauers, Meerwein, Stammann, and Zinnov. The interior is still unfinished. The exterior is richly adorned with sculptures. On the façade are bronze statues of 20 German emperors, and above it are bronze figures of SS. Michael, Catharine, Peter, and Nicholas, the patron-saints of the four city parishes. Above the windows of the main floor are popular Hamburg types and the arms of Hanseatic towns. The tower, 360 ft. high, is surmounted by the German eagle. Over the portal are four figures emblematical of the civic virtues and the motto 'libertatem quam peperere majores digne studeat conservare posteritas'. The façade towards the court is adorned with statues of SS. Paul and George (for the suburbs) and others of benefactors of the city. The beautiful 'Brautpforte' (bridal door) leads to the room for civil marriages. The Archives are preserved on the groundfloor. In the middle of the building is a large hall for festivities.

The vaults of the central building form the 'Bathweinkeller', opened in 1896 (entr. from the Grosse-Johannis-Str.). Passing a stone figure of Bacchus (18th cent.), we enter the Vestibule, gaily decorated with stained glass and paintings referring to Hamburg history and customs, by Allers. The galleries at the sides lead to the Remter (8.) and the Rosenkrans, both adorned with mural paintings by Pütger and Duyffcke. Beyond the Vestibule is the Tavern proper, with paintings by Jordan; and eight steps descend hence to the 'Grundsteinkeller', with the foundation stone of the building, laid on 8th May, 1886.

To the S.E. of the Adolphi-Platz are the Imperial Bank, and the premises of the 'Patriotische Gesellschaft', or Patriotic Club, founded by Reimarus and others in 1765. The building was erected in a Gothic style in 1845-47, and contains the meeting-rooms of various artistic and learned societies.

The Trostbrücke, on which are statues of Count Adolf III. of Schauenburg (p. 174) and of Ansgar, the first Bishop of Hamburg (both by Pfeiffer), leads direct to the *Church of St. Nicholas (Pl. F, 3; admission daily in summer from 12.30 to 2.30 p.m., gratis; at other times on application to the sacristan, Neuenburg 28, opposite the N. transept), erected after the fire of 1842 by Sir Gilbert Scott in the rich Gothic style of the 13th century. Length 285 ft.; breadth of the transept 151 ft. The W. tower, completed in 1874, 473 ft. in height, is one of the highest buildings in Europe (Ulm Cathedral 528 ft., Cologne Cathedral 512 ft.). In the rich sculpture of the exterior and interior, it was intended to perpetuate the memory of all the chief promoters and propagators of Christianity. Fine stained-glass windows, organ, and chimes. The beautiful in-tarsia work of the door of the sacristy, by Planbeck, also deserves notice.

In front of the W. façade of the church lies the Hopfen-Markt. — St. Catharine's Church (Pl. F, 4), to the S.E. of St. Nicholas, on the opposite side of the broad canal, contains some old German paintings, Renaissance tombstones, a marble pulpit of 1630, and a fine organ. — To the N.E. is the Dovenhof (Pl. E, 5), containing more than 100 offices.

Near the Exchange, to the N.E., rises St. Peter's Church (Pl. F, 3), burned down in 1842, and re-erected in the Gothic style of the 14th cent. (sacristan, Paul-Str. 9). The chief objects of interest are the ring on the door of the tower, of 1342; the canopy over the pulpit, of the 14th cent.; the granite columns of the old cathedral, which was taken down in 1806; the new stained-glass windows by Kellner of Nuremberg, and to the left in the altar-niche a fine relief, representing the Entombment, by H. Schubert.

To the S.E., opposite the church, is the Johanneum (Pl. F, 4), erected in 1834, and containing the college of that name founded in 1529. In the court is a monument to Johann Bugenhagen, the Hamburg reformer, by Pfeiffer, erected in 1885.

The S. wing contains the City Library, consisting of about 550,000 vols. and 5000 MSS., and comprising many rare works, particularly in early theological literature (open on week-days, 11-12, reading-room 11-4).

— On the groundfloor is the Museum of Hamburg and German Antiquities, where among other curiosities is preserved an old tombstone representing an ass blowing the bagpipe, with the quaint inscription, 'De Werlt heft sik ummekert, darumme so hebbe ik arme eesel pipen gheleert'.

In the Pferde-Markt is the Thalia Theatre (Pl. F, 3, 4; p. 172), a Renaissance edifice erected in 1842, with seats for 1800 spectators. To the S., in the Fish Market, is the tasteful Kaiserbrunnen. — To the E. is the Jacobikirche (Pl. F, 3), which with a number of the surrounding houses survived the fire of 1842. — To the S., on the Messberg (Pl. F, 3), is a fountain with a figure of a woman of the Vierlande (p. 207).

The Binnen-Alster*, usually called the Alster-Bassin (Pl. F, 3; comp. p. 174), and its environs, are unquestionably Hamburg's greatest attraction. This sheet of water, of an irregular quadrilateral form, 50 acres in extent and upwards of 1 M. in circumference, is bounded on three sides by quays planted with trees and flanked with palatial hotels and handsome private dwellings, named respectively the Alte and Neue Jungfernstieg, and the Alsterdamm, while the fourth side towards the Aussen-Alster is laid out in promenades connected by means of the Lombards-Brücke (Pl. F, 2). The surface of the water is enlivened with steam-launches (p. 173), rowing-boats, and groups of swans, and the banks are a favourite promenade, especially on fine summer-evenings, when they present a picturesque appearance by gas-light. The Jungfernstieg, where the Alster-Pavillon (p. 172) is situated, is the scene of the busiest traffic. Adjoining it on the S.E. are the Alster Arcades with attractive shops, which run parallel with the easternmost of the two arms of the Alster (p. 174) from the Reesendammbrücke to the Schleusenbrücke. The Stadthaus (Pl. E, 3), in the busy Neue Wall, was rebuilt in 1891 and is now occupied by the police authorities.

The ramparts near the Lombards-Brücke command an admirable view of the expansive Aussen-Alster to the N., with its banks studded with villas, and the Binnen-Alster to the S., with the towers of the city in the background. On the E. rampart rises a bronze Statue of Schiller (Pl. F, 2) by Lippelt, erected in 1866. The Alsterlust, a popular resort on the Aussen-Alster, possesses concert and dancing halls, terraces, baths, etc. (see p. 172).

On the Alsterhöhe, immediately to the E., rises the Kunst-halle* (Pl. F, 2, 3; open daily, except Mon., in summer 10-5, in winter 11-4), erected in 1867-69 in the early-Italian Renaissance style and enlarged in 1886-86. Catalogue 50 pf.; appendix 60 pf.

Ground Floor. In the wall of the vestibule are two small marble reliefs, youthful works by Schilling. To the right is a room for exhibitions, with portraits of benefactors of the institution. Adjacent is the READING ROOM (tickets obtained in the Cabinet of Engravings) with some early paintings. Nos. 20a, 19. J. Brueghel, Cup and wafer in a garland of flowers, Landscape with stag-hunt; 142. Guido Reni, Judith; 91. Angelbach, Hunting party; 6. Backhuizen, Sea-piece; 85. Ph. de Koninck, Jairus's Daughter; 111. Murillo (?), Boy with fruit; 63. J. van Goyen, Fortified city; 24. Carracci, Madonna; 80. Huysum, Landscape; 628. Ribera, Madonna; 149. Sai-

E. side, to the right of the hall: Variations of Animals, their Means of Attack and Defence, Protective Colouring, Development and Eggs, Useful and Harmful Lower Animals. — The GALLERY FLOOR contains the Ethnographical Collection (guide 15 pf.) and the Collection of Prehistoric Antiquities.

To the E., in the ST. GEORGE QUARTER, are the Gewerbe-Schule and the Real-Schule, with the interesting Industrial Art Museum (Pl. G, 3; adm. daily except Mon., in summer 10-5, winter 10-4). The museum, which contains fine collections of porcelain and Japanese metal-work, is second only to that of Berlin among museums of the kind in Germany. The objects are provided with labels, and catalogues are also furnished for general use.

The Hansa Fountain, in the Hansa-Platz (Pl. G, 3), 66 ft. in height, was erected in 1878 from a design by E. Peiffer. — The Old General Hospital (Pl. G, H, 2) is an admirable institution; the chapel contains a good picture by Overbeck. The New General Hospital is at Eppendorf (steam-tramways, see p. 173). — Near the Old Hospital, by the Lübeck Gate (Pl. H, 2), is the Botanic Museum, containing fine collections of fruit and sea-weeds (open 11-2, Sun. 10-3, closed on Mon.). In the same building is a Commercial Laboratory.

Among the other scientific institutions of Hamburg are the Chemical Laboratory, the Physical Laboratory, and the Observatory (open daily).

In the Anlagen, or public promenades laid out on the old fortifications, near the Lombards-Brücke, which affords a fine view of the Alster, is an Obelisk, erected in memory of J. G. Büsch (d. 1800), the political economist. A little farther on, at the beginning of the Esplanade (Pl. E, F, 2), a handsome street with a double avenue of trees, rises a Monument to the Hamburgers who fell in the war of 1870-71, designed by Schilling of Dresden. — To the W., in the Stephans-Platz, is the handsome Post Office (Pl. E, 2), a large Renaissance building with a lofty tower. Inside are interesting mural paintings. — Near it, in the Dammthor-Str., is the Stadt-Theater (Pl. E, 2; p. 172), with 2500 seats. — In the Gänse-Markt, to the S., is a Statue of Lessing (Pl. E, 2), by Schaper, unveiled in 1881; on the pedestal are medallions of Ekhof and Reimarus.

On the left, immediately outside the Dammthor, lies the Botanical Garden (Pl. E, 2; open daily), with its Victoria Regia house. — A little beyond it are a Panorama (Pl. E, 2) of the Battle of Würth, by Faber du Faur (adm. 1 M., Sun. 50 pf.), and the Zoological Garden (Pl. E, 2; adm. 1 M., on Sun. in summer alternately 50 and 30 pf.; Restaurant), one of the most extensive and best organised in Germany. The most interesting points are the elephant house, the dens of the beasts of prey (feeding-hour 7 p.m.), the Eulenburg (view), the cascade grotto, the bears' den (feeding-time 5.30 p.m.), the Aquarium (adm. 40, on Sun. 15 or 20 pf.), the terrarium, and the Ernst-Merck-Halle, containing a concert-room and winter-garden, with the bust of the founder of the gardens. — In the adjacent Moorweide is the Wilhelms-Gymnasium (Pl. E, 1).

The Cemeteries, laid out as gardens, adjoin the Zoological Garden on the S.W. On the N. side, opposite the Petrikirchhof, is a sarcophagus commemorating the fate of 1138 citizens of Hamburg, 'who, having been banished by Marshal Davoust, together with many thousands of their fellow-citizens during the severe winter of 1813-14, fell victims to grief, starvation, and disease'.

The finest part of the Promenades is that between the Dammthor and the Holstenthor (Pl. D, E, 2), laid out in 1881. Outside the Holstenthor is the new Palace of Justice (Pl. D, E, 2) for the upper courts of the Hanseatic towns, designed by Zimmermann.

About 1½ M. from the Deichthor (Pl. G, 3) are the extensive Waterworks of Rothenburgsort (tramway, see p. 173). *View from the tower (240 ft. high). The new sand-filtering waterworks are on the islands of Kaltehofe and Billwärder. — Opposite to Rothenburgsort is the end of a large cutting constructed in 1873-77 to regulate the amount of water in the N. Elbe.

The banks of the Aussen-Alster* (430 acres in area) are sprinkled with country-houses, gardens, and parks. One of the favourite points is the Uhlenhorst (Hôtel-Restaurant Fährhaus*, concerts daily in summer), which may be reached either by tramway (p. 173) or by steamer from the Jungfernstieg. The latter route is recommended. Passengers should alight at August-Strasse and walk to the ferry, $\frac{1}{2}$ M., and there cross to the Fährhaus. Opposite the landing-stage at August-Strasse is a bronze group of a Walkyrie inspiring a warrior for the fray, by Krause. — Farther on are Harvestehude, with a handsome new church, and the lime-tree of the poet Hagedorn (d. 1754) on the Licentiatenberg; and Eppendorf (Restaurant zur Rothbuche; cab 1 M. 80 pf.). To the N. lies Ohlsdorf, with a large new cemetery and a crematorium.

Wandsbeck (railway, p. 193; steam-tramway, p. 173; cab 2 M. 40 pf.; Altes Posthaus Hotel; Marienhof; Reimer), a town in Holstein, with 21,700 inhab., about 3 M. to the N.E., was once the residence of Matthias Claudius (d. 1815), the 'Wandsbecker Bote', who, with his wife, is buried in the churchyard here. A simple monument has been erected to him in the Wandsbeck grove, consisting of a block of granite, bearing his name, hat, wallet, and staff.

Persons interested in missionary establishments should visit the Rauhe Haus at Horn, 3 M. to the E. of Hamburg, on the road to Bergedorf (tramway, see p. 173; cab 2 M. 40 pf.). — The annual Hamburg Horse Races take place on a common at Horn.

A double avenue leads from the Millern-Thor at Hamburg (Pl. D, 3) through the suburb of St. Pauli (p. 176) to Altona; cabs, tramway, railway, and steamer, see pp. 172, 173 and below.

Altona. — Hotels. KÖNIGLICHER HOF, opposite the station, R. & A. 2½, B. 1 M., L. 60 pf.; SONNE; BAHNHOF-HÔTEL, with garden-restaurant, these three near the station; *HOLSTEINISCHES HAUS, unpretending, R. & A. 3, B. 1, D. 2-2½ M. — The hotels of Altona are cheaper than those of Hamburg and are convenient for travellers on their way to Denmark and Schleswig-Holstein.

Restaurants. Pabst, Bürgerverein, König-Str. 115 and 154.

Theatres. Stadt-Theater (Pl. B, 3), König-Str. 164 (actors of Hamburg Stadt-Theater, prices lower).

Cabs. Drive within the town, 1-2 pers. 75 pf., each additional pers. 15 pf.; to Hamburg, 1-2 pers., 90 pf. to 1 M. 80 pf. Charges by time, for luggage, etc., the same as at Hamburg (see p. 172). Between 10 and 12 p.m., and between 5 and 7 a.m., a fare and a half; from midnight to 5 a.m., double fare. — Tramways see p. 173; Ringbahn every 5 minutes.

Post and Telegraph Office, Behn-Str. 5 (Pl. B, 3).

Altona, situated on the steep N. bank of the Elbe, and enviroined with gardens and villas, is a rapidly-increasing commercial and manufacturing town with 148,800 inhab. (includ. Ottensen), and the headquarters of the 9th Corps d'Armée. It came into the hands of Prussia in 1866 and is the largest town in the province of Schleswig-Holstein. The Harbour affords accommodation for large sea-going vessels, of which upwards of 900 entered the port in 1890. An interesting excursion may be made from the Altona harbour to the Hamburg harbour by steamer (p. 173) or by small boat (1-3 pers. 1 \mathcal{M} 20 pf.). The auctions in the Fish Market (Pl. C, 4; 5-10 a.m.) are interesting.

The most fashionable street in Altona is the PALMAILLE (Pl. B, 3, 4), planted with lime-trees, and affording pleasant glimpses of the Elbe; it is adorned with a bronze statue of Count Blücher, who was civil governor of Altona in 1808-45. Near the station is a Monument erected to commemorate the part taken by the 9th army-corps in the war of 1870-71, by Luthmer. The Museum (Pl. B, 3), Palmaille 44, contains an ethnographical and natural history collection and a library (open on Sun. 11-2, Wed. 11-1). — A fine view of the Elbe is obtained from the Elbberg (Pl. A, 4), near the war-monument.

In the KÖNIG-STRASSE (Pl. B, 3), the chief business-street of the town, are the Theatre (p. 184) and the Real-Gymnasium, the latter containing a Picture Gallery (Sun., 11-3; to strangers on application). Adjacent is a memorial to the Austrians who fell in the naval battle of Heligoland (May 9th, 1864). To the N., in the Markt-Str., is another War Monument, erected to the natives of Altona who fell in 1870-71.

The Roman Catholic Church (Pl. C, 3), in the Renaissance style, contains an altar-piece ascribed to Murillo. The large church of St. Pauli (Pl. C, 3) is conspicuous by its imposing copper-covered dome. The tasteful Gothic Johanniskirche or Norderkirche (Pl. C, 2), in the Allée, built in 1883, is one of the most successful modern brick structures in N. Germany. The Westerkirche, near the station, is by the same architect (Otzen).

At the W. end of Altona, near the station, begins Ottensen, a town incorporated with Altona in 1889, in the churchyard of which Kloppstock (1724-1803) and his two wives are interred. Their grave is shaded by an old lime, a few paces from the church-door.

FROM ALTONA TO BLANKENESSE, 6 M., railway in 20-25 min. (fares 80, 60, 40 pf.); from Hamburg to Altona, and thence to Blankenese, about $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. (fares 1 \mathcal{M} 30, 95, 65 pf.). Several of the trains go on to Wedel (12 M. from Altona, in about 1 hr.). As the scenery is pleasing, a drive to Blankenese in an open carriage is far preferable to the railway-journey. Cab from Altona to Blankenese 5-6 \mathcal{M} . — Even pedestrians will be rewarded by a walk along the bank of the Elbe to (8 M.) Blankenese, passing numerous villas and gardens. — The pleasantest way of making this excursion is to go to Blankenese by the steamboat (comp. p. 173; the large Stade steamers are the best), which commands fine views of the banks of the river, and return in a carriage, which may be hired at the Fährhaus in Blankenese, or at Jacob's in Nienstedten, 2 M. nearer Altona.

At the end of the pleasant village of Neumühlen rises the castellated Villa Donner. Booth's gardens at Flottbek (Park Hotel*, board 5-6 \mathcal{M}) and the park of the Jenisch family with their extensive hot-houses merit a visit. On the Elbe lies Teufelsbrücke (steamb. station). Farther on is Nienstedten (Jacob's Restaurant*). Then the garden of the Hamburg Senator G. Godeffroy, with a château in the Rhenish castellated style, situated on the high bank of the Elbe. We may walk through the Godaffroy Park to Thierry's Park and Baur's Garden (closed on Sun.). The finest view of the Elbe is obtained from the Süllberg* (250 ft.; Tavern* at the top), one of the hills among which lies the fishing-village of Blankenese (Restaurant* at the Fährhaus), $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. from the railway-station (4800 inhab.).

From Hamburg to Cuxhaven and Heligoland.

RAILWAY to (73 M.) Cuxhaven in $2\frac{1}{4}$ - $3\frac{1}{2}$ hrs. (fares 9 M 50, 7 M 40, & M 90 pf.). Carriages are sometimes changed at Harburg (p. 170), but the morning-express runs through to the harbour at Cuxhaven. — STEAMER from Cuxhaven to Heligoland once daily in summer in $2\frac{1}{4}$ hrs. (10 M, return-fare 14 M). Steamers also ply direct to Heligoland from Hamburg daily in summer (6-7 hrs.; fare 18, there and back 20 M), touching at Cuxhaven; and smaller steamers ply in summer 2-3 times weekly from Norderney (p. 165) and Föhr (p. 192).

The RAILWAY to CUXHAVEN, starting at the Hanover Station, runs via Harburg (p. 170), Buxtehude (Peper's Hotel), and Stade (Birnbäum), a town with 10,000 inhabitants. At the mouth of the Schwinge, $2\frac{1}{2}$ M. below Stade, lies Brunshausen, where the express steamers for New York anchor (comp. p. 176). — The STEAMBOAT JOURNEY affords a good view of Hamburg and the busy traffic on the lower part of the Elbe.

Cuxhaven (Belvedere*, with a pleasant pavilion facing the beach; Bellevue*, R., L., & A. 2-4 M; Cur-Hotel, with garden; Hansa-Bad; Glocke, unpretending; Restaurant Seepavillon), a busy and increasing place belonging to Hamburg, and united with the neighbouring Riesbüttel in 1872, is visited as a sea-bathing place. The castellated chateau of the 14th cent., which is visible from the Elbe, is one of the oldest secular structures in N. Germany. Pop. 4500. Brit. vice-consul and U. S. consular agent.

The steamer from Cuxhaven to Heligoland passes the island of Neuwert with its lighthouse. At the mouth of the Elbe, the banks of which have been fortified since 1870, three light-ships, and between them the pilot-ship, are passed, beyond which the open sea is reached. The sea-passage occupies $2\frac{1}{2}$ -3 hrs. only. Passengers are landed at Heligoland in small boats (tickets sold on board, 1 M).

Heligoland (Stadt London*, generally crowded in the height of summer, D. 3 M; Victoria, these two in the Oberland; Conversationshaus; Katterhof; Queen Victoria, D. 3 M; Princess Alexandra, B. 1, D. 3, pens. 6-8 M; numerous lodgings; visitors' tax 8 M per week), i. e. 'Holy Land', which formerly belonged to Schleswig, was taken by the English in 1807, though not officially recognized as English till 1810, but was ceded to Germany in 1890. On three sides the island, which consists of hard red clay and marl, and is about $\frac{1}{2}$ sq. M. only in area, rises nearly perpendicularly from the sea to a height of 180 ft., forming a long and narrow triangle called the Oberland. On the S.E. side only a low, flat bank of sand rises from the water, called the Unterland. The island contains 2100 inhab. of Frisian extraction, whose dialect, habits, and costume are in many respects peculiar. The bathing-season and the lobster-fishery are their chief sources of gain. The German language is used in the schools and church. The island is now strongly fortified.

The visitor disembarks on the UNTERLAND, on which are situated a bath-house, a basin used by bathers when prevented by stormy weather from crossing to the 'Düne' (p. 187), the Conversationshaus, etc. The principal streets are the Dünen-Strasse, or Gesundheits-Allee, on the N.E. side of the group of houses, and the Bindfaden-Allee, which runs parallel to the cliffs from N.E. to S.W. At the end of the latter is the 'Rothe Meer', a disused bathing-place so called from the colour with which the red clay tinges the waves. A Biological Station was opened here in 1892, and a bust of the poet Hoffmann von Fallersleben was erected in the same year.

From the Unterland an easy flight of 190 wooden steps and a Leit (10 pf.) ascend to the OBERLAND, a plateau planted chiefly with potatoes, and intersected by the Kartoffel-Allee. The pastures support goats and about 300 sheep only. The principal street in the village, called the Falm, skirting the S.E. margin of the cliff, commands a fine view of the Unterland, the downs, and the sea. The best views of the cliffs are obtained at the Søthern (South Horn) and Nøthern (North Horn), which last is a favourite point towards sunset. The Lighthouse merits a visit (see 50 pf.).

Opposite the Unterland, and separated from it by a strait $\frac{1}{4}$ M. in width and 12-16 ft. deep, is the Düne, or Sandnessel (ferry there and back 60 pf.), on the N. (left) side of which is the ladies', and on the S. (right) side the gentlemen's bathing-place.

Boat for the interesting excursion round the island, 1-8 pers. 3 M., 1-6 pers. 6 M., and fee. — An illumination of the rocks and grottoes takes place several times during the season, on which occasions the whole of the visitors hire boats in order to witness it to advantage. Many of the rocks have received fanciful names, such as the Nun, Monk, and Pastor. — The phenomenon of Phosphorescence is frequently seen to great advantage in the sea round Heligoland.

19. From Hamburg to Kiel.

70 M. RAILWAY in 2-3 hrs. (fares 8 M. 50, 6 M. 40, 4 M. 30 pf.; express 9 M. 60, 7 M. 50, 5 M. 30 pf.). — Tramway to Altona, see p. 173; Cab, see p. 172.

Hamburg, see p. 170. All the trains stop at the stations of Klosterthor, Dammthor, Sternschanze, and Holsten-Strasse. 5 M. Altona, see p. 184. The next stations are unimportant. 24 M. Elmsborn (Holsteinischer Hof; Stadt Lübeck; Stadt Hamburg), with 2200 inhab., a prosperous town on the Krückeau, whence a branch-railway runs to Hvidding in Denmark (see Baedeker's Norway, Sweden, and Denmark).

51 M. Neumünster (Railway Hotel; Horn's; Central), a town with considerable cloth-factories and 22,500 inhab., is the junction of lines to (50 M.) Tönning (p. 192) viâ Heide, to Flensburg (R. 20), to Plön and Eutin viâ Ascheberg (p. 200), and to (28 M.) Oldesloe and Schwarzenbeck (p. 207) viâ Segeberg!

58 M. Bordesholm, once a richly-endowed monastery, is prettily situated on the lake of that name. The country becomes more attractive. Near Kiel the picturesque Eider Valley is traversed, beyond which the harbour and the distant Baltic become visible. 64 M. Voorde.

70 M. Kiel. — Hotels. GERMANIA*, R., L., & A. from 3, B. 1 $\frac{1}{4}$, D. 3 M.; MÄDICKER'S, with garden; MUHL'S, cheaper, these three opposite the station; NORDISCHER HOF, Ziegelteich-Str.; STADT ALTONA, Klinken, R., L., & A. from 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. — In the town: ZUM KRONPRINZEN*, R., L., & A. from 2 $\frac{1}{2}$, B. 1, D. 3 M.; UNION, R., L., & A. from 2 $\frac{1}{2}$, B. $\frac{3}{4}$, D. 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.; these two in the Hafen-Str.; PHOENIX, Vorstadt 5 A, R. 2, B. 1, D. 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.; BÖHM, Holsten-Str. 29, R., L., & A. from 2 $\frac{1}{2}$, B. 1, D. 2 $\frac{1}{4}$ M.; DEUTSCHER KAISER, Martensdamm 3; LANDHAUS, Fleethörn, R. from 1 M.; KIELER HOF, Scheevenbrücke, R. & B. from 2 M.; HOLST'S*, Schlossgarten, R., L., & A. 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. — For a stay of several days: BELLEVUE* (R. from 2 $\frac{1}{2}$, D. 3, pens. 5-8 M.), see p. 189; FOLKEER'S*, WALDBURG (pens. 5-8 M.), both in Düsternbrook; WILHELMINENHÖHE, in Garden (p. 189). — Pension Friedrichs, Schul-Str. 91.

Restaurants. Deutsche Reichshallen, in the Hôt. Phoenix, see above; Zacherbräu, Holsten-Str. 11; Münchener Bürgerbräu, Schumacher-Str. 20; Wallhalle, Wall 14; Holstenhalle, Wall 26; Seegarten, at the harbour; Folke's Garden, Seebadeanstalt, and others in Düsternbrook.

Cafés and Confectioners. Uhlmann*, Klosterkirchhof 3; Monopoli, Opitz, Holsten-Str. 9 and 10; Rolfs, Dänische-Str. 41.

Pleasure Resorts. Wriedt's Etablissement, Sophienblatt; Reichshallen (theatre of varieties), by the Holstenbrücke.

Post & Telegraph Office, Jensen-Str., opposite the station.

Cabs. Per drive in the town for 1 pers. 60-80 pf., each additional person 10-20 pf.; to the Bellevue, 1 pers. 1 \mathcal{M} 20 pf.; per hour, 1-2 pers. 1½ \mathcal{M} , each additional person 80 pf.; each trunk 30 pf. — From 10 to 11 p.m., and 6 to 7 a.m., a fare and a half; from 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. double fare.

Electric Tramways from the Rondeel through the town in various directions every 5 min.; to the Seebadeanstalt every 10 min.

Boat per hour, for 1-5 pers. 1 \mathcal{M} 20 pf.; ferry to the Wilhelminenhöhe 10 pf.

Small Steamers also ply in all directions: from the Jensen-Str. to (Garden (Germania Wharf) and from the Schumacher-Thor to Garden Wilhelminenhöhe) every 5 min. (5 pf.); from the Seegartenbrücke to Ellerbek, every 20 min. (10 pf.) and to Diétrichsdorf and Neumühlen every ¼ hr. (15 pf.); to Laboe viâ Reventlowbrücke, Bellevue, Heikendorf, and Möllenort, ca. 17 times daily, or viâ Reventlowbrücke, Bellevue, Holtenau, and Friedrichs-ort ca. 18 times daily.

Baths. Ludwigsbad, Lorenzendamm. — Sea Bathing at the Seebadeanstalt, Ellerbek, Bellevue, Heikendorf, Laboe, and Stein.

British Vice-Consul, Herr Christian Kruse. — U. S. Consular Agent, Herr August Sartori.

A visit to one of the Men-of-War in the harbour is generally permitted between 12 and 1; apply to one of the boatmen, who charge about 13 \mathcal{M} , including waiting (no fee should be offered to the sailor who shows the vessel).

Kiel, one of the oldest towns in Holstein, with 85,500 inhab., the headquarters of the German navy, with a naval academy, and a university founded in 1665, is picturesquely situated at the S. end of the Kieler Förde, one of the best havens in Europe and the chief war-harbour of Germany. Kiel is also a great depot of the trade between the Danish islands and the continent. The 'Kieler Umschlag', a large fair held in Jan., has been of importance since the 14th century. Extensive harbour-fortifications, quays, and docks have been constructed within the last few years (p. 190). — The old town is badly built, with narrow, crooked streets; but a handsome new quarter has come into existence between Kleine Kiel and the Düsternbrook Woods.

In the Sophienblatt, opposite the station, stands the THAULOW MUSEUM (open free on Tues. and Frid. 11-2, Sun. 12-4; at other times on application, 1 pers. 50, 2 pers. 30 pf. each, a party 20 pf. each), containing an unrivalled collection of Schleswig-Holstein wood-carvings (16-17th cent.) presented to the province in 1875 by the late Professor Thaulow (comp. p. xxxi). The gem of the collection is a small altar-piece from Bordesholm (No. 83), by Hans Brüggemann.

Skirting the harbour, or proceeding through the 'Klinke' and the 'Vorstadt', we soon reach the town itself, which lies between the pool called the Kleine Kiel and the harbour. In the centre of it rises the Nicolaikirche, built in 1241 and of late skilfully restored (good carved altar). Adjacent are several quaint houses. The Falck-Strasse leads hence to the N. towards the Kleine Kiel, passing the Kunsthalle, with the picture-gallery of the Schleswig-Holstein Art Union (Sun., Tues., & Frid. 11-2), and the Museum of Ancient Sculpture (Sun., Tues., & Frid., 11.30-1.30; in winter, Sun. only).

to the SCHLOSS, formerly the residence of the Dukes of Holstein-Gottorp, restored after a fire in 1838, and now occupied by Prince Henry of Prussia. In the court is a monumental fountain, by Lübsen. — The interesting Museum of National Antiquities in the old university, Katten-Strasse 3, contains many objects of a prehistoric period, including a Viking boat and a human body found in the Sundewitt Moor (adm. on Sun., Wed., and Sat., 11-1; at other times on application to the attendant). — The Schloss-Garten, to the N. of the Schloss, contains fine old trees and a war-monument. At its N. end rises the new UNIVERSITY, built in 1876. Adjacent are several institutes in connection with it, including the Library, the Zoological Museum (adm. on Sun. 11-2, Wed. 12-2), and the Mineralogical Institute (farther to the N.). — The hall of the Gymnasium, to the W. of the Kleine Kiel, is adorned with frescoes by A. von Werner.

ENVIRONS. The harbour is picturesque, and a trip by steamer or small boat as far as Laboe is recommended.

On the W. BANK the „Düsternbrooker Weg, flanked with pleasant country-houses, leads to the N. from the university past the Botanic Garden (1.), the Admiralty (r.), Folker's Hotel (p. 187), and the Marine Academy, to the new Sea Baths (restaurant) and through beautiful beech-woods to the (1½ M.) Hôtel Bellevue (p. 187). The latter (concerts in summer) stands on a hill, and commands a beautiful view over the Förhrde. A little inland are the Hôtel Waldburg (p. 187) and the forest-nursery of Düvelsbeck.

From the Bellevue the traveller may follow the coast by the village of Wik to (1½ M.) the E. end of the Kaiser Wilhelm Canal (see below), which is provided, like the W. end at Brunsbüttel (p. 190), with an inner and outer harbour, connected by a double lock. On the N. bank lies the village of Holtensau (Gasthof zum Kaiser-Wilhelm-Kanal; Hôtel International), about ¼ M. to the E. of which is a Lighthouse, adorned with a bronze relief emblematic of the Baltic and the North Sea. — A road leads along the N. bank of the canal via the pretty park of Knoop to (3 M.) the imposing High Level Bridge of Levensau, which carries road and railway over the canal in an arch of 430 ft. span, 130 ft. above the level of the water. We may return hence to Kiel either by railway or by the steamer which plies twice daily from Rendsburg, calling at Levensau, ¼ M. to the E. of the bridge (to Kiel in 1 hr., fare 40 pf.). Or we may take the train from Kiel to the bridge, walk to Holtensau, and return thence by one of the small harbour-steamers (p. 188).

The idea of connecting the Baltic with the North Sea by a water-route which would avoid the dangerous voyage round the peninsula of Jutland first crops out in the 14th cent., and various modest attempts were made to solve the problem. The foundation-stone of the present canal was laid by Emp. William I. in 1837, and the canal was formally opened by Emp. William II. in 1895. The expense of construction amounted to 156 million marks (7,800,000 l.). The canal crosses the land at sea-level, the locks at either end merely serving to neutralize the tidal changes. From Holtensau to Brunsbüttel (p. 190), where it joins the Elbe, it is 60 M. long. The depth is 30 ft.; the width at the bottom is 70 ft., at the top 180 ft. Six crossing-places allow the largest men-of-war to pass each other. A steamer takes about 10 hrs. to pass through the canal, which is lighted at night by electricity. Five bridges (see above and p. 190) and sixteen ferries accommodate the traffic across the canal. — Steamers ply from Hamburg through the canal to Kiel twice weekly in summer (7 M.); also twice daily from Brunsbüttel to Rendsburg (6½ hrs.; 3 M.), and from Rendsburg to Kiel (4 hrs.; 1½ M.). The voyage, however, presents little interest to the tourist, as the scenery is flat and monotonous and the view impeded by the high banks.

The E. BANK of the harbour is also attractive. The „Wilhelminen-

Adde, with its view-tower (adm. 20 pf.), opposite the railway-station (steamers, see p. 188), commands an admirable view of the town and the wooded W. bank. Farther on, to the S., are some extensive private wharves; to the N. the large Wharves and Docks of the German Navy (no admission for foreigners). — The village of Ellerbeck (*Johannisberg Restaurant) is the headquarters of the 'Kielers Sprotte' fishery (sprats, prepared by smoking). A pleasant footpath leads hence over the Koppeln to Neumühlen (Margarethenhöhe, pens. 3½ M.), at the mouth of the Schwentine, with a large steam and water-mill and an extensive ship-building yard. Farther distant is the Schrovenborn wood; then, between the villages of Alt-Heikendorf (inns), Möllenort, and Labbe, the 'Gründe', affording charming silvan walks on the slopes of the coast. The fishing-village of Labbe (Curhaus; Laboe; Seegarten, pens. 4 M.) is situated in the Probstet, the property of the nunnery of Freeds (p. 200), an extremely fertile district, 40 sq. M. in area, where the people are still somewhat primitive in their habits and costumes. The batteries of Möllenort and Laboe and the opposite fort of Friedrichsfort command the entrance to the harbour.

To the S. of Kiel is the large lunatic asylum of Hornheim.

To Sonderburg (p. 192), steamboat thrice weekly in 4½ hrs.; to Kappeln (p. 191) twice weekly, in 3 hrs.

FROM KIEL TO FLENSBURG, 50 M., railway in 2½-3¼ hrs. (fares 4 M. 80, 3 M. 20 pf.). The train crosses the Baltic Ship Canal (Kaiser Wilhelm Canal) at Levensau (see p. 189). From (20 M.) Eckernförde (Drowaisky, R., L., & A. 2, D. 2 M.), a railway runs to (17½ M.) Kappeln (p. 191) and a diligence plies to (14 M.) Schleswig (in 2¼ hrs.; see below). We cross a corner of the Bay of Eckernförde, and the broad Schlei, and traverse the district of Angeln (p. 191). From (32 M.) Süderbrarup a branch-line runs to Schleswig (see below). 49 M. Flensburg, see p. 192.

From Kiel to Eutin and Lübeck, see R. 21.

20. From Hamburg to Flensburg and Vamdrup.

162 M. RAILWAY to (112 M.) Flensburg in 3-4½ hrs. (fares 13 M. 80, 10 M. 40, 6 M. 90 pf.; express 15 M. 50, 11 M. 50 pf.); to Vamdrup in 4½-7 hrs. (fares 23 M. 20, 17 M. 20 pf., 12 M.).

From Hamburg to (51 M.) Neumünster, see R. 19. 59 M. Norrtorf; 66 M. Bokelholm. — We cross the Kaiser Wilhelm Canal (p. 189).

72 M. Rendsburg (Railway Hotel*; Green's*, R., L., & A. 3, B. 1, D. 2 M.; Weber), a town with 13,700 inhab., was unsuccessfully besieged by the Swedish General Wrangel in 1645. The fortifications, now converted into promenades, consisted of three works separated by the Eider: the Altstadt on an island, the Neuwerk to the S., and the Kronwerk to the N. Steamer to Kiel and to Brunsbüttel (p. 189), see p. 189. — 77 M. Owschlag. As Schleswig is approached a fine view is suddenly disclosed of the broad estuary of the Schlei and the town itself.

The DANEWERK (or Dannevirke), an intrenchment which formerly defended the Danish frontier, dating from the 12th and 12th cent., and stretching across the level country, was stormed by the Prussians in 1848. The works were subsequently extended and strengthened, but in 1864 the Danish army was too small to defend them against the allied Austrians and Prussians, and abandoned them without a blow. Only a few remains of the rampart are now visible.

87 M. Schleswig. — Hotels. STADT HAMBURG*, R. & B. 3½ M.; RAVEN'S HOTEL*, in the Altstadt, R., L., & A. 2-3, B. 1, D. 2 M.; STADT KIEL, small, well spoken of; BAHNHOF-HÔTEL. — Restaurants. Schlei-Halle*, Götterper Damm; Bellevue, in the Lollfuss pleasure-grounds.

Tramway from the station to the town and from the Friedrichsberg quarter to the Rathaus-Markt. — Branch Railway to the (2 M.) Altstadt Station.

Schleswig, an ancient town with 17,300 inhab., charmingly situated, traces its origin to the reign of Charlemagne, and afterwards became the residence of the Dukes of Schleswig. It consists of a single street, $3\frac{1}{2}$ M. in length, extending round the W. end of the arm of the sea named the Schlei, and is divided into the Friedrichsberg (next to the station), Lollfuss, Holm, and Altstadt.

At Friedrichsberg is situated the old ducal Schloss Gottorp, now a barrack, the chapel of which has an interesting carved royal pew (1610-14). Behind the Schloss are fine oak and beech-woods. Adjacent are the Government Offices, in front of which is a War Monument for 1870-71. — To the N. of the Friedrichsberg, on the Erdbeerberg, is a tower commanding a fine panorama.

The Dom in the Altstadt, externally insignificant, erected in the Romanesque style about 1100, was restored in Gothic taste after a fire in 1440. The tower (365 ft. high) was completed in 1894.

The Interior, now tastefully restored, is open daily, 11-12 (free), and at other times on application to the sacristan (opposite the Romanesque S. portal, No. 68; fee 1 M.). — The ERZBISCHOF*, formerly in the monastery of Bordesholm (p. 187), a work executed in carved oak by Brüggenmann in 1621, represents the history of the Passion in 20 sections, and is by far the finest work of art in the Duchies. In the choir, which is freely adorned with paintings, to the left, is a font of 1480; on the right the marble tomb (1655) of King Frederick I. Adjacent is the chapel of the Dukes of Gottorp, and in the nave are those of several noble families. The church also contains two altar-pieces by Jurjaen Ovens (d. 1678; p. xxxi). Good modern stained glass.

On the N. side of the Altstadt, in the direction of St. Jürgen, stands a monument to the eminent painter J. A. Carstens (b. at St. Jürgen in 1764, d. at Rome in 1798), erected in 1865. *View. — The Mövenberg (sea-gulls' hill), a small island in the Schlei, is densely covered with sea-fowl. — The Haddebye, a church on the bank of the Schlei, opposite the town, is said to have been founded by Ansgarius (d. 865).

STEAMBOAT twice or thrice daily, in 3 hrs., to (21 M.) Kappeln (Stadt Hamburg, well spoken of), on the picturesque banks of the Schlei, a charming excursion, which may also be made in a rowing-boat. The district of Angeln, a fertile peninsula between the Schlei and the Bay of Flensburg, presents a somewhat English appearance with its high hedges, which are not common on the continent. The finest survey of the district is obtained from the Schiersberg. — From Kappeln to Kiel, steamer in summer daily, except Sun., in 3 hrs. (fares 3 or 2 M.). Railway to Flensburg, p. 193; to Eckernförde, p. 190.

RAILWAY to (14 M.) Süderbrarup (p. 190) in $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr.

About $4\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the N. of Schleswig is the village of Idstedt, where the Schleswig-Holstein army under General Willisen was defeated by the Danes on 25th July, 1860. To commemorate the victory the Danes erected the 'Lion of Flensburg', now in Lichterfelde (p. 90).

93 M. Jübeck, the junction for Husum (route to Wyk), Tönning, Heide, and Neumünster (see p. 187).

FROM JÜBBROK TO HUSUM, 16 M., railway in 1 hr., fares 2 M 20, 1 M 60, 1 M 10 pf. (express from Hamburg in $4\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.). — Husum (Thomas's*, R., L., & A. 2-3 M; Stadt Hamburg*; Brit. vice-consul), on the Husumer Au, which here empties itself into the German Ocean by means of the 'old' and the 'new' Hever, is a small seaport (7500 inhab.), with an old château of the former dukes. — (From Husum the railway runs on to the S.W. to (13 M.) Tönnning (Victoria; Brit. vice-consul), with 3100 inhab., situated on the North Sea, at the mouth of the Eider, which forms a good harbour here, and to (20 M.) Garding (Holsteinischer Hof), connected by omnibus (80 pf.) with the small sea-bathing resort of St. Peter.)

Husum is the usual starting-point for the steamer to Wyk, on the island of Föhr ($3\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.; express through-fares from Hamburg 23 M, 18 M 40, 14 M 40 pf.). — Wyk (Curhaus*, pens. 7-10 M per day; Redleßen*; lodgings), a popular German bathing-resort (1100 inhab.), is the principal place in the island of Föhr, one of the N. Frisian Islands, which is about 28 sq. M. in area. A visit should be paid to one of the Vogelkojen, in which about 80,000 wild-duck are caught annually.

A steamer plies daily in summer between Föhr and Heligoland (p. 186) (16 M); also from Wyk to Sylt (p. 183) daily in $2\frac{1}{2}$ hrs. ($6\frac{1}{2}$, $4\frac{1}{2}$ M); to Amrum (Hotels) once or twice daily in 1 hr. (1 M, 80 pf.).

107 M. Flensburg. — Hotels. FLENSBURGER HOF*, R. from $2\frac{1}{2}$, B. 1, D. (incl. wine) $3\frac{1}{2}$ M, lift; BAHNHOF-HÖTEL*, R., L., & A. from 2 M; CENTRAL*, R., L., & A. $1\frac{1}{4}$ -3 M; KRONPRINZ; F&T's, all in the Rathhaus-Str.; SOMMER's, opposite the steamboat-pier, R. 2 M, D. 1 M 80 pf. — Restaurants. At the Hotels; Schwarzer Walfisch; Gnomenkeller; Colosseum.

Tramway from one end of the town to the other.

British Vice-Consul, Thomas Holleson, Esq. — LLOYD'S AGENT, H. W. Christopherson.

Flensburg, a thriving town with 41,000 inhab., is beautifully situated at the S. end of the Flensburg Fjord, one of those deeply-indented bays which form the excellent harbours of Schleswig-Holstein. The most important buildings are the Nicolaikirche, the Marienkirche (both with modern towers), the Post Office, the Theatre, and the Law Courts (fine view from the terrace). Near the new barracks is the insignificant ruin of Duburg. — Fine view from the Bellevue, a café on the hill to the W. The Old Cemetery*, on the same height, contains a marble sphinx by Thorvaldsen.

The Flensburg Fjord* is a fine sheet of water enclosed by gentle grassy and wooded slopes, enlivened by the red roofs of scattered farm-houses. Small steamers ply on the fjord (to Sonderburg in $2\frac{1}{2}$ hrs., fare 3 M).

On the S. bank lies Glücksburg (Strand Hôtel & Logirhaus*, near the pier, pens. 50-70 M per week; Bellevue*), now frequented as a bathing-place by 2000 visitors annually. The village (Ruhethal), $\frac{3}{4}$ M. from the shore, possesses a Schloss of the 16th cent., picturesquely situated on a small lake shaded with beeches. — The steamer next passes through the Eken-Sund and touches at Gravenstein (Curhaus*), then returns to the fjord, rounds the peninsula of Broacker, and reaches — Sonderburg (Holstein'sches Haus*; Stadt Hamburg*; Curhaus*, R. 15-20 M per week, board 30 M; bath and lodging-houses), the pleasant little capital (5200 inhab.) of Alsens, an island 122 sq. M. in area. The old Schloss of the Duke of Augustenburg is now a barrack. Sonderburg is frequented as a bathing-place. — Towards the N.E., about 6 M. from Sonderburg, lies the bathing-place of Augustenburg (Park Hotel), on the deeply-indented Augustenburg Fjord. Near Adzerballig, $4\frac{1}{2}$ M. farther, rises the Höge Berg (240 ft.), which commands a survey of the island, the sea, Fünen, Arroe, etc.

A walk from the steamer-stations of Ekensund or Brunenäs (comp. the Map) to Sonderburg viâ Düppel is recommended. The Intrenchments of Düppel, stormed by the Prussians in 1864 after a siege of two months, were a connected series of bastions forming a semicircle round the point of the Sundevitt opposite Sonderburg (see Map), and extending from the Aisen-Sund to the Wenningbund.

Steamer from Flensburg to Kiel (p. 187) thrice weekly (9 hrs.), touching at Sonderburg; to Apenrade, see below; to Stettin, see p. 218.

Railway from Flensburg to Eckernförde and Kiel, see p. 190.

From Flensburg to Kappeln (p. 181), 52 M., railway via Glücksburg (p. 192) in 3¼ hrs. (3 or 2 M.).

The railway now runs due N.; country uninteresting. 127 M. Tingleff is the junction of a line to Tondern (for Sylt, see below).

FROM TINGLEFF TO TONDERN, 18 M., railway in ca. 1 hr. (express from Hamburg in 4-5½ hrs.). — Tondern (Bahnhofs-Hôtel) is an old town with 3800 inhab. — Passengers for Sylt (see below) proceed from Tondern to Hoyer-Schleuse (8 M., in 13-37 min.) via Hoyer (Stadt Tondern).

FROM HOYER-SCHLEUSE TO SYLT steamer thrice daily in 1¼ hr. The landing-place is at Munkmarsch (hotel), 2½ M. from Westerland (see below), to which a steam-tramway plies in 12 min. (through-fares from Hamburg 24 M. 80, 20 M. 70, 16 M. 50 pf.). — The island of Sylt is the largest German island in the North Sea, being upwards of 89 sq. M. in area (4000 inhab.). The principal place on it is the scattered village of Westerland (Hôtel Royal*, pens. 45-70 M. per week; Deutscher Kaiser; Victoria, and many others; lodgings), on the W. side, a favourite sea-bathing resort (10,000 visitors annually). — Wenningstedt (Central Hotel*; Friesenhof), 2 M. to the N. of Westerland, is also frequented for sea-bathing. Near it is a tumulus formed of huge blocks of granite.

197 M. Rothenkrug, whence a branch-line runs to (4½ M.) Apenrade (Bahnhofs-Hotel; De Vos; Krause), a small trading-town and sea-bathing place (5600 inhab.) on the beautiful Apenrade Fjord. Steamer from Apenrade to Sonderburg, see above. — From (149 M.) Woyens another branch-line runs to Hadersleben (7½ M.), a small trading-place (8700 inhab.) on the fjord of that name. At (162 M.) Vamdrup the Danish frontier is reached (see Baedeker's Norway, Sweden, and Denmark).

Motor-launches to Moisling and Padelüge. Large steamers to Copenhagen and other ports on the Baltic.

British Vice-Consul, Herr H. L. Behmcke. — U. S. Consular Agent, Herr Jacob Meyer. — LLOYD'S AGENT, Henry Gaedert.

Lübeck, with 69,800 inhab., the smallest of the three independent Hanseatic towns of the German Empire, was once at the head of the League, and is still a busy commercial place. It lies 10 M. from the Baltic, on the Trave, the channel of which has been deepened, so as to afford access to vessels of 16 ft. draught, while the new Elbe and Trave Canal will connect it with the Elbe. Wine, especially claret, timber, and tar are the chief articles of trade at Lübeck. — The town still contains reminiscences of its mediæval greatness in its lofty towers, its ancient gabled houses in the late-Gothic and Renaissance styles, fortified gateways, Gothic churches, and its venerable Rathhaus.

Lübeck was founded in 1143 by Count Adolph II. of Holstein, near the site of an earlier town of the Wends (Alt-Lübeck, near Schwartau), and shortly afterwards ceded to Henry the Lion, under whom it prospered so well that it was declared a free town of the Empire in 1226 and invested with important municipal privileges. In 1227 Lübeck in alliance with the Holsteiners signally defeated the Danes at Bornhöved, thus releasing the surrounding country from their yoke, and in 1234 they gained the first German naval victory on record on the Warnow, which overthrew the naval supremacy of the Danes. Lübeck's enterprising spirit, coupled with the increasing activity of the neighbouring towns (Rostock, Wismar, Greifswald, Stralsund, Hamburg), gave rise to the foundation of the Hanseatic League (from 'Hansa', i. e. association), an alliance of the great commercial towns of N. Germany, which formed a peace-loving, but powerful bond of union between Western and Eastern Europe. The first alliances were indeed soon dissolved, but in the 14th cent. they were eagerly renewed, in consequence of the Danes having by the conquest of the ancient colony of Wisby in the island of Gothland in 1361 threatened to monopolise the trade of the Baltic. The war resolved on by the general Hanseatic Diet at Cologne in 1367 soon raised the League to the zenith of its power. They conquered S. Sweden (Skåne) and Denmark and permanently garrisoned several important places within these countries, and by the Peace of Stralsund in 1370 they even became entitled to ratify the election of the next king of Denmark. The League enjoyed marked prosperity for upwards of a century, and embraced eighty cities in all, from Reval to Amsterdam, and from Cologne to Breslau and Cracow, which according to their situation belonged to one of four sections, viz. the Wendish, the Prussian, the Westphalian, and the Gothlandish, and had factories at Bergen, Novgorod, London, and Bruges. Lübeck at that period is said to have numbered 80-90,000 inhab., and held undisputed precedence over the other members of the League. Towards the close of the 15th cent. the increasing power of the Northern and the Russian empires proved detrimental to the League, and its decline was accelerated by the new commercial relations of Europe with America and India, which were chiefly carried on through the medium of England and Holland. Notwithstanding this, Lübeck again endeavoured to assert her ancient supremacy over the Baltic, and the enterprising burgomaster Jürgen Wullenwever conceived the bold project of establishing a dominion over the Danish kingdom (1531-36). But these schemes proved abortive, and a war against Sweden in 1563-70, although not unattended with glory, led to no practical result. Lübeck's power thenceforth declined, but she preserved her position as a free city of the Empire, and continued to enjoy considerable commercial prosperity, although her population gradually dwindled down to one-fourth of its ancient number (23,687 inhab. in 1816).

In the history of MEDIAEVAL ARCHITECTURE Lübeck is a place of great importance, owing to the care with which brick building was practised here. This style was probably introduced from Holland in the 12th cent., and was chiefly cultivated during the Gothic period. The Lübeck style of church-architecture, particularly that of the Marien-Kirche, has extended to Mecklenburg, Pomerania, Prussia, Brandenburg, and to the W. far beyond the frontiers of Holstein. The material was unsuitable for rich plastic decoration, and compelled the architects to simplify their forms. Thus the buildings are destitute of foliage; the capitals are trapezium-shaped instead of cubical, and there are no slender columns; but these peculiarities led to new structural and decorative beauties. Great attention was paid to the vaulting; spacious halls were constructed without difficulty; surfaces, otherwise blank, were enlivened by moulded stones; and coloured bricks were introduced for the same purpose. The external architecture of the churches appears plain and clumsy, owing to the sparing use of flying buttresses, but the interiors are generally imposing.

Leaving the station (Pl. B, 5) we enter the town by the inner Holstenihor*, a fine specimen of a mediæval gateway, completed in 1477 and restored in 1871.

The Holsten-Strasse leads straight to the MARKET PLACE (Pl. C, 5), which is adorned by a Gothic Fountain, erected in 1873, with statues of Henry the Lion, Adolph II. of Holstein, Emperor Barbarossa, and Frederick II.

The Rathhaus* (Pl. 20), occupying the N.E. corner of the market-place, a Gothic brick building with huge gables and quaint spires, consists of two buildings adjoining each other at right angles, completed as they now stand in 1442. In 1570 the principal part of the building, adjoining the market-place, was embellished with an entrance-hall in the Renaissance style, and in 1594 a handsome staircase in the same style (restored in 1895) was constructed on the side next the Breite-Strasse. In front of the main entrance in the Breite-Str. are two 'Beischläge' (see p. 224), with metal reliefs of 1452. The N. façade is adorned with paintings of German emperors, princes, civic dignities, and chroniclers.

The INTERIOR (open 10-5; adm. by tickets obtained from the keeper, to the left, in the main entrance; 30 pf.) underwent a complete restoration in the late-Gothic style in 1887-91. The main entrance (see above) leads into a square Vestibule, in the middle of which rises a brick pillar with an elaborate capital. On the groundfloor, to the right, are the Börsen-nebensaal and the Börsensaal. The former is lighted from the roof, and contains a gallery supported by columns and ceiling-paintings (ancient civic coats-of-arms, etc.). A gorgeous staircase, supported by pillars of glazed tiles, with richly-painted arches and a mural painting by Koch (Henry the Lion receiving the homage of Lübeck; comp. p. 194), ascends from the vestibule to the FIRST FLOOR, with the new Bürgerchaftssaal, adorned with mural paintings by Koch and busts of Bismarck and Moltke. Among the more ancient apartments the Audience Chamber (to the right of the main entrance), now the Senate Chamber, with a door dating from 1573 and paintings by Torelli (18th cent.), and the Kriegsstube* ('War Chamber'), with a richly-carved door, a new cassetted ceiling, beautiful inlaid wall-panelling, and a sandstone and alabaster mantelpiece (1595), are worthy of inspection. The ancient Hanseatic Hall, in the N. part of the upper floor, in which the diets were held, has been divided into several smaller apartments.

Under the N. wing is the entrance to the Rathskeller (see p. 198), which was completed in 1443, and is remarkable for its fine vaulting (restored in 1876). The Hansasaal is adorned with the arms of the Hansa towns (1889). The Chimney Piece in the 'Braut-Gemach' bears the quaint inscription of 1575: 'Menich Man lude synghet, wen men em de Brut bringet; weste he wat men em brochte, dat he wol wenen mochte' (many a man sings loudly when they bring him his bride; if he knew what they brought him, he might well weep). The Admiral's Table is said to be made of a plank of the last admiral's ship of Lübeck (1570). The Admiral's Room (Admiralszimmer) is adorned with humorous mural paintings (1887).

The Pranger (pillory; Pl. 3), a Gothic structure of brick (ca. 1450), on the S. side of the market-place, was restored in 1870. — Opposite the Rathhaus is the new Post and Telegraph Office.

A few paces to the N. of the market rises the Church of St. Mary* (Pl. 15; C. 5), one of the most admirable examples of low-German brick architecture, which has served as a model for numerous churches in this part of the country. It was indebted for its origin in 1280-1304 to the ambition of the citizens to have their principal church larger than the cathedral of the bishop. The plan is similar to that of the French cathedrals, the aisles being lower than the nave, which is not the case with most of the brick churches. It is 335 ft. long; transept 162 ft. in height and 186 ft. in width; nave 127 ft. high; spires about 410 ft. high. A chime of bells in the small E. tower plays a chorale at the hours and half-hours. At the W. portal is a fine wrought-iron gate.

Interior (S. door open 10-1 o'clock; the sacristan lives at No. 8a in the neighbouring Meng-Str.). On the wall to the left of the door is a fine memorial brass (1518) of the Wigerinck family, by Peter Vischer. Farther to the W. is the BRIEFKAPELLE* (chapel of letters, built in 1310, so named because portraits of saints with written or printed prayers were once sold here, with groined vaulting supported by two slender monoliths; Altar* with scenes from the life of the Virgin, carved by J. Borman (comp. p. 206) and painted in the style of the Louvain school (1518). — Font of 1337. — Beneath the organ is the CHAPEL OF THE BERGEN SAILORS, with fine carved stalls and bronze screen (1518). In this chapel, to the right, a diptych, with the Conversion of St. Olaf, King of Norway, patron-saint of the 'Bergenfahrer', or mariners of the northern seas (ca. 1520, in the style of Lucas Cranach the Elder). Stained-glass windows. — THE DANCE OF DEATH, in a closed chapel on the left, dates from the 15th cent., but was transferred from panel to canvas in 1701. — In the following chapel the Taking leave of the body of the Saviour*, painted by F. Overbeck in 1845. — THE SACRISTY contains some good carving from the old high-altar, almost totally gilded, representing scenes from the life of Christ (about 1420). The silver statues formerly here have been replaced by figures copied from the St. Sebaldus Monument at Nuremberg. — Farther to the E. hangs an admirable old winged picture, the Nativity, Adoration of the Magi, and Flight into Egypt, painted in 1518, ascribed to Jan Mostaert. Altar-piece with the Crucifixion and the Death of the Virgin (1494). — The Clock at the back of the high-altar, dating from 1561-65, and repaired in 1860 and 1889, usually attracts numerous spectators at noon. To the right and left of the clock are 'Stone Reliefs (1486) of Christ washing his Disciples' feet and the Last Supper (at the foot a black mouse gnawing at the roots of an oak, the ancient emblem of the city). — The so-called BRICHTCAPELLE, to the E., at the back of the choir, contains Overbeck's Entry of Christ into Jerusalem, painted in 1824. The *Stained Glass of three of the windows in this chapel was executed about 1400, and removed hither from the old Burgkirche. — Adjacent is a winged altar with paintings by B. van Orley (in the centre Adoration of the Trinity, after Dürer). Mass of St. Gregory, a 'tempera' painting of about 1490. Painted statue of St. Antony (ca. 1476). — HIGH ALTAR of 1697, adjoined by the graceful Gothic *Ciborium of 1479, restored in 1855. — The CROIX SCREEN has some good sculptures (partly of the 15th cent.) and paintings of 1517. Between two of the adjacent pillars hangs a Danish standard, captured by the Lübeckers in 1427. On a pillar opposite, fine statue of St. John the Evangelist. Some wood-carving on the benches (Magistrates' Pew in the rich Renaissance style of 1574), several brasses of the 15th and 16th cent., the rococo monuments, the pulpit of 1691, and the handsome screens are also worthy of notice. — The organ loft of the largest of the three organs (W. side; 5134 pipes and 81 stops) is in the ornate style of the latest Gothic period (1516-18). — The best survey of the church is obtained from the W. end of the nave, beside the font.

To the S.W., near the market, is the Church of St. Peter (Pl. 17, C 5; sacristan, Schmiede-Str. 29), a Gothic edifice with double aisles, on the site of a Romanesque church of 1170, erected about the year 1300.

Among the objects of interest in the INTERIOR (lately restored and embellished with stained glass) are the monumental *Brass of Burgomaster Clingenbergh, which was executed in the Netherlands in 1356; a smaller brass of the Lammeshof family (15th cent.), with the Crucifixion and saints; an ingenious clock of 1805; a Renaissance organ-case (restored in 1888); and a carved wooden pulpit of 1618 (restored in 1880).

We now cross the KLINGENBERG (Pl. C, 6), where there is a handsome Fountain, erected as a monument of victory in 1875, and proceed to the S., passing the Roman Catholic Church (Pl. 17a; C, 6), built in 1889-91, to the —

*Cathedral (Pl. 12; C, 7; sacristan, Hartengrube 3, in summer generally in the church, 9-11), founded by Henry the Lion in 1173, enlarged in the 13th cent., and completed in 1335; towers 394 ft. high. The nave, transept, and one bay of the choir date from the original Romanesque basilica, which was built in the shape of a Latin cross; but the greater part of the choir and the aisles are Gothic. The *Vestibule of the N. aisle, a gem of the Transition style, dates from the middle of the 13th cent. (restored in 1889); the inner portal, with garlands, fantastic animals, and polished columns of black slate, is especially worthy of attention.

Interior. FONT of 1455, in front of the organ. Adjacent, in the wall of the S. aisle, is the *Brass of Bishop Tiedemann (d. 1561). — An elegant railing (1572) around the pulpit is attributed by a tradition to the workmanship of the devil; the pulpit itself (restored in 1886) dates from 1568. — Choir-screen of the 15th cent.; in front of it, a large crucifix dating from 1477, re-painted in 1884. In the CHOIR, the recumbent bronze "Figure of Bishop Bockholt (d. 1341), founder of the choir. — HIGH-ALTAR of 1686, with a Crucifixion by J. H. Tischbein. The sedilla to the right, erected by Bishop Bockholt, should be noticed. — In the N. aisle are the ever-burning lamp and an interesting relief of 1468. — The ARCHIEPISCOPAL CHAPEL, to the left of the choir, contains sarcophagi of the last prince-bishops. — In the next CHAPEL the "Monument of the bishops von Serken and von Mul, Netherlands workmanship of the 14th cent.; Madonna of 1509 in coloured stucco. — The altar-piece in the GREVERADEN-CAPELLE is a double "Triptych, with more than 200 figures, by Memming. On the external shutters is represented the Annunciation, in grisaille; on the inner shutters the lifesize figures of SS. Blasius, John the Baptist, Jerome, and Agidius, the patron-saints of the donor, Canon Adolf Greverade. These saints, with their rich warm tones, rank with the artist's masterpieces. The inner pictures are scenes from the Passion, from the Prayer on the Mt. of Olives to the Ascension; in the foreground are the Bearing of the Cross, the Entombment, and the Resurrection; a Crucifixion (1491) occupies the principal place in the centre.

Adjoining the Cathedral on the S. is the "Museum (Pl. 26), a Gothic edifice built in 1889-92 for the reception of various collections scattered throughout the city. The E. wing includes remains of the old cathedral cloisters. Open free on Sun., 11-2, and Thurs., 4-6 (in winter 2-4); adm. on other days, except Mon., 10-3, 50 pf., on application to the custodian in the E. wing. Catalogue, 50 pf.

GROUND FLOOR (Lower Section). Museum of Lübeck Art and History. To the right of the entrance: Architectural specimens; miniatures, paintings on glass, drawings; prehistoric antiquities; weapons; seals; portraits of local celebrities; views of Lübeck; representations of the Battle of Lübeck which took place on Nov. 6th, 1806, between Blücher, with the wreck of the Prussian army after the battle of Jena, and the pursuing French marshals Bernadotte, Soult, and Murat; musical and scientific instruments. — To the left of the entrance: Weapons ("No. 143, dagger with chasing and niello-work), military apparatus, costumes, ornaments (2890. Articles worn by Gustavus Vasa, afterwards King of Sweden, on his flight in 1519), boats, coaches, coins, weights, measures, implements of fishery. — W. Corner Room: Domestic articles, cabinets, pottery, guild-utensils.

GROUND FLOOR (Upper Section). In front and to the right: Industrial Museum. Works in stone, metal, leather, paper, woven materials, and basket-work; in the next room, furniture, articles in wood, ceramic collection. — W. Wing: "Ecclesiastical Collection, including tasteful altar-screens of 1484, 1496, 1500, 1522, etc.; ivory diptychs; clerical vestments; altar utensils; crucifixes; educational appliances. — To the left of the entrance: Ethnographical Collection.

MAIN FLOOR. The S. and E. rooms contain the interesting Natural History Collection. — In the W. wing is the Commercial Museum, a collection of domestic and foreign raw and manufactured products.

UPPER FLOOR. RR. 1-3. Plaster Casts. In the following rooms is the Picture Gallery (No. 60. Overbeck, Madonna; 88. Tintoretto, Raising of Lazarus; 86. Tentiers, Tavern-scene); also engravings; Lübeck coins, etc.

The Agidienkirche (Pl. 9; D, 6) is a somewhat cumbrous structure of the 14th century. In the interior are a richly-carved organ case, a screen of the 16th cent., and a metal font, with wrought-iron ornamentation. The late-Gothic Convent of St. Anne (1502-10), in the St. Annen-Str., now a penitentiary, has been greatly disfigured by fire. — The eminent painter Friedrich Overbeck (d. at Rome in 1869) was born in 1789 at No. 76 König-Strasse.

The *Church of St. Catharine (Pl. 11, D E 4; adm. on application at No. 9 Glockengiesser-Str.), now secularized and used for exhibitions, is an admirable Gothic structure of the middle of the 14th cent., with a lofty nave and an elegant elevated choir borne by columns.

The old Minorite Convent, which adjoins the church on the S., has been restored several times since the Reformation, but the former cloisters, the refectory, and the dormitory still remain. The building now contains the Katharineum (a gymnasium and a 'real' gymnasium), the Public Library, founded in 1620 (open daily, except Sun., 11-2; entr., Hunde-Str. 1), with about 100,000 vols., 1000 incunabula, and 937 MSS., and a Cabinet of Coins, with a complete series of Lübeck coins and medals.

Consul Harms, Breite-Str. 11, owns a good collection of paintings, which he obligingly shows to lovers of art.

The Jacobikirche (Pl. 13, D E 4; sacristan, Breite-Str. 1, a corner house to the S.W. of the church), a Gothic building of the 14th cent., contains a fine flight of steps, adorned with carving and intarsia work, leading below the Gothic organ to the choir. In the Brömsencapelle is a fine *Altar of about 1500.

Opposite the W. Portal of the church, Breite-Str. 2, is the handsome house of the Schiffergesellschaft (Pl. 18; see p. 193), with interior little altered, an interesting example of an old guild-house. On the walls are pictures of Scriptural subjects, originally painted in the 15th cent., re-painted in oils in the 17th cent., and restored in 1894. Models of ships and bronze candelabra hang from the roof. — The house of the Kaufleute-Compagnie (Pl. 8), Breite-Str. 6, contains some admirable wood-carving, particularly in the old Fredenhagen Room*, executed in 1571-85, and transferred hither (open daily; fee).

The Hospital zum Heiligen Geist (Pl. 7; E, 4; generally open), in the Geibel-Platz (in which is a monument to Geibel, see below), is an admirably-organised institution. A fine early-Gothic chapel, dating from the early part of the 13th cent., serves as an entrance hall. The chapel and its ancient mural paintings were restored in 1866. The scenes from the legend of St. Elizabeth, on the screen, date from about 1420 and were restored in 1894.

The handsome new Law Courts (Pl. E, 3), built in 1895, incorporate the cloisters and several rooms of the old Burghloster.

The Burgthor* (Pl. E, 2), the N. gate of the town, is a lofty brick structure of 1444. A little to the W. of it is an archway, with some well-executed grotesque wood-carvings. An avenue of lime trees leads from the gate to the (3/4 M.) Cemetery, with a monument of Geibel (1815-1884), the poet, who was born in Lübeck.

Outside the Burgthor, to the right, reached viâ the Roock-Str. and the Arnim-Str., is the Zoological Garden (adm., see p. 194; bears fed at 5.30, beasts of prey at 7.30 p.m.).

The house No. 75 Untertrave contains a Weinstube, or tap-room, curiously carved in wood in 1644. — The grounds outside the Holstenhor (Pl. A, 5) afford a pleasant stroll.

On the Roddenkoppel, on the left bank of the Trave, are extensive timber-yards; and near Schwartau, below the town, are new depots for tar, gunpowder, and petroleum.

The Waik-Mühle (restaurant), 2 M. from the Mühlen-Thor, is a favourite resort of the Lübeckers (steamboat, see p. 184).

A branch-railway (12½ M., in 50 min.; fares 1 M., 70 pf.) runs from Lübeck past (7½ M.) Waldhusen to Travemünde. The 'Hun's Grave' discovered in 1843 about 1 M. from Waldhusen (pretty forest-path) is one of the largest examples of the kind in Germany. — Travemünde (Curhaus*; Hôtel de Russie*, R., L., & A. 2-5, D. 2½ M.; restaurant in the Strandpavillon), a sea-bathing place, was the port of Lübeck before the deepening of the river. Pretty walks.

From Lübeck to Hamburg and Mecklenburg, see pp. 193, 206; to Büchen, see p. 207.

FROM LÜBECK TO KIEL, 50 M., railway in 2½-4 hrs. (fares 6 M. 70 pf. 5 M. 3 M. 40 pf.). — The train follows the left bank of the Trave. 3½ M. Schwartau (Germania), a favourite resort from Lübeck. — 20 M. Eutin (Stadt Hamburg, R., L., & A. 1½-3, D. 2 M., B. 80 pf.; Victoria, R. 1½-2, D. 1½, B. ½ M.; Voss-Haus, see below, Holsteiner Hof, both well spoken of; Bahnhof-Hotel), pleasantly situated between the Grosse and Kleine Eutiner See, near the 'Holstein Switzerland' (see below), was the seat of a bishop from 1162 to 1535, and now belongs with its Schloss and pretty grounds to the Duke of Oldenburg (4700 inhab.). Weber (1786-1826), the composer, was born here, in a house in the Lübecker-Str., denoted by an inscription. His monument is in a grove to the S. of the town. Count Stolberg, the friend of Goethe, and the poet Voss (monument in front of the gymnasium) also resided here, and their houses, in the Hinter-Str., are indicated by memorial tablets. Voss's house, formerly the rectory, is now a hotel, with a restaurant and a garden.

[FROM EUTIN TO OLDENBURG, 22½ M., railway in about 1¼ hr. (fares 2 M. 30, 1 M. 60 pf.). — 10 M. Neustadt (Stadt Hamburg) has tri-weekly steamboat-connection with Lübeck. — From (24 M.) Oldenburg (Scheibner) a diligence plies five times daily to (3 hrs.) Heiligenhafen, whence a steamer sails to Kiel (3 hrs.), and another to Fehmarn (1 hr.).]

The scenery between Eutin, Plön, and Ascheberg is very pretty. 25 M. Gremsmühlen (Hôtel Gremsmühlen; Bellevue), charmingly situated on the Dicksee, with interesting walks.

[FROM GREMSMÜHLEN TO LÜTJENBURG, 10½ M., railway in ¾ hr. (fares 1 M. 10, 70 pf.), traversing the most picturesque part of Holstein, known as the Holstein Switzerland, with the Keller-See, Utkel* or Uglol-See, the Bungsberg, and other points. Good inns. — 10½ M. Lütjenburg (Stadt Hamburg; Spethmann; Hamm) has an ancient church with a carved altar.]

30 M. Plön (Prinz*; Stadt Hamburg), with 3500 inhab., is very picturesquely situated between the Grosse and Kleine Plöner See. The Prussian military school was once a royal Danish château. A pleasant walk of 1½-2 hrs. may be taken as follows: from the station by the Eutin road to (¼ M.) Rott's Baths (with garden-restaurant; boats), on the Grosse See, commanding a fine view. Then to the Steinberg (view), and by the Lütjenburg road round the Schöensee to the Parnass (View*; 20 pf.) and Büßerhöhe (restaurant in summer), ½ M. from the station.

The railway skirts the N. bank of the Grosse Plöner See. 85 M. Ascheberg (Rail. Hotel), junction for Neumünster (p. 187). The Kiel line turns to the N. and skirts the Lanker See. — 40 M. Freetz (Stadt Hamburg) possesses a convent for ladies of noble birth, founded as early as 1220. A busy manufacture of shoes is carried on here.

50 M. Kiel, see p. 187.

Beyond Lübeck the railway to Stettin runs towards the E. From (62 M.) Grevesmühlen a diligence plies to (2 hr.) Bottenhagen, a sea-bathing place. — 74 M. Kleinen (*Railway Restaurant), whence there are branch-lines to Wismar and to Schwerin.

FROM KLEINEN TO WISMAR, 10 M., branch-line in 1/2 hr. (fares 1 M 50 pf., 1 M, 80 pf.). — Wismar (Stadt Hamburg*, B., L., & A. 3 1/4, B. 1 M; Fründt's Hotel*; Brit. vice-consul), a Mecklenburg town with 18,200 inhab., once an important member of the Hanseatic League, possesses an excellent harbour and several fine churches. In the architecture of St. Mary's (choir consecrated 1350) and of St. Nicholas (dating mainly from the 15th cent., with vaulting 130 ft. in height, richly ornamented) the influence of the Marienkirche in Lübeck is distinctly traceable. St. George's is a cruciform edifice of elegant proportions, the nave dating from the 15th, the choir from the 14th century. The 'Alte Schule' by St. Mary's churchyard, dating from 1300, and several other private houses are interesting brick structures in the Gothic style. The 'Fürstenhof' (1552), formerly a ducal palace, and now the seat of the municipal authorities, is a good specimen of German Renaissance (lately restored). Pleasant excursion by steamboat (15 pf.) to (2 1/2 M.) Wendorf (Bade-Hôtel); fine view of the harbour. — From Wismar to Rostock, see p. 206.

FROM KLEINEN TO SCHWERIN, 10 1/2 M., railway in 25 min. (fares 1 M 50, 1 M 10, 70 pf.).

10 M. Schwerin. — Hotels. At the station: HÔTEL DE RUSSIE* (Pl. c; B, 2), R., L., & A. 2 1/4-3 M, B. 80 pf.-1 M, D. 2-2 1/2 M, second-class; NIEN-DORFF's* (Pl. f; B, 2), Wilhelm-Str. 8, R. from 2 1/2, D. 2 M; LOUISENHOF (Pl. d; B, 2), R., L., & A. 1 1/2 M, B. 80 pf., D. 3 M, incl. wine, well spoken of; BAHNHOF's HÔTEL (Pl. h; B, 2), unpretending. — In the town: HÔTEL DU NORD* (Pl. a; C, 4), Schloss-Str., R. & A. 2 1/4-5, D. 2 1/2 M, B. 1 M; STERN's* (Pl. b; B, 3), on the Pfaffenteich, corner of the Kaiser-Wilhelm-Str., R. 2 1/2, D. 2 M, commercial; HÔTEL DE PARIS (Pl. e; C, 3), König-Str. 30; STADT LÜBECK (Pl. g; B, 3), plain.

Restaurants. At Stern's Hotel, Hôtel de Paris, and Hôtel de Russie, see above; Cohen, König-Str. 4; Dabelstein, Salz-Str. 4; Klemann, Bischof-Str.; Feltmann, Rostocker-Str. 58. — Wöhler, Fischer-Str. 2, Uhle, Schuster-Str. 15, Havemann, Grosse Moor 5 (Moselle and Hungarian wines). — Confectioner: Krefft*, corner of the Schloss-Str. and König-Str.

Cabs, 50 pf. per drive; per 1/2 hr. 75 pf., per hour 1 1/4 M; box 25 pf. Steamboats on the Lake of Schwerin several times daily in summer, starting at the Anna-Str., near the Museum (Pl. D, 4), or from the Alte Garten, by the Burgsee (Pl. C, 4): to Zippendorf and the Kaninchenwerder 20 pf., to the Ferry 30 pf.

Theatre. Hof-Theater (Pl. 21; C, 4), in the Alte Garten. — CONCERT GARDENS: at the Hôtel de Paris and Niendorff's Hotel, see above; Pavillon, in the Schloss-Garten; Paulshöhe Brewery, on the road to Zippendorf (p. 204).

Schwerin (accent on the second syllable), an ancient settlement of Wends, invested with municipal rights in 1161 by Henry the Lion, and an episcopal see from 1167 to 1648, is now a well-built town with 36,500 inhab., and the capital of the Grand Duchy of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, prettily situated on the Lake of Schwerin (14 M. long, 3 1/2 M. broad) and several smaller lakes.

Near the station is the handsome new Church of St. Paul (Pl. 7; B, 2, 3), in the Gothic style.

From the station we proceed by the Louisen-Platz and the Wilhelm-Str. to the Pfaffenteich (Pl. B, C, 1-3), among the buildings round which the most conspicuous are the Arsenal (Pl. B, 3), the Amt (Pl. 1; B, 2), and the Gymnasium (Pl. 16; C, 2). Opposite the last is a bronze bust (Pl. 24; C, 2) to Heinrich Schliemann (d. 1890), the explorer of Troy, who was a native of Mecklenburg.

Near the S. end of the Pfaffenteich, in the heart of the town, rises the Cathedral* (Pl. C, 3), a fine brick edifice in the Baltic style, dating from 1370-1482, and judiciously restored in 1867-69. The old tower was taken down in 1889, and a new one, 380 ft. high, has been built. Adm. 12.30-2 p.m.; sacristan, Am Dom 4 (1 M).

The 'Chapel of the Holy Blood', at the back of the high-altar, contains tombs of the grand-ducal family. The stained-glass windows, representing the Ascension, with figures of apostles and evangelists, were executed from cartoons by Cornelius (p. 208). The N. side of the choir contains the Monument of Duke Christopher (d. 1592). Altar-piece, a Crucifixion, executed by Leathe under the directions of Cornelius. By one of the 8. pillars is a bronze Epitaphium of the Duchess Helena (d. 1524), from the studio of Peter Vischer of Nuremberg. The four curious monumental Brasses, 10 ft. high, are of Flemish workmanship, and date from 1347 and 1376. Excellent organ.

The cloisters, to the N. of the cathedral, contain the Ducal Library (160,000 vols.; open daily, 11-1, also 4-6 on Wed. & Sat. in summer and 6-8 in winter), with a handsome reading-room.

From the cathedral we cross the market-place, and traverse the König-Str. and the Schloss-Str., at the end of which, on the right, are the Government Offices (Pl. 15), built in 1865-67. Beyond them is the Alte Garten (Pl. C, 4), an open space, with the Court Theatre (Pl. 21), a Monument to Grand-Duke Paul Frederick (Pl. 2), designed by Rauch, and erected in 1849, and a Monument (Pl. 3) to the memory of the Mecklenburgers who fell in 1870-71.

In the same square, at the corner of the Anna-Str., stands the Museum* (Pl. 10), designed by Willebrand, and completed in 1882. On the upper floor is the grand-ducal picture-gallery, and on the lower floor are the other grand-ducal art-collections.

The Picture Gallery is open free on Sun. 12-2 and on Tues., Thurs., and Sat. 11-2; adm. on other week-days, 8-11 (also 3.30-6 from March to Oct.), 60 pf. (Mon. 1 M; bell at the top of the staircase). Large catalogue 8 M, short catalogue 20 pf. The gallery is particularly rich in works of the Dutch school of the 17th century.

From the vestibule we first enter (to the left) four CABINETS containing works of the German, Netherlandish, and Italian Schools of the 15-18th cent. (I & II) and of the Dutch and Flemish Schools of the 17-18th cent. (III and IV). Then —

Room I (lighted from the roof). CABS. 5-12 contain nothing of special note.

LOWER FLOOR (adm. Sun. 12-2, Wed. and Frid. 11-2, free; at other times 1 $\frac{1}{2}$). — The rooms in front and to the left contain the rapidly growing Museum of Industrial Art. To the right is the Collection of Casts, beyond which is the Cabinet of Engravings.

The SUNK FLOOR contains the Collection of National Antiquities, a collection of Medieval Ecclesiastical Monuments, and the Cabinet of Coins.

The Anna-Strasse (Pl. C, D, 4; steamboat-quay) leads from the Museum to the S.E., along the lake, to the Ducal Stables (Pl. D, 3, 4; open daily till 3 p.m.).

A bridge adorned with two colossal groups (Obotrites equipping their chargers) crosses to an island lying between the Schweriner See and the Burgsee, on which is situated the grand-ducal "Palace" (Pl. C, D, 4, 5), begun in the early-Renaissance style from designs by Demmler in 1845, and completed by Stüler in 1857. It is an extensive structure, with irregular wings flanked with lofty towers, and encloses a pentagonal court-yard, the whole producing a very picturesque effect. As early as the 12th cent. a palace of the princes of Mecklenburg occupied this site. It was rebuilt in the 15th and 16th cent., and parts of this mediæval edifice have been skilfully incorporated with the modern palace. Above the portal is an equestrian statue of Nielot, the Obotrite chief (d. 1160).

The Luxembourg, decorated chiefly by Stüler and Strack, is open on Sundays and holidays at noon, on week-days at 10, 1, and 5.30 (from 1st Sept. to 31st March at 3) o'clock (tickets, 1 M each, to be obtained from the porter on the left side of the inner portal). The most interesting apartments are the Waffenhalle (on the ground-floor; collection of armour), the Thronsaal, and the Goldene Saal, all containing various objects of art. The tasteful Gothic Chapel, built in 1560-63, was afterwards restored. Handsome staircase (Goldene Treppe). — The Burg-Garten adjoining the Schloss is also worthy of inspection.

The extensive Schloss-Garten (Pl. C, D, 5, 6) is worth seeing. At its N. end is an Equestrian Statue of Grand-Duke Frederick Francis II. (Pl. 23; C, 5), by Brunow.

*WALK to (2½ M.) Zippendorf (comp. Pl. D, 6), and along the bank of the lake to (1½ M.) the Fähre (both steamboat-stations). At (½ M. farther) Rabensteinsfeld there are a ducal villa and several favourite resorts in the woods bordering the lake. The Pinnower See lies ½ M. thence, surrounded by wooded hills. The Kaninchenwerder (restaurant; steamboat-station), or rabbits' island, is much visited (view-tower). Scheifwerder, 1½ M. to the N. of Schwerin, lies amid beautiful woods (restaurant).

Beyond Kleinen (see p. 201) the railway skirts the Lake of Schwerin. 101 M. Bützow (Hôtel de Prusse), a thriving little town, near which is the penitentiary of Dreibergen.

FROM BÜTZOW TO ROSTOCK, 19 M., railway in ½-¾ hr. (fares 2 M 80 pf., 2 M, 1 M 50 pf.). The line runs first on the right, then on the left bank of the Warnow. — 10½ M. Schwaan.

19 M. Rostock. — The Lloyd Station, in the S.W. part of the town, is now the central station for all passenger trains, while the Friedrich-Franks Station (Pl. E, 4) is resigned to goods traffic and the line to Stralsund.

Hotels. *FÜRST BLÜCHER (Pl. d; D, 3), Blücher-Str. 24, E., L., & A. 2-4½, B. 1, D. 2 M; *ROSTOCKER HOF, Hopfen-Markt (Pl. c; D, 5), with restaurant, E., L., & A. 3-6, B. 1, D. 2½ M; *HÔTEL DE RUSSIE (Pl. a; D, 3), E. & L. 2½ M, A. 60 pf., B. 1, D. 2½ M, SONNE (Pl. b; E, 3), E., L., & A. 1½-3 M, both in the Neue Markt; STADT HAMBURG (Pl. e; E, 2), Fischbank 17, E., L., & A. from 1½, D. with wine 3 M, well spoken of; *POHLER'S (Pl. f; D, 3), Stein-Str. 7, second-class, E., L., & A. 2, D. 1½ M; BAHNHOF-HÔTEL (Pl. g; E, 3), Mühlen-Str. 3.

British Vice-Consul, Charles Leenborg, Esq. (also Lloyd's agent).

Rostock, with 49,800 inhab., once a prominent member of the Hanseatic League, the most important place in Mecklenburg, and the seat of the supreme law-courts for the two duchies, lies about 8 M. from the Baltic, on the left bank of the Warnow, which is 550 yds. wide, and deep enough for vessels of moderate tonnage to enter the town. Rostock possesses a considerable mercantile fleet, and carries on a considerable trade in grain, timber, herrings, petroleum, and coal. — The astronomer Kepler once taught at the University here (founded 1419; ca. 400 students). Like Lübeck, the town still retains a picturesque, mediæval appearance. Besides the handsome churches, the visitor will observe a number of tasteful Gothic dwelling-houses, some of which are adorned with coloured bricks.

The central point of the town is the Neue Markt, which contains the Rathhaus (Pl. E, 3), built in 1265 and provided with turrets in 1365-90; the old Gothic façade is concealed by a Renaissance addition. Close by is the Marienkirche (Pl. D, 2), a large and fine edifice erected in the Baltic-Gothic style in 1398-1472, containing numerous tombstones and portraits, a Romanesque *Font of bronze (1290), and a curious old astronomical clock (1644; restored in 1885). A stone in the church marks the spot where the heart of the learned Grotius, who died here in 1645 on his way as Swedish ambassador to the French Court, was buried, until it was removed to Delft.

In the quarter to the E. of the Rathhaus rises the lofty tower of St. Peter's Church (Pl. F, 2; 14th cent.), 433 ft. high. Adjacent is the monument (Pl. 12) of the Reformer Joachim Stüter (d. 1532). To the S. is the Church of St. Nicholas (Pl. F, 3), begun in 1250, rebuilt in the 14th cent. (tower of later date), and restored in 1890-94; it has a handsome carved altar (1470) and a curious old crucifix.

From the Neue Markt diverges the Blut-Str., continued by the long Hopfen-Markt (both containing a number of mediæval houses), and leading to the Blücher-Platz (Pl. C, D, 3). In the middle of the square rises a bronze Statue of Blücher (1742-1819), who was born in the Blücher-Str., in the house No. 22, marked by a tablet. The reliefs refer to the marshal's defeat at Ligny and his victory at Waterloo.

On the left (S.) side of the square are the Grand Ducal Palace (Pl. 4; C, 3) and the Zoological Institute (Pl. 16). On the W. is the Geological & Mineralogical Institute (Pl. 8). Adjoining this on the N. is the new University Building (Pl. 14; C, 3), a handsome structure in the Renaissance style, built in 1867-70 and adorned with statues and medallion-portraits; the library contains 175,000 volumes (Mon., Tues., Thurs., & Frid. 12-1; Wed. & Sat. 11-1).

Near the Blicher-Platz is the Church of St. James (Pl. C, 2), dating from the 14th century. — The Kröpeliner-Str. leads from the Blicher-Platz to the Kröpeliner-Thor (Pl. B, 2), an interesting brick structure of the 14th cent., recently restored. Outside the gate are the Hospital (Pl. B, 2), the Anatomical Institution (Pl. B, 2), and other medical buildings.

In the Stein-Str., to the S. of the Neue Markt, is the Town Museum (Pl. 7, D 3; Sun. & Wed., 11-1, free). The Stein-Str. ends at the Steinthor (Pl. D, E, 3), rebuilt in 1675. Adjoining the gate is the Ständehaus* (Pl. 12a; D, 3), erected in 1889-93; outside it is the new Theatre (Pl. E, 4). Not far off, at Linden-Str. 1, is a small Collection of Rostock Antiquities (Sun., 11-1).

To the W. of the Steinthor is the Promenade, laid out on the site of the old ramparts, with the Post Office (Pl. D, 3) and a simple War Monument. A pleasant walk of $\frac{3}{4}$ hr. may be taken through the promenade, past the Kröpeliner-Thor (see above), and along the beach. The steamboat wharves lie about $\frac{3}{4}$ M. beyond the last-named gate. — To the S.E. of the town, beyond the Mühlendamm, is the ($1\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Stadt-Park (Schweizerhaus; tramway).

Small steamers ply every $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. from the Zolspelcher (Pl. 15; D, E, 1) to Gehlsdorf, on the right bank of the Warnow, with the new district lunatic asylum (1896).

FROM ROSTOCK TO WARNEMÜNDE, 8 M., railway in 14-22 min. (fares 90, 70, 50 pf.); steamer in 1 hr. (fare 50 pf.). — Warnemünde (Berringer & Pavillon, R., L., & A. 2-4, B. 1, D. 2-2 $\frac{1}{2}$, pens. from 6 M.; Stralendorf, Hübner*, all on the beach; Canepelle*; Eusemihl, near the beach; Thormann's and Jungmann's Restaurants*; lodgings 12-60 M. per week) is a seaport and bathing-place (ca. 10,000 visitors) on the Baltic. — Excursions to the Wilhelmshöhe, the Rostocker Heide, the Schnatermanns (by boat) and sometimes by steamer to (9 M.) Gross-Müritz (p. 212; by carr. in 2-2 $\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.). Steamer to Gjedser (Denmark), see Baedecker's Norway, Sweden, and Denmark.

FROM ROSTOCK TO WISMAR, 86 $\frac{1}{2}$ M., railway in 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ hrs. (fares 8 M. 80, 2 M. 80 pf., no 1st class). — 11 M. Doberan (Logirhaus*; Lindenhof), on the Baltic, a sea-bathing place with a chalybeate spring. The fine Gothic Church* was completed in 1888 and lately restored. The bathing-place is at Heiligendamm*, 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. distant (steam-tramway; 50 or 30 pf.), delightfully situated. — 36 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Wismar, see p. 201.

From Rostock to Stralsund, see p. 212; to Berlin viâ Neu-Strelitz, see p. 209; to Copenhagen, see Baedecker's Norway, Sweden, and Denmark.

The MECKLENBURG LINE proceeds from the Bützow junction in an easterly direction to (109 M.) Güstrow (Erbgrossherrsog*, R. 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ -3, D. 2 $\frac{1}{4}$ M.; Hôtel de Russie*, R. 2-2 $\frac{1}{2}$, D. 2 M.), a town of 17,600 inhab., the centre of the Mecklenburg wool-trade, with an old ducal Schloss and a Cathedral in the Transition style (1226-1400). The restored Parish Church (1505) has a double-winged Altar Screen* of 1522; the wood-carving is by Jan Borman of Brussels, and the oil-paintings by the Flemish court-painter B. van Orley. — Branch-line hence viâ (27 M.) Plau to (76 M.) Neustadt an der Dosse (p. 208).

136 M. Malchin (Hôtel de Russie*), a town with 7400 inhab. and a fine church of the 14th cent., situated in the plain of the Peene, between the Cummerower See and Malchiner See. The environs are pretty (the 'Mecklenburg Switzerland'). — Branch-line from Malchin to Basedow and (17 M.) Waren.

143 M. Stavenhagen (Schramm) is the birthplace of Fritz Reuter (1810-74), the Platt-Deutsch poet. — 164 M. Neu-Brandenburg (Rail. Restaurant, D. 1¼ M.; Goldene Kugel, R. 2-3, D. 2¼ M.; Deutsches Haus), with 9700 inhab., situated on the Tollenser See. It possesses a Gothic church of the 14th cent. and four *Gothic gates. To the S. of the station is a statue of Fritz Reuter (see above), unveiled in 1893. — Neu-Brandenburg is the junction for the Berlin Nordbahn (to Stralsund; see p. 209) and for Ludwigslust (p. 208).

202 M. Pasewalk (p. 209), the junction of the line from Berlin to Stralsund viâ Angermünde. — 222 M. Stettin, see p. 216.

22. From Hamburg to Berlin.

178 M. RAILWAY in 3¼-3½ hrs. (express-fares 26 M. 10, 19 M. 40, 13 M. 60 pf.; ordinary 22 M. 90, 17 M. 20, 11 M. 50 pf.). — The trains start at the Klosterhof Station (p. 171) and reach Berlin at the Lehrte Station.

Hamburg, p. 170. 10 M. Bergedorf (Fernsicht), where the peasant-women of the Vierlande, wearing a peculiar and picturesque costume, offer fruit and flowers for sale, belongs to Hamburg. 12½ M. Reinbeck; 16 M. Friedrichsruh, with the château of Prince Bismarck; 22½ M. Schwarzenbeck.

29 M. Büchen is the junction of lines to Lüneburg (p. 170) and to Lübeck.

FROM BÜCHEN TO LÜBECK, 30 M., railway in 1-1¼ hr. (fares 3 M. 90, 2 M. 90 pf., 2 M.). — The first important station is (11 M.) Mölln (Stadt Hamburg*; Stadt Lüneburg), a town of 4100 inhab., with numerous mediæval buildings, pleasantly situated on a lake. The popular German jester, Till Eulenspiegel, is said to have died here in 1350, in proof of which his tombstone, with an owl ('Eule') and mirror ('Spiegel') upon it, and various personal relics are shown to the curious. Interesting Church. Attractive excursion hence to the (9½ M.) Schall-See, with its prettily-wooded banks and islands.

17¼ M. Ratzeburg (Rathskeller; Stadt Hamburg), a town with 4300 inhab., formerly a celebrated episcopal see, is charmingly situated on an island in the Ratzeburger See, the banks of which are clothed with fine beech-forests. The handsome late-Romanesque Cathedral*, built about 1172, with the aid of portions of an earlier edifice, was partially restored in 1876-81 and 1895. The interior contains several very ancient tombstones, including some of the early bishops. The pulpit, with its large sounding-board, is in the Renaissance style (1576). The choir is raised, and over the entrance is a triumphal cross. To the left of the altar, which has marble reliefs of 1629, is the so-called Apostle Cabinet, with a silver statue of Christ on the top; the silver figures of the apostles have vanished and are replaced by silvered porcelain figures after Thorvaldsen. The bronze doors of the cabinet are adorned with ancient paintings, and in the centre is the Passion, hewn in stone. The font, in the chapel to the S. of the altar, dates from 1440; the chapel to the N. contains a representation of the Death of St. Ansverus (d. 1066). In the W. gable is a large Romanesque rose-window (1895), and in the S. transept are modern stained-glass windows. — In front of the Ständehaus is a Statue of Emp. William I.

The visitor should make a trip by boat from the cathedral to the Bäek (inn; $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.); or round the little lake by steamer (hourly from 3 p.m.) to ($\frac{1}{4}$ hr.) Waldeersh (rfmts.) and the ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr.) Weinberg (inn), and thence back to the ($\frac{1}{4}$ - $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) town.

59 M. Hagenow (junction for Schwerin and Rostock, R. 21).

72 M. Ludwigslust (Weimar; Stadt Hamburg) is a residence of the Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, with a château and park.

FROM LUDWIGSLUST TO NEU-BRANDENBURG, 88 M., railway in $5\frac{1}{2}$ hrs. (fares 9 \mathcal{M} 20, 6 \mathcal{M} 80 pf.). — 16 M. Parehim (Wall-Hotel; Hôtel de Russie), a small town with 10,300 inhab., on the navigable Elde, is the birthplace of the famous Prussian field-marshal Count Moltke (1800-1881), to whom a monument by Brunow has been erected here. — 60 M. Waren (p. 209). — 88 M. Neu-Brandenburg, see p. 207.

FROM LUDWIGSLUST TO SCHWERIN, 22 $\frac{1}{2}$ M., railway in $\frac{3}{4}$ -1 hr. (fares 3 \mathcal{M} 40, 2 \mathcal{M} 40, 1 \mathcal{M} 80 pf.). — Schwerin, see p. 201.

99 M. Wittenberge (Rail. Restaurant*), on the Elbe, is the junction for Magdeburg (p. 113) viâ Stendal, for Buchholz (p. 170) viâ Lüneburg, and of a branch-line to Perleberg and Wittstock.

From (115 M.) Glöwen a short branch-line runs to Havelberg (Kronprinz), with a fine Romanesque cathedral of 1140.

From (131 M.) Neustadt, where the Dosse is crossed, branch-line to Güstrow (p. 206). 139 M. Friesack, with a monument to Elector Frederick I., by Calandrelli (1894). — 147 M. Paulinenaue.

FROM PAULINENAUE TO NEU-RUPPIN, 17 M., railway in $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr. (2 \mathcal{M} 40, 1 \mathcal{M} 80, 1 \mathcal{M} 20 pf.). — Near (10 M.) Fährbellin the Great Elector defeated the Swedes in 1675. — 17 M. Neu-Ruppin (Krone; Hôtel du Nord), a town with 15,500 inhab., on the Ruppiner-See, rebuilt after a fire in 1787.

About 12 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the N.E. of Neu-Ruppin lies Rheinsberg (Rathskeller; Kelpin, R. 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ \mathcal{M}), with the château where Frederick the Great lived when crown-prince from 1736 to 1740.

173 M. Spandau, see p. 106. The train now crosses the Havel and the Spree.

178 M. Berlin, see p. 1.

23. From Berlin to Stralsund.

a. Viâ Neu-Brandenburg.

137 M. RAILWAY from the Stettin Station (p. 1) in $4\frac{1}{4}$ -6 hrs. (fares 18 \mathcal{M} , 13 \mathcal{M} 50 pf., 9 \mathcal{M} ; express 20 \mathcal{M} 30, 15 \mathcal{M} 10, 10 \mathcal{M} 60 pf.).

Berlin, see p. 1. — The first important station is (18 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Oranienburg (Eilers), a town of 6900 inhab., on the Havel. The château is now a normal school, but some of its rooms are kept up in the original style. In front of it are a war-monument and a statue of Louisa Henrietta, wife of the Great Elector. — The line traverses a pretty wooded country. From (29 M.) Löwenberg a branch-line runs to (20 M.) Templin. — 50 M. Fürstenberg; 60 M. Strelitz.

62 M. Neu-Strelitz (British Hotel, well spoken of, R., L., & A. 2 $\frac{1}{2}$, D. 2 \mathcal{M} ; Mecklenburger Hof, R., L., & A. 2, D. 2 \mathcal{M} ; Railway Restaurant), the capital of the grand-duchy of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, is a town of 10,300 inhab., pleasantly situated amid wood on the Zierker See. The handsome Schloss is surrounded by pleasure grounds and a deer-park. The mausoleum, in the Schloss-Garten, contains a copy of Rauch's statue of Queen Louisa (see below). In the market-place is a statue of Grand-Duke George (d. 1860).

About 7 M. to the N. (carr. in 1½ hr.) is the summer-château of Hohen-Zieritz, where Queen Louisa of Prussia, a daughter of the grand-ducal line, died in 1810.

From Neustrelitz to Wittenberge, see p. 208.

From Neu-Strelitz to ROSTOCK AND WARNEMÜNDE, 78 M., railway in 2½-5 hrs. (fares 10 M. 10, 7 M. 60, 5 M. 10 pf.; express 11 M. 40, 8 M. 50, 5 M. 90 pf.); express from Berlin to (182 M.) Rostock in 4 hrs. (fares 19 M. 40, 14 M. 50, 10 M. 20 pf.). — The most important intermediate station is (21 M.) Waren (Hôt. du Nord*, R., L., & A. 2 M., unpretending; Stadt Hamburg, well spoken of), a town of 8000 inhab. on the Müritz, a large lake, with a trade in grain and several manufactories. — 70 M. Rostock, see p. 204. — 78 M. Warnemünde, see p. 206.

From (72 M.) Blankensee a branch-line runs to (23 M.) Strasburg in der Uckermark. 79 M. Stargard.

84½ M. Neu-Brandenburg (Rail. Restaurant, D. 1¼ M.), see p. 207. — 93 M. Treptow; 114 M. Randow; 135 M. Voigdehagen.

b. Via Angermünde.

150 M. RAILWAY in 6 hrs. (fares 18 M., 13 M. 50 pf., 9 M.). — To Swinemünde (125 M.) in 4-6¼ hrs. (express fares 18 M. 10, 13 M. 50, 9 M. 40 pf.; ordinary 18 M. 10, 12 M. 10, 8 M. 10 pf.); to Heringsdorf (129 M.) in 4½-7 hrs. (fares 18 M. 80, 13 M. 90, 9 M. 80 pf.).

From Berlin to (45 M.) Angermünde, see R. 25.

68 M. Prenslau (Hôtel de Prusse*, R., L., & A. 2, B. ¾ M.; Deutsches Haus), on the Ucker, the ancient capital of the Uckermark, with 19,700 inhab., lies at the N. end of the lower Uckersee. The Gothic Church of St. Mary (1325-39; restored) is one of the finest brick structures in this district.

82 M. Pasewalk (Stuthmann's Hotel), with 9800 inhab. and a monument to Emp. Frederick III. (1895), is the junction of the lines to Stettin, Schwerin, and Hamburg (R. 21). — 89 M. Jatznick (branch to Uckermünde); 93 M. Ferdinandshof (branch to Jarmen). — 102 M. Ducherow.

FROM DUCHEROW TO HERINGSDOEF, 29 M., railway in 1½ hr. — 7 M. Carzin. 24 M. Swinemünde, see p. 218. 29 M. Heringsdorf, see p. 218.

From Carzin (see above) a steamer plies daily (except Sun.) in 2 hrs. (fares 2 or 3 M.) to Zinnowitz (Belvedere, pens. 1½-6 M.; Glienberg), a rising seaside-resort in the island of Usedom.

109 M. Anklam (Traube, R., L., & A. 2½, D. 2 M.; Linde), with 13,700 inhab., on the Peene, formerly the frontier between Prussia and Sweden.

120 M. Züssow is the junction for (11 M.) Wolgast (Deutsches Haus), a busy commercial town (8100 inhab.) on the Peene.

From Wolgast a diligence plies twice daily in summer in 1½ hr. to (5½ M.) Zinnowitz (see above).

131 M. Greifswald (Deutsches Haus*, R., L., & A. 2-3, B. ¾, D. 2 M.; Hôtel de Prusse*, same charges; Hôt. du Nord; Traube; Victoria), a town with 22,800 inhab., possesses a university founded in 1456 (900 students), and several picturesque late-Gothic gabled houses, especially in the market. The Church of St. Nicholas, with a fine tower (view), was built in 1300-1326. St. James's and St. Mary's are of earlier date; the last has a handsome carved altar. The Monument in the Rubenow-Platz, opposite the University, commemorates the 400th anniversary of the foundation of the latter. The university owns the Croy Tapestry (16th cent.), representing Luther preaching before the royal families of Saxony and Pomerania (exhibited every 10 years; 1890, 1900, and so on). A little to the W. of the town are some Salt Springs, with a bath-house. — Steamboat to Rügen, see p. 212.

The small river Ryck connects Greifswald with the Greifswalder Bodden, a broad arm of the Baltic, 2 M. distant. Steamers (10 pf.) ply in summer to Wick and Eldena (with a ruined convent of 1200), at the mouth of the river.

135 M. Jeesser; 138 M. Miltzow; 141 M. Wüstenfelde.

149 M. Stralsund. — Hotels. *HÔTEL BRANDENBURG (Pl. a; B. 4), Mönch-Str. 50, R., L., & A. 2-3½, B. 1, D. 2 M.; *GOLDENER LÖWE (Pl. b; C. 3), Alter Markt 2, R., L., & A. from 2, B. ¾, D. 2 M.; HÔTEL BISMARCK (Pl. d; B. 3), Mühlen-Str. 20, R., L., & A. from 1½ M., with a good restaurant; *KÖNIG VON PREUSSEN (Pl. c; B. 5), Neuer Markt 14, R., L., & A. 2, B. ¾, D. 1½ M.; FÄHR-HÔTEL (Pl. e; D. 3), at the harbour, R., L., & A. 2, B. ¾, D. 1¼ M.; ELYSIUM, at the station, with large pleasure-garden.

Post and Telegraph Office (Pl. 10; B. 5), in the Neue Markt.

Steamboat to Rügen, see p. 212. A steam-ferry plies from the Fährbrücke (Pl. D. 3) to Altefähr (p. 212; 30 pf.). — Comp. the Vorpommersche Kurabuch (40 pf.).

Stralsund, with 30,100 inhab., lies on the Strelasund, a strait 2 M. wide, which separates Rügen from the mainland and washes the small fortified island of Dänholm. The town is entirely surrounded by water, being connected with the mainland by three moles only. The lofty gabled houses, the towers, and the Gothic churches of brick resemble those of Rostock and Lübeck. The fortifications have been removed or converted into promenades.

Stralsund was founded about 1209, and soon attained to such prosperity that in the 14th cent. it was second in importance, among the Hanseatic towns on the Baltic, to Lübeck alone. The citizens adopted the reformed faith at an early period, and were therefore on the side of Sweden during the Thirty Years' War. In 1628, aided by Danish and Swedish vessels, they gallantly defended their town against Wallenstein, who had sworn to take it, 'though it had been chained to heaven', but was compelled to abandon the siege after losing 12,000 men. From the Peace of Westphalia in 1648 until 1815, when it became Prussian, the town, together with the province of Vor-Pommern and the island of Rügen, belonged to Sweden.

On leaving the station, we cross the Tribseer Damm to the Neue Markt (Pl. B. 5) in a straight direction. The Marienkirche, situated here (Pl. 6; open daily in summer, 11-12 and 3-4), erected in 1416-73, is a vast brick structure with a transept, aisles, and a series of chapels between the flying buttresses. The tower affords a fine survey of the peculiar, insulated position of Stralsund, and part of the island of Rügen. (Sacristan, Marien-Str. 10.)

In the Alte Markt (Pl. B, C, 3), a fine mediæval Platz, stands the handsome Rathhaus (Pl. 11), dating partly from the 13th century. The two rich façades fronting the market, built in the 15th and modernised in the 18th cent., have been restored in the original style.

The large Council Chamber contains portraits of Swedish and Prussian kings, and Luther at the Diet of Worms, by Jakobs; one of the ante-chambers has portraits of Stralsund Burgomasters. — The PROVINZIAL-MUSEUM OF NEU-VORPOMMEREN AND RÜGEN, on the upper floor, contains an important Collection of Northern Antiquities, mediæval ornaments (golden ornaments from Hiddensee, of the 10th or 11th cent.), weapons, coins, guild insignia, ecclesiastical antiquities, and objects of historical interest connected with Stralsund (open daily from May 15th till Sept. 15th, 11-1; at other times on application to the castellan of the Rathhaus). — The MUNICIPAL LIBRARY (80,000 vols.) was founded in 1709.

Beyond the Rathhaus rises the Nicolaikirche (Pl. 7; C, 3), a noble edifice begun in 1311, resembling the Marienkirche. The high-altar, carved in wood in the 15th cent. and restored in 1856, represents the Passion; fine bronze slab dating from 1357; carved altar-pieces; brazen candelabra and sconces; remains of a Gothic ciborium of wood; benches of the 16th cent.; at the entrance to those of the Krämer, or merchants, is the polite intimation: 'Dat ken kramer ist de blief da buten, oder ick schla em up de schnuten' (literally, 'He that's no merchant stay without, else I shall strike him on the snout!'). The sacristan lives at Nicolai Kirchhof 3.

To the S. stands the Jacobikirche (Pl. 4), a Gothic building with nave and aisles of different heights, terminating at the E. end in a straight wall. The W. façade is surmounted by a slender and richly-decorated tower. In the sacristy is some fine carved wood-work. The sacristan lives at Jakobithurm-Str. 26.

From the Alte Markt the Fährstrasse (Pl. C, 3) descends to the Fährthor, outside which is the Fährbrücke, or steamboat-quay, whence a steamer plies hourly to Altefähr (p. 212; train to Bergen and Sassnitz, see p. 212).

In the Frankenvorstadt (Pl. C, D, 5, 6) is the large fish-breeding establishment of Andershof. — The Gothic War Monument (Pl. 7a; B, 3) rises in the gardens outside the Knieperthor. Between the Knieperdamm and Sarnow-Str. (Pl. A, 1, 2) lies the Brunnenaue.

In 1809, when the war between France and Austria broke out, Major Ferdinand von Schill, a distinguished Prussian officer of hussars, quitted Berlin with his regiment without the knowledge of the king, with a view to effect a patriotic rising against the French in N. Germany. His noble effort met with little response, and he and his corps were eventually driven back to Stralsund by the Westphalian and Dutch allies of the French. The town was taken by storm, and after a heroic defence Schill and most of his corps were killed in the streets. Eleven captured officers were afterwards shot at Wesel by order of Napoleon. The spot where Schill fell is indicated by an inscription in the pavement of the Fähr- strasse (Pl. C, 3, opposite the house No. 21). His grave is in the N.E. angle of the St. Jürgen Cemetery, $\frac{3}{4}$ M. from the gate of that name (to the left of Pl. A, 2). His head was interred at Brunswick (p. 145).

FROM STRALSUND TO ROSTOCK, 45 M., railway in $2\frac{1}{2}$ hrs. (fares 4 M 40, 2 M 80, 1 M 50 pf.). — From (12 M.) Velgast a branch (7 M.) diverges to Barth (8200 inhab.; Sonne). — 27 M. Ribnitz (Helms Hotel), with 4500 inhabitants. — From (38 M.) Geibensande an omnibus runs daily to (1-1½ hr.) Müritz (p. 206) and Graal. — 45 M. Rostock, see p. 204.

From Barth (see above) steamers run to the seaside-resorts of Zingst and Prerow.

24. From Stralsund to Sassnitz via Bergen (Putbus).

Island of Rügen.

30 M. RAILWAY in about 2-2½ hrs. (fares 3 M 10, 2 M 10 pf.; no first class). STEAMBOATS also ply to Rügen from Stralsund, Greifswald, and Stettin. — Steam Ferry from Stralsund to Altefähr, see p. 210.

Rügen, the largest island belonging to Germany (377 sq. M.; 32 M. long, and 25 M. wide), with 45,000 inhab., is separated from the mainland on the S.W. by the Strelasund (p. 210), which at the narrowest part is 1½ M. in breadth. The deep bays by which the island is indented in every direction form a number of peninsulas, connected with it by narrow strips of land only. The most important of these are Wittow and Jasmund on the N. and Mönchgut on the S. side of the island. The scenery on the E. coast of the island is very picturesque, with its beech-woods, steep cliffs, and blue water. The finest point is Stubbenkammer, near which (2½ hrs.' walk) is Sassnitz, the most frequented bathing-resort. Rügen, which was originally inhabited by the Germanic Rugii, was afterwards occupied by a Slavonic race, who resisted the influences of Christianity and civilisation down to the middle of the 14th century. In 1478, after the native princes had become extinct, the island was annexed to W. Pomerania, the fortunes of which it thenceforward shared (comp. p. 210).

The train starts from the principal station of Stralsund, and skirts the Frankenvorstadt to (1¾ M.) Stralsund Harbour. Here the passengers embark on a steam-ferry-boat, which crosses the Strelasund to Altefähr Station, where the train for Bergen awaits them.

Altefähr (Curhaus, R. from 25 M per week; Hôtel Putbus) is a small bathing-resort. Railway to Putbus, Binz, and Sellin, see p. 213.

5½ M. (from Stralsund) Rambin; 9 M. Samtens; 13 M. Teschenhagen.

16 M. Bergen. — *PRINZ VON PREUSSEN; *RATHSKELLER, R., L., & A. 2-2½, B. ¾ M; HÔTEL ZUM BAHNHOF, R., L., & A. 1½-2½, B. ¾, D. 1½, pens. 4½-5 M; GOLDNER ADLER, unpretending.

Bergen, a town with 3800 inhab., is the official capital of Rügen and the neighbouring islands. The conspicuous Church with its lofty tower is in the late-Romanesque style and dates from the 12th century. The Rathhaus contains a small collection of Rügen antiquities. — To the N.E., ¼ hr. from the town, rises the Rugard (320 ft.; carr. there and back 3 M), crowned by an intrenchment, the remains of a stronghold which was destroyed in 1316, and with a tower to the memory of Arndt, the poet (adm. 20 pf.; restaurant). The View is very extensive and picturesque, especially by evening-light.

FROM BERGEN TO PUTBUS (6 M.) AND LAUTERBACH (7½ M.), railway in 24-32 min. (fares 60 and 40, 70 and 50 pf.; from Stralsund to Putbus 2 M 40, 1 M 80 pf.). Intermediate station, Pastitz.

A railway is also being built from Bergen to Putsig, Trent, and Wiek.

Beyond Bergen the railway crosses the narrow passage between the Grosse and Kleine Jasmunder Bodden to (22 M.) Lietzow. — 26 M. Sagard (Fürstenkrone; Hankoff); about 1 M. to the S. is the Dubberworth, the largest tumulus, or 'giant's grave', in Rügen. — 27½ M. Lenken (p. 214). — 30 M. Crampas-Sassnitz, see p. 214.

FROM ALTFÄHR TO PUTBUS, BINZ, AND SELLIN, 33 M., narrow-gauge railway (opened in 1896) in 4 hrs. (fares to Putbus 1 M 50, 95 pf.; thence to Binz 60, 35 pf., to Sellin 90, 55 pf.). — 11 M. Gross-Schoritz, birthplace of the poet Arndt (1769-1860). 14½ M. Garz (Hôtel du Nord), the ancient Carenza, formerly the capital of the island, destroyed by the Danes in 1168.

22 M. Putbus. — FÜRSTENHOF*, in the Promenade, BELLEVUE*, in the Circus; charges at both: R., L. & A. 1½-2½ M, B. 75-80 pf., D. 2, pens. 4½-6 M; ADLER, unpretending; DEUTSCHES HAUS, in the market; DÖRSCHLAG'S HOTEL, Luisen-Str. — Curhaus, Felsenkeller, both with gardens.

Putbus, the principal place in the island, and residence of the Prince of Putbus, lies about 1½ M. from the sea. The cheerful little town consists chiefly of the Promenade and the Circus; the latter is adorned with a monument to the founder. — The Palace, in the park, in the late-Renaissance style (1872), contains some marble statues by Rauch and Thorvaldsen, and several good pictures. In front of it is a marble statue of Prince Malte (d. 1864), founder of Putbus, by Drake.

The bathing-places are 1½ M. distant, at Lauterbach (Victoria, R., L., & A. 1¼, pens. 4-6 M; Friedrich-Wilhelms-Bad*, R., L., & A. 1½-3, pens. 4½-6 M), which is charmingly situated on the Rügensche Bodden. Behind the bath-house is a fine beech-wood called the Goor. The beautiful island of Vilm (restaurant at the forester's, D. 2 M; steam-ferry there and back 40 pf.) contains magnificent oaks and beeches.

Near Neuencamp, on a small peninsula, 3 M. to the S.E. of Putbus, is a Monument to the 'Great Elector', on the spot where he landed with his army in 1678 for the purpose of wresting the island from the Swedes.

Beyond Putbus the narrow-gauge railway passes several wayside stations.

29 M. Binz (Lockenvitz, Potenberg, in the village; Curhaus, Strand-Hotel, Ostsee-Hotel, Seeschloss, on the beach) is frequented as a bathing-place.

30½ M. Jagdschloss; the station lies 2/3 M. from the château, at the entrance to the Granitz, a beautiful deer-park enclosed by a lofty fence (carr. 25 pf.). The Jagdschloss (or 'hunting château'), situated on an eminence, contains good modern pictures. The platform of the tower, to which a spiral staircase of 154 steps ascends, commands a fine View* (cards of admission obtained at the adjacent Hôtel Granitz*). The Kicköver and other points in the park are worth visiting.

31 M. Garßitz. — 33 M. Sellin (Bunterbart, Wald-Hotel, etc.), with two stations, is a quiet and pleasant little resort.

The rugged peninsula of Mönchgut is best visited from Sellin. Göhren (Brandenburg; Borgmeyer), Thiessow (Strand-Hotel; Mönchgut), and other places are frequented for sea-bathing. Primitive native customs and peculiar costume.

The S.E. part of Rügen is connected with the N.E. peninsula of Jasmund by an isthmus called the Schmale Heide. Binz is 11-12 M. from Sassnitz, and the journey from one to the other is better made by sailing-boat or steamer than on foot or by carriage (12 M.). About 3 M. from Binz is the forester's house of Prora, beyond which are (3 M.) Neu-Mukran and (1 M.) Mukran. Hence we proceed either to (3 M.) Lanken (p. 213), or along the beach viâ Dwarsieden, with the country-seat of Herr von Hanseemann, to (5 M.) Sassnitz.

Sassnitz (Hôtel Fahrberg*, R., L., & A. 2½-6, D. 1 M., pens. 42 M. per week; Küster, pens. 6-7½ M.; Behr*, pens. 5½-7 M., all with view; Strand-Hotel; Nicolai; Böttcher; all often crowded in summer; lodgings 25-50 M. per week; visitors' tax 4-8 M.) and the adjoining village of Crampas (Victoria*, R., L., & A. 2-3, pens. 6-6½ M.; Bellevue*, similar charges; Prins Heinrich von Preussen; Mathe's Hôtel Garni), prettily situated at the mouth of a ravine, near the beautiful forest of Stubbenitz (see p. 215) form together one of the most popular resorts on the Baltic Sea. Best survey from the Fahrberg, a wooded hill between Crampas and Sassnitz. The beach is rather stony (bath 30 pf.). — Railway to Bergen and Stralsund, see pp. 213, 212.

FROM SASSNITZ TO STUBBENKAMMER, about 7 M. We follow the upper margin of the chalk cliffs, the path leading through beech woods and commanding beautiful views of the sea, till we reach the (2 M.) Wisower Klinken*, a series of chalk cliffs. Here we turn inland to the (3 min.) Restaurant Waldhalle, ½ hr. beyond which we cross the Kieler Bach. We then ascend the steps in the cliffs, passing the Victoria Sicht and the Wilhelm I. Sicht (see below), and reach Stubbenkammer in 1½ hr. more. [The carriage-road (6 M.), leading inland from Sassnitz, passes Crampas and traverses beech-woods. A finger-post, about ¾ M. before Stubbenkammer, indicates the path to the (5 min.) Hertha-See (p. 215).]

Stubbenkammer (from the Slavonic stopien, steps, and kamien, a rock; Königlicher Gasthof, R., L., & A. 1½-3, D. 2½ M., pens. 36-50 M. per week; tolerable quarters at Euge's at Hagen, ½ M., or at Eichstädt's at Nipmerow, 2 M. from Stubbenkammer, or at Lohme, 3 M. to the N.), the finest point in Rügen, situated on the E. coast of the peninsula of Jasmund, is a furrowed chalk cliff, rising almost perpendicularly from the sea to a height of 435 ft. The summit, called the Königsstuhl*, commands a beautiful view. To the left is a rugged precipice of chalk; in the distance the lighthouse of Arcona; to the right the Kleine Stubbenkammer. The latter, named the Wilhelm I. Sicht since the visit of the emperor in 1865, commands a fine survey of the Königsstuhl itself. A third point, called the Victoria Sicht, is a few minutes' walk farther on. Between the Königstuhl and the Kleine Stubbenkammer a winding path descends, passing the clear and cool Golcha- or Friedrich-Wilhelms-Quelle, to the (10 min.) foot of the cliffs, of which an imposing survey is obtained from below.

An illumination of the cliff at night by means of red-hot charcoal produces a striking effect (each pers. 50 pf.). — An annex of the Königliche Gasthof contains an interesting Museum of Northern Stone Antiquities (50 pf.).

The rugged E. side of the peninsula of Jasmund is clothed with a beautiful beech-forest, called the Stubbenitz*, extending along the coast for 12 M., and said to have been regarded as sacred by the ancient Rugii. In this forest, about $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. from Stubbenkammer (finger-post on the road to Sassnitz, to the right, 10 min. from the inn), lies the Hertha-See, a small lake about 200 yds. in diameter, on the W. bank of which rises the Herthaburg, a semicircular mound, 50 ft. in height. Several 'altars' found in the neighbourhood have been supposed to mark this as the scene of ancient religious rites. One of these, near the foot of the Herthaburg, about a hundred paces to the right of the path from the road to the lake, is provided with runlets which may have been intended for the escape of the blood. Another is at Quollitz, $3\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the W. Tacitus (Germ. 40) mentions the mysterious rites of the goddess Nerthus, but the form Hertha, which occurs in some editions, is a false reading of comparatively modern origin, and the tradition which points out this spot as the scene of her worship is probably unfounded. Fine view of Arcona through the trees.

The promontory of Arcona (Schilling, near the lighthouse, R. $1\frac{1}{2}$ M.), the northernmost point of Rügen, 206 ft. above the sea, is crowned with a lighthouse 75 ft. in height. The view embraces the coast of Jasmund, the island of Hiddensee, and the Danish island of Möen in the distance. Here once stood an ancient stronghold of the Wends, consisting of a circular intrenchment 20-40 ft. high, with the temple of their four-headed idol Swantevit. It was destroyed by the Danes in 1168.

The traveller is recommended to return from Arcona by Altenkirchen (see below) and ($7\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Breege (Lockenwitz; Weissbach), a large fishing village and bathing-place on the N. shore of the Breeger Bodden (called at by the steamer from Stralsund to Polchow). From Breege a sailing boat may be taken direct to Vieregge (in 1 hr.; 3 M.); or the traveller may cross by the ordinary ferry from Cammin (3 M. from Breege) to Vieregge in $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. Between Vieregge and ($1\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Neuenkirchen (inn) rise the Hochhilgord hills, used in ancient times as places for sacrifice and burial, whence a view of the N. part of the island is enjoyed. Bergen (see p. 212) is 11 M. distant. The carriage-road from Arcona to Bergen viâ Altenkirchen (inn), Wiek, the Willow Ferry, and Trent is uninteresting (railway from Wiek to Bergen under construction, see p. 212).

To the W. is the island of Hiddensee (also called at by the Stralsund steamer), inhabited by fishermen. The Dornbusch (220 ft.), at the N. end of the island, affords fine views. It is reached from the steamboat-station viâ ($1\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Kloster (inn), with the ruins of a Cistercian convent (1296).

Most travellers prefer to return direct from Stubbenkammer to Stralsund. A tolerable road leads viâ Nipmerow, Poissow, and Volk-sitz to ($7\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Sagard (p. 213), where we join the railway.

25. From Berlin to Dantzig via Stettin.

312 M. RAILWAY to Stettin, 83 M., in 2-3 hrs. (express fares 12 M. 20, 9 M. 10, 6 M. 40 pf.; ordinary 10 M. 80, 8 M. 10, 5 M. 40 pf.). From Stettin to Dantzig, 229 M., in 8-10 hrs. (29 M. 60, 22 M. 20, 14 M. 80 pf.).

Berlin (Stettin Station), see p. 1. — 14½ M. Bernau (Goldner Löwe), with 8200 inhab., was gallantly defended by its inhabitants against the Hussites in 1432. Armour, said to have been captured on that occasion, and other antiquities are shown in the mediæval tower of the Königs-Thor (adm. 50 pf.). — 20½ M. Biesenthal.

28 M. Eberswalde (*Deutsches Haus, R. 2-3, D. 1½ M.; Hohenzollern; Curhaus; *Rail. Restaurant), a busy town with 18,300 inhab. on the Finow Canal, frequented by the Berliners as a summer resort. The large Foresters' Academy contains appropriate collections.

A branch-railway runs hence in 35 min. (fares 1 M. 70, 1 M. 30, 80 pf.) to (12 M.) Freienwalde (Schertz, Heuer, etc.), a small watering-place.

Beyond Eberswalde the Finow Canal is crossed. — To the right, near (36 M.) Chorn, are the ruins of a Cistercian monastery (13th cent.), the early-Gothic church of which was the burial-place of the Margraves of Brandenburg. — We skirt the Paardester See.

45 M. Angermünde (Anmon's Hotel; Rail. Restaurant), an ancient town with a lofty Gothic church of the 14th and 15th centuries. — From Angermünde to Stralsund, see R. 23.

A branch-line runs hence to Schwedt (Goldener Hirsch), on the Oder (14½ M., in ¾ hr.).

FROM ANGERMÜNDE TO FRANKFURT ON THE ODER, 60 M., railway in 3 hrs. (fares 8 M. 70, 6 M. 50, 4 M. 30 pf.). — 25½ M. Wriesen, a small town on the Alte Oder. — 60 M. Frankfurt on the Oder, see p. 238.

The line traverses the valleys of the Randow and Welse, and the Pommerensdorfer Wiesengrund.

83 M. Stettin. — Hotels. *HÔTEL DE PRUSSE, Luisen-Str. 10 (Pl. a; C, 5), R., L., & A. from 2, B. 1, D. 2½ M.; *HÔTEL DU NORD (Pl. b; C, 6), R., L., & A. 2-4, D. 2½ M., *DREI KRONEN (Pl. c; C, 6), *DEUTSCHES HAUS (Pl. d; C, 5), R., L., & A. 2-3½, D. 2 M., these three Breite-Str.; NORD-DEUTSCHER HOF, Grosse Dom-Str. 13, R., L., & A. 2-3, D. 1½ M.; BODE'S, Königs-Str. 8; KAISERHOF (Pl. f; C, 6), Am Bollwerk 37; VICTORIA (Pl. h; B, 6), Victoria-Platz 2; GUTKE'S HÔTEL GARNI (Pl. g; B, C, 6), Grüne Schanze 4, R., L., & A. 1½-2½, D. 1½ M., B. 60 pf.; KRONPRINZ, Gr. Wollweber-Str. 45.

Restaurants. *Kettner & Sohn, Breite-Str. 18; Schönherr, Schuh-Str. 12; Aux Caves de France, Kleine Dom-Str. 5. — Beer. *Webersberger, Parade-Platz 9; *Concerthaus, Café Central, Bürgerbräu, these three at the Königs-Thor; Café Paradeplatz, at the Berliner-Thor. — Confectioners: Tettenborn, at the Berliner-Thor; Vogt, München-Str. 14.

Theatres. Stadt-Theater (Pl. C, 5), closed in summer; Bellevue (Pl. A, 8), Bellevue-Str. 52; Elision, Grenz-Str. 8 (in summer only). — Central-Hallen, with circus, Bismarck-Str. 12; Concordia Theatre, Birken-Allée 7.

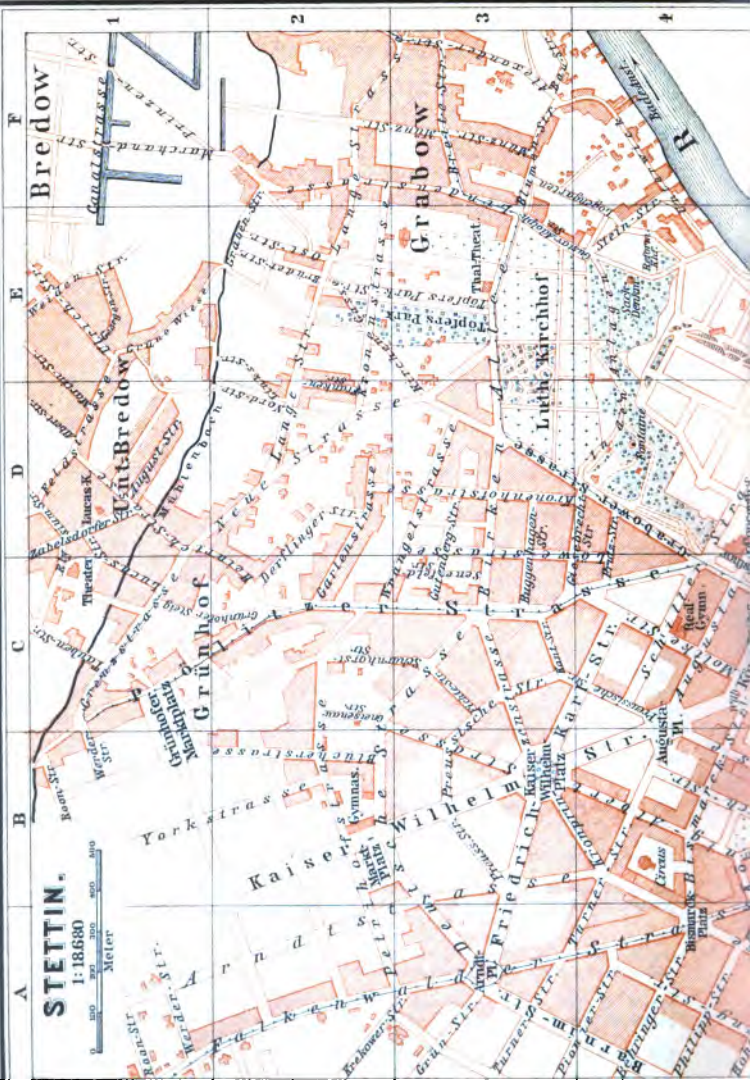

Electric Tramways traverse the town in all directions. Cabs. Per drive of 10 min. for 1 pers. 60 pf., each 5 min. more 20 pf. during the first ½ hr., after which 50 pf. for each ¼ hr. more; each addit. pers. 20 pf. more.

Steamboats (landing-place, Pl. E, 5). To Rügen, see p. 212; to Memel (twice a week in 40 hrs.; fare 15, 7½ M.); to Wollin, Cammin, and Döbenow, see p. 219; to Copenhagen, 6 times weekly.

Post & Telegraph Offices, Grüne Schanze 20 (Pl. C, 6); also at the Railway Station, and the Exchange in the Heumarkt.

STETTIN.

Baths. Schweizerhof 2 and Rosengarten 68. Swimming Baths: "Städtisches Schwimmbad, Rossmarkt 15; Infanterie Schwimmanstalt, Silberwiese.

Consuls. British consul, Wilfred Powell, Esq.; vice-consul, Jas. Stevenson, Esq. — American consul, Fred. W. Kickbusch, Esq.; vice & deputy consul, F. W. Kickbusch, jr. — Lord's Agent, Gustav Meisler.

Stettin, the capital of the Province of Pomerania, and the headquarters of the 2nd Corps d'Armée, with 141,000 inhab., including a garrison of 4000 soldiers, originally belonged to the Dukes of Pomerania, who became extinct in 1637, then to Sweden from 1648 to 1720, and has since been Prussian. It is a commercial and manufacturing town of great importance, situated on both banks of the Oder, the principal part being on the left bank, while on the right bank lie the quarters which were formerly the suburbs of Lastadie (i. e. 'wharf') and Silberwiese, connected with the left bank by four bridges, including a handsome railway swing-bridge.

The Oder at Stettin is sufficiently deep (20 ft.) for vessels of substantial size, and the town possesses a considerable fleet of sea-going craft and river steamboats. The chief exports are corn and spirits; the chief imports petroleum, train-oil, French wines, and herrings. Stettin is also the most important manufacturing place in Pomerania, the staple products being sugar, ships, machines, and chemicals. A large new harbour is being made at the Dunzig (Pl. E, F, 5).

The town contains little to interest the traveller. The Berliner Thor and the Königs-Thor (Pl. B, 5; C, 5) are handsome structures of the time of Fred. William I. Outside the latter is the Concert-Haus (Pl. C, 4). Between the Parade-Platz and the Königs-Platz rises an Equestrian Statue of Emp. William I. (Pl. C, 4), by Hilgers. The Königs-Platz is farther adorned with a copy in bronze of a Statue of Frederick the Great (Pl. C, 4) by Schadow, erected in 1793. The original, an admirable work in marble, now much injured, is in the Landhaus, Luisen-Str. 28 (Pl. C, 5). In front of the Theatre (Pl. C, 5) stands a marble Statue of Frederick William III., by Drake.

The Schloss (Pl. D, 5; entr. in the Pelzer-Str.) was begun in 1503, the N. and W. wings were completed in 1577, and the building was altered in the 18th cent. and again recently. It was formerly the seat of the Dukes of Pomerania, and is now occupied by courts of justice and government-offices. The clock-tower (S. wing) contains the Provincial Museum (open in summer on Sun., 11-1, and Wed., 3-5; at other times on application). The court is adorned with a bust of the Great Elector, in bronze, by Wichmann. The church contains the burial-vault of the dukes. The grotesque face of the clock may be noticed. The tower commands a fine view.

The Church of St. James (Pl. C, 5, 6) is an important-looking building on an eminence in the centre of the town. The oldest part dates from the 13th cent., and the whole was remodelled after the siege of 1677 (spire rebuilt in 1895). — SS. Peter and Paul (Pl. D, 5), the most ancient church in Pomerania, was founded in 1124, and after various vicissitudes restored in 1816-17. Modern stained glass.

In the 'Neustadt' (Pl. A, B, 5, 6) are several substantial buildings, including the Stadt-Museum, Elisabeth-Str. 48, with a few modern pictures (open Sun. and Wed., 10-2). Opposite the Post Office is the new Rathhaus (Pl. B, C, 6).

FROM STETTIN TO SWINEMÜNDE (railway viâ Pasewalk in 4 hrs., see p. 209), steamer daily in 3½ hrs. (fares 3 M., 1½ M.). — Immediately after starting, we obtain a fine view of the busy town. To the left lie the villages of Grabow and Bredow, the latter containing the extensive workshops of the Vulcan Ship-building Company. Then Züllow, with several large factories. Frauendorf, with the Elisenhöhe Restaurant, is visible among the trees on the slope to the left. Gotzlow, with the wood-clad Julo, is a favourite popular resort. The boat next passes the Dammische See (to the left the small town of Pöhlitz), and enters the broader Papenwasser, where the little town of Stenitz is seen on the right. Two hours after starting the steamer reaches the Stettiner Haff, a fresh-water basin 62 M. in circumference, divided into the Grosse and Kleine Haff, from which the Oder empties itself into the Baltic by means of three channels, the Peene, the Swine, and the Dievenow, thus forming the two large islands of Usedom and Wollin. The long windings of the Swine are avoided by means of the Kaiserfahrt, a canal which is protected against silting up by large moles and is deep enough for the passage of the largest ships. The steamboat enters the canal. To the right in the distance rise the wooded Lebener Sandberge. The Friedrichshaler Forst, which is here intersected by the canal, extends as far as Swinemünde.

Swinemünde (Hôtel de Prusse, R., L., & A. 2½-3, pens. 5 M., well spoken of; Drei Kronen, Hôtel du Nord, unpretending, all at the harbour; Deutsches Haus, in the market-place; König Wilhelmshof, on the beach), the capital of the two islands, with 9400 inhab., situated in Usedom, 1½ M. above the mouth of the Swine, was founded in 1740, and is now the seaport for the heavier vessels trading with Stettin. At the mouth of the Swine, which is protected by fortifications, are two massive breakwaters, ¾-1 M. in length, forming the entrance to the harbour. On the E. bank are new docks and a lighthouse 210 ft. in height, commanding an extensive view. Swinemünde is also a fashionable sea-bathing place (visitors' tax 6 M.). — British Vice-Consul, Edward Rose, Esq.

The railway from Swinemünde to (5 M.) Heringsdorf passes the fishing village of Ahlbeck (Wendicke; Strand-Hôtel: Heyn, unpretending), a rising sea-bathing place with 6000 visitors annually.

Heringsdorf (Curhaus, Lindemann's, both by the sea, R. & A. 3, D. 2½ M.; Hôtel Garni Seeschloss, R., L., & A. 3 M.; Strand-Hotel, and several others; numerous boarding-houses; Schmidt, cheaper; Pension Augusta Victoria; lodgings for July and Aug. 250-700 M., cheaper before and afterwards; visitors' tax 8 M.; full in the season), charmingly situated in the midst of beech-woods, is the most fashionable of the Baltic sea-bathing places (11,000 visitors annually). The beach, the long pier (10 pf.), and the wooded heights near it afford pleasant walks: to the Kulm, the Lange Berg (3 M. to the W.; view-tower), the Wolgastsee at Ahlbeck (2 M.), and the Streckelberg (165 ft.; 10 M. to the N.W.). — Vineta, the traditional fortress and prosperous capital of the Wends on the coast of the Baltic, is said to have been situated at the base of the Streckelberg, until at a very remote period it was overwhelmed by the sea. — Farther to the W. is Zinnowitz (see p. 209).

FROM STETTIN TO MISDRÖY. Steamboat to Laatzig in 3 hrs., daily in summer (fares 3 and 1½ M.). — At the entrance to the Kaiserfahrt (see above), our vessel steers to the N. across the Vietsiger See and stops at Laatzig, whence we proceed by road to (1½ M.; omn. ½-1 M.) Misdröy.

Misdröy (Curhaus; Victoria; Deutsches Haus; Strand-Hotel, etc.; lodgings 200-800 M.; often full), a well-organised bathing-place (10,000 visitors), is pleasantly situated between two wooded heights on the N.W. coast of the island of Wollin. Pretty walks near the conspicuous new church, to (1 M.) Liebeseele, on the road to Swinemünde, or along the beach, to the Kaffeeberg (1½ M.; view), to the Gosauberg (340 ft.; 3 M. farther on), to the Jordansee (6 M.), etc. Diligence to Swinemünde daily (30 pf.).

FROM STETTIN TO WOLLIN AND CAMMIN, 43 M. and 49 M., railway in about 3½ hrs.; also steamboat in 3-4 hrs. daily (fares 2, 4 M.). — Wollin (Stadt Worms), the ancient capital of the island, is now an unimportant place. Cammin (Möyer's Hotel), has a cathedral of 1175.

RAILWAY FROM STETTIN TO BRESLAU, viâ Reppen, Rothenburg, and Glogau, 218 M., in 9¼-11 hrs. The stations on this line, the most direct between Stettin and Breslau, are of little importance. 34 M. Königsberg in der Neumark (Engel), with some good examples of brick architecture (church, Rathaus, gate-towers). 61½ M. Cüstrin, see p. 220. 81 M. Reppen. From Reppen to Breslau, see p. 233.

CONTINUATION OF RAILWAY FROM BERLIN TO DANTSIG. As the train quits Stettin we obtain a view of four railway-bridges adjoining each other. The line crosses the Oder, and then, near (87 M.) Finkenwalde, the Regnitz, an arm of the Oder. — 89 M. Alt-damm.

FROM ALTDAMM TO COLBERG, 76 M., railway in 4-5 hrs. (fares 8 M. 10, 5 M. 50 pf.). — 76 M. Colberg, see below.

Beyond (97 M.) Carolinendorst the train passes the Madü-See (12½ M. long and 1¾ M. broad), the largest lake in Pomerania, famous for its lampreys.

105 M. Stargard (Prinz von Preussen*, R., L., & A. 2½-3 M.; Hotel du Nord*, in the Markt; Kaiserhof, Gerichts-Str.), on the navigable Ilma, the most important town in E. Pomerania, with 28,100 inhab., was formerly surrounded by a well-preserved wall, of which the handsome towers and gateways are now almost the sole remains. The Marienkirche, of the 14-15th cent., is richly adorned externally, and of imposing dimensions in the interior. The Rathhaus of the 15th cent. deserves notice.

A railway runs from Stargard, viâ Kreuz, to (107 M.) Posen (p. 238) in 4-6 hrs. — From Stargard to Cüstrin, see p. 220.

132 M. Ruhnow (route to Konitz, see p. 221). — 174 M. Belgard (Ottow's Hotel*; branch-line to Neu-Stettin, p. 221).

FROM BELGARD TO COLBERG, 22½ M., railway viâ Cörin in ¾ hr. (fares 2 M. 90, 2 M. 20, 1 M. 50 pf.). — Colberg (Hôtel de Prusse*; Wünscher; Kaiserhof), a town of 18,800 inhab., lies on the Baltic Sea, at the mouth of the Persante. It was formerly a fortress of great strength, and successfully resisted attack during the Seven Years' War and in the war of 1806-7. The Rathhaus, in front of which stands a bronze statue of Fred. William III. by Drake, was built by Zwirner (d. 1861), the late architect of Cologne Cathedral. The Marienkirche (open 10-1 and 3-6, adm. 50 pf.), a vast Gothic pile with nave and double aisles, is richly adorned with paintings of the 14th cent. (on the vaulting of the nave and inner aisles), representing events of New Testament history, balanced by their prototypes from the Old Testament. It also contains an old candelabrum, figures of the Apostles of 1327, carved wood-work of 1523, and other interesting antiquities. The harbour is of considerable size. — The station lies to the N., between the town and its marine suburb of Münde (Neues Gesellschaftshaus; Münde; Altes Gesellschaftshaus), which is rapidly growing in popularity as a sea-bathing resort. — From Colberg to Alt-damm, see above.

A railway also runs from Belgard to (142 M.) Posen (p. 238) viâ Schneidemühl (p. 220).

188½ M. Cöslin (Kronprinz; Deutsches Haus), a district-town with 18,900 inhab.; in the market-place a statue of Fred. William I.

On the adjacent Gollenberg stands a monument in memory of the Pomeranians who fell in 1813-15. — 213 M. Schlawe, on the Wipper.

Schlawe is the junction for the unimportant line from Bügenwalde viâ Zollbrück to Neu-Stettin (p. 221). Near stat. Hammermühle lies Varzin (inn), an estate of Prince Bismarck, 16 M. to the S.E. of Schlawe.

230 M. Stolp (Hôtel de Prusse; Mundi's), once one of the Hanseatic towns, with 24,900 inhab., lies on the Stolpe, which reaches the sea 12 M. lower down. The Marienkirche dates from the 14th century. Branch-lines diverge here to Stolpmünde and to Zollbrück and Neu-Stettin (p. 221). — The line runs between ranges of low hills, that to the S. being called the Schönberge. Near the Oxhöfter Spitze (p. 228) the train reaches the Bay of Dantsic.

312 M. Dantsic, see p. 222.

26. From Berlin to Dantsic viâ Dirschau.

RAILWAY to Dantsic direct, 284 M., or viâ Bromberg, 305 M.; express in 8 hrs. (fares 41 M. 30, 30 M. 70, 21 M. 40 pf.); ordinary trains in 13-15 hrs. (fares 37 M., 27 M. 80, 18 M. 50 or 39 M. 80, 29 M. 90, 19 M. 90 pf.). Sleeping Carriages are attached to the trains.

Berlin, see p. 1. — At (10½ M.) Hoppegarten the great Berlin race-meetings are held in spring and autumn. — 42 M. Werbig, the junction of the line from Frankfort on the Oder to Angermünde (p. 216). The train crosses the Oder.

52 M. Cüstrin (Victoria; Krappe; Kronprinz) is a strongly fortified town with 17,600 inhab., at the confluence of the Warthe and Oder. There are two stations: Cüstrin Stadt and Cüstrin Vorstadt. Frederick the Great, when crownprince, was once imprisoned by his stern father in the castle here; and on the ramparts, in view of the room where he was confined, his friend Lieut. von Katte, who was to have accompanied Frederick in his intended flight to England, was beheaded on 6th Nov., 1730. — Cüstrin is the junction for the line from Stettin to Breslau viâ Reppen (see p. 219).

At Zorndorf, 4½ M. to the N., Frederick the Great and Seydlitz with 30,000 Prussians defeated 50,000 Russians under Fermor, 25th Aug., 1758.

FROM CÜSTRIN TO STARGARD, 61 M., railway in 4½ hrs. (fares 6 M., 4 M.). The country is flat but pleasing. Numerous unimportant stations. — 61 M. Stargard, see p. 219.

FROM CÜSTRIN TO FRANKFORT ON THE ODER, 18½ M., railway in 1 hr. (fares 2 M. 50, 1 M. 90, 1 M. 30 pf.). — 18½ M. Frankfort on the Oder, see p. 236.

The line crosses the Oder and the navigable Warthe.

80 M. Landsberg (Pasedag's*, R. & L. 1½-3¼ M.; Krone*, R., L., & A. 1½-3¼ M.; Goldnes Lamm; Rail. Restaurant*), with 30,500 inhab., and engine and other factories, is picturesquely situated on the Warthe. The top of the plateau, near the old entrenchments, commands pleasant views.

At (116 M.) Kreuz (Rail. Restaurant) the lines to Stettin and Posen diverge (see p. 219).

153 M. Schneidemühl (Goldener Löwe; Central), a town with 17,100 inhab., was seriously injured by a strong spring which burst forth suddenly in 1893. It is the junction for branch-lines to Posen, Neu-Stettin, Stolp, Konitz (see below), and Belgard (p. 219), to Zollbrück and Rügenwalde (p. 220), and to Callies. The direct line to (266 M.) Dirschau (p. 222) also diverges here, passing several unimportant stations, of which Konitz (*Priebe), junction for the Central Pomeranian Line from Ruhnow (p. 219), need alone be mentioned.

FROM SCHNIEDMÜHL to INSTERBURG, 272 M., railway in 10-11½ hrs. (fares 35 M. 60, 26 M. 50, 17 M. 80 pf.). — To (54 M.) Bromberg, see p. 222. — Beyond (85 M.) Thorn station the train crosses the Vistula by a massive iron bridge to (86 M.) the town of Thorn.

Thorn (Thorner Haf, well spoken of; Schwarzer Adler, R., L., & A. 1½-3, D. 2 M.; Victoria; Drei Kronen; Artushof Restaurant, Schützenhaus, with garden), with 30,300 inhab., is an old fortified town of some importance, on the Vistula. It was founded by the Knights of the Teutonic Order in 1231, and passed to Poland in 1454 and to Prussia in 1793. The handsome Rathhaus of the 13th, 14th, and 16th cent. contains a small museum (open daily 12-1; adm. 50 pf., free on Sun.) on the first floor (Restaurant* in the massive vaulted Rathskeller). On 7th Dec., 1724, the burgomaster Bömer and nine Protestant citizens were beheaded in front of the Rathhaus by order of the Polish government, in consequence of religious disturbances in the town, an incident known as the 'Blood Bath of Thorn' ('Thorner Blutbad'). It is commemorated by a small monument in the court of the Rathhaus. The new Post Office, opposite the Rathhaus, is built in the same style as the latter. At the corner of the market-place is a bronze statue (by Tieck) of Copernicus (d. 1543), who was born at Thorn (Copernicus-Str. 168) in 1473 (his grave is at Frauenburg, see p. 280). The Schiefe Thurm (i. e. leaning tower) and the old Schloss (erected in 1260, destroyed by the townspeople in 1420) also deserve inspection. The adjacent Junkerhof has been restored. The Church of St. John, an imposing edifice of 1231-60, possesses nave and aisles of equal height and an unusually low choir; the 1st chapel to the right contains a monument to Copernicus, and an antique brassen font, with an illegible inscription; in the choir is the fine monumental brass (1560) of Burgomaster Johann von Soest and his wife (sacristan, Johannis-Str. 99). The Marienkirche, founded seven years later, is a building of the same description, but its effect is somewhat marred by the addition of a gallery, with chapels beneath, in the left aisle. The pulpit, organ, and choir-stalls are good specimens of wood-carving. In a recess to the left of the high altar is the tomb (sarcophagus with recumbent figure) of a Swedish princess, who died in Thorn (sacristan in the court). The Church of St. James is a handsome brick edifice of 1308, with a curious E. gable; fine carvings in the interior. The War Monument, at the end of Kulmer-Strasse, is a peculiar structure of coloured bricks and terracotta. — From Thorn to Warsaw, express in 7¼ hrs., see Baedeker's Russland; to Posen, see p. 240.

Various small stations. — 272 M. Insterburg, see p. 286.

FROM THORN to MARIENBURG, 85 M., railway in 4½ hrs. (fares 8 M. 80, 5 M. 60 pf.). Several insignificant stations. From (23 M.) Kornatowo a branch-line diverges to (10½ M.) Culm (Schwarzer Adler), an ancient stronghold of the Teutonic Order (p. 229), on the lofty right bank of the Vistula. — 31 M. Graudenz (Treitlin; Schwarzer Adler; Gold. Löwe), with 24,200 inhab., a strong fortress, picturesquely situated on the right bank of the Vistula, which successfully resisted the French in 1807. Branch-lines to (14 M.) Laschkowitz (p. 222) and (12½ M.) Jablonowo. — 60 M. Marienwerder (Heitner, R., L., & A. 2¼, B. ¾ M.; Hinze; Magdeburg), a town of 9200 inhab., and the seat of government for the district. It was founded by the Teutonic Order in 1233 and was at first the seat of the bishops of Pomesania (W. Pomerania). The Peace of Thorn (1466) left it in the hands of the Order. It possesses many architectural monuments of the 13-14th cent., including a Cathedral and a Schloss* with two towers (Dansiger). The former, begun in 1843, is a handsome Gothic building, recently restored. A good survey of the church may be had from the gallery in the choir. In a chapel to the left of the choir is the "Tomb of Graf von der Gröben (d. 1683), who was an admiral under the Great Elector; the reliefs refer to the Elector's colonising efforts on the W. coast of Africa. The 'Wetzki-Platz', near the castle, commands a fine view. — 85 M. Marienburg, see p. 229.

Beyond Schneidemühl the Bromberg line leads across the fertile plain of the Netzebruch, passing several small stations.

207 M. Bromberg (Langning's; Moritz; Rail. Restaurant), on the Brahe, with 46,400 inhab., the seat of the government of this district, owes its commercial importance to a canal constructed by Frederick the Great, which connects the Vistula and the Oder, two of the greatest rivers in Europe. A monument to Frederick adorns the market-place. The Wiesmannshöhe, to the S. of the town, affords a fine view. There is another pleasant promenade near the locks on the canal. — From Bromberg to Posen, see p. 240.

The line follows the course of the Vistula, at a distance of 4-6 M. from it. 239 M. Laskowitz, the junction of a line to Graudenz (see p. 221).

274 M. Pelplin, the residence of the Bishop of Culm, has a fine cathedral. The train crosses the Ferse.

286 M. Dirschau (Kronprinz, well spoken of; Stadt Dansig; Railway Restaurant), a town of 11,700 inhab., where the Vistula is crossed by means of a handsome Railway Bridge, built in 1888-90. Railway to Königsberg, see R. 27. — From (299½ M.) Praust a branch-line runs in 2 hrs. to (25 M.) Carthaus (Bergmann), situated in a wooded and hilly lake-district, with an old Carthusian monastery. The Thurmberg (1120 ft.), 9 M. farther to the S., is one of the highest hills between the Harz and Ural Mts.

305 M. Dantsic. — Arrival. There are two railway-stations at Dantsic, the Prussian E. Railway Station at the Legethor (Pl. B, 7), for the line to Dirschau (Berlin), Marienburg, and Königsberg (see above and R. 27), and the Berlin and Stettin Railway Station outside the Hohe Thor (Pl. B, 2, 3), for the line to Neufahrwasser and to Oliva, Zoppot, Stettin, and Berlin (see p. 228 and R. 25). A Central Station is in progress.

Hotels (none of them quite first-class; bedrooms often poor). — HOTEL DU NORD (Pl. b; C, 5), Langemarkt 19, R., L., & A. 1½-3, D. 2, omn. ¼ M., B. 80 pf.; ENGLISCHES HAUS (Pl. a; C, 5), Langemarkt 30, R., L., & A. 2-4½ M., B. 80 pf., D. 2½ M., once the English cloth-makers' hall, fine view from the old tower; WALTHER'S (Pl. d; B, 5), Hundegasse 26, R., L., & A. 2-3 M., BERLIN (Pl. e; B, 5), Vorstädtischer Graben 18, both well spoken of; DREI MOHREN (Pl. f; B, 5), Holzgasse 26; THORN, Reithahn (Pl. B, 4); SCHREIBART (Pl. g; B, 5), Hundegasse 17, R., L., & A. 2-3 M., B. 80 pf.; St. PETERSBURG (Pl. c; D, 5), Langemarkt 13, with restaurant; PREUSSISCHER HOR, Junkergasse 7, R. 1-2½ M., well spoken of; DEUTSCHES HAUS (Pl. h; B, 5), Holzmarkt 12, R. from 1½ M.; KINDER (Pl. i; B, 6), Holzschneidegasse 7, near the E. Railway Station; STERN, Heumarkt 4, near the Hohe-Thor Station, R., L., & A. 1½-2 M.

Restaurants. Rathskeller*, in the Artushof; Denzer, Langemarkt 16; Aycke, Hundegasse 127, good cuisine. — Beer. Gambrinus-Halle, with garden, Ketterhaggasse (Pl. B, 6); Kiesau, Zum Luftdichten, Bürgerbräu, all in the Hundegasse; Hôtel St. Petersburg, see above; Englisches Haus, see above; Junkerhof, Küster, Brotbänkengasse. — Cafés. Zur Börse, Langemarkt 9; Central, Lange-Chief Attractions. Langemarkt and Langgasse, Rathhaus, Artushof, Marienkirche, the Franciscan monastery (Museum), and excursion to the Johannisberg (p. 228) or Westerplatte (p. 228).

Dantsic, or Dansig, Pol. Gdansk, with 125,600 inhab., including a garrison of 6000 men, the capital of the province of W. Prussia, a strong fortress, the headquarters of the 17th Army Corps, one of the most important commercial towns in the North, and now a manufacturing place also, lies 3 M. from the Baltic, near the influx of the united Mottlau and Radaune into the Vistula. The Mottlau flows through the town in two branches, and separates the Altstadt, Rechtstadt, and Vorstadt, the older parts of the town on the left bank (enumerated from N. to S.), from the modern Niederstadt and Langgarten on the right bank; between the branches is the Speicherinsel. The Radaune enters the town by an artificial channel near the Hohe Thor, and then separates the Altstadt from the Rechtstadt.

Dantsic first appears in history in 987, and about the year 1200 became capital of the Duchy of Pomerellen. In 1308 it came into possession of the Teutonic Order, whose fostering care inspired the town with new life. The German Rechtstadt was then added to the still half Slavonic Altstadt and soon became the centre of the business of the city. About the year 1358 the citizens of Dantsic joined the Hanseatic League (p. 194) and took an active part in the wars of their allies against the Northern kingdoms and the pirates, in which they were aided by the Teutonic knights. Owing to its extensive trade, the wealth and population of the town increased rapidly, and it soon became not only the most notable place in the Teutonic dominions of Prussia, but one of the most important of mediæval commercial cities. As the power of the Teutonic order began to decline, and that of the towns to increase, the latter found the supremacy of the Order irksome. They accordingly combined to form a league, and after a desperate struggle threw off the yoke in 1466. Dantsic, after having destroyed the castle of the Teutonic knights which adjoined the Altstadt, placed itself as a 'free city' under the protection of the kings of Poland. In this anomalous position it enjoyed extensive privileges, and absorbed almost the entire trade of Poland. When the Hanseatic League took part in the English Wars of the Roses, the ships of Dantsic frequently returned home laden with booty. The city embraced the Reformation at an early period, but continued its connection with Roman Catholic Poland. During the incessant wars in which the kingdom was involved in the 16-18th cent. the town was frequently besieged, but never surrendered, except to the Russians in 1734. The second partition of Poland in 1793 at length restored Dantsic to German supremacy. In 1807 the Prussian Marshal Kalckreuth surrendered the town, after an obstinate resistance, to the French Marshal Lefebvre, who in consequence of this success was created 'Duke of Dantsic'. Dantsic remained in the possession of the French until it was surrendered in 1814 by the French Marshal Rapp to the Russian and Prussian armies under the Duke of Wurtemberg, and when peace was concluded shortly afterwards it was again assigned to Prussia.

Of all the larger towns in N. Germany, Dantsic alone rivals Lübeck in the preservation of its mediæval characteristics. The wealthier citizens began here earlier than elsewhere to erect dwelling-houses in a substantial style, at first in plain brick, and afterwards with enrichments in sandstone, in consequence of which destructive fires were of comparatively rare occurrence, and the general features of the city have long remained unaltered. From each period of its history, including the middle ages, the 17th cent., and the rococo era, numerous monuments of different kinds have been handed down to us, so that we are enabled to make a complete survey of the progress of architecture at Dantsic from the 14th cent. down to modern times. The appearance of the streets with their narrow, lofty, and richly-decorated gable-façades, is still very antiquated, although a peculiarity of Dantsic, the 'Beischläge' or raised landings with open-air seats, are gradually being removed, as interfering with modern traffic. They somewhat resemble the Florentine loggias, and like them were used for family meetings. In the interior also many of the houses possessed till quite recently many traces of their former splendour, such as spacious corridors with carved staircases, ceiling-paintings, handsome cabinets and antique furniture, pictures and utensils of various kinds. (Herr Geldtschki, Langemarkt 18, possesses an interesting collection, which he willingly shows to strangers.) — The removal of the picturesque town walls, now in progress, will materially change the general aspect of the city and give space for the construction of broad modern streets.

The town owes its importance as a Seaport to its situation at the mouth of the Vistula, which forms the great highway of the extensive Polish corn-trade. This river and the Mottlau, which has been dredged to a depth of 16 ft., admit vessels of considerable tonnage into the very heart of the town. The corn-trade of Dantsic is very extensive, and the vast magazines on the Speicherinsel (p. 223) can contain 2½ million bushels. The timber-trade is also very considerable. The Lange Brücke, a quay on the Mottlau, flanked with booths of every kind, is the principal resort of the bargemen.

The RECHTSTADT is the most interesting quarter. The Langemarkt* and Langgasse* (Pl. B, C, 3, 4) form a single broad street intersecting the town from W. to E., flanked with handsome gabled edifices of the 16-18th century, many of which, till within the last few years, were provided with 'Beischläge' (p. 224). The Steffen House, Langemarkt 41, is among the most striking (1609).

The handsome Rathhaus* (Pl. C, 4), situated at the corner where the Langgasse expands into the Langemarkt, dates from the 14th century. The slender tower (146 ft.) has a graceful spire, which was added in 1559-61; the figure at the top is King Sigismund Augustus of Poland.

The Interior, recently admirably restored (custodian to the left, in the 'Botenzimmer'; 50 pf.), is best visited in the morning, before office-hours.

GROUND FLOOR. To the left is the Sommer-Rathstube, or red council chamber, with a finely carved doorway of 1593, richly-carved and inlaid panelling, and ceiling-paintings of 1596, which recall Venetian work of the same kind. Chimney-piece of 1593. Among the mural paintings those representing a listener (in the corner between the door and the window) and a man enjoining secrecy (at the door leading to the Winter-Rathstube), are in allusion to the use of the apartment. Adjacent is the Winter-Rathstube, in a mixed Gothic and Renaissance style; the mural paintings date from 1611. To the right on the ground-floor is the old hall of the 'Wette', the (modern) groined vaulting of which rests on a single octagonal column of granite. — An ingenious spiral staircase of oak (18th cent.) ascends to the FIRST FLOOR, containing the Empfangszimmer, or reception-room (which resembles the Sommer-Rathstube in its decorations, but is of later date; carved door of 1807; chimney-piece of 1594; pictures by Anton Müller, 1802), and the handsome Study of the burgo-master (formerly the chapel). On the 2nd floor are the Municipal Archives.

The Neptune Fountain in the Langemarkt was cast at Augsburg in 1633.

Beyond the fountain a broad flight of steps ascends to the Artushof*, or Junkerhof (Pl. C, 4, 5), used as an Exchange since last century, the former name being said to be derived from the mediæval tradition of King Arthur, and the latter from the 'Junker', or wealthy merchants of Dantsic, who formerly assembled here. The present edifice was erected in 1479-81 on the site of an older building. On the lower part of the façade, added in 1552, are medallion portraits of the Emp. Charles V. and his son Don John of Austria.

The HALL* (generally open in the forenoon, entrance by the adjoining house on the left; business-hours 11-2), with fine vaulting borne by four slender pillars of granite, belongs architecturally to the building of 1480, but was afterwards very quaintly decorated with pictures, reliefs, and statues of subjects derived from Christian and pagan traditions. To the right of the entrance a Last Judgment by Möller, 1602; Madonna by Stech; Actæon, a strange combination of painting, relief, and antlers; Head of Christ, by Stech; Siege of the Marienburg in 1456 (p. 228); Departure of mediæval warriors, a small, but good picture; frieze representing the history of the 'Children of Haymon'; Orpheus playing to his spell-bound audience (with a cleverly-painted burning light), etc. By the end-wall, Augustus III. of Poland, in marble, by Meissner (18th cent.).

The Langemarkt is terminated on the E. by the Grüne Thor (Pl. C, 5; outside of which is the Lange Brücke, p. 224), which contains the natural history and archæological collections of the West Prussian Provincial Museum (strangers admitted on application). Opposite, on the Speicherinsel, rises the handsome Renaissance building of the Sparkasse (savings-bank; Pl. C, 5). — To the S. in the Winter-Platz (Pl. C, 5), with flower-beds and a monumental Fountain, are the General Post Office and the Städtische Gymnasium. The Langgasse ends on the W. at the Langgasser-Thor (Pl. B, 2), erected in 1612. The Guard House adjoining was formerly a guild-house. Opposite is the lofty Stockthurm (1346 and 1508), now a military workshop, adjoining which is the Hohe Thor (Pl. B, 4), a huge fortified gateway erected in 1586-88, in the Italian Renaissance style, and restored in 1884. — The Synagogue, built in 1886-87, is in the street called An der Reitbahn (Pl. B, 4).

In the neighbouring Kohlen-Markt is the Old Arsenal (Pl. B, 4), a curious-looking edifice erected in 1602-5, in the Flemish Renaissance style, with gables and towers. Adjacent is the Theatre (Pl. B, 4), covered with a flat dome.

The new Landeshaus for West Prussia, in the Neugarten (Pl. A, 3), outside the Hohe Thor, and the Government Offices opposite are both in the Italian Renaissance style.

The Church of St. Mary* (Pl. C, 4), founded in 1343, and gradually increased to its present size between 1400 and 1502, possesses aisles and a transept flanked with chapels between the buttresses. Massive W. tower, 248 ft. in height, and ten slender turrets on the gables. The beautiful and varied groined vaulting of the interior is borne by 28 pillars. The church contains several treasures of art (open free on Sun. and festivals, 8.30-9.30 and 1.30-2; on weekdays on application to the sacristan, Trinitatiskirchengasse 5).

Gothic HIGH-ALTAR*, executed in 1511-16 by Michael of Augsburg, who had settled in Dantsic, with four wings, on which are represented scenes from the life of the Virgin partly in wood-carving, and partly in painting. Two fine brass candelabra of 1517. The architectural crowning was removed in 1844, but was restored by Wendler in 1870. The whole altar is 65 ft. in height. Behind the altar and in the aisles are large STAINED-GLASS WINDOWS, presented by Frederick William IV. in 1844, the first works of the Berlin establishment. The large group of the CRUCIFIXION under the rood-arch is an admirable work from the end of the 15th cent. Adjoining the altar is a CRIBORIUM, formerly gilded. The chapel of the 11,000 virgins (S. aisle, near the choir) contains a large CRUCIFIX*, carved in wood. — The Dorotheen-Capelle in the N. aisle contains the LAST JUDGMENT*, the gem of the cathedral, a large altar-piece with wings, by Memling of Bruges; on the outside of the wings, the donor and his wife. The picture, painted before 1473, was purchased by the Portinari, agents of the House of Medici, and consigned to a shipper, probably for transmission to Florence. In 1473, however, in the Hanseatic wars, the vessel was captured by a Dantsic cruiser, under the command of P. Beneke, and the picture was presented by the ship-owners to the church of St. Mary. The French carried it to Paris in 1807, but it was restored after the war. — Large FONT, cast at Utrecht in 1533. Two well-executed CANDELABRA in brass, in the nave. — The RHINOLDS-CAPELLE, to the N.W. of the font, contains a small altar with fine carving of 1516 and good pictures by the Master of the Death of the Virgin (Cologne). The ALTEHEILIGEN-CAPELLE, to the N.E. of the font, contains the church 'Tresor', consisting of ecclesiastical vessels and sacerdotal vestments of the 12-16th centuries. — In front of the Schuhmacher-Capelle is interred the poet Martin Opitz, who died here of the plague in 1639. Tombstone renewed in 1873.

The TOWER (adm. 25 pf.) commands a good survey of the town and the plain of the Vistula. The large bell weighs six tons.

Behind the choir of St. Mary's is the Fraueugasse (Pl. C, 4), the quaint mediæval houses in which are the most characteristic in the town.

The other churches, all brick structures in the Gothic style, are inferior in interest to St. Mary's. St. Catharine's (Pl. C, 3), said to have been erected before 1300, and extended in the 15th cent., has a tower containing musical bells. St. John's (Pl. C, 4), completed in 1465, is of noble proportions, but disfigured by restoration. Trinity Church (Pl. B, 5), completed in 1514, has a curious, richly-decorated, triple W. gable, seen to best advantage from the Promenade outside the Hohe Thor. — Adjoining St. Catharine's is the Grosse Mühle, with the dilapidated but interesting Müllergewerkhaus. Not far off, in the Pfefferstadt (Pl. B, 3), are the Law Courts.

Adjoining the Trinity Church is the handsome old Franciscan Monastery (Pl. B, 5), a late-Gothic building of the 15th and 16th cent., restored in 1872. It contains the Town Museum, open to the public on Sun. and (in summer) Wed., 11-2, free; on other days, except Sat., 10-3, adm. 1½ M for 1-6 persons.

The GROUND FLOOR, with its vaulted rooms, and the fine CLOISTERS are occupied by a Museum of Dantsic Antiquities, casts, and the art-industrial collections of the Provincial Industrial Museum. The FIRST FLOOR contains casts from the antique. On the SECOND FLOOR a series of well-lighted rooms contain the public PICTURE GALLERY, which consists chiefly of modern works, about 180 in number: E. Hildebrandt (of Dantsic), Winter-landscape, and Under the Equator; Calame, Palermo; Gust. Richter, Portrait of Hildebrandt; Rob. Reinick (of Dantsic), Three Italian landscapes; Bendemann, Portrait of Rob. Reinick; E. Meyerheim (Dantsic), Genre-scene; P. Meyerheim (son of the former), A family of monkeys; Rosenfelder, Pancratius Klemme, released from the bishop's prison (history of Dantsic); Schrader, Pope Gregory VII. and Crescentius; Nordenberg, Norwegian game; Meyer of Bremen, Enhuber, Stryowski, Genre-scenes; Von Kamecke, Von Kalkreuth, Elsasser, Bichhorn, Gude, Landscapes, etc. (the inscriptions on the pictures make up for the want of a catalogue). — The exhibitions of the Dantsic Kunstverein also take place here.

The Kabrus Gallery, formerly at the Handels-Akademie, but now placed here, consists of about 350 works, chiefly of the Netherlands schools, 2000 drawings and water-colours, and over 10,000 engravings and wood-cuts.

The old Jacobskirche (Pl. C, 2), Schüsseldamm 62, the tower of which is now surmounted by the spire of the old Jacobsthor, contains the Municipal Library (open 2-5 in summer, 2-4 in winter).

A pleasant walk, with varying views of the town, is afforded by the Ramparts, which are open to the public, and have approaches near the different gates. — *View of the picturesque town and its environs from the Bischofshöhe (inn), at the entrance to the fort on the Bischofsberg (Pl. A, 5, 6), an ascent of ¼ hr. from the Hohe Thor (p. 226). To the left rises the Hagelsberg (Pl. A, 2).

The Environs* of Dantsic (see Map) are more picturesque than those of any other German seaport. The finest points are easily reached by railway or steamboat, and some of them by tramway.

MOUTH OF THE VISTULA. By Steamboat (p. 223; ½ hr.) to Neufahrwasser, and back by Railway (p. 222; 4½ M., in ¼ hr.; fares 45, 30 pf.)

The steamer proceeds through the crowded Mottlau, and enters the Vistula immediately after the first station. Passing the Imperial Shipbuilding Yard (apply to gate-keeper) and the new Schichau Building Yard for iron-clads on the left, and the fortified island of Holm on the right, it reaches Weichselmünde, a fortress and fishing-village, with a sea-bathing resort a little way off. Nearly opposite Weichselmünde lies Neufahrwasser, the next station, the deep-water port of Dantsic. The steamer then goes on to the Westerplatte (Curhaus), an excellent bathing-place, with a pier, 960 yds. long. Restaurant with garden near the landing-place. View from the Strandhalle (restaurant), and from the 'Kaisersteg', which projects into the sea in front. Near the station is a large lighthouse. — To the W. is Brösen, a small bathing-place.

The EXCURSION TO HEUBUDE AND NEUFÄHR is also most conveniently made by Steamboat (p. 223). The village of Heubude (Specht's Restaurant) is prettily situated about $4\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the E. of Dantsic, near a lagoon separated from the sea only by a broad strip of sand-hills. About 1 M. to the N. (very sandy path) lie large irrigation-fields, where the sewage of Dantsic is utilized. — At Neufähr, 3 M. farther to the E., the Vistula forced a new passage for itself to the sea in 1840. The Quellenberg on the sand-hills commands a wide view.

*EXCURSION TO LANGFUHR, OLIVA, AND ZOPPOT by the Stettin Railway (R. 25), or by tramway, the latter starting at the Langemarkt (Pl. C, 5). Also pleasant walk of $2\frac{1}{2}$ -3 hrs. to Oliva viâ Schidlitz (view from the Weinberg Inn), Mattern, and Freudenthal.

$2\frac{1}{2}$ M. Langfuhr (Tite's Hotel), a suburb of Dantsic, with numerous villas, the first station on the railway, is connected with the Oliva Gate by a double avenue of fine limes, planted in 1767-70. A road to the left, in the middle of it, ascends in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. to the Johannisberg* (on the slope of which is the Zinglershöhe* inn), the top of which (Königshöhe, 320 ft.) commands a noble and extensive prospect of the environs of the town (only the towers of Dantsic itself are visible) and sea, with the lighthouse on the promontory of Hela to the left. We may descend for variety by the pretty Jäschken-Thal (Schröder's Inn).

At stat. Oliva (Thierfeld*; Schweizerhaus Restaurant, at the foot of the Karlsberg), a village $2\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the N.W. of Langfuhr, there is a once celebrated Cistercian Abbey, suppressed in 1828, the Church of which, dating from the 17th cent., is now that of the parish (sacristan in the yard to the right; adm. 1 M. for 1-4 persons). In the aisle immediately to the left of the entrance is the tomb of the Von Koss family. Good 15th cent. carving on one of the choir-stalls in the left transept. The choir contains figures of Polish kings and Dukes of Pomerellen, and tombs of the latter. The Refectory is adorned with portraits of all the abbots since the foundation of the abbey in 1170. The peace which closed the sixty-one years' Northern war was concluded here between Sweden and Poland on 3rd May, 1660; the documents were deposited beneath a black marble slab in the cloisters. The Palace of the abbots, now the property of the crown, possesses a beautiful Garden*.

The Karlsberg* (350 ft.), immediately at the back of Oliva, is a favourite point of view. The survey from the tower (adm. 10 pf.) of the environs is remarkably picturesque, in some respects surpassing that from the Johannisberg.

Zoppot (Curhaus*, on the beach, pens. 7 M.; Kaiserhof; Strand-Hotel; Victoria, Pommerscher Hof, near the station), $2\frac{1}{2}$ M. farther to the N., is a sea-bathing place, near which are the Thalmühle, Kaiserstuhl, and Königshöhe, all good points of view. — The Adlershorst* (200 ft.), a promontory $2\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the N. (reached by boat, or by railway to Klein-Katz), commands a charming survey of the bay of Zoppot and of another bay farther to the N., formed by the Oxhöfter Spitze.

27. From Dirschau (Berlin) to Königsberg.

101 M. RAILWAY in 3-4½ hrs. (fares 13 M 10, 9 M 80, 6 M 50 pf.; express fares 14 M 70, 10 M 80, 7 M 80 pf.). — From Berlin to Königsberg (sleeping-cars), 385 M., express in 10 hrs. (fares 53 M 50, 39 M 70, 27 M 80 pf.). From Danzig to Königsberg, 120 M., express in 3½ hrs. (fares 17 M 20, 12 M 80, 8 M 40 pf.).

From Berlin to (264 M.) Dirschau, see R. 26. — After crossing the Vistula by the Railway Bridge mentioned at p. 222, the train traverses a fertile plain, called the Marienburg. Werder, between the Vistula and its tributary the Nogat. Just before reaching Marienburg the train crosses the Nogat. The station lies outside the town.

11 M. Marienburg (König von Preussen*, plain but comfortable; Marienburg, well spoken of; Gesellschaftshaus Restaurant; Rail. Restaurant), an ancient town on the Nogat, with 10,700 inhab., was long the seat of the powerful knights of the Teutonic Order. The market-place, flanked with 'Lauben' or arcades, contains the Gothic Rathhaus, built at the end of the 14th century. The handsome Marienthor and the Roman Catholic Church are of the same period. At the N. end of the main street, a small Gothic Obelisk commemorates the gallant Burgomaster Blume (beheaded in 1460).

The *SCHLOSS, the grandest mediæval secular edifice in Germany, was at once the residence of the Grand Master and a fortress. The N. and W. façades (the latter best viewed from the left bank of the Nogat, with the picturesque town in the foreground) are the finest. It consists of three parts, the Alte, or Hoch-Schloss, the Mittelschloss, and the Vorburg, to the N., of which last a part only is now extant, though it originally extended as far as the round 'Butter-Milk Tower' (or 'tower with the slanting windows'), near the railway-bridge. Principal entrance on the N. side. In front of the Mittelschloss rises a Statue of Frederick the Great, who annexed this province to Prussia, by Siemering (1877). For admission we apply to the castellan ('Oberschlosswart'; fee 1 M, each member of a party 50 pf.).

The Teutonic Order, founded in 1192, began in 1280 under the auspices of the Grand Master *Hermann von Sals*a to undertake the conquest and conversion of the heathen Prussians. Each conquered piece of land was protected by castles and provided with German colonists. In this manner Marienburg was founded about 1280, and in 1309 it became the residence of the Hochmeister. In 1336 Dietrich von Altenburg began to erect the Mittelschloss, which was magnificently completed under Wenrich von Kniprode (1361-82). This was the golden age of the Order, after which it rapidly declined, partly owing to internal dissensions and partly to the hostility of Poland. After the bloody battle of Tannenberg (1410) the greater part of the Teutonic dominions succumbed to the Polish yoke, though the Marienburg under the gallant Heinrich von Plauen (1410-15) successfully resisted a siege. The second peace of Thorn (1466) confirmed to the Poles the possession of the whole of W. Prussia, with the exception of the district of Marienwerder. The Grand Master (Ludwig von Erlichshausen) escaped to Königsberg, and the Order thenceforth retained only E. Prussia and Pomesania (p. 221), as a fief from the King of Poland. During the Polish supremacy (down to 1772) the Marienburg fell into decay, but at length in 1817-20, in consequence of the enthusiasm aroused by the wars of independence, the public interest in the building was revived, and the Mittelschloss restored. The Hochschloss was restored in 1882-97.

The Hochschloss, next to the town, encloses a quadrangle, surrounded with cloisters. The lofty tower is crowned with the figure of a knight supporting the vane. In the N. wing is the Marienkirche, a pure Gothic structure, with handsome vaulting and sculptural ornamentation. The church is entered by the elegant 'Golden Gate' in the upper part of the cloisters. A niche on the exterior of the choir contains an inlaid Statue of the Virgin, 26 ft. in height, dating from 1341. To the W. is the Chapel Room, where the knights assembled for councils and elections. The Chapel of St. Anna, under the church, contains the ancient burial-vault of the Grand Masters, some of whose names are still legible on the monuments. In the W. wing are the Steward's Apartments, the dwelling of the Treasurer (treasurer), and the Kitchen. — The knights' Dormitories were in the E. wing. The upper story of the S. wing contains the Konvents-Ramler and Konvent-Stube, used as sitting-rooms. An outer and an inner passage ran round the entire building under the roof.

The Mittelschloss, adjoining the Hochschloss, forms an irregular quadrangle, about 100 yds. in length and 90 yds. in width. The S.W. wing contains the sumptuous apartments of the Grand Master. On the ground-floor are a number of official apartments — the treasurer's room, council-room, archives, etc. On the first floor a long passage leads to the Master's Great Hall, the bold vaulting of which is borne by a single granite pillar, 10 in. thick and 38 ft. in height. During the siege of 1410 this pillar formed the principal aim of the Polish cannon, a ball from which is still to be seen built into the wall. The stained glass illustrates the history of the Order. Over the door and on the E. wall are portraits of celebrated Grand Masters and generals. The vaulting of the Master's Small Hall is also borne by a single column of granite. The windows display the arms of the Grand Masters. The Chapel contains a few old pictures, and the adjoining Apartment among other curiosities a field-altar of the Grand Master, dating from 1368. One of the finest apartments in the Schloss is the Ritter-Saal*, or assembly-hall, with remarkably light and elegant groined vaulting, borne by three red granite pillars, 9½ in. thick. Stained-glass windows with subjects relating to the Order. The Battlements of the Schloss afford a good survey of the environs. The vast Cellars are also worthy of inspection.

The Vorburg (p. 229) included the stables, workshops, and other out-buildings, of which the Karwan, or armoury, has alone been restored.

A railway runs from Marienburg to Warsaw viâ Deutsch-Eylau and Malawa (see Baedeker's Russland). — From Marienburg to Thorn, see p. 222.

28½ M. Elbing (Königlicher Hof*, R. 2-2½, D. 2 M; Stadt Berlin), a commercial town on the Elbing, with 45,800 inhab. and large ship-building yards, somewhat resembles Dantsic in the older parts, but contains nothing of special interest. The ground-floor of the Rathhaus contains a small museum. The late-Gothic Marienkirche has been skilfully restored. Vogelsang, Panklau, and the old monastery of Cadinen (carr. in 2 hrs.) are among the finest points in the beautiful environs. There is regular communication by steam-boat with Dantsic (8 hrs.) and Königsberg (viâ Pillau, 9 hrs.).

The train now describes a wide circuit, so as to avoid the hills to the E. of the Haff. 63 M. Braunsberg (Rheinischer Hof*; Schwarzer Adler), a town with 12,000 inhab., on the Passarge.

From Braunsberg, diligence thrice daily in 1¼ hr. to (7 M.) the small town of Frauenburg (Zum Copernicus), the seat of the Bishop of Ermeland, with a fine Gothic Cathedral* of the 14th century. The celebrated Copernicus (p. 221) died here as a canon in 1543.

101 M. Königsberg. — Arrival. Cab-numbers are given out as at Berlin (p. 1). — There are four railway-stations: 1. Ostbahnhof (Pl. B, 4), for Berlin, Insterburg, Eydtkuhnen, and Tilsit; 2. Südbahnhof (Pl. B, 5), for Thorn and Proskau; 3. Liebig-Bahnhof (Pl. B, 3), for Pillau; 4. Cransen-Bahnhof (Pl. C, 1), for Crans.

Chief Attractions. Palace, Monuments of Kant, Frederick I., Frederick William III., Emp. William I., and Albert I., University, Stadt-Museum, Cathedral, and Exchange.

Königsberg, the second capital of Prussia, the seat of the provincial government and headquarters of the 1st Corps d'Armée, with 172,000 inhab. and a garrison of 7000 men, lies on undulating ground on the Pregel, 4½ M. from its influx into the Frische Haff. The city consists of three quarters, which were anciently independent of each other: the Altstadt (p. 234), the Kneiphof (p. 234), and the Löbenicht (on the E. side, between the Schlosssteich and the new Pregel). To these have now been added the former suburbs of Sackheim, Rossgarten, Tragheim, etc. Königsberg is an important fortress, with a girdle of twelve outlying forts. Its trade and shipping have somewhat fallen off in recent years; the larger vessels are obliged to unload at Pillau, but a ship-canal is in progress. The traffic with the corn-growing districts of the interior is carried on by means of numerous barges ('Reisekähne' or 'Wittinnen').

Königsberg was originally a fortress of the knights of the Teutonic Order, and was named after their ally King Ottocar of Bohemia (1256). After the fall of the Marienburg (p. 229) the town became the residence of the Grand Master, and afterwards (1525-1618) that of the Dukes of Prussia. The Electeur Frederick III. of Brandenburg assumed the title of King of Prussia here in 1701, and after the disasters of 1807 Frederick William III. and his court retired to Königsberg, where schemes for the salvation of the tottering kingdom were zealously canvassed by Baron Stein, W. von Humboldt, York, and other illustrious men of the period. Königsberg is also celebrated as the scene of the labours of the philosopher Kant (1724-1804), Herder, Hamann, and other distinguished scholars.

The Palace (Pl. D, 3), an extensive building, enclosing a large quadrangle, with a lofty Gothic tower, situated nearly in the centre of the city, was formerly a seat of the Teutonic Order. It was frequently altered in the 16-18th centuries. It now contains the apartments of the royal family (with memorials of Queen Louise, etc.; adm. daily 10-2, Sun. & holidays 11-2; 25 pf.), official dwellings, government-offices, the Archives, and the Prussia Museum.

The W. wing contains the SCHLOSSKIRCHE, where Frederick I. of Prussia was crowned in 1701, and William I. in 1861 (sacristan, Jägerhof-Str. 6, generally in the church from 10 to 12; fee). The Province of Prussia is the cradle of the 'Landwehr', the names of numerous members of which, who fell in 1813, are recorded on the walls of the church. Above the church is the spacious MOSCOWITER-SAAL, one of the largest halls in Germany. — The Blutgericht, in the N. wing, formerly the torture-chamber of the Schloss, is now a wine-room (p. 281). In the N. wing also is the Prussia Museum of prehistoric antiquities, with relics of Kant, etc. (open free on Sun. 11.30-1.30, and on Tues., Thurs., & Sat., 10-12; at other times, fee; entr. in the Schloss-Str.).

The Tower, the summit of which is 390 ft. above the Pregel, commands an extensive prospect (custodian in the S.W. corner of the court).

Outside the S.W. angle of the palace is a Statue of Emp. William I. (Pl. 7), by Reusch (1894). By the N.E. corner is a bronze statue of Albert I. (Pl. 3), first Duke of Prussia (1525), also by Reusch, erected in 1891. The Statue of Frederick I.* (Pl. 1), in front of the E. portal of the palace, by Schlüter, was erected in 1801.

The Post Office (Pl. C, 3) is situated a few paces to the W., and adjoining it is the Altstädtische Kirche (Pl. 13), designed by Schinkel (1839-43), whose plans, however, were much reduced and modified.

In the vicinity are the Parade-Platz (Pl. D, 2), bounded on the N.E. by the Theatre, and on the N.W. by the University (p. 233), and embellished with an equestrian Statue of Frederick William III. (Pl. 2) by Kiss, erected in 1851.

Reliefs. 1. Domestic life of the king at Königsberg in 1807-9; 2. The king delivers to Hardenberg the new laws enacted during these years, Scharnhorst and Stein approving; 3. Foundation of the Landwehr in 1813. The 4th and 5th scenes represent the blessings of peace.

To the S.W. in the same Platz is the Monument of Kant (Pl. 4), in bronze, by Rauch, erected in 1864. The house in Prinzessin-Str. (Pl. D, 3) in which Kant lived from 1793 till 1804 has been pulled down.

For a description of Kant's grave, see p. 234. A collection of portraits of Kant may be seen in the bookshop of Gräfe & Unger, in the Parade-Platz (Pl. D, 2).

The University, completed in 1862, is a fine Renaissance structure by Stüler (castellan in the vestibule, to the right). The façade is adorned with an equestrian figure in relief of Duke Albert of Prussia (p. 232), the founder of the University in 1544. Below are niches containing statues of Luther and Melancthon; above, medallion-portraits of celebrated Königsberg professors. The university is attended by about 700 students.

Interior. Handsome staircase, borne by marble columns. The SENATE HALL contains a portrait of the late Emp. Frederick III. as rector, by Lauchert, and a bust of Kant in his 80th year, by Hagemann and Schadow. The adjacent AULA (adm., 12-4 p.m.) is adorned with frescoes, representing the different branches of art and science, and pleasing allegories in the arches above. The carved chairs are also worthy of notice.

The Schlossteichgasse leads from the Königsgarten to the E. to the Schlossteich (Pl. D, E, 3-1), a sheet of water which intersects half the town from S. to N., and is a great ornament to the town, being surrounded by public and private gardens. Ferry 15 pf.; boat per $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. for 1-2 pers. 25 pf.

Through the Weissgerbergasse we reach the Rossgärtner Markt (Pl. E, 3). In the Vorder-Rossgarten (No. 49), leading hence to the left, is the Industrial Museum (Sun., 11-1, and Thurs., 10-1). The long KÖNIGS-STRASSE (Pl. E, F, G, 3), with a column to the memory of the Prussian minister Von Schön (Pl. 5), leads to the E. from the Rossgärtner Markt to the Königs-Thor. No. 57, near the monument, is the Kunst-Akademie, containing the — Stadt-Museum (Pl. E, 3), a choice collection of 300 pictures, chiefly modern (Sun. 11-2, Wed. 11-1; at other times fee 1 M; custodian, Vorder-Rossgarten 30, 1st floor). Catalogue 25 pf.

The Collection is on the upper floor; it contains 52 works by old Italian masters, including Fra Filippo Lippi, Dom. Ghirlandajo, Lorenzo di Credi, Innocenzo da Imola, Garofalo, Guido Reni, Giov. Bellini, and Cima da Conegliano, but the genuineness of some of the works may be doubted. There are also early Netherlands masters: Jan Steen, Jan van Goyen, Frans Hals*, etc.; then a number of portraits of famous citizens of Königsberg, and more than 200 PAINTINGS OF MODERN MASTERS, which form the most important part of the collection: 150. A. Adam, Horses; 167. C. W. Hübner, The distraint; 173. Köhler, Finding of Moses; 174. Kolbe, Battle on the Lechfeld; E. Pistorius, 181. Village-fiddler, 224. Cellarman by a cask; 182. E. Le Poittevin, The Bay of Naples; 189. Schotel, Wreck; 191. A. Schrödter, Till Eulenspiegel; 198. H. Sülke, Emigration of Syrian Christians after the destruction of Ptolemais, 1291; *210. P. Delaroche, Night of St. Bartholomew; 215-218. Gudin, Sea-pieces; 235. Ary Scheffer, Mourning mother; 238. Jul. Schrader, The daughter of Jephtha; 240. E. Verboeckhoven, Man with a calf; 248. C. Girardet, 'Souvenir de Suisse'; 249. L. Rosenfelder, Seizure of the Marienburg by mercenaries of the Teutonic Order, 1457; *252. Kalkreuth, Lake in the Pyrenees; 253. K. F. Lessing, Monk praying at the coffin of Emp. Henry IV.; *254. Brendel, Sheep; 255. W. Sohn, Gipsy; 258. A. Achenbach, Near Scheveningen; 262. W. Camphausen, Blücher and Wellington after the Battle of Waterloo; 264. A. Tidemand, Administration of the Sacrament in a Norwegian cottage; 267. L. Knaus, Gipsies resting; 273. Pioty, The Abbess of the Nunnery of Chiemees protecting it against plundering soldiers; *278. Max Schmidt, Forest-scene; 279. W. Lindenschmit, Sir Walter Raleigh in the Tower visited by his relatives; 283. Crafts, Retreat of the French at Gravelotte; *284. Franz Defregger, Poaching scene; *285. Brandt, Cossacks of the Ukraine; 290. Scherres, Cottages on a moor; *291.

Defregger, Andreas Hofer on the way to execution; 297. E. Bracht, Cave of St. Saba, in the valley of the Kedron, near Jerusalem; *901. E. Grüntner, Convent-kitchen; no number, Marr, Germany in 1806; Lembach, Prince Bismarck. — The right wing contains a Collection of Casts.

No. 65 in the same street is the University Library (Pl. F, 3), containing 300,000 vols. and 1100 MSS. of Luther, etc. (open 10-3). — Farther on are the Landeshaus, and the Königs-Thor (Pl. G, 3), with the statues of Ottocar of Bohemia, Duke Albert of Prussia, and King Frederick I.

The quarter to the S.W. of the Schlossteich is named the Altstadt. The Altstadt Rathhaus (Pl. D, 3) contains a collection of casts and models of the works of L. R. Siemering (b. 1835), a native of Königsberg.

A cube of polished marble in the Altstädtische Kirchen-Platz (Pl. C, D, 3) marks the site of the altar of the old church and the grave of Hans Luther (d. 1575), eldest son of the Reformer.

In the quarter called the Kneiphof, on an island in the Pregel, rises the Gothic Cathedral (Pl. D, 4), begun in 1333, but not completed till the middle of the 16th cent. (sacristan, Dom-Str. 17-19). One of the W. towers is unfinished; the other contains the Waltenrodt Library (open Tues. and Frid., 3-4 p.m.).

The Choir, now disused, contains some late-Gothic wood-carvings and ancient monuments in the Renaissance style, the chief of which is that of Albert I., Duke of Prussia (d. 1568), the founder of the university, and a most important personage in the annals of the city. On the N. side, the tomb of the Chancellor Kospoth. A number of Grand Masters of the Teutonic Order and Prussian princes are interred in the vaults.

The 'Stoa Kantiana' adjoining the cathedral, on the N. side of the choir, contains the grave of the illustrious thinker Immanuel Kant (1728-1804). Keeper in the Kneiphof Gymnasium (see below).

The bones of the 'Sage of Königsberg' rest under a stone with an appropriate inscription, above which, on a marble pedestal, is a repetition in Carrara marble of the bust mentioned at p. 232. On the wall behind is a copy of Raphael's School of Athens, painted in grisaille by Neide. On the opposite wall are the words 'Der bestirnte Himmel über mir, das moralische Gesetz in mir' ('The Starry Heavens above me, the Moral Law within me'), from Kant's 'Kritik der praktischen Vernunft'.

The Old University, where Kant lectured, and the Kneiphof Gymnasium adjoining the cathedral. In the former is the Municipal Library (open Wed. and Sat., 2-4).

On the left bank of the Pregel, between the bridges (Grüne and Köttel-Brücke) crossing from the Kneiphof, rises the Exchange (Pl. C, 4), a handsome Renaissance building, completed in 1875. The principal façade is to the W.; the allegorical figures of the four quarters of the globe are by Hundrieser of Königsberg. Business hours 12-2; at other times the interior is shown by the custodian. Restaurant in the cellar (p. 231). — At No. 6 Bahnhof-Str. is Stan-tien & Becker's Amber Museum (open on Tues. & Frid., 10-1 and 3-6; for strangers every morning on application). — The Synagogue (Pl. C, 4), in Linden-Str., was completed in 1896.

The Observatory (Pl. B, 2), on an old bastion to the W. of the city, built in 1811-13, was fitted up by the astronomer Bessel (d. 1846). Near it are the Botanical Garden, Bessel-Platz, Nos. 2-3, the valuable Zoological Museum, Sternwarten-Str. 5-6, the Chemical Laboratory, and several institutions belonging to the medical faculty of the university. The hilly ground between the observatory and the fortress is occupied by the Volkgarten (Pl. A, B, 2), with a Monument for 1870-71. — At No. 4 Lange Reihe, near the Heumarkt (Pl. C, 2), in the building of the Physikalisch-Ökonomische Gesellschaft, is the PROVINCIAL MUSEUM, containing interesting botanical and anthropological collections and prehistoric antiquities (Sun. 11-1, free; at other times apply to the castellan).

In the Mitteltragheim (Pl. D, 1) is the Office of the Provincial Authorities, in the Italian Renaissance style, finished in 1882. On the façade are busts of Duke Albert I. and Emperor William I. In the Hintertragheim (Pl. E, 2, 1) is the Wilhelms-Gymnasium, the aula of which contains wall-paintings by native artists.

Outside the Steindammer Thor (Pl. B, C, 1) are the Physical Institute and the Geological Institute (open in summer on Tues., 4-6). Farther on lie the Hufen* (tramway), a pretty promenade with pleasure-grounds and villas, and several popular resorts (Zoological Garden; Luisenhöhe, with the Julchenthal Café; etc.). To the left, in the Luisenwahl, is a medallion of Queen Louise.

Samland.

Samland is a fertile and partly-wooded district, with several lakes, lying to the N. of Königsberg. Several villages on the N. coast are frequented as bathing-places. — The whole of the W. Prussian coast has for more than a thousand years been celebrated as the 'Amber Coast'. The amber is usually found among the seaweed, and also dug up on the shore, while diving and dredging are also employed in the search. Fragments 1/2 oz. in weight are valued at 1s. 6d. to 2s., those of 1lb. at 15s. and upwards. The milky amber is most esteemed. Königsberg is now the principal depot of this highly-prized antediluvian gum, which is chiefly exported to the East for pipe-mouthpieces. The right to collect amber, formerly a privilege of the Teutonic Grand Master, and subsequently a royal monopoly, is now farmed out; visitors therefore are not allowed to pick up fragments on the beach.

FROM KÖNIGSBERG TO PILLAU, 29 M., railway (from the Licent-Bahnhof, Pl. B, 3) in 1 1/4 hr. (fares 3 M. 70, 2 M. 80, 1 M. 90 pf.). — 3 M. Juditten, the birthplace of Gottsched (1700-86). From (13 M.) Powayen an excursion (2 hrs.) may be made via (2 M.) Medenau (Stern; carriages for hire) to the Gallgarten (865 ft.), the highest point of the Samland; it is crowned with an iron cross in commemoration of the War of Independence (1813-14). — From (20 M.) Fischhausen a branch diverges to (1 1/2 M.) Palminicken, the chief centre of the amber industry (see above). At Lochstedt, 2 M. to the W. of Fischhausen, is a 'Castle of the Teutonic Order' (1270). — 29 M. Pillau (Deutsches Haus; Brit. vice-consul), a fortress at the mouth of the Frische Haif, with a harbour and lighthouse (3200 inhab.). — Steamboat, see p. 281.

FROM KÖNIGSBERG TO CRANZ, 17 1/2 M., railway (from the Cranz Bahnhof, Pl. C, 1) in 1 hr. (fares 1 M. 80, 1 M. 20 pf.). — Cranz or Cranzkühen (Großes Logierhaus, Ostsee-Hotel, etc.; numerous pensions at 4-5 M. per day), at the S. end of the Kurische Nehrung, is the most frequented watering-place on the Samland coast. — Other Samland resorts are Neukühen, Rauschen, and Warnicken. — The Kurische Nehrung is a narrow strip of sand, separating the Kurische Haff from the Baltic and extending to (60 M.) Memel. Its sand-dunes, sometimes attaining a height of 250 ft., tend constantly to migrate from W. to E.; but government is now endeavouring, at great cost, to prevent their shifting by planting them with trees. A few of the sparse population still speak Kurish, a dialect of the Lettish tongue. — A good steamboat plies daily in summer from Cransbeek (near Cranz) to Memel (see below), calling at Schwarzort, a sea-bathing resort whence interesting excursions may be made among the dunes.

FROM KÖNIGSBERG TO MEMEL, 148 M. Railway to Insterburg (57 M.) in $1\frac{1}{2}$ – $2\frac{1}{2}$ hrs. (fares 7 M 20, 5 M 40, 3 M 60 pf.; express 8 M 10 pf., 6 M, 4 M 20 pf.); from Insterburg to Memel (90 M.) in $2\frac{1}{2}$ hrs. (fares 11 M 80, 8 M 90, 5 M 90 pf.). Steamer, see p. 231.

57 M. Insterburg (Deutsches Haus; Rheinischer Hof; Kronprinz von Preussen), an industrial town with 23,500 inhab., on the Pregel, where the line to Tilsit and Memel turns to the N. — From Insterburg to (89 M.) Eydtkuhnen (Welter; Hôtel de Russie), the Prussian frontier-station, by railway in $1\frac{1}{4}$ –2 hrs.; thence via Kowno and Dünaburg to (557 M.) St. Petersburg by express in 24 hrs. (see Baedeker's Russland). — From Insterburg to Lyck, 74 M., railway in 4 hrs. — From Insterburg to Thorn, see p. 221.

90 M. Tilsit (Hôtel de Russie, R., L., & A. from 2, D. 2 M; Prins Wilhelm; Kaiserhof), a town with 28,200 inhab., on the Memel. On a raft anchored below the bridge-of-boats the peace of 1807 was concluded between Napoleon, Alexander, and Frederick William III., by which Prussia was deprived of one-half of her dominions. A marble tablet marks the house in which Frederick William III. and Queen Louisa resided. In front of the Rathhaus is a monument to Max von Schenkendorf (1783–1817), a native of Tilsit. — Tilsit is also connected with Königsberg by a more direct line via Labiau (77 M. in $4\frac{1}{2}$ – $6\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.).

The train crosses the valley of the Memel (which is here $2\frac{1}{2}$ M. wide) by means of three imposing bridges, erected in 1872–75. — Numerous unimportant stations.

148 M. Memel (Victoria Hotel, R., L., & A. from 2, B. $\frac{3}{4}$, D. $1\frac{1}{4}$ M; British Hotel; British vice-consul), a seaport with 19,200 inhab., at the entrance to the Kurische Haff, the northernmost town in Prussia, and the central point of the Baltic timber-trade. It was the birthplace of Simon Dach (1605–59), the author of 'Aennchen von Tharau'. There is an English church here, of which the Rev. E. F. Scofield, B.A., is the incumbent (service at 11 a.m.). Steamer to Cranz (Königsberg), see p. 231.

28. From Berlin to Frankfurt on the Oder and Posen.

158 M. RAILWAY to Frankfurt in $1\frac{1}{2}$ – $2\frac{1}{2}$ hrs. (fares 6 M 60 pf., 5 M, 3 M 30 pf.; express 7 M 40, 5 M 50, 3 M 90 pf.). Kottbus, Breslau, Posen

Geograph. Anst. v. Wagner & Debes, Leipzig

The Reminiscere, Margareta, and Martini fairs were much frequented till quite recently. The streets are broad and well built.

Leaving the station, we proceed by the Bahnhof-Str. to the Fürstenwalder-Strasse (Pl. A, B, 3, 4), turn to the right, and cross the Wilhelms-Platz, planted with trees, where the Theatre (Pl. 13; B, 3) is situated. Straight in front of us are the large Barracks, while the Regierungs-Strasse, a little to the left, leads to the Oberkirche, or Church of St. Mary (Pl. 5; C, 3), a spacious brick structure begun in the latter half of the 13th cent., with double aisles added subsequently. Wood-carving over the altar, richly gilded, dating from 1419; old stained glass; candelabrum with seven branches, adorned with reliefs of the 14th century; font of 1376. In the choir are some recently-restored paintings of the 15-17th cent.; and the library contains a Bible with autograph notes by Luther and Melancthon. — The handsome Rathhaus* (Pl. 10; C, 3) in the market-place, to the N. of the Oberkirche, was erected in 1607-10 above the massive vaults of an earlier Gothic building. On the S. gable is seen the device of the Hanseatic League, an oblique iron rod, supported by a shorter one. — Proceeding to the N. from the market, we reach the Reformed Church (Pl. 6), built in the Transition style in the 13th cent., and the Unterkirche, dating from 1525, formerly belonging to a Franciscan monastery.

The pleasant PROMENADE (known as the 'Halbe Stadt') to the N. of the Wilhelms-Platz is embellished with two War Monuments (Pl. 9; B, 3). To the S. of the Platz is a monument to the poet Ewald von Kleist (Pl. 8; C, 4), who died here of wounds received at the battle of Kunersdorf in 1759. Near the last is a monument, by Schadow, to the philosopher and jurist J. G. Daries (1714-91), professor in the former university of Frankfurt, which was founded in 1506 and suppressed in 1811. Adjacent is a Monument to Prince Frederick Charles* (1828-85), by Unger. Farther to the S. is the extensive 'Anger', on which stands the Gertraudkirche (Pl. 4), built in 1875-79, and containing a painting by A. von Werner. At the end of the Anger is the Carthaus-Bad, 2½ M. beyond which are the Buschmühle (rail. stat.) and the Eichwäldchen, favourite places of recreation.

Along the right bank of the Oder, to the N. of the bridge, runs the Oderdamm, on which is the Monument of Leopold, Duke of Brunswick (Pl. C, 2), who was drowned by an inundation in 1785. About 2 M. to the S.E. of the bridge is Kleist's Höhe (view-tower).

Posen, Polish Poznan, the capital of the province of that name, the headquarters of the 5th Corps d'Armée, and a fortress of the first rank, with 72,800 inhab. (about $\frac{1}{2}$ German, and $\frac{1}{10}$ Jews), and a garrison of 7000 men, lies at the confluence of the Cybinsa and Warthe. It is one of the most ancient Polish towns, having been the seat of a bishop from the end of the 10th cent. and the residence of the Kings of Poland down to 1296. The immigration of Germans gave it importance as a great depot of the trade between Germany and the East, and it was a member of the Hanseatic League in the middle ages. The new part of the town, forming a striking contrast with the older and poorer quarters, has been erected since it came into the possession of Prussia in 1815, which rescued it from the low estate to which wars and other misfortunes had reduced it. — On Sundays and holidays the streets are enlivened by the gay and quaint costumes of the peasantry.

In entering the town from the Central Station (Pl. A, 5), we obtain a view of the imposing fortifications. Following either the Victoria-Str. and the Berliner-Str., in the latter of which are the Polish Theatre and the Police Office (Pl. 21), or the St. Martin-Str. and the Grosse Ritter-Str., we reach the spacious and handsome WILHELMS-PLATZ (Pl. B, 3), which is bounded on the E. by the Stadt-Theater (Pl. 25). In front of the theatre is a Monument to the soldiers of the 5th Corps d'Armée, who fell at Nachod in 1866. At the corner of the Wilhelm-Str. is the Raczynski Library (Pl. 22), a building adorned with 24 Corinthian iron columns, and containing 30,000 vols. presented to the town by Count Raczynski (open daily, 5-8). In the same building is the Chamber of Commerce.

At right angles to the Wilhelms-Platz runs the broad WILHELM-STRASSE (Pl. B, 2, 3), one of the principal thoroughfares of the town. At the corner of the Neue-Str. stands the Provincial Museum and Library (Pl. 4, C 3; open free on Sun., 11.30-2, and on Tues. & Frid., 11-1; at other times for a fee). The same street contains various public buildings. On the N. it ends at the Kanonen-Platz, with the imposing Military Headquarters, in front of which is the War Monument for 1870-71, with a statue of William I., by Bärwald. Behind is the Garrison Church (Pl. 11), opposite which rises the Gothic Church of St. Adalbert (Pl. 6). To the S.E. lies the Sapieha-Platz, with the District Supreme Courts (Pl. 33). Farther to the S. is the Schlossberg, with the Royal Palace, now containing the Municipal Archives (Pl. 29; open 9-1). — At the S. end of the Wilhelm-Str., in the churchyard of St. Martin's Church (Pl. 15), is a monument to the Polish poet Mickiewicz (d. 1856).

To the E. of the Wilhelms-Platz, with which it is united by the Neue-Str., is the ALTE MARKT (Pl. C, 3). The Neue-Str. passes the garden-terrace of the Franciscan Monastery (at present used for various municipal purposes), which is connected with the Franciscan Church (Pl. 10), facing the Schlossberg. The Rathhaus (Pl. 23; C, 3), in the Alte Markt, was almost completely rebuilt after a fire in 1536 by Giovan Battista di Quadro (1550-52), an Italian architect. The slender tower (214 ft. high), restored in 1783, commands an extensive view (keeper on the groundfloor). The new Stadthaus (Pl. 28; 1895) is connected with the Rathhaus by a covered bridge. In front of the Rathhaus are a Pillory of 1534 and a Fountain of 1766. — The quarter to the N.E. of the Rathhaus is mainly inhabited by Jews, one of whose Synagogues is in the Dominikaner-Str. (Pl. D, 2), another in the Juden-Str. (Pl. C, 2). — A little to the S. of the market-place is the Church of St. Mary Magdalen (Pl. 17; D, 3), a showy edifice of 1651-1705 in the Jesuit style.

The suburbs of Posen on the right bank of the Warthe are called the Wallischei (in Polish, Chwaliszewo) and Schrodka, and are inhabited mainly by Poles of the poorer classes. Beyond the canal, to the N. E., is the quiet and spacious square Am Dom (Pl. F, 1), in which stand the Cathedral and the Marienkirche (Pl. 14), the latter a small Gothic building of the 15th cent., and the oldest ecclesiastical edifice in Posen. The Cathedral (Pl. 8), rebuilt in 1775, is architecturally uninteresting, but it contains several treasures of art (bell for the sacristan at a small door to the left of the main entrance).

On six pillars are six Brasses of the 15-16th cent., including that of the voivode, or governor, Gorka (d. 1475). Monuments of bishops. Sumptuous Golden Chapel, erected in 1842 by a society of Polish nobles, in the Byzantine style, adorned with paintings and mosaics. Fine gilded bronze group of the first two Christian Polish Kings, by Rauch (their remains are in the sarcophagus opposite). Several other interesting tombs and monuments.

The Museum of Count Mielzynski (Pl. 40; A, 3) and the collections of the Gesellschaft der Freunde der Wissenschaften, a Polish society, occupy the same building (Victoria-Str. 26); they include paintings (of little value and doubtful authenticity), portraits of eminent Poles, a library, coins, and prehistoric antiquities (open daily 9-1, 50 pf.; Sun., 12-5, 10 pf.; list of paintings in Polish and German, 75 pf.). — In the adjoining Königs-Platz (Pl. A, 3) is a Fountain, with a group of Perseus and Andromeda, by Pfuhl.

Fort Winiary*, near the Schillings-Thor (comp. Pl. D, 1) affords the best survey of the environs (tickets at the 'Intendantur', Pl. 41; 50 pf.) and also an interesting opportunity to see the interior of a great fortress (fee to the guide).

From Posen to Stettin, see R. 25; to Schneidemühl, see p. 221.

FROM POSEN TO THORN, 87½ M., railway in 2½-3½ hrs. (fares 11 M 40, 8 M 60, 5 M 70 pf.; express 12 M 90, 9 M 80, 6 M 70 pf.). — Principal station (31 M.) Gnesen, Pol. Gniezno (Stahn's Hotel, R., L., & A. 2½ M; Hôtel de l'Europe), the most ancient place in Poland. Pop. 20,500. Among the ten churches is the interesting Cathedral of the 10th cent., with fine bronze doors of the 12th cent., the tomb of St. Adalbert, the first preacher of the Gospel in Prussia and Poland, and some fine church-plate of the 15-18th centuries. The town has been the seat of an archbishop since the year 1000, and the Kings of Poland were crowned here down to 1320. It is the junction for a line to Oels and Breslau (p. 278). — We then pass several small stations and cross the Netze. — 66 M. Inowroslaw (Basf's; Victoria), a town with 20,700 inhab., extensive salt-works, and a brisk trade. A branch (27½ M. in 1 hr.) diverges here to Bromberg (p. 222). — Thorn, see p. 221.

FROM POSEN TO Breslau, 102 M., in 3-4 hrs. (fares 13 M 20, 9 M 90, 6 M 80 pf.; express 14 M 90 pf., 11 M, 7 M 80 pf.), uninteresting. From (47 M.) Lissa, Polish Leszno, a manufacturing town with 13,600 inhab., a branch-line diverges to Glogau (p. 238; 1 hr.). — Breslau, see p. 242.

29. From Berlin to Breslau via Frankfort on the Oder and Sagan or Kohlfurt.

204 or 224 M. RAILWAY in 5-10½ hrs. (express fares 30 M 10, 22 M 30, 15 M 60 pf.; ordinary 26 M 80, 19 M 70, 13 M 20 pf.). From Frankfort to Breslau, 178 M., railway in 4-8¼ hrs. (express fares 22 M 50, 16 M 70, 11 M 70 pf.; ordinary 19 M 70, 14 M 70, 9 M 90 pf.).

From Berlin to (50 M.) Frankfort on the Oder, see R. 28. Beyond (57 M.) Finkenheerd we cross the Friedrich-Wilhelm-Canal, connecting the Spree and the Oder, 81 M. Guben (Blauer Engel; Deutsches Haus), with 31,200 inhab., cloth-factories, orchards, and vineyards.

FROM GUBEN TO BENTSCHEN (for Posen, see p. 228), 61 M., railway in 2-3 hrs. (fares 9 M., 6 M., 4 M.). — From Guben to Cottbus, see p. 345.

Beyond Guben the line crosses the Neisse. — 98 M. Sommerfeld (Engel), a cloth-manufacturing town, with 11,400 inhabitants.

The (shorter) route viâ Sagan diverges here from that viâ Kohlfurt, rejoining it again at Arnsdorf (see below). — 118 M. (from Berlin) Sagan (Weisser Löwe; Deutsches Haus), a busy little town with 13,200 inhab., the capital of the principality of the same name (now belonging to the Duke of Sagan and Valençay). — 155 M. Arnsdorf, see below.

ROUTE VIÂ KOHLFURT. — 114 M. Sorau (Goldener Stern; Finke's), a manufacturing place (14,800 inhab.), with a royal Schloss, the junction of the line to Halle and Leipzig, viâ Cottbus (p. 249).

139 M. Kohlfurt (Rail. Restaurant, D. 1½ M.), the junction of lines to Görlitz (p. 250), Rosslau (p. 345), and Glatz (R. 37).

The line crosses the Queis and the Bober. — 155 M. Bunzlau (Kronprinz; Fürst Blücher), with 13,900 inhab., is famous for its brown pottery. In the market-place rises an iron Obelisk to the memory of the Russian General Kutusoff (d. 1813). In front of the Gymnasium is a monument to Martin Opitz, the poet (d. 1639), born here in 1597. About 2 M. to the E. is the Moravian colony of Gnadenberg. — 176 M. Arnsdorf, junction for the direct line from Frankfurt viâ Sagan (see above).

183 M. Liegnitz. — Hotels. Rautenkranz*, Am Ring (Pl. C, D, 3); GOLDENE KRONZ, Kohlmarkt (Pl. D, 2); PRINZ HEINRICH, Frauen-Str. (Pl. D, E, 3), well spoken of; charges at these: R., L., & A. 2-3, B. ¾, D. 2 M. LINDENRUH, at the station, well spoken of; UNION, Linden-Str. (Pl. F, 2), R., L., & A. from 1½, D. with wine 3 M. plain, POST, these two near the station; NATIONAL, Breslauer-Str. (Pl. F, 3).

Restaurants. Hühnel, Friedrichs-Platz; Zum Echten, Am Ring; Schiesshaus, in the Promenades. — Schultz-Völcker, Adler, Am Ring (wine).

Liegnitz, at the confluence of the Katzbach and Schwarzwasser, with 51,500 inhab., was formerly the capital of a principality of that name. The Schloss (Pl. D, 1, 2), near the station, rebuilt since 1835, contains the government-offices; the principal portal (1533) shows the influence of the Flemish Renaissance style. The two huge towers date from the 15th cent.: the round Hedwigsturm is said to contain relics of St. Hedwig (d. 1243); the octagonal one is called the Petersturm. The Roman Catholic Church of St. John (Pl. C, 2) contains monuments of the princes of the ancient Polish Piast dynasty, which became extinct in 1675. Nearly opposite the church is the imposing Ritter-Akademie (Pl. C, 3), founded by Emp. Joseph I.

In the Ring, which is adorned with two quaint fountains, stand the Rathhaus (Pl. D, 3; Rathskeller on the groundfloor), built in 1737-41, and the Theatre. — On the S. the Ring is bounded by the Protestant Church of SS. Peter and Paul* (Pl. D, 3, 4), dating from the 14th cent., and restored in 1892-94 (S. tower modern); a chapel in the S. aisle contains a very antique Font*, perhaps dating from the 12th century. In the spacious Friedrichs-Platz (Pl. D, 4), to the S. of this church, is a bronze Statue of Frederick the Great.

Most of the modern public buildings of the town are in the W. quarter, beyond the Wilhelms-Platz (Pl. B, 4), including the Grenadier Barracks (Pl. A, 4), the Military Hospital, the Deaf and Dumb Asylum, and the Public Infirmary. The most fashionable residential district is the S. suburb. The old fortifications have been converted into promenades, and to the S. and S.E. of the town are tastefully laid out pleasure-grounds. On the bank of the Ziegen-teich (Pl. E, 3, 4; boats for hire) is a War Monument commemorating the events of 1870-71.

Beyond Liegnitz the Breslau train crosses the Katzbach (p. 273). On a height to the left is a column commemorating a victory of Frederick the Great over Loudon (1760). Farther on lies the Kunitzer See. — At Leuthen, 3 M. to the W. of (215 M.) Deutsch-Lissa, Frederick the Great with 33,000 Prussians defeated 90,000 Austrians under Prince Charles of Lorraine in 1757. On the evening of the same day Frederick surprised a number of Austrian officers in the château of Lissa (to the left of the station; not visible from the train) with the enquiry, 'Good evening, gentlemen! Any room for me here?' — The train now crosses the Weistritz.

223 M. Breslau; express-trains proceed to the Central Station; others generally to the Niederschlesisch-Märkisch Station.

30. Breslau.

Arrival. Breslau has four railway-stations: 1. Central Station (Pl. D, E, 7), for the Upper Silesian, Posen, Glatz, and Zobten railways, and for some trains of the 'Niederschlesisch-Märkisch' line. — 2. Niederschlesisch-Märkisch Station (Pl. A, 5), for the remaining trains of this line and for all the trains of the Right Bank of the Oder Railway (p. 247). — 3. Freiburg Station (Pl. B 5; adjoining the preceding), for the Freiburg-Schweidnitz and Reppen lines. — 4. Oder-Thor Station, to the N. of the town (Pl. C, 1), for Trebnitz, Oels, Gnesen, Upper Silesia, Warsaw, etc.

U.S. Consul, Frederick Opp, Esq.; vice-consul, E. C. F. Pinnow, Esq. — British Vice-Consul, Herr H. Humbert.

Breslau (390 ft.), the second city in Prussia, the capital of Silesia and seat of government for the province, the headquarters of the 6th Corps d'Armée, and the residence of a Roman Catholic prince-bishop, with 373,000 inhab. (100,000 Rom. Cath., 18,000 Jews, 5000 soldiers), lies in a fertile plain on both banks of the Oder, at the influx of the Ohlau. The islands formed here by the Oder are connected with the banks by numerous bridges. The city consists of the Altstadt, Neustadt, and five continually increasing suburbs.

Breslau, Lat. Wratislavia, Pol. Wrocław, a town and episcopal see as early as the year 1000, is of Slavonic origin, and with Silesia belonged to Poland down to 1163, after which it became the capital of the independent Duchy of Silesia. In 1261 Duke Heinrich III. introduced the then famous municipal law of Magdeburg. On the extinction of the dukes in 1335 it was annexed to Bohemia and became subject to the emperors of the Luxemburg family, who took the city under their special protection, so that, in spite of the storms of the Hussite wars and of the following centuries, an independent German element was strongly developed.

At this period also Breslau received its architectural character. The latest style of Gothic architecture, and that of the earliest Renaissance, were zealously cultivated here. The finest Gothic church is the elegant Elisabeth-Kirche, and the handsomest secular building in that style is the Rathhaus. Here, as in all Slavonic and semi-Slavonic countries, the Renaissance gained ground at a remarkably early period. The new style appears to have been applied to portals and to monuments, the finest of which are to be seen in the Elisabeth-Kirche (p. 245). Works of greater magnitude, however, were unfortunately never attempted. To the Jesuit style the town is indebted for its imposing University.

In 1523 the citizens embraced the Reformation, and in 1527 they fell under the Austrian supremacy. In 1741 Frederick the Great marched into Silesia and took Breslau by surprise. In 1757 the town was again occupied by the Austrians, but was re-captured by Frederick after the battle of Leuthen (p. 242). In 1760 Tautentzien (p. 247) repelled an attack by Loudon. In 1806-7 the town was besieged by Vandamme, who took it and levelled the fortifications. In March, 1813, Breslau was the scene of an enthusiastic rising against the French, on which occasion Frederick William III. issued his famous appeal 'An mein Volk'. Since then the city has rapidly increased.

Breslau is now one of the most important commercial and industrial places in Germany. The principal manufactures are steam-engines, railway-carriages, liqueurs, and spirits. The staple commodities, chiefly the produce of Silesia and Poland, are wool, grain, metal, cloth, and timber. The great wool-markets in June and October have, however, lost some of their importance.

Promenades on the site of the fortifications, skirting the broad moat, now enclose the greater part of the inner city. The finest parts of these are the Zwingergarten (Pl. D, 6), at the end of the Schweidnitzer-Str., with a handsome club-house, and, farther to the E., the modern belvedere called the Liebichshöhe* (Pl. E, 6; p. 243), on the old Taschen-Bastion, which is crowned with a Victory by Rauch, and commands an admirable survey of the town and its environs. At the foot of it is a monument to Schleiermacher (p. 59), who was born at Breslau in 1768. — The Ziegelbastion (Pl. F, 4), or Holtei-Höhe (with a bust of Holtei, the Silesian poet), at the N.E. corner of the Promenades, affords a view of the busy Oder and the N. suburbs with their handsome churches. On the opposite bank are the Gardens of the Episcopal Palace (Pl. F, 3, 4), extending down to the river. In the Lessing-Platz, to the E. of the Ziegelbastion, rise the Government Offices (Pl. F, 4). To the W. is the KATHERIN-AUGUSTA-PLATZ (Pl. F, 4), with the School of Art, a Real-Gymnasium, and a rich Gothic War Monument* commemorating the events of 1870-71.

Near the centre of the town is the GROSSER RING (Pl. C, D, 4, 5), originally the market-place. The N. side of it is called the Naschmarkt. The W. side, which is named the Siebenkurfürstenseite ('Side of the Seven Electors'), contains the house (No. 8) once occupied by the Bohemian kings, built about 1500; the frescoes, representing the Emperor and the seven Electors, were restored in 1866. The S. side is named the Goldene Becherseite. On the fourth side, or Grüne Röhrseite, is the Old Rathaus (No. 30).

On the S.E. side rises the Rathhaus* (visitors apply at the custodian's room, in the groundfloor on the right), built in the middle of the 14th cent., a noble monument of the prosperous age of Charles IV. and the other Luxemburg monarchs. The florid enrichments of the oriel windows and gables, and the rich decorations of the interior belong, however, to the late-Gothic period (end of 15th and beginning of 16th cent.). The building was judiciously restored in 1885-88. The finest apartment is the Fürstensaal* (once the chapel, now the council-hall), with handsome vaulting, where from the 15th cent. downwards meetings of the Silesian princes and estates were generally held. It has been appropriately restored and adorned with portraits of princes and burgomasters. — Below the Rathaus is the Schweidnitzer Keller (see p. 243; entered from the S. side), with remarkably fine vaulting.

The Staupensäule (or pillory), erected in 1492, on the E. side of the Rathaus, is a monument of the severe laws of ancient times.

In the W. part of the Grosse Ring rise the equestrian Statue of Frederick the Great* (Pl. D, 4), in bronze, erected in 1842, and the equestrian Statue of Frederick William III. (Pl. D, 5), erected in 1861, both by Kiss (1802-65), a Silesian by birth.

The Stadthaus, adjoining the Rathaus, was completed in 1863. The Council Chamber is in the upper story.

The Ring forms the centre of traffic, the main arteries of which are the handsome Schweidnitzer-Strasse and the Ohlauer-Strasse.

The neighbouring Blücher-Platz is embellished with a bronze Statue of Blücher* (Pl. C, 5), designed by Rauch. On the S. side of the Platz is the handsome Alte Börse, which contains the collections of the Silesian Society. — In the Ross-Markt (Pl. C, 5) stands the Municipal Savings Bank, containing the Town Library (200,000 vols. and over 2500 MSS.), the Civic Archives, and a Cabinet of Coins, with over 9000 specimens (all open daily, 10-2).

The Protestant Church of St. Elizabeth* (Pl. C, D, 4), to the N.W. of the Ring, founded before 1257 and restored in 1857-59 and 1891-93, has a tower 335 ft. in height (1452-56), and three choirs. (Sacristan, An der Elisabeth-Kirche, No. 2.)

INTERIOR. To the right and left of the high-altar are portraits of Luther and Melancthon by Cranach. Font cast in bronze (15th cent. ?); fine late-Gothic tabernacle of 1455, and late-Gothic carved choir-stalls. The stained-glass windows were presented by Frederick William IV. Some of the chapels contain good wood-carving and winged altars. The finest of the interesting old tombstones are those of the 'Rentmeister' Rybisch (d. 1584) in the N. aisle, and of the physician Crato von Craftheim (d. 1535), with a fine alabaster relief, in the S. aisle. The two small tombstones on a pillar, one gilded and richly chased, the other with antique enamels, are noteworthy.

The Protestant Mary Magdalen Church (Pl. D, 5), to the E. of the Ring, dates from the same early period. Of its two towers connected by an arch, the N. one was destroyed by fire in 1887. (Sacristan, Prediger-Gasse 1.) The church was restored in 1887-90.

Opposite the S.E. side of the church is the parsonage, a new building containing an oriel window of 1496 from the old parsonage. Below, at the corner of the building, is the so-called Dompnig Column, with sculptures of 1491, erroneously connected with Burgomaster Heinz Dompnig, who was executed in 1490.

The Albrecht-Strasse (Pl. D, E, 4, 5), which is terminated by the fine *Gable of St. Adalbert's Church (13-14th cent.), contains the Oberpraesidium (left), originally a palace of Prince Hatzfeld (18th cent.), and the imposing Post Office (right), completed in 1888.

At the end of the Schweidnitzer-Strasse (Pl. D, C, 5, 6) are the Minorite Church of St. Dorothea (of 1355), the Theatre (Pl. C, D, 6), and the Military Headquarters (Pl. C, D, 6). An Equestrian Statue of Emp. William I. (Pl. D, 6), by Berend, was erected in 1896 at the point where the Schweidnitzer-Str. crosses the city-moat. — The adjoining Exercier-Platz (Pl. C, 5, 6; parade at noon) is bounded on the N. by the Royal Palace (Pl. C, 5), and on the W. by the Ständehaus (Pl. C, 5), or Hall of the Estates (comp. p. 247).

Beyond the Ständehaus, at the corner of the Graupen-Str. and the Promenade, rises the Neue Börse (Pl. C, 5), or New Exchange, an imposing modern Gothic edifice by Lüdecke (1864-67). The façade opposite the Ständehaus is adorned with stone statues representing a merchant, a farmer, a sailor, and a shepherd; and the S. façade, opposite the promenade, with the city arms and figures representing a miner and a mechanic (restaurant on the groundfloor). The spacious hall is handsomely decorated (open daily, 11-1.30).

Beyond the Stadtgraben rises the large Synagogue (Pl. C, 6), a brick building in the Oriental style by Oppler. To the S. of it are the Eichborn'sche Garten and the Law Courts.

A little to the W. is the Museums-Str., leading to the Museum of Fine Arts* (Pl. C, 6), a brick building with an Ionic portico and a lofty dome, begun in 1875 from a design by Rathay, and finished in 1879. Below the cornice is a frieze with medallions of Michael Angelo, Dürer, Raphael, and Holbein. The pediments are embellished with allegorical statues of Sculpture, Ceramic Art (to the S.), Painting, and Architecture (N.). Adm. daily, except Mon. and holidays, 10-2, Sun. 11-2.

First Floor. To the left of the vestibule is the COLLECTION OF CASTS (explanatory labels), to the right that of ENGRAVINGS (30,000 plates). The ART INDUSTRIAL COLLECTION and the LIBRARY are also on this floor.

The handsome staircase, above which rises the dome (both decorated with allegorical scenes by Schaller and Prell), ascends hence to the —

Second Floor, which is devoted to the PICTURE GALLERY (MS. catalogue in each room). The works of the old masters, most of them duplicates from the Berlin Museum, include paintings ascribed (but without critical authority) to Fra Filippo Lippi, Titian, Paolo Veronese, Guido Reni, Rubens, Van Dyck, Teniers, Snyders, Rembrandt, Poussin, and others. Among the modern pictures may be mentioned the following: A. von Werner, Sketch for the mosaic-paintings on the Column of Victory at Berlin (p. 83), Emperor William I. in the mausoleum at Charlottenburg; Angeli, Count Moltke; Ad. Menzel, The Silesian Estates vowing fealty on the sword of Frederick the Great; Camphausen, Silesian army crossing the Rhine at Caub in 1814; Scholz, Formation of the Lützow volunteers in 1813; Har-rach, Luther's capture on his way home from Worms, Judas's Denial; Gust. Richter, William I.; Dressler, Silesian mountains; Kalchreuth, Finster-aarhorn; Böcklin, Sanctuary of Hercules, Attack of pirates; O. Achenbach, Palace of Queen Johanna of Naples; Oosterley, Raftsund, in Norway; E. Begas, Betrayal of Christ; O. Begas, Frederick the Great in the palace-chapel of Charlottenburg, etc. — LICHTENBERG'S EXHIBITION, see p. 243.

The E. wing of the Ground Floor, entered from the Museums-Str., contains a COLLECTION OF SILESIA ANTIQUITIES (open free on Wed., Sat., & Sun., 11-1; at other times, 1 M; illustrated guide 50 pf.). The rooms to the right of the entrance contain the prehistoric section (objects found in graves, etc.), and the highly interesting ecclesiastical antiquities (pictures, sculptures, vessels). The rooms to the left of the entrance contain the section for chivalry and war (weapons of war and sport, uniforms) and a large collection of art-industrial objects. One of the rooms is fitted up in the Renaissance style and two in the Baroque style. The court contains architectural fragments and sculptures of the 13-18th centuries; in the centre is a large Romanesque gate. Another section includes seals, coins, plates, documents, etc.

The Freiburger-Strasse leads hence to the stations of the Freiburg, the Niederschlesisch-Märkisch, and the Right Bank of the Oder Railways (Pl. B, A, 5; comp. p. 242), the last now disused.

The Neue Schweidnitzer-Str. to the S., beyond the moat, leads to the Tauentzien-Platz (Pl. C, D, 6), which contains the Tauentzien Monument, designed by Langhans, the medallion by Schadow, and erected to General Tauentzien (d. 1791), the gallant defender of Breslau in 1760 (p. 244). To the S.E. are the Central Railway Station (Pl. D, E, 7) and the Provincial Record Office. — In the Garten-Strasse (Pl. B-D, 6, 7), No. 74, is the imposing new building of the Ständehaus (comp. p. 246).

A memorial tablet on the house No. 22 in the Schmiedebrücke, a street running to the N. of the Ring, records that Baron vom Stein, the great statesman and reformer of Prussia after its overthrow by Napoleon, resided here at one of the most eventful epochs in the history of Prussia (Feb. and March, 1813). Farther on in the same direction is the University (Pl. D, 3, 4), which contains valuable zoological collections (open Wed., 11-1). It was transferred from Frankfurt on the Oder to Breslau in 1811, and united with a Jesuit school, the buildings of which it now occupies (140 professors and lecturers, 1300 students). The large Aula, with room for 1200 people, and the small Aula, used for concerts and other entertainments, are lavishly adorned with stucco and gilding in the taste of last century. — To the E. of the University is an Ursuline Convent, and farther on are the District Supreme Courts, formerly a Præmonstratensian abbey, with beautiful cloisters.

Beyond the Sandbrücke (Pl. E, 4), on the Sandinsel, the University Library, comprising 400,000 vols., 2900 vols. of MSS., specimens of the earliest typography, etc., is established in an old Augustine Abbey (Pl. E, 3; adm. on week-days, 9-5). The same building contains the Archaeological Museum (daily 11-1, also Sat. 4-6 and Mon. 5-7; in winter, Sat. 11-1 and 2-4, Mon. and Thurs. 11-1.)

The adjoining Sandkirche (Pl. E, 3), or Church of our Lady on the Sand, erected in the middle of the 14th cent., is a well proportioned structure with polygonal apse and fine groined vaulting. Above the door of the sacristy (right aisle) is a relief of the 12th cent. (one of the oldest in the town), representing the foundation of the original church by Mary, wife of Count Peter Wlast, and her son Swentoslaus. (Sacristan, Sand-Str. 6.)

The Kreuzkirche (Pl. F, 3; sacristan, Dom-Str. 21), on the right bank of the Oder, a handsome brick edifice consecrated in 1295, contains a large crypt, and the *Tomb of Duke Henry IV. of Silesia (d. 1290), in painted sandstone, in front of the high-altar. In front of the church is a monument to St. John Nepomuk.

The Cathedral of St. John the Baptist* (Pl. F, 3; sacristan, Dom-Str. 9), flanked with two series of chapels, dates in its present form mainly from the 14th century. The W. vestibule dates from the 15th, and the choir from the middle of the 13th cent.; while some relics of the original building of the 12th cent. are visible at the chief portal. The interior was tastefully restored in 1873-75.

INTERIOR. At the end of the S. aisle is the sumptuously-decorated chapel of Cardinal Frederick, Landgrave of Hessen, with the tomb of the founder and a statue of St. Elizabeth, executed by Floretti of Rome in the middle of the 17th century. — The adjacent Chapel of the Virgin contains the Brass of Bishop John V.* (d. 1506), cast by P. Vischer of Nuremberg, the bishop in high relief, surrounded by the six patron saints of the country. Marble sarcophagus of Bishop Pogarell (d. 1376). Monument of Duke Christian of Holstein, who fell in a battle with the Turks at Salankemen in 1691 (reliefs of battles, Turks as Atlantes or supporters). — The adjoining chapel of Count-Palatine Franz Ludwig, Elector of Mayence, and Prince-Bishop of Breslau, contains two good statues of Moses and Aaron, 1727. Numerous other monuments of bishops and canons, including some good brasses, and several paintings by the prolific Willmann (1629-1706). — The Chapel of St. John, in the N. aisle, the second from the choir, contains Cranach's celebrated "Madonna among the pines". — In the Chapel of St. Carlo Borromeo is a Madonna painted on parchment, with a gold ground. Opposite, on the wall of the choir, Christ with the disciples at Emmaus, ascribed to Titian.

To the N. of the cathedral lie the little Church of St. Egidius, the oldest edifice in Breslau, in the Transition style, and the Botanical Garden (Pl. F, G, 3; open daily, except Sun., till 7 p.m.), which contains a good Botanical Museum and a large relief-model, illustrating the formation of coal. The Zoological Garden (adm. 50, Sun. 30 pf.; concerts on Sun. and Wed.; *Restaurant, tastefully laid out, lies beyond the barrier, $\frac{3}{4}$ M. distant (steamer and tramway, see p. 243).

The Monhaupt-Strasse leads from the Botanical Garden to the N., past the Deaf and Dumb Asylum (Pl. F, 3), to the Church of St. Michael* (Pl. G, 2), an elegant Gothic brick edifice by Langer, consecrated in 1871, with lofty towers of different shapes.

The large Universitätsbrücke, to the N. of the university, leads to the new and rapidly extending ODER SUBURB, of which the Matthias-Platz (Pl. D, 2), with its gardens, is the centre.

ENVIRONS. Scheitnig, on the right bank of the Oder, $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. above the Zoological Garden, with a park (*Restaurant) and numerous country-houses (tramway, see p. 243; cab $1-1\frac{1}{2}$ M.); Morgenau (restaurant), also on the Oder; Zedlitz, on the Ohlau; Pöpelwitz, to the W. of the Nicolaithor, with pleasant garden (beautiful oaks); Kleinburg, to the S. (tramway, p. 243), with the Friedeberg, etc.

From Breslau a railway (28 M., in $1\frac{3}{4}$ hr.; fares 2 M. 30, 1 M. 60 pf.) runs to Zobten am Berge (Blauer Hirsch), a favourite summer-resort at the base of the Zobten. A road destitute of shade, and a pleasant, shady, but somewhat steep path lead from Zobten to the ($1\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) summit of the Zobten* (2215 ft.), the finest point of view in Silesia, with a few fragments of an old castle, destroyed in 1471. Down to 1810 the hill belonged to an Augustine monastery founded here in 1108, of which the chapel still remains. Best view from an open space about 300 paces from the chapel.

31. From Berlin to Görlitz and Zittau.

RAILWAY to (129 M.) Görlitz in $4\frac{3}{4}-6\frac{3}{4}$ hrs. (17 M. 20, 12 M. 90, 8 M. 60 pf.). Thence to (20 M.) Zittau in 1 hr. (fares 2 M. 40, 1 M. 80, 1 M. 20 pf.).

Berlin, see p. 1. — Scenery at first uninteresting. To the left, near (9 M.) Grünau, is Schloss Köpenick; the neighbouring Müggelsberge and Müggelseen are often visited from Berlin. 17 M. Königs-Wusterhausen, with a royal shooting-lodge, containing numerous relics of Fred. William I., whose famous 'Tobacco Parliament' was held here, and other Prussian rulers. Beyond (37 M.) Brand begins the Spreewald, which the line skirts for 25 M.

48 M. Lübben (Stadt Berlin; Stern, R., L., & A. $1\frac{1}{2}-2\frac{1}{2}$ M.), a town with 6500 inhab., at the confluence of the Berste and Spree, is the best starting-point for a visit to the Lower Spreewald. At Lübben Paul Gerhardt (see p. 72), who was arch-deacon here since 1668, died in 1676 (portrait in the principal church). — 53 M. Lübbenau (Brauner Hirsch), with a château of Count Lynar (branch line to Kamenz and Arnsdorf, see p. 278); 62 M. Vetschau.

The Spreewald is a wooded and marshy district, about 28 M. in length and 1-5 M. in width, intersected by a network of upwards of two hundred branches of the Spree. Most of it has been drained, but the wilder parts are only accessible by boat in summer or on skates in winter. The inhabitants are a Wendish race, who still retain their Slavonic dialect, costumes, and manners. Their villages consist of small groups of log-houses surrounded with water, an arm of the Spree generally serving as the street. The Lower Spreewald lies to the N.W. of Lübben, the Upper to the S.E. of Lübbenau. A visit to the latter may be carried out as follows: Walk from Vetschau ($1\frac{1}{2}$ M.) or go by boat from Naundorf to Burg (Bleiche*; Spreewald), the great church of which is thronged on Sun. morning by a singularly picturesque congregation. Thence we proceed by boat via the Forsithaus Eiche, Polenz-Schänke, Kannow-Mühle, and Lehde to Lübbenau (see above).

72 M. Cottbus (Ansorge's Hotel*; Lossow's; Rail. Restaurant), a busy town on the Spree, with 38,000 inhab., the junction for Dresden (via Grossenhain; p. 279), Guben (see p. 241), and Sorau (p. 241), contains considerable wool, linen, yarn, and jute factories. The château of Branitz, a seat of Count Pückler, with a fine park and garden, is $2\frac{1}{2}$ M. distant.

From (97 M.) Weisswasser a branch-line runs to (20 min.) Muskau (Stadt Berlin), with a beautiful Park, laid out by Prince Pückler (d. 1873), and the small baths of Hermannsbad.

116 M. Horka, on the line from Kohlfurt to Rosslau, see p. 241.

129 M. Görlitz. — Hotels. VIER JAHRESZEITEN* (Pl. a; A, 5), R., L., & A. from 2, B. 1, D. $2\frac{1}{4}$ M., HOHENZOLLERN-HOF (Pl. b; A, 5), HEIDRICH'S HOTEL (Pl. d; A, 4), STADT DRESDEN* (Pl. c; A, 4), R., L., & A. $1\frac{1}{2}$ - $2\frac{1}{2}$ M., B. $\frac{3}{4}$, D. $1\frac{1}{2}$ M., all at the station. — VICTORIA HOTEL* (Pl. e; B, 8), Post-Platz, R., L., & A. $2\frac{1}{4}$ -3, D. $1\frac{3}{4}$ - $2\frac{1}{4}$ M., B. 1 M.; STRAUSS* (Pl. f; B, 3), Marien-Platz; PRINZ FRIEDRICH KARL (Pl. g; B, 4); KÖNIG WILHELM (Pl. h; B, 4).

Restaurants. Café Mehltitz*, at the Victoria Hotel; Oulmbacher Bierhallen, Berliner-Str.; Rebstock, Berliner-Str.; Pechtner*, Obermarkt 18; Rathskeller*; Srenpel; Stockmann; Drei Raben; at the Wilhelms-Theater, Struve-Str. — Wine. Vohland*, Elisabeth-Str. 41; Neubauer*, Obermarkt 8. — Confectioner. Handschuh, Elisabeth-Str. 9.

Baths. Freise, Promenade, with swimming basin; Hoffmannsche Badeanstalt, Lindenweg (Pl. D, 3). River Baths, see Pl. D, 4.

Cabs. From the railway-station to the town, $\frac{1}{2}$, $\frac{3}{4}$, 1, $1\frac{1}{4}$ M. for 1, 2, 3, or 4 pers. respectively; with two horses $\frac{3}{4}$, 1 M. (2-3 pers.), $1\frac{1}{4}$ M. — Per drive in the town, 40, 60, 75 pf., 1 M. for 1, 2, 3, or 4 pers.; with two horses 60, 75 pf., 1 M. — Per hour, 1 M. 60, 1 M. 70, 2 M. 2 M. 60 pf.; with two horses 1 M. 70 pf., 2 M., 2 M. 60 pf.

Tramways (fare 10 pf.). 1. From the Railway Station (Pl. A, 5) viâ the Untermarkt (Pl. C, 2) to the Berliner-Strasse. 2. From the Station to the Blockhaus (Pl. C, 5, 6), the Obermarkt, and Bautzener-Strasse ('Ringbahn').

Görlitz (735 ft.) is a busy town with 70,000 inhab. and extensive cloth and machinery factories, situated on the Neisse, and on a very ancient commercial route to Poland. In 1346 it was at the head of the alliance between the six towns of Upper Lusatia (Görlitz, Bautzen, Löbau, Kamenz, Lauban, and Zittau), but was afterwards annexed to Bohemia, and was frequently involved in the religious wars of Bohemia and Germany in the 15-17th centuries. In 1635 it became Saxon, and in 1815 Prussian. Fine Gothic churches, handsome gateways, the Rathhaus in the Altstadt, and a number of dwelling-houses in the Renaissance style, dating from the 16th cent. (e. g. in the Neisse-Strasse, the Brüder-Strasse, and the Untermarkt), all testify to the ancient importance of the town, while the well-built modern quarters show that it is still prosperous.

Leaving the station, we proceed straight through the Berliner-Strasse to the Post-Platz (Pl. B, 3, 4), with its Fountain*, where the District Courts rise on the left and the Post Office on the right. A little farther on, to the right, is the Frauenkirche (Pl. 12; B, 3), erected in 1449-73, and recently restored (fine portal). Proceeding from the Post-Platz to the left we reach the DAMIANI-PLATZ (Pl. B, 3), with the Theatre (Pl. 20) and the Kaisertrutz* (Pl. 10), a massive bastion of 1490, now used as a guard-house and arsenal. Opposite is the building of the Industrial Society, adjoining the old Reichenbach Tower. Adjacent, in the pleasure-grounds, is a War Monument, with a pedestal bearing the first cannon captured from the French in 1870, which was taken at Weissenburg by soldiers of Görlitz.

To the E. of the Demiani-Platz is the small MARIEN-PLATZ, adorned with a Statue of the Burgomaster Demiani (d. 1846), by Schilling. The adjacent Frauenthurm dates from the end of the 15th century. Opposite is the Museum of Natural History (Pl. 21; B, 3), containing extensive collections in ornithology, conchology, and mineralogy (adm. on Wed., 2-4, free; at other times on application to the custodian on the groundfloor). — In the OBERMARKT (Pl. B, 3) a Monument to Emp. William I., by Pfuhl, was erected in 1893. To the left is the Trinity, or Abbey Church (Pl. 11), of 1245; the W. part was consecrated in 1385 and restored in 1868; it contains a handsome carved altar of 1383. Beyond the church is the modern Gothic Gymnasium (Pl. 9), occupying the site of the old abbey. — In the Juden-Ring, to the N. of the Obermarkt, is the Antiquarian Museum (Pl. B, 2), open on Sun., 11-1, and Wed., 11-12.

A short distance hence, in the UNTERMARKT, which is partly enclosed by arcades, rises the Rathhaus* (Pl. 19; C, 2), of the beginning of the 14th cent. (restored in 1874-75). The tower, with the armorial bearings of Matthew Corvinus, King of Hungary, under whose protection the town had placed itself, was erected in 1509-13. The flight of steps in the angle of the tower, with a statue of Justice on a richly-sculptured column, the portal, and the adjacent balcony of the year 1537 are fine specimens of the German Renaissance style. In the interior is a panelled room with a fine wooden ceiling (1668). — In the Neisse-Str., leading to the N.E., are the premises of the Upper Lusatian Scientific Society, with an important library (open in summer on Mon. and Thurs., 11-1). To the N. is the — Church of St. Peter and St. Paul* (Pl. 17; C, 2), erected in 1423-97, partly rebuilt after a fire in 1691-96, one of the finest late-Gothic edifices in E. Germany. The towers (275 ft. high) were completed in 1889-91. Interior, with double aisles, borne by 24 slender palm-like pillars. The sacristy and the interesting crypt contain ecclesiastical antiquities. — The wooden bridge over the Neisse to the S.E. of the church, commands a good survey of the old town.

To the S. lies the WILHELMS-PLATZ (Pl. B, 4), with pleasure grounds and a statue of Field-Marshal von Roon (1895).

At the Sepulchral Church of the Holy Rood (Pl. 14; A, 2), to the N.W. of the town, is an imitation of the 'Holy Sepulchre', constructed in 1489 by Burgomaster Emmerich, after repeated pilgrimages to the Holy Land. — The Cemetery, to the N.E., contains the grave of the mystic Jacob Böhme (1575-1624), a native of the district. His house still stands by the old bridge, beyond the Neisse.

The well-kept Town Park* (Pl. C, D, 3, 4) contains monuments to Humboldt and others, a fountain, and a botanical garden. An avenue of lime-trees leads from the Porticus (Pl. C, 4), an imitation of the Brandenburg Gate in Berlin, to the Ständehaus (Pl. C, 4), in the Renaissance style, and past the Tivoli (restaurant) to the Blockhaus (Pl. C, 6; *Restaurant), a favourite afternoon-resort. Fine

*View from this point of the Neisse Viaduct (p. 252) and of the Iser and Giant Mts. Close by are a Statue of Prince Frederick Charles (d. 1885; Pl. 2 a) and a Monument to Schiller (Pl. 7 a). Promenades lead hence along both banks of the Neisse, extending below the railway-viaduct (see below) to the pretty Jägerwäldchen (Pl. C, 6; restaurant) on the right bank, and past the Brewery to the Weinberge (restaurant) on the left bank.

Excursions. The Landkrone* (1405 ft.), a basaltic hill 4 M. to the S.W., with a castellated inn and belvedere on the top occupying the site of an ancient robbers' stronghold, commands a fine view (omn. from the rail. station 30 pf.). — About 2 M. farther on are the Jauerniker Berge. — To the Cistercian nunnery of St. Marienthal in the pretty valley of the Neisse, near Ostnitz (see below), halfway to Zittau (p. 263), 2½ hrs. — At Möys (rail. stat., see below), 2¼ M. to the S.W. of Görlitz, General von Winterfeldt fell in 1757 in a battle against the Austrians.

Görlitz is the junction for Kohlfurt (p. 241) and Dresden (p. 280), for the 'Silesian Mountain Railway', and for a line to Reichenberg (see Baedeker's Austria). The Kohlfurt and Silesian lines cross the Neisse-Thal by an imposing Viaduct* of 34 arches, 520 yds. in length and 115 ft. in height. At Möys (see above), just beyond the viaduct, the Silesian Railway diverges to the left, leading viâ Hernsdorf, Niklausdorf, and Lichtenau to Lauban (see below). The ZITTAU LINE diverges from that to Reichenberg at Nik-risch and leads viâ Ostnitz (to Marienthal, see above), Russdorf, Rosenthal, Rohnau, and Hirschfelde to (20 M.) Zittau (see p. 263).

32. From Kohlfurt to Glatz.

107 M. RAILWAY in 5-6 hrs. (fares 13 M 70, 10 M 30, 7 M 90 pf.). This is the most direct route from Berlin to the Giant Mountains.

Kohlfurt, see p. 241. — Beyond (6 M.) Heide-Gersdorf the train reaches the Queis.

14 M. Lauban (Bär, Hirsch, both unpretending), junction for the line to Görlitz (see above). Lauban, formerly one of the six allied towns of Lusatia (p. 250), has a modern Roman Catholic Church and a Rathhaus of 1543. Pop. 12,600. The (¼ hr.) Steinberg (restaurant) commands a fine view of the Iser and Giant Mountains.

22½ M. Greiffenberg (Fischer's; Zur Burg), a town of 3300 inhab., at one time actively engaged in the linen-trade. About 1½ M. to the S. rises the ruin of Greiffenstein (1390 ft.), on a wooded hill, a fine point of view.

Railway from Greiffenberg, in ½ hr., viâ Neumdorf and Birkicht to (5¼ M.) the small town of Friedeberg (Schwarzer Adler), on the Queis. Diligences ply hence (1¼ hr.; fare 80 pf.) to (5 M.) —

Flinsberg (1725 ft.; Neues Brunnenhaus, well spoken of; Rübezahl; Deutscher Kaiser; also lodgings), a long village in the Queisthal, with mineral baths. The oldest spring, discovered in 1572, is called the 'Heilige Brunnen'. The Geyerstein (2830 ft.), 1 hr. to the E., is a fine point of view. To the S. rise the Iser Mts. (Isergebirge), the N.W. prolongation of the Giant Mts. (p. 254), of which the highest points are the Heufuder (3630 ft.) and the Tafelsichte (3685 ft.), reached in 2 and 3 hrs. respectively from Flinsberg and both commanding fine views. At the foot of the latter lies Bad Schwarzbach, 1 hr. from Flinsberg. The Hochstein (p. 258) may be reached from Flinsberg in 4 hrs. by ascending the wooded Queisthal. — A footpath leads from Flinsberg to the W. in $3\frac{1}{2}$ hrs. to the small baths of Liebsweda.

Another branch-line runs from Greiffenberg to ($14\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Löwenberg (Ross; Schwan), one of the oldest towns in Silesia, and to (31 M.) Goldberg.

A view of the Giant Mts. to the right is gradually disclosed. About 3 M. from (39 M.) Reibnitz are the baths of Berthelsdorf (Deutscher Kaiser), in the Kemnitz-Thal. — The Bober is crossed twice.

$48\frac{1}{2}$ M. Hirschberg, see p. 255. Railway to Warmbrunn and Petersdorf (p. 256); to Schmiedeberg (p. 256).

The most picturesque part of the journey is between Hirschberg and Merzdorf (seats should be taken to the right). 51 M. Jannowitz (Kluger's Inn), a summer-resort (direct route to the Bolzenschloss, $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr., see p. 256). — 58 M. Merzdorf; about 8 M. to the N. lies Bolkenhain (p. 273).

Beyond Merzdorf the Bober is crossed several times. — 65 M. Ruhbank, the junction for the line to Liebau and Königgrätz (R. 35). Our line ascends the valley of the Lässig. — 73 M. Gottesberg (1760 ft.), the highest town in Silesia. — 74 M. Fellhammer; passengers for Salzbrunn or Schlesisch-Friedland (p. 269) change carriages here. — Tunnel.

75 M. Dittersbach (1665 ft.; Rail. Restaurant, fine view), junction for the line to Waldenburg, Altwasser, and Sorgau (p. 266). To Görbersdorf (p. 269), via Langwaltersdorf, a drive of $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr.

The train then passes the ruin of Neuhaus, and penetrates the Ochsenkopf (2890 ft.) by a tunnel 1 M. long.

79 M. Charlottenbrunn (Deutsches Haus, D. $1\frac{1}{2}$ M.; Friedenshoffnung; Grundhof; Preussische Krone), a watering-place situated $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. from the station (omn. 30 pf.), in a depression of the Weistritz-Thal, with two weak alkaline springs and attractive promenades. Excursion to Kynau and the Schlesier-Thal, see pp. 273, 274.

The train now passes through the Reimsbacher Tunnel. $81\frac{1}{2}$ M. Wüste-Giersdorf (Sonne), a long village in the Weistritz valley.

A pleasant walk may be taken from Nieder-Wüste-Giersdorf to Obertannhausen and Donnerau, and through the depression between the Langenberg (wide panorama from the trigonometrical survey-station) and the Hornberg (2830 ft.) to the ($1\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Hornschloss, a robbers' keep, destroyed in 1497, whence an extensive view is enjoyed.

The train threads a tunnel, skirts the E. slope of the Spitzberg, and crosses the Hausdorfer and the Galgengrund Viaduct.

93 M. Neurode (1265 ft.; Deutsches Haus; Wildenhof's), a town with 7100 inhab., in the valley of the Walditz. Coal-mines in the vicinity. The (2 M.) St. Anna Chapel (2000 ft.; restaurant), on a hill to the S. of the town, commands a beautiful view. At Scharfeneck, 4 M. farther on, the Walditz falls into the Steine. — $97\frac{1}{2}$ M. Mittelsteine (Adler); branch to Halbstadt via Braunau, see p. 269.

The train follows the valley of the Steine. To Wünschelburg and the Heuscheuer, see p. 269. Finally the train crosses the Glatzer Neisse and reaches (107 M.) Glatz, see p. 271.

33. The Giant Mountains.

(Riesengebirge.)

Plan. The most interesting points among the Giant Mts. may be visited in five or six days. Hirschberg (see p. 250) is the most convenient starting-point. — 1st Day. Hirschberg and environs (Cavallierberg, Kreuzberg, Helikon, etc.) 4 hrs.; train in the afternoon to Erdmannsdorf in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr., walk by the Heinrichsburg and Weyrichsburg to Warmbrunn $\frac{2}{3}$ hrs., in all 7 hrs. — 2nd Day. Hermisdorf $\frac{3}{4}$ hr., Kynast $\frac{1}{4}$ hr., across the Herdberg to Agnetendorf 1, to Bismarck-Höhe $\frac{1}{4}$ hr., and thence either to Petersdorf $\frac{1}{4}$ hr., Schreiberbau (with digression to the Kochelfall and perhaps the Zackelfall), and Josephinen-Hütte $\frac{3}{2}$ hrs.; or direct to Schreiberbau (with digression to the Kochelfall) and Josephinen-Hütte 3 hrs., in all 8 or $6\frac{1}{2}$ hrs. — 3rd Day. Zackelfall and Neue Schlesiische Baude $\frac{1}{4}$ hr., Elbfall $\frac{1}{2}$ hr., Kesselkoppe $\frac{1}{4}$ hr., Schneegrubenbaude $\frac{1}{4}$ hr., Peterbaude $\frac{1}{2}$ hr., Riesenbaude 3, Koppe $\frac{1}{2}$ hr., in all about 11 hrs. This third day's walk, however, should not be attempted except by tried pedestrians, and even they would do well to endeavour to reach Hermisdorf on the first day, and the Neue Schlesiische Baude or even the Elbfall on the second. Those whose time permits should devote two days to this part of the journey, spending the night in the Peterbaude. — 4th or 5th Day. Descend to the Hampelbaude $\frac{1}{2}$ hr., Kirche Wang $\frac{1}{2}$ hr., Kräbersteine 1, Arnsdorf $\frac{1}{2}$ hr., Schmiedeberg 1 hr. — 5th or 6th Day. Friesensteine $\frac{1}{2}$ hr., Fischbach 1, Falkenstein or Forstberg 1, Jannowitz 1 hr. — The Bohemian side may be included by the following arrangement: 3rd Day. From the Neue Schlesiische Baude direct to the Schneegrubenbaude $\frac{1}{2}$ hr., descend thence to the Elbfall $\frac{1}{4}$ hr., to the Kesselkoppe and back $\frac{1}{4}$ hr., along the Elbsaifen to Spindelmühl 2, and ascend either to the Peterbaude $\frac{1}{2}$ hr., or by the Leierbaude to the Spindlerbaude $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. — 4th Day. To the Koppe $\frac{3}{4}$ hr. or $\frac{3}{4}$ hr.; descend in the afternoon through the Riesengrund and the Aupa-Thal to Johannisbad 5 hrs. (carriages may be hired at Petzerkreischam). — 5th Day. Return to the Kreuzschenke and ascend the valley of the Kleine Aupa to Klein-Aupa (carriage in 2 hrs.), Grenzbauden $\frac{1}{2}$ hr., Krummhübel $\frac{1}{2}$ hr., and Kirche Wang 1 hr. — 6th Day. Via Arnsdorf to Schmiedeberg $\frac{2}{3}$ hr., to Jannowitz (see p. 253) $\frac{4}{5}$ hrs. — A visit from Schmiedeberg to the Adersbach and Weckelsdorf rocks (see p. 263) may be combined with the above tours.

Inns generally good; those among the mountains, called 'Bauden', are almost all constructed of wood. Charges at the best inns: R., L., & A. 2 \mathcal{M} and more, B. 50 pf., D. $1\frac{1}{2}$ \mathcal{M} . In the height of summer, when crowded, charges are raised. Wine on the Austrian side generally good, on the Prussian inferior and dearer. — The habit of playing wretched music, and sometimes of dancing well into the night, which prevails at most of the 'Bauden', does not conduce to the comfort or repose of travellers.

CARRIAGES. With one horse, half-day 8, whole day 10 \mathcal{M} ; with two horses, half-day 8, whole day 15 \mathcal{M} . — HORSES with attendant, 9 \mathcal{M} per day and fee, with allowance for return-journey. — CHAIR PORTERS 6 \mathcal{M} per day. — PORTERS charge 5 \mathcal{M} per day, $2\frac{1}{2}$ \mathcal{M} per half-day (8 hrs.), besides which it is usual (though not incumbent) to give them their food.

The PATHS are provided with finger-posts and kept in excellent condition by the Prussian and Austrian 'Riesengebirgsvereine'. Guides are scarcely necessary, though bad weather and sudden fogs may occasion some embarrassment. — The petty demands on the purse of the traveller (such as the fees of 10-15 pf. for 'turning on' the waterfalls) are so numerous that he will do well to provide himself at the outset with a considerable supply of small coins. It is sometimes difficult to obtain change at the 'Bauden'. For the Austrian side it is advantageous to change one's money before crossing the frontier.

The Giant Mountains form part of the great mountain-chain called the Sudeten, which extends from the sources of the Oder and the Carpathians towards the N.W. for a distance of 180 M. The Riesenkamm, or Giant Range, strictly so called, which rises somewhat abruptly on the Silesian, and gradually on the Bohemian side, stretching from the sources of the Bober on the E. to those of the Queis and Zacken on the W., is 23 M. in length, and attains an average height of 4000 ft. The principal heights are the Schneekoppe (5260 ft.), the Brunnenberg (5120 ft.), the Hohe Rad (4950 ft.), the Silberkamm (4810 ft.), the Grosse and Kleine Sturmhauke (4670 and 4790 ft.), the Kesselskoppe (4700 ft.), the Korkonosch (4655 ft.), the Schwarze Koppe (4630 ft.), and the Reifträger (4485 ft.). The geological formation of the Giant Mts. consists mainly of granite, but in the S. part of the range gneiss and slate enter largely into its composition. The lower slopes are clothed with silver firs, pines, larches, and beeches, but at a height of about 3500 ft. the forest zone of the Giant Mts. terminates, and the region of the dwarf pine (pinus pumilio) begins. This in its turn soon gives place to gentians, hawkweed (hieracium), Icelandic moss, 'devil's beard' (anemone alpina), violet-moss (hyssopus jolithus), and other Alpine plants. Alpine roses and Edelweiss have been planted on the Schneekoppe, and promise to flourish in their new habitat. No other mountainous region in Germany is so Alpine in character as the Riesengebirge.

a. Hirschberg, Schmiedeberg, and Warmbrunn.

Distances. From Hirschberg to Warmbrunn $8\frac{1}{2}$ M., Warmbrunn to Hermisdorf $2\frac{1}{4}$ M., ascent of the Kynast 1 hr., Hermisdorf to the Josephinen-Hütte 12 M., Hermisdorf to Schmiedeberg 9 M., Warmbrunn to Schmiedeberg 9 M. Railway from Hirschberg to Schmiedeberg in 40 min.; to Petersdorf 50 min.; from Zillerthal to Krummhübel 23 minutes.

Hirschberg. — Hotels. PREUSSISCHER Hof* (R., L., & A. $1\frac{1}{2}$ -3, D. $1\frac{1}{4}$ M.), THAMM'S HOTEL* (R. from 2 M.), both in the Anlagen; DREI BERGE*, Bahnhof-Str., R., L., & A. 2-2 $\frac{1}{2}$, D. $1\frac{1}{4}$ M.; WEISSES ROSS, DEUTSCHES HAUS, in the market-place; STRAUSS*, at the station, plain; SCHWAN. — Restaurants. Rail. Restaurant*; Concerthaus zur Klause; Zur Riesen-Kassanie, Schmiedeberger-Str. — Carriage 12-15 M. per day, 6-8 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. per half-day.

Hirschberg (1120 ft.), a station on the 'Schlesische Gebirgs-Bahn' (p. 253), picturesquely situated at the confluence of the Bober and Zacken, is an old town with 16,800 inhab., still partly surrounded by walls, and the principal commercial place in the Silesian Mts. Near the station is the Protestant Church (curious echo). The Gothic Roman Catholic Church dates from the 14th century. The gymnasium contains a small museum. The Ring, or market, is enclosed by arcades. To the S. of the town are pretty Anlagen, or promenades, extending to the Cavalierberg (1350 ft.; restaurants).

Among the pleasant points for walks from Hirschberg are the ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Schanzen (1360 ft.); the ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr.) Friedrichshöhe ('View'); the Hausberg (1225 ft.; restaurant); and the Helikon* (1370 ft.; view), crowned with a small Doric temple. — A walk up the wild Bober-Thal, or Sattler Ravine, on the left bank, will also repay the traveller. The finest point, about 3 M. from Hirschberg, is styled the Welt Ende.

FROM HIRSCHBERG TO SCHMIEDEBERG, $9\frac{1}{2}$ M., railway in 40 min. (fares 90, 60 pf.). The first station is (4 M.) Loznitz, beyond which we obtain magnificent views of the mountains (right). — 6 M. Zillerthal (Zillerthal Hotel), founded in 1837 by Protestant emigrants from the Ziller-Thal in Tyrol. It contains large flax-spinning works. — A narrow-gauge railway runs hence to Arnsdorf (p. 257) and Krummhübel (p. 260; 23 min.).

Zillerthal is the station for Erdmannsdorf (1260 ft.; Zum Schweizerhaus; Schmidt), a village $\frac{3}{4}$ M. to the N., with a royal château and park, formerly belonging to General Gneisenau. Church designed by Schinkel.

About 3 M. to the E. of Lomnitz or Zillertal is the long village of Fischbach (Zur Forelle*; Kindler), with a fine old château, founded in the 14th cent., completed in the 16th, and subsequently restored. The interior contains some objects of art, and several family pictures (fee 50 pf.). Hence to Schmiedeberg 1½ hr.

To the N. of Fischbach rise the Falkenberge, of which both the most southerly, the Falkenberg (2125 ft.; reached in 1 hr. from Fischbach), and the Forstberg (2105 ft.) to the N., are excellent points of view. To the S.E. of Fischbach rises the (1½ hr.) Mariannenfels (2230 ft.), a huge group of rocks on the crest of the Fischbacher Gebirge, commanding a fine panorama. On the S. side of the rocks is a gigantic lion in iron, after Rauch.

From Fischbach or the Mariannenfels we may proceed to the (2 hrs.) Boitzenschloss* (1840 ft.; Inn); the imposing ruins of the old castle, destroyed by the Swedes in 1643, command an admirable *View.

9½ M. Schmiedeberg (1470 ft.; Goldner Stern*, R., L., & A. 13¼, D. 1¼ M.; Preussischer Hof*, with garden commanding a fine view, R., L., & A. 1½-3 M.; Schreiber; Schwarzes Ross), an old town with 4800 inhab., stretching for a considerable distance up the steep valley of the Eglitz. Mining for magnetic iron-ore is carried on, and there are manufactories of carpets, wax-cloth, and other articles. Picturesque environs, with a number of villas and châteaux. Sleighs may be obtained here at the two first-named hotels for the favourite winter-pastime of sleighing to and from the Grenzbauden (ascent 2 hrs., descent 10-20 min.), a species of 'tobogganing' or 'coasting' on a large scale.

An admirable prospect is obtained from the 'Buche' (inn), 1½ M. to the N.E. of Schmiedeberg, on the old road to Landeshut. A path diverging to the left from this road, ¾ M. farther on, leads to (2½ M.) the 'Friesenstein' (3280 ft.), which also command a fine view. On the second group of rocks is a circular hollow, once perhaps used for pagan sacrificial rites. A path leads hence to (3½ hrs.) Jannowitz (p. 258).

FROM HIRSCHBERG TO PETERSDORF, 8 M., railway in 50 minutes. — The line crosses the Bober, and on the left bank of the Zacken ascends the industrious Hirschberg Valley, passing Rosenau, Kunersdorf, and Herischdorf.

5¼ M. Warmbrunn. — Hotels. HÔTEL DE PRUSSE*, R., L., & A. 1½-3, pens. 4-6½ M.; SCHWARZER ADLER*, R., L., & A. 1¼-2½ M.; SCHNECKOPPE, D. 1¼ M.; ROSENGARTEN; BRESLAUER HOF; VICTORIA, with chalybeate baths; SCHWARZES ROSS; PREUSSISCHE KRONE (hôtel garni). Also numerous Lodging Houses. Private Lodgings 6-30 M per week and upwards. Restaurants. Cursaal, table-d'hôte 1½ M.; Goldener Greif, both in the Schloss-Platz; Landhäuschen; Damirach; Warmbrunner Brauerei, on the road to Hermisdorf. — Café in the Cursaal, with reading-room. Omnibus daily to Giersdorf and Seidorf (60 pf.).

Warmbrunn (1130 ft.), a pleasant watering-place, visited by 3000 patients annually, lies in a fertile district on both banks of the Zacken, near the N. slopes of the Giant Mts. The thermal springs (95-104° Fahr.), used both for drinking and bathing, and beneficial in cases of gout and skin-disease, have been known since the end of the 12th century. Since 1401 the place has been the property of the Counts Schaffgotsch, whose handsome Schloss was erected in 1784-89. The Probstei contains their library of 70,000 vols. and a fine collection of coins, weapons, and minerals (open daily, except Sun., 9-11 and 3-5). The Promenades extend to ($1\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Herischdorf, and are flanked with the Theatre, the Cursaal, the 'Gallerie', and numerous shops (cut glass and polished stones, etc.). The Wehrichsberg (1160 ft.), $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. to the S.E., and the Kleine Spitzberg, $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. farther on, are two of the finest points of view (restaurants).

Stonsdorf (1245 ft.; Brewery, with rooms), 3 M. to the S.E. of Warmbrunn, a village with a château of Prince Reuss, lies at the base of the granite Prudelberg (1585 ft.), which may be ascended in 20 minutes. On the Stangenberg (1665 ft.), a pine-clad hill, $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. to the S.W. of Stonsdorf, rises the 'Heinrichsburg', a shooting-lodge with a tower (10 pf.) commanding an admirable view. At the foot of the Stangenberg on the W. lies the hamlet of Märzdorf, 3 M. from Warmbrunn.

Near Märzdorf, to the S.W., lies Giersdorf ('Zum Hohlen Stein, Zur Scheskepöppe, in the upper village; 'Rüfer, 'Dämmier, 'Ramsch, in the lower), 2 M. from Warmbrunn; almost adjoining it is the straggling village of Hain, whence the picturesque 'Hainfall may be visited ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr., restaurant).

Seidorf (1200 ft.; 'Zur Scheskepöppe; Brewery), where the roads from Warmbrunn and Hermsdorf unite, $3\frac{1}{4}$ M. from each of these places, and $5\frac{1}{4}$ M. from Schmiedeberg, lies to the S. of Märzdorf, and is one of the starting-points for the Koppe (p. 281). From Seidorf we reach the St. Anna-Capelle (2190 ft.), built in 1481, in 1 hr. (service on the Sun. after St. Ann's Day, July 26th); near it is a forester's house affording refreshments. Just beyond the latter is a narrow forest-path, leading to the (1 M.) 'Kräbersteine (2380 ft.), on the N.W. slope of the Kräberberg; the last rock, the top of which is made accessible by steps, commands a picturesque view.

From Seidorf the road leads to the E. to Arnsdorf (1425 ft.; Ender; Brewery; rail. stat., see p. 241), with a ruined castle and a château of the 17th cent., prettily situated on the Lomnitz; then to Steinseifen and to Schmiedeberg, see p. 256.

$53\frac{1}{4}$ M. Hermsdorf. — Hotels. *Tietze's, R., L., & A. $2\frac{1}{2}$ M.; *VEREIN, R. $1\frac{1}{2}$ M.; D. $1\frac{1}{4}$ M.; DEUTSCHE KRONEN; ZUM KYNAST; *GOLDENER STERN, unpretending, etc. — Private apartments also to be had. — Fixed tariff for Guides, Chair Porters, and Saddle Horses.

Hermsdorf (1310 ft.), a beautifully-situated village with a château of Count Schaffgotsch, is an admirable starting-point for excursions. On a wooded height above it rises the well-preserved ruin of Kynast* (2030 ft.), owned by the Schaffgotsch family since 1393, and destroyed by lightning in 1675. A legend of this castle forms the subject of a ballad of Körner. The beautiful but heartless Kunigunde vowed to marry none but the knight who should first ride round the parapet of the castle. Many made the attempt, but were precipitated into the abyss below. At last one with whom she herself fell in love succeeded in his daring feat, but instead of claiming his prize, he administered a stern reproof and departed. Beautiful view of the Hirschberg valley from the tower (10 pf.). Adm. to other rooms, 30 pf. As the carriage-road (1 hr.) is destitute of shade, the ascent to the castle is best made by the path which leads to the left from the upper part of the village and mounts on the N. side of the hill ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr.; guide unnecessary). We descend to the 'Höllengrund, which separates the Kynast from the Heerdberg (2165 ft.; ascent $\frac{3}{4}$ hr.) towards the S. A pleasant path leads through the woods round the Heerdberg to Agnetendorf (p. 258) in $\frac{3}{4}$ hr.

Near Wernersdorf (Zum freundlichen Hain), $3\frac{1}{4}$ M. to the W. of Warmbrunn, and 3 M. from Hermsdorf, are the Eibersteine, an imposing group of rocks. Fine view from the Grosse Eiberstein (125 ft.; evening-light best).

From Agnietendorf (Beyer, pens. 4-5 M.; Deutscher Kaiser*), situated in a pleasant valley, $2\frac{1}{4}$ M. to the S. of Hermsdorf, the Bismarckhöhe* (2230 ft.; inn), an excellent point of view, may be reached in $\frac{3}{4}$ hr., or from Hermsdorf direct in 1- $\frac{1}{4}$ hr.

8 M. Petersdorf (1300 ft.; Kronprinz; Silesia, at the rail. station, pens. 4-5 M.; Trenker's; Deutscher Kaiser; Zum Zacken; Prenzel's*, with a garden and baths; Zum Kochelfall*, at the end of the village) is another summer-resort, on the Zacken, with glass works. Fine view from the Moltkefels (800 ft.; $\frac{3}{4}$ hr.).

The road to (6 M.) Schreiberhau ascends the picturesque ravine of the Zacken; walkers cross to the right bank at the Kochelfall Inn and follow the black-and-white way-marks. At the kilomètre stone No. 76.3 a path to the left leads through a pretty, wooded valley to the (10 min.) Kochelfall, a cascade 39 ft. in height (comp. p. 254). The road then leads through the straggling village of Schreiberhau (3500 inhab.), the highest in Silesia (2060 ft.). Numerous inns and lodging-houses on the roadside: Gasthof zum Zackenfall (2050 ft.); Marienthal Inn; König's; Lindenhof*; Reisfrüher*, etc.; Weissbachhof (with hydropathic). The Gasthaus zur Josephinen-Hütte (2430 ft.), on the road, $\frac{3}{4}$ M. beyond König's Hotel and about 12 M. from Hermsdorf, is the headquarters of guides and porters for the Koppe. The Josephinen-Hütte, the largest of the Silesian glass-houses, belongs to Count Schaffgotsch (open 8-12 and 2-6). Near it are a Monument to Emp. William I. and the Rabenstein, a lofty rock.

The Zackelfall*, a fall of the Zackerie, 80 ft. in height, framed in beautiful forest-scenery, $\frac{3}{4}$ M. to the S. of the Josephinen-Hütte, is reached by a good road. The best view of the fall, which is one of the finest in the Giant Mts., is obtained from beneath (restaurant, with beds). Route to the Neue Schlesiische Baude, see below.

To the N.W. of the Josephinen-Hütte rises the Hochstein (3540 ft.), ascended in $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr., an excellent point of view (rustic inn).

The road beyond the Josephinen-Hütte ascends to a height of 2460 ft., crosses the Austrian frontier, and leads viâ Neuwelt (8 M. from Schreiberhau; Gasthof Rübzahl) and (10 M.) Tannwald to (15 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Reichenberg (p. 265). — A pleasant walk through wood leads from Neuwelt to the (8 $\frac{1}{2}$ -4 hrs.) Elbfallbaude (p. 259) viâ the Mummel and Pantsche Falls (p. 259).

b. The Hochgebirge.

Distances. From the Josephinen-Hütte to the (4 M.) Schnee-grubenbaude 3 hrs., (10 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Riesenbaude 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ hrs., (1 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Koppe $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.; from Agnietendorf to the (7 M.) Schnee-grubenbaude 4 hrs.; from Seidorf to the (11 M.) Riesenbaude 6 hrs.; from Schmiedeberg to Krummhübel $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr., thence to the (9 M.) Riesenbaude 3 hrs.; from Schmiedeberg direct to the (14 M.) Koppe 4 hrs.; from Johannisbad to the Koppe 6-7 hrs.; from Hohenelbe to the Koppe 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ -8 hrs.; from the Josephinen-Hütte to (8 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Hohenelbe 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ -7 hrs.

FROM THE JOSEPHINEN-HÜTTE to the Koppe, 8-10 hrs. (red-and-blue way-marks). The path ascends by the (3 $\frac{3}{4}$ hr.) Zackelfall (see above), crosses a bridge (2335 ft.), and ascends the new and excellent path to the ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr.) Neue Schlesiische Baude (3975 ft.). We may then make a digression of about 20 min. viâ the Pferdekopfsteine (4260 ft.; view) and the E. side of the Reifträger (4465 ft.); or we may leave the latter to the left, proceed towards the S.E., and then ascend past some curious groups of rock, called the (20 min.) Sausteine (right) and (10 min.) Quargsteine (left). Farther on we cross the path from the Alte Schlesiische Baude to Ober-Rochlitz, and at the finger-post (boundary-stone 112) quit the ridge-path leading to the right of the Veilchenstein to the ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Schnee-grubenbaude, and diverge to the right to the (5 min.) Elbbrunnen, one of the sources of the Elbe. Hence we go on towards the S. for 25 min. and turn to the E. (left) to the ($\frac{1}{4}$ hr.) Pantsche Fall* (striking view of the Sieben Gründe). The Elbfall*, 145 ft. high, is 20 min. farther on (accommodation at the Elbfallbaude). Hence to Spindelmühl ($2\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.), see p. 262.

An easy path leads from the Elbfallbaude, viâ the Pantsche Fall (see above), to the ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr.) Kesselkoppe* (5705 ft.; *View), turning to the left at the (2 min.) guide-post to the Elbbrunnen. The descent may be made viâ the Kesselhofbauden and Schüsselbauden to Spindelmühl (p. 262).

From the Elbfall we ascend to the N.E. by an excellent path to the (35 min.) Schnee-grubenbaude (4890 ft.), lying on the brink of the Grosse and Kleine Schneegrube, two rocky gullies upwards of 1000 ft. in depth. *View of the Hirschberg Valley, beyond the abyss, and of Silesia as far as the Zobten near Breslau; still finer view from Bübesahl's Kanzel ('Number Nip's Pulpit'), a lofty rock close behind the Baude.

From the Schnee-grubenbaude we proceed to the left, passing the Grosse Schneegrube, to the ($\frac{1}{4}$ hr.) Hohe Rad (4960 ft.), with a mound (16 ft. high) in memory of Emp. William I., and fine *View. Steep descent on the E. side in $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. (ascent $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.), then along the crest of the mountain to the Grosse Sturmhaube (4670 ft.), from the saddle below which paths diverge N. to the Korallensteine and S. to Spindelmühl (p. 262). Passing the Mannstein, the Mädelsteine, and the Vogelsteine, we reach in $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr. the Petersbaude* (4100 ft.; telegraph-office), a mountain-inn, commanding an extensive view towards Bohemia. [Descent from the Petersbaude to the left to Agnetendorf, or to the right to Spindelmühl, $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr.] We then descend, first to the left and then to the right, into the Mädelwiese, a marshy hollow, and reach the ($1\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Spindlerbaude (3940 ft.), an inn on the W. slope of the Kleine Sturmhaube (4730 ft.). [Descent hence to Spindelmühl $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr.]. The path on the N. side of the latter leads to the ($2\frac{2}{3}$ M.) Mittagstein, a granite rock about 40 ft. in height, on the N. slope of the Lähnberg, or Silberkamm (4810 ft.), commanding a fine view towards Silesia. About 10 min. farther on is the Prinz-Heinrich-Baude* (4625 ft.; R. from 2, D. $1\frac{3}{4}$ M.), in a fine situation above the Grosse Teich* and the Kleine Teich. After $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. we pass a guide-post (Wiesenbaude $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. to the S.; Hampelbaude $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. to the N.), and cross the Koppenplan, clothed with dwarf pines, to the (1 hr.) Riesenbaude* (4560 ft.), a small inn (bed 2 M., shakedown 50 pf.) on Bohemian territory at the foot of the barren summit of the Koppe. A path, protected by walls, at the beginning of which a magnificent view is obtained of the Melzergrund to the left and the Riesengrund (p. 261) to the right, ascends hence in numerous windings to the summit of the Schneekoppe ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr., descent 20 min.).

FROM SEIDORF (p. 257) to the Koppe, 6 hours. To the Anna-Capelle and the Kräbersteine (p. 257), $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr. From the latter we return to the finger-post, and then skirt the hillside till we reach the main path, which ascends direct from the chapel. In 1 hr. more we reach the Broitbaude (2690 ft.), at the junction of the paths from Arnsdorf and from Krummhübel. The path then leads to the right to (10 min.) Kirche Wang* (2900 ft.), the parish-church of the straggling village of Brückenberg (3100 ft.; Schweizerhaus; Zum Deutschen Kaiser, near the parsonage), a good example of the curious Norwegian 'Stavekirker', or timber-churches, brought by Frederick William IV. in 1844 from its original site at Valders in Norway (sacristan 50 pf.).

By the entrance to the parsonage the path ascends in 40 min., past Rübezahl's Kegelbahn ('Number Nip's Skittle Alley'), where it joins the direct path from Seidorf, to the ($1\frac{3}{4}$ M.) Schlingelbaude (3430 ft.), opposite the stone Heideschlossbaude. A little to the right are the Drei Steine (3950 ft.), rocky pinnacles on the crest of the mountain. Then (10 min.) two bridges over the outlets of the Grosse and Kleine Teich, whence the distant ($3\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Hampelbaude (4115 ft.; inn) is visible on its green plateau. From the Hampelbaude we ascend to the ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Koppenplan; thence to the Schneekoppe, see above.

FROM KRUMMHÜBEL to the Koppe, 3- $3\frac{1}{2}$ hours. A narrow-gauge railway leads from Zillerthal (p. 265) in 23 min. and the Pfaffenberg to Krummhübel (1755 ft.; Augusta-Bad; Goldener Frieden*; Schneekoppe; Berliner Hof, etc.; rail. stat., see p. 265), a favourite summer-resort. In a ravine below the village is the Alexandrin-Bad. — The Koppe may be ascended from Krummhübel in $3\frac{1}{2}$ hrs. through the romantic Melzergrund (finger-post on the road to Wang, above the Gerichtskretscham); or in 3- $3\frac{1}{2}$ hrs., by the Gehänge (somewhat steep) and the Hampelbaude (see above); or by the Eulengrund and the Schwarze Koppe ($3\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.); or viâ Wolfschau (Inns) to the Forsibauden (rfmts.) and the Tabaksweg* (4 hrs.); or, lastly, viâ Wang and the Schlingelbaude (see above), in $3\frac{1}{2}$ hrs. (guide unnecessary; numerous finger-posts).

FROM SCHMIEDBERG direct to the Koppe by the Schmiedeberger Kamm, 4 hours, with guide. The path ascends to Ober-Schmiedeberg and Arnsberg, passes the St. Anna-Capelle (p. 257) on a hill to the right, then turns to the right, and ascends, chiefly through wood, to (2 hrs.) the Grensbauden (3430 ft.; Hübner, very fair; Goder- baude), 2 hrs. below the summit (good Hungarian wine). Steep ascent to the Schwärze Koppe (4616 ft.), then an almost level stretch for $\frac{1}{2}$ hr., and finally another steep ascent of $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. to the summit.

FROM JOHANNISBAD (p. 266) to the summit the following are the two best routes. By the first (6-7 hrs.; carriage to Petzer advised, 4-5 fl.; diligence from Freiheit, 8 M., in $2\frac{1}{2}$ hrs., 1 fl. 5 kr.) pedestrians ascend the N. slope of the valley, past the finger-post and the Waldhaus, to the village of Schwarzenberg, and then ascend the slope to the right (red way-marks) under the Blaustein (3120 ft.) to ($3\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Dunkelthal (see below). The carriage-road leads via Freiheit (p. 266) to the long village of Marschendorf (Bräuhof; Justmühle) in the valley of the Aupa. At the Schloss-Brauerei the road forks, the right branch leading to Aibendorf and the Grenzbauden (p. 260). Our road leads to the left, ascending the valley of the Aupa to ($\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Dunkelthal. Beyond a large glass-house it enters a more sombre part of the valley (to the S. the Aichelburg, a small modern tower). $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. Kreuzschenke (route to Klein Aupa, see below). The road proceeds to the left to ($1\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Gross-Aupa ("Post"), a village consisting of huts scattered over the hillside. In $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. more we reach Petzer (Petzerkreitscham; Wagner) the highest part of Gross-Aupa, where the road terminates. (A little above diverges the road leading across the Geiergucke to Spindelmühl; see p. 262.) Then a steep ascent leads to the right through the grand Riesengrund*, or Aupagrund. The path passes between the remains of two large landslips formed in 1882. The Aupa, pouring over the cliff to the N. in divided and scanty runlets, here forms the so-called Aupa Fall. In 2 hrs. from Petzer we reach the Riesenbaude (4570 ft.); thence to the Koppe, see p. 260.

[At the Kreuzschenke (see above) a road diverges to the right and leads through the pretty valley of the Kleine Aupa to Klein-Aupa (Zur Mohrenmühle, unpretending; carr. to this point in 2 hrs., 5 M. and fee) and ($1\frac{1}{4}$ hr.) the Grenzbauden (p. 260).]

The second route (7 hrs.) ascends in 2 hrs. by the Prellogg-Weg, via the Zinnackerbauden, Ochsenbauden, and Schwarzschatgbauden* to the ($2\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Schwärze Berg* (4190 ft.), commanding fine views of the mountains and the Bohemian plain. We then descend to the ($4\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Bohnenweisbaude, pass the Töpferbaude and the Fuchsbaude, and follow the long ridge of the ($7\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Fuchsberg*, which affords an admirable view of the Riesengrund and the precipitous S.W. side of the Koppe. Thence to the right at the (1 M.) Hofbaude by the (2 M.) Geiergucks* (descent through the Lange Grund to Spindelmühl, see p. 262) and the Brunnenberg to the ($1\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Wiesenbaude and the Riesenbaude (4 hrs.); thence to the top, see p. 260.

The Schneekoppe*, or Riesenkoppe (5260 ft.), the highest mountain in N. or Central Germany, is a blunted cone of granite, covered with fragments of gneiss and mica-slate. The chapel on the summit, erected at the end of the 17th cent., stands on the frontier of Bohemia and Silesia. Divine service performed here once a year (10th Aug.). Close to the chapel is the Koppenhaus* (bed $2-2\frac{1}{2}$ M.; travellers are awakened to view the sunrise, which, however, is seldom clear), with post and telegraph office; a second Inn, on the Bohemian side of the Koppe, belongs to the same landlord. A red flag by day or a red light by night indicates that no night-quarters are to be had.

View (best towards evening) extensive and picturesque: to the N. the entire Hirschberg Valley; E. Schweidnitz, Zobten, Breslau, Eule, Silberberg, Schneeberg, Heuscheuer; S.W. the Weisse Berg near Prague; W. the Milleschauer near Teplitz; N.W. the Landskrone near Görlitz. To the S.W. we obtain a most imposing view of the Aupagrund or Riesengrund, descending 2000 ft. almost perpendicularly (see p. 261); to the N. the Melzergrund (p. 260). Fields of snow are often seen on the mountain in spring.

FROM THE JOSEPHINEN-HÜTTE VIA SPINDELMÜHL TO THE WIESENBAUDE 7-8 hrs., or to HOHENELBE 8-9 hrs. (from Spindelmühl to Hohenelbe route practicable for carriages). — To the Elbfall 3 hrs., see p. 259. A good path leads to the right from the Elbfallbaude along the slope of the Koronosch (4620 ft.) into the * Elbgrund; on the right rises the Kesselkoppe (p. 259). It then turns to the left, skirting the Riesenkamm, which is rent and assuaged by the Sieben Gründe, and follows the course of the Elbsaifen. Near the confluence of this stream with the Weisswasser, a brook descending from the Sieben Gründe, the path unites with that coming from the Peterbaude (p. 259) and turns towards the S.W. At (¾ M.) the Mädelsteigbaude is a toll-gate (each pers. 4 pf.); then, 1 M. farther on (2½ hrs. from the Elbfallbaude), —

Spindelmühl (2660 ft.; Badehaus; Hercynia*; Wiesenhau; Spindelmühle; Rübezah; Marienwarte, with garden, etc.; also Krone*, Deutscher Kaiser, etc. in Friedrichsthal, on the right bank of the Elbe), a favourite summer resort. At the S. end of the village the Elbe is joined by the St. Peterseifen, on which, ¾ M. farther up, lies the village of St. Peter. The route now ascends the S. slope of the Ziegenrücken, to the right of the Heuschöber (4290 ft.), and affords a picturesque view of the W. valleys of the Brunnenberg (5120 ft.). After 3½ hrs. we reach the Wiesenbaude (4510 ft.; Inn), whence we follow the stakes to the (¼ hr.) path on the mountain-crest, leading in ¼ hr. more to the Riesenbaude (see p. 260). — Another route from Spindelmühl ascends by the Elbe to the point where the united waters of the Sieben Gründe force their way through the ridge, crosses the bridge to the right, and follows the right bank of the Weisswasser (blue marks). A few hundred feet above us, ¾ M. from Spindelmühl, is the lonely but magnificently situated Leiterbaude*; steep ascent hence in 1 hr. to the Spindlerbaude (see p. 259).

The direct route from Spindelmühl to the Aupa-Thal (5 hrs.; red-and-green marks) descends from the village of St. Peter (see above), and then gently ascends the wild and romantic Lange Grund to the (2 hrs.) crest of the N. spur of the Brunnenberg (see above), which forms the watershed between the Aupa and the tributaries of the Elbe. The Geiergucke (p. 261), at the top, commands a charming view of the Aupa-Thal. To the right is the Zehgrund; the path follows its N. slopes to the Richterbauden, where (1½ hr.) Petzerkretscham, and (½ hr.) the Post Inn at Gross-Aupa (p. 261).

By following the course of the Elbe to the S. from Spindelmühl we reach Hackelsdorf, Oberhohenelbe, and (3 hrs.) Hohenelbe (p. 265).

c. Rocks of Adersbach and Weckelsdorf.

FROM SCHMIEDENBERG (p. 256), carriage and pair in 6-7 hrs. (15 M. and fee; railway to Landeshut, see p. 266). A good road leads via the Landeshuter Kamm (fine retrospects) to (10 M.) Landeshut; thence to (1 hr.) Grüssau (p. 266) and (1 hr. more) Schömburg (Kaiserhof; Deutscher Kaiser), where the road from Liebau (see below) joins our route. Crossing the Bohemian frontier, we next reach (¾ hr.) Liebenau. (Pedestrians save an hour by taking the path to the right beside the tavern at the beginning of the village.) Beyond the (¾ hr.) straggling village of Merkelsdorf the road divides, the right branch leading to (¾ hr.) Adersbach, the left to (¾ hr.) Weckelsdorf. Adersbach is 3 M. from Weckelsdorf, which lies 2 M. from the station of the same name. Diligence, see p. 263.

FROM LIEBAU (p. 266) to Schömburg, 4½ M., diligence twice daily in 1¼ hr.; from Schömburg on, see above.

FROM FRIEDLAND (p. 269; carr. and pair ca. 10 M.). The road crosses the Bohemian frontier immediately beyond the town, and unites with that from Schömburg at (3½ M.) Merkelsdorf (see above).

FROM TRAUTENAU (p. 265), diligence once daily in 6 $\frac{3}{4}$ hrs. (fare 1 fl. 70 kr.) viâ (3 M.) Parschnitz (p. 267), (8 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Quaitzsch, and Adersbach, to (15 M.) Weckelsdorf and (16 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.) the station of that name (p. 270).

Adersbach Rocks. — ZUR Felsenstadt, at the entrance to the rocks, R., L., & A. 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ M., B. 35 pf.; KASPER'S HOTEL. — Admission 1 M or 50 kr. each person; guide, without whom no one is permitted to enter, 50 kr. for one person, parties in proportion. Small fees are expected at various points, so that the traveller should be provided with 10 and 20 pf. pieces. — The temperature among the rocks is much lower than outside.

The Adersbach Rocks, resembling those in Saxon Switzerland, are very curious. They once formed a solid mountain of green sandstone, the softer parts and clefts of which have been worn away and widened by the action of water, leaving the more indestructible portions standing. These rocks, thousands in number, several of them 180 ft. high, often assume grotesque shapes, and many of them have been named in accordance with some fanciful resemblance (sugar-loaf, burgomaster, drummer, etc.). The path is often so narrow that visitors must walk in single file. A silvery brook traverses this labyrinth, issuing in a waterfall 40 ft. high from a little lake, to which a flight of steps ascends. Part of the exploration, which occupies 2-2 $\frac{3}{4}$ hrs. in all, is carried out by boat (20 pf.). At the egress an echo is awakened by trumpet-blasts (20 pf.) and shots (1 M or 60 pf.).

The Weckelsdorf Rocks (Zum Eisenhammer, fair, R., L., & A. 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.; Zur Felsenstadt*), adjoining those of Adersbach on the E. (3 M. from the Adersbach inn), are still more imposing. Fees for admission, etc., the same as at the Adersbach Rocks. Here, too, various parts of the chaotic scene have their specific names (cathedral, burial-vault, etc.). The finest point is the grand 'Cathedral', resembling a Gothic structure. Visitors generally return through the Neue Felsenstadt, with the 'Amphitheatre', the 'Anna-Thal', and 'Siberia'. A visit to these rocks occupies 2-2 $\frac{1}{2}$ hrs. — Weckelsdorf has a station (Restaurant) on the Chotzen, Nachod, and Braunau railway (p. 269), 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. distant (omn.).

The Heuscheuer, see p. 269; carriage from Weckelsdorf to the foot of the Maria Stern in 2-2 $\frac{1}{2}$ hrs., fare 8-10 M; carriage from Adersbach to Carlsberg (p. 269) in 6-7 hrs., fare 20 M.

34. From Zittau to Trautenau viâ Reichenberg.

90 M. RAILWAY. To Reichenberg in 1 hr. (fares 2 M 70 pf., 2 M, 1 M 90 pf.); from Reichenberg to Alt-Paka in 2 $\frac{3}{4}$ hrs. (fares 2 fl. 85, 1 fl. 90, 95 kr.); thence to Trautenau-Parschnitz in 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. (fares 2 fl. 25, 1 fl. 50, 75 kr., Austrian currency).

Zittau. — Hotels. SACHSISCHER Hof, in the 'Neustadt' Platz, near the theatre, R. from 1 $\frac{1}{2}$, B. $\frac{3}{4}$, D. 2 M; GOLDENE SONNE, similar charges, ENGEL, both in the market-place; HÜTTER'S HOTEL, near the station, well spoken of; REICHSHOF, WEINTRAUBE, Bahnhof-Str.

Restaurants. Rathskeller, in the Rathhaus (wine); Post, Bautzener-Str.; Brauhaus, Bahnhof-Str., with garden; Weinau, with large garden, 1 M. to the N.E. of the market-place.

Baths in the Stadt-Bad, on the Töpferberg, behind the post-office.

Cab from the station to the town for 1 pers. 50 pf., 2 pers. 75 pf., 3-4 pers. 1 M; luggage up to 55lbs. 20 pf.

U. S. Consular Agent, Alfred Kraus, Esq.

Zittau (800 ft.), a manufacturing town with 28,100 inhab., one of the principal cotton-spinning places in Saxony, is situated in a fertile district on the bank of the Mandau, near its confluence with the Neisse. In 1757, after the battle of Kollin, the town was occupied by the Prussians, and was almost entirely reduced to ashes in consequence of the bombardment by the Austrians under Prince Charles of Lorraine. The large reservoir of the town water-works is conspicuous as we quit the station. Handsome Rathhaus, erected in 1840-45. The Church of St. John, near the market-place, was re-erected in 1834-37; view from the tower. Part of the church of SS. Peter and Paul (slender tower), restored in 1882, is fitted up as a Museum of Antiquities (adm. Wed. & Sat., 2-4). The Joanneum, with a good fresco by Dietrich, contains the gymnasium and the commercial school (adm. 30 pf., 2-5 pers. 50 pf., 6-10 pers. 1 M). Opposite is the Post Office. In the Park is a monument to the composer Marschner (1795-1861), a native of Zittau. The Cemetery, to the S.E. of the town, affords a good survey of the Neisse Viaduct (p. 265).

FROM ZITTAU TO THE OYBIN, 7½ M., narrow-gauge railway in about 1 hr. (fares 1 M 10, 70 pf.). — At Berlkendorf a branch diverges to (8 M.) Jonsdorf. — From Oybin (Engelmann; Klosterhof), the terminus, good paths ascend to the castle in about 20 minutes. The Oybin (1680 ft.) is a wooded sandstone rock, in shape resembling a bee-hive, and crowned with the highly-picturesque ruins of a monastery and a castle, curiously combined. The castle, a robbers' stronghold, was destroyed by Emp. Charles IV., who founded the monastery on its site in 1369. The latter was deserted in 1545 by the Celestine monks who occupied it, and was destroyed by fire in 1577 and 1681. A small Museum of Oybin antiquities occupies the former hall of the castle (adm. 25 pf.). The church of 1884, with its lofty Gothic arches, some of which show remains of beautiful tracery, is the best-preserved part of the monastery. The tower affords a picturesque view. Ancient tombstones in the churchyard. Inn adjacent.

The Hochwald (2485 ft.), 1½ hr. to the S. of Oybin station, a height easily ascended, is another good point of view (inn at the top).

Near the station of Jonsdorf (see above) a guide-post indicates the route to the Nonnenklunzen, Lausche, and Rabenstein. Other guide-posts farther on. After ½ hr. a path diverges to the left to the Rabenstein (see below) and farther on another to the Nonnenklunzen or Nonnenfelsen (¼ hr.) on the right. Following the (6-8 min.) broad carriage-road (guide-post) to the left, we reach the (½ hr.) Gasthof sur Wache, on the frontier between Bohemia and Saxony. Thence a road on the Bohemian side and a preferable foot-path on the Saxon side ascend in ¾ hr. to the summit of the Lausche. The Lausche (2810 ft.) is the highest point of the range of hills which separates Upper Lusatia from Bohemia. It commands an extensive and magnificent prospect, embracing the whole of Lusatia and the Saxon Switzerland, the Teplitz and Bohemian Mts. (as far as Prague), the Iserkamm, the Tafelsichte, and the Giant Mts. The Inn at the top stands half in Saxony, half in Bohemia.

FROM THE LAUSCHE TO THE OYBIN, 3 hrs. From the (25 min.) Wache Inn (see above) we turn to the right (guide-post) and follow the path (white marks) to (40 min.) the Rabenstein (restaurant). About 1¼ hr. farther is a solitary inn, 10 min. beyond which is the Forsthaus Hain, within ½ hr.'s walk from the Oybin.

Passengers' luggage is examined by Austrian custom-house officers before starting, as Zittau is only 2 M. from the frontier. The train crosses the great Neisse Viaduct*, $\frac{1}{2}$ M. long, supported by 34 arches, 72 ft. above the stream. The pleasant valley of the Neisse is then ascended. To the right a view of the Jeschken (3170 ft.) is disclosed.

17 M. Reichenberg (Rail. Restaurant; Goldener Löwe*; Union; Central*), the largest town in Bohemia after Prague, is a cloth-making place, with 33,000 inhabitants. The Kreuzkirche (1698) contains an old altar-piece. The Schloss and the Rathhaus are of the 16th century. — Excursion to the Jeschken (see above) and back, half-a-day. — Railway to Görlitz, see R. 31.

The line ascends in windings, and at (23 M.) Langenbruck reaches the watershed between the Neisse and Iser. It then turns to the W. and descends to (27 M.) Reichenau-Gablons and (31 M.) Liebenau, two glass-making places. It next descends the Mohelka-Thal and crosses it, affording picturesque glimpses of Schloss Sichrow*, the seat of Prince Rohan, built in the English Gothic style. Beyond (34 M.) Sichrow is a tunnel 690 yds. long.

39 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Turnau (Rail. Restaurant; Kronprinz), a town with 5600 inhab., lies on an eminence on the left bank of the Iser, $\frac{1}{2}$ M. from the railway. The modern Marienkirche is a fine Gothic edifice.

The scenery between Turnau and Semil is the finest on the line. The train intersects beautiful rock and forest landscapes, at the foot of which flows the impetuous Iser. From stat. Klein-Skal, which is grandly situated, an interesting route leads past the castle of that name (among the ruins of which there is a 'Rock Pantheon', with reminiscences of Austrian celebrities), by the ruin of Friedstein, and the Kozákov-Bücken (2160 ft.; View*), direct to (2 hrs.) Reichenau (see above). To the left is the château of Dalmérie, with its two towers.

The train continues to follow the picturesque valley of the Iser. — 63 M. Alt-Paka (Rail. Restaurant), a junction, where passengers for Trautenau change carriages.

75 M. Starkenbach, a small manufacturing town with an old Schloss. The church contains a font of 1545. — 80 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Pelsdorf.

BRANCH RAILWAY from Pelsdorf in 14 min. to Hohenelbe (1475 ft.; Schwan; Mohr), a quaint little linen-weaving town pleasantly situated on both banks of the Elbe, on the spurs of the Giant Mts. The Heidelberg (3120 ft.), which rises above the town, commands a fine view. From Hohenelbe to the Schneekoppe, see p. 262.

96 M. Trautenau (Union, at the station; Weisses Ross*; Klein; Hôtel Stark), a town with 13,300 inhab., on the Aupa, is the centre of the Bohemian linen industry. The handsome church, founded in 1283, was rebuilt in the middle of last century. New Synagogue. The Prussians gained a victory over the Austrians in the vicinity in 1866. Several monuments to the slain have been erected on the Johannisberg, or Capellenberg, $\frac{3}{4}$ M. to the S. of the town, where the battle raged most fiercely; fine view towards the Giant Mountains. The Gablenzhöhe, $\frac{1}{2}$ M. distant, is crowned with an iron obelisk.

From Trautenau to Adersbach and Weckelsdorf, see p. 263.

FROM TRAUTENAU TO JOHANNISBAD. Railway to Freiheit (9 M.; fares 45, 20, 10 kr.), ascending the populous and industrious valley of the Aupa. Diligence thence to ($\frac{1}{2}$ M.) the pleasant little Johannisbad (2065 ft.; Kurhaus, R. 8½ fl. per week; Johannisbad, pens. 4½ fl.; Stadt Breslau; Golder Stern; Deutsches Haus, R., L., & A. 1 fl. 30 kr.; Austria; Krone; Frant-Josefs-Höhe; numerous lodging-houses), which in summer is sometimes filled to overflowing. The alkaline chalybeate spring is beneficial in cases of rheumatism and nervous complaints. There are several fine points in the environs, while the Giant Mts. afford opportunities for longer excursions (comp. p. 261).

From Trautenau to (3 M.) Parschnitz (p. 267), 3 M., railway in 10 minutes.

35. From Breslau to Liebau and Königgrätz.

122 M. RAILWAY to Liebau in 4 hrs. (fares 9 M. 30 pf., 7 M. & 4 M. 60 pf.); from Liebau to Königgrätz in 8½-4 hrs. — Route via Salzbrunn, 118 M., see R. 36.

From Breslau to (30 M.) Königszell and (41 M.) Sorgau, see R. 38.

43½ M. Altwasser (1190 ft.; Villa Nova; Seifert's), with 10,200 inhab., has manufactures of porcelain, machinery, mirrors, etc. — Route by Wilhelmshöhe to Salzbrunn, 1½ hr., see p. 268. — The train now passes above the scattered village of Hernsdorf to —

46½ M. Waldenburg (1385 ft.; Schwarzes Ross; Gelber Löwe), a manufacturing town with 14,000 inhab., situated on the Hellabach, the centre of a coal-mining district, with a large porcelain-manufactory and important flax-mills. Excursion to Salzbrunn (p. 268) via the Wetterschacht, 1 hr. — The line now ascends in a wide curve.

At (49 M.) Dittersbach (p. 253) our line joins the Kohlfurt and Glatz railway (R. 32), with which it coincides as far as (61½ M.) Ruhbank (p. 253). It then turns to the S. and ascends the valley of the Bober, which it repeatedly crosses.

65 M. Landeshut (Rabe*; Drei Berge, both in the Ring; Drei Kronen), with 7700 inhab., who are occupied in flax-spinning and weaving, lies on the Bober. In the Ring rises a statue of Count Stolberg (d. 1872), once Governor of Silesia, by Pfuhl. — Route to Schmiedeberg, see p. 262; to Adersbach, see p. 262.

At Grüssau, 3 M. to the S.E., are the extensive buildings of a Cistercian abbey, founded in 1282, suppressed in 1810, and now used as a parsonage and school. The large Marienkirche, completed in 1727-35 in the style of the period, contains some interesting ceiling-paintings (especially in the dome) and fine carved choir-stalls. The Fürstencapelle, behind the high-altar, contains the tombs of Boiko I. (founder of the abbey) and Boiko II. of Schweidnitz. The smaller Church of St. Joseph, near the Marienkirche, is also worth a visit (frescoes).

71 M. Liebau (Kyffhäuser; Schmidt's; Deutsches Haus; Rail. Restaurant*), with the Austrian custom-house, is a town of 5000 inhab., engaged in weaving and spinning. — From Liebau to Adersbach, see p. 262.

The line follows a defile through which the Prussian army invaded the Austrian dominions in 1866, and soon enters Bohemia. It ascends slightly, crossing the watershed between the Oder and the Elbe, and then descends. 74 M. Königshau (branch to Schatzlar).

81½ M. Paraschnitz (*Rail. Restaurant), on the Aupa, the junction for Trautenau, Reichenberg, and Zittau (R. 34).

99½ M. Starkotsch (branch-line to Wenzelsberg, 2 M. distant, on the Halbstadt-Chotzen line, p. 270). The line traverses the battle-field of Nachod, where the Austrians under Ramming and Archduke Leopold were defeated in several engagements by the Prussians under Steinmetz in 1866. — 103 M. Skalitz.

111 M. Josefstadt (6745 ft.; Wessely's Hotel; Rail. Restaurant), a town and fortress on the Elbe, erected in 1781-87, ¾ M. from the station.

122 M. Königgrätz (800 ft.; Lamm; Ross), a fortress on the Elbe, rendered famous by the battle of 3rd July, 1866, which was fought to the W. of the town (see Baedeker's Austria).

36. From Breslau to Braunau and Chotzen viâ Salzbrunn.

118 M. RAILWAY. To Halbstadt in 3½ hrs. (fares 8 M 10, 6 M 10 pf., 4 M; express 8 M 70, 6 M 70, 4 M 70 pf.); from Halbstadt to Chotzen in 2¼-4 hrs. — As far as Friedland the finest views are generally to the left, beyond it to the right.

Breslau (Freiburg Station), see p. 242. — 12½ M. Canth. At Kryblowitz, 3 M. to the S.E., is the mausoleum of Field-Marshal Blücher, who died here in 1819 at the age of 77.

From (18½ M.) Mettkau a diligence plies daily in 2¼ hrs. to (7½ M.) Zobten (p. 249).

30 M. Königswelt (Rail. Restaurant), the junction for the Liegnitz-Frankenstein railway (R. 38), derives its name (king's tent) from the fact that Frederick the Great occupied a fortified camp near it, at Bunschwitz, in 1761, during the Seven Years' War.

35 M. Freiburg (905 ft.; Burg*; Schwarzer Adler; Goldener Löwe), a small town (9200 inhab.) with several linen factories, is prettily situated on the hillside. On the opposite bank of the Polenitz lies the straggling village of Polenitz. Comp. the Map, p. 254.

Pleasant *EXCURSION TO SCHLOSS FÜRSTENSTEIN. We follow the foot-path through the Gründel, along the Polenitz, pass through the village of Polenitz, and at the (2 M.) cross-roads ascend to the left to the (20 min.) Schloss. Another route leads by the above-mentioned village of Polenitz and its prolongations Hellabach and Salsabach to the (2 M.) Inn sur Neuen Schweiserei, a few hundred paces beyond which is the Alte Schweiserei Restaurant*, both close to the Schloss. — (From Sorgau to Fürstenstein, see p. 268).

*Schloss Fürstenstein, the residence of the Prince of Pless, charmingly situated on the E. side of the valley of the Hellabach or Polenitz, and surrounded by extensive grounds, is one of the most attractive spots in Silesia. The château, erected in the Renaissance style in the 17th cent., has been entirely altered and sumptuously fitted up by the present proprietor (visitors usually admitted in the prince's absence). The tower commands a fine view.

A *Walk through the valley and a visit to the two castles may be accomplished in 2-3 hrs., as follows (or in the reverse direction, starting from the Schweizerel). Beyond the above-named cross-roads we turn to the left (S.), on coming in sight of the Schloss, and then take the first footpath to the right, which leads to the Schützensitz (view of Salzbrunn), whence a digression may be made to the right to the (2 min.) Riesengrab, affording the finest view of the wooded Fürstensteiner Grund (View). We then return to the road and follow a track indicated by stone way-posts, which leads to the Luisenplatz, where a beautiful view of the château, the Alte Burg, and Grund is enjoyed. Descend hence into the valley, 300 ft. in depth, cross the Hellabach, and ascend to the Alte Burg, a small imitation of a mediæval castle, with interesting old armour, etc. (fee 50 pf.). We return by the same route into the beautiful valley, and descend the left bank of the Hellabach to (50 min.) the Alte and Neue Schweizerel, or to (20 min.) Nieder-Salzbrunn (see below) and (20 min. more) the station of Sorgau (see below).

The line ascends in a wide circuit. 41 M. Sorgau; hence to Altwasser, etc., see R. 35.

The route from Sorgau to Schloss Fürstenstein is slightly shorter than that from Freiburg. The Waldenburg road is followed to (1½ M.) the Fürstensteiner Grund, and then the route above described is traversed in the reverse direction. — Halfway between Sorgau and the Fürstensteiner Grund opens the Salsgrund, a parallel valley.

The Schneekoppe is visible to the right in clear weather. The train is carried over Nieder-Salzbrunn by a viaduct; Ober-Salzbrunn lies to the left. Fine view.

43½ M. Bad Salzbrunn. — Hotels. CURHAUS, E., L., & A. 2-4½, D. 1½-2, pens. from 6 M.; PREUSSISCHE KRONEN, D. 1½-2½ M., well spoken of; SONNE; DEUTSCHER ADLER; SCHWERT; all with restaurants. Numerous Lodging Houses.

Baths 60 pf.-1 M. — Visitors' Tax 20 M., members of a family cheaper. — The station is 1 M. from the Bad (omn. 80 pf.).

Salzbrunn (1270 ft.), a village with 3700 inhab., stretches along the valley of the Salsbach for nearly 4½ M. Bad Salzbrunn, the watering-place proper, lies quite at the upper end, about 3 M. from the first house. Its saline-alkaline waters were famed as early as 1316 for their efficacy in pulmonary and bowel complaints, but afterwards fell into disuse. Salzbrunn has, however, regained its vogue and is now visited by 7000 patients annually. The principal drinking spring is the Oberbrunnen, which is enclosed by the Elisenhalle, in the pretty promenades of Ober-Salzbrunn (1335 ft.).

At the upper end of Salzbrunn, near the entrance to the village of Hartau, the road to Altwasser diverges to the left (E.). Pedestrians are recommended to take the route by the (2 M.) Wilhelms Höhe* (1690 ft.; *View); descent on the E. side to Altwasser (p. 266) in 20 minutes.

The Zeisburg, or Czechhaus, 1½ hr. to the N.W. of Salzbrunn, destroyed in the Thirty Years' War, lies picturesquely in the valley of the Zels. The road to it leads through the estate and village of Adelsbach. — To Fürstenstein viâ Sorgau, and back, 4½ hrs., see above. — The summit of the Sattelwald (2556 ft.), commanding an admirable view of the Silesian Mts., may be reached in 3 hrs. The first part of the ascent of the Hochwald (2790 ft.) is fatiguing.

The continuation of the line affords numerous beautiful views (to the left). Beyond (47 M.) Conradsthal it describes a curve which brings it back to the vicinity of Ober-Salsbrunn.

52 M. Fellhammer is the junction for the railway from Kohl-furt to Glatz (R. 32), the first station on which, Gottesberg (p. 263), is visible on the right. — Farther on the line commands a succession of splendid views. Tunnel. — 58 M. Schlesisch-Friedland (Weisses Ross), a well-built little town on the Steine, with weaving and other factories. To Adersbach, see p. 262.

Diligence hence 2-3 times daily (in $\frac{3}{4}$ hr.; 60 pf.) to (3 M.) Görbersdorf (1740 ft.; Preussische Krone), situated in a sheltered valley, and frequented by consumptive patients (Dr. Brehmer's Establishment, pens. 44-60 \mathcal{M} per week; Dr. Römpker's, 87-50 \mathcal{M} per week).

The Austrian frontier is now crossed. At (62 M.) Halbstadt (Rail. Restaurant*; Hôtel Meyer) baggage is examined by the custom-house officers.

BRANCH RAILWAY from Halbstadt to Braunau in 25-40 min. (fares 44, 33, 22 kr.) — 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Braunau (Keibl*, R., L., & A. 1-1 $\frac{1}{4}$ fl.; Leo*; Jarvösch*), a small town of 7000 inhab. in an open valley, with a handsome Benedictine abbey. The church, built in 1683, contains numerous frescoes and a few good altar-pieces. Near it is a small museum of natural history. — The line goes on to (15 M.) Mittelsteine (p. 253).

About 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the W. of Braunau are the Weckersdorf Rocks, a 'Felsenstadt' resembling those of Adersbach and Weckelsdorf. A visit (with guide, 50 kr.) to this labyrinth occupies nearly 2 hrs.; fine view from the Elisabethhöhe, the highest of the hills. — In $\frac{3}{4}$ hr. more we reach the Marien-Capelle on the Stern, another fine point of view with a chapel and an *Inn. The Heuscheuer may be reached from the Stern viâ Gross-Labney (20 min.), Dürrengrund ($\frac{1}{4}$ hr.), Bielat ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr.), Melden ($\frac{1}{4}$ hr.), Nausenei ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.), Passendorf ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.), and the Schweizerhaus (see below; $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.), in all 3 hrs.; or better from Nausenei to (1 hr.) Carlsberg (see below).

FROM BRAUNAU TO NACHOD, a drive of 6 hrs. (22 M.; carr. with one horse to Carlsberg about 12, to Cudowa about 18 \mathcal{M} ; carriages are not always to be had at Carlsberg). The road crosses the Prussian frontier near Scheibau, and soon reaches (6 M.) Wünschelburg (Schwarzer Adler; Nitzsche), a small town with 2100 inhab. on the Kaltwasser, near Albendorf, a resort of pilgrims. [Diligence from Wünschelburg twice daily in 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. to (5 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Mittelsteine, passing Rathen, with a château belonging to Herr von Johnston.] The road to the Heuscheuer turns off to the W. near Wünschelburg, skirts the mountain to the right (extensive view to the left), and gradually ascends to (2 hrs.) Carlsberg (Stiebler; Post), on the S. side of the Grosse Heuscheuer (thence to the top $\frac{1}{2}$ - $\frac{3}{4}$ hr.). Pedestrians effect a considerable saving of time by following the 'Gebirgsvereinsweg', a foot-path diverging to the right from the highroad, some distance before Carlsberg.

The 'Heuscheuer (2985 ft.; Schweizerhaus; comp. Map, p. 271) rises about 500 ft. above the lofty plain. The grotesque rock-formations here have various whimsical names (walk through them, with guide, without whom visitors are not allowed to enter, $\frac{1}{2}$ -1 hr.; fee, $\frac{1}{2}$ -1 \mathcal{M}). Fine view from the Tafelstein. The highest point is the Grosswassertuhl (3020 ft.), a seat hollowed out in a small rocking stone. *View from the adjacent belvedere.

[The Wilde Löcher, a wild labyrinth of rocks hollowed out by the action of water, near the village of Bukowins (inn), 4 M. to the W. of

Carlsberg, are reached from the latter by a picturesque path (guide from Carlsberg necessary, 2 M.)

Beyond Carlsberg the road descends rapidly to (6 M.) Cudowa (1270 ft.; Cur-Hotel, pens. 5-10 M.; Schloss Stern, etc.), a pretty and well-equipped little spa (2000 visitors), with strong alkaline springs, containing arsenic, used principally for bathing ('champagne baths') but also for drinking. There are several good points of view in the vicinity. Longer excursions may be made to the Henschewer (p. 269; carr. in 2 hrs.) or (12½ M.) Reinerz (p. 273; carr. with one horse, in 3 hrs., 6 M. and fee; diligence twice daily in summer). To Skalitz (p. 267), omnibus in 3 hrs.

There is frequent communication in summer between Cudowa and (4½ M.) Nachod (see below). The road joins that from Glatz to Nachod (see below) at (¾ M.) the village of Sackisch.

The first station beyond Halbstadt on the railway to Chotzen is (67½ M.) Weckelsdorf (Rail. Restaurant*, with beds), 2½ M. from the little town of that name (omn.; see p. 263). — 73 M. Politz (Grüner Baum); route hence viâ Machau, Melden, and Nau-senei to (3 hrs.) Carlsberg, see p. 269.

81 M. Nachod (Lamm; Rail. Restaurant), with a château once belonging to the Piccolomini family, commanding a fine view. From Nachod to Levin, Reinerz, and Glatz, see p. 273; to Cudowa and Skalitz, see above.

85 M. Wenzelsberg; the Wenzelcapelle near the station contains an Austrian military monument (branch-line to Starkotsch, see p. 267). 94 M. Opowno, with a château of Count Colloredo-Mansfeld; fine view of the Schneekoppe. 104 M. Tinischt, where several railways intersect.

118 M. Chotzen (Rail. Restaurant), see Baedeker's Austria.

37. From Breslau to Glatz and Mittelwalde.

RAILWAY to Glatz, 56 M., in 2½ hrs. (fares 7 M. 80, 5 M. 70, 3 M. 80 pf.); to Mittelwalde, 81 M., in 3¼ hrs. (10 M. 40, 7 M. 80, 5 M. 20 pf.). Best views to the right.

Breslau, see p. 242. Country at first fertile, but uninteresting. On the right rises the Zobten (p. 249). 23 M. Strehlen (Fürst Blücher), with 8800 inhab., on the Oklau. The train then ascends along this stream.

45 M. Camenz (Adler), on the Neisse, the junction for the line between Liegnitz and Neisse (R. 38). Camenz once possessed a Cistercian abbey, founded in 1249, and suppressed in 1810. An inscription in the choir of the church records that Frederick the Great escaped being captured by the hostile Croatsians here in 1745 by assuming the garb of a monk.

On the neighbouring Hartaberg rises the imposing modern Gothic château of Prince Albert of Prussia; in the park behind it fountains play on Sun. and Thurs. from 3 to 6 p.m. — A picturesque road leads from Camenz to (7½ M.) Reichenstein, with its arsenic mines, and (12 M.) Bad Landeck (see p. 272). Pedestrians should choose the route through the Schlacken-Thal and past the Rosenkrans Chapel (tavern), a walk of 5 hrs.

52 M. Wartha (850 ft.; Sonne; Stern), a small town. A steep path ascends to the Chapel of St. Anna on the Warthaberg (1840 ft.), which attracts numerous pilgrims (*View). Near the town the Neisse forces its passage through a rocky pass, formed by the spurs of the Schneeberg and Eulen-Gebirge. Tunnel.

58 M. Glatz (Kaiserhof, Weisses Lamm, well spoken of; *Stadt Rom; Schwarzer Bär; Neu-Breslau; Rail. Restaurant), a strongly-fortified town on the Neisse, with 14,200 inhab., is commanded by the conspicuous keep of the old castle, 300 ft. above it (tickets of admission at the commandant's office, in the Ring, 50 pf.; small fee to soldier who acts as guide). — Excursion to the Glatzer Gebirge, see below. — From Glatz to Kohlfurt, see R. 32.

70 M. Habelschwerdt (Drei Karpfen; Deutsches Haus*, with restaurant), a district-town with 5700 inhab., pleasantly situated on the Neisse, 1 M. from the station. The Chapel of St. Florian, $\frac{3}{4}$ M. distant, affords a fine View; another admirable point of view is the Dohlenberg (1910 ft.), 4 M. to the W., beyond the Weistritz and the ($2\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Wüstung (inn).

A good road runs from Habelschwerdt to ($18\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Reiners (p. 273) viâ Alt-Lomnitz and Alt-Heide (p. 273), where it joins the road from Glatz to Nachod (p. 273). Walkers should follow the pleasanter route by the Brand, Langenbrück, Kronstadt (inn), Kaiserswalde, Hohs Mense (p. 273), and the Seefelder, a high-lying moor (2470 ft.; interesting flora and fauna), the streams draining which descend to the Elbe and the Oder.

73 M. Langenau, $\frac{3}{4}$ M. from the pleasant little Bad Langenau (1170 ft.; Curhaus; Annahof; Jägerhof), with chalybeate and mud baths. There are several good points of view in the neighbourhood.

81 M. Mittelwalde (1310 ft.; Stern), the Prussian frontier station, picturesquely situated. The Austrian N.W. Railway runs hence to (56 M.; in 4 hrs.) Königgrätz, etc. Pleasant excursions may be taken to Burg Littitz, Pottenstein, Grulich*, the Schweden-schanze, etc.

The Glatzer Gebirge.

The finest points among the GLATZER GEBIRGE, or GLATZ Mts., may all be visited from Glatz within two days. — 1st Day. By diligence or carriage (railway in progress) to Landeck and Seitenberg; walk through the Kleusen-grund and ascend the Schneeberg, spending the night at the Schweizerel. 2nd Day. Walk to the Wölfelsfall and Mariaschnee, ascend the Spitziger Berg, and walk thence viâ Wölfelsdorf to Habelschwerdt or Bad Langenau. — DILIGENCE from Glatz to Bad Landeck 6 times daily in summer in $3\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.; from Landeck to Seitenberg and Wilhelmsthal twice daily in 2 hrs. Carriage and pair from Glatz to Bad Landeck about 7, to Seitenberg about 10 M. — GUIDES may be dispensed with. PORTER 3-4 M. per day, or 2 M. and food.

Glatz, see above. We follow the highroad to the S. to Eisersdorf and then to the E. to ($9\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Ullersdorf (Winkler), with a château of Count Magnis and a large flax-spinning factory. Beside the road is a cast-iron obelisk, 82 ft. high, erected to Queen Louise in 1802. — $12\frac{1}{2}$ M. Kunzendorf (Brewery), with a handsome château. — 21 M. Landeck (1480 ft.; Blauer Hirsch; Goldenes Kreuz), a small town on the Biele. About $\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the N. is the hydropathic establishment of Thalheim, and about the same distance to the S.E. lie the Baths of Landeck (1530 ft.; Schlössel; Düpler Hof; Mercur; Weisser Löwe; Luisehof; visitors' tax 15-25 M.), with warm sulphureous springs (68-84°), known as early as the 13th cent., and used both internally and externally (about 6000 patients yearly). Beautiful shady grounds.

Among the walks may be mentioned the Martenhöhe (10 min.); the Waldtempel (10 min.), amidst beautiful pines (restaurant); $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. to the S. the Schöllenstein; farther off, the Hohenzollerfels (1 hr.), with fine view; still more extensive from the Dreitecker ($1\frac{1}{4}$ hr.), stretching to the Lusatian Mts.; the ruin of Karpenstein, not far distant; view of Landeck from the Gaigenberg ($\frac{1}{4}$ hr.), and still finer from the Ueberschaar, a basaltic rock, $\frac{3}{4}$ hr. to the N.E. A pleasant drive from Landeck via Seitenberg and the Puhu on the Schwarzenberg to the Wölfelsgrund (see below) in 4 hrs. (carr. with two horses 15 M.), with fine view from the pass.

The road ascends the Biele Valley to (3 M.) Seitenberg (Nassauer Hof), with a fish-breeding establishment (visitors admitted). We then walk to ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) the marble-quarries on the Kreusberg, descend into the ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Klessengrund, traverse the straggling village of that name to the forester's house (no rfmts.), and ascend through magnificent pine-forests to (2 hrs.) a finger-post, $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. beyond which we reach the chalet (*Inn) near the top of the —

Schneeberg (carriage-road to this point through the Wölfelsgrund, see below). The summit (4660 ft.; 655 ft. above the chalet), which is attained in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr., presents no comprehensive point of view; we must therefore walk round the margin of the bleak tableland, in order to survey successively the basin of Glatz, the Silesian plain, the Altvater-Gebirge (to the E.), and the wild valleys of the March and its affluents which rise here towards the S. (A view tower is, however, being built.)

From the above-mentioned finger-post we descend in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. to the W. to the upper Wölfelsgrund; $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. farther down the valley is joined by another valley lying more to the N.; $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr. (from the chalet) the picturesque Wölfelsfall* (*Inn zur guten Laune, with steps descending to the fall; Forelle), which is precipitated from a height of 80 ft. into a narrow rocky basin, whence it escapes through a deep gorge into the plain.

We may now drive in 1 hr. via Wölfelsdorf to Eberdorf; pedestrians, however, should make a short circuit ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr.) to the N., in order to visit the conspicuous pilgrimage-chapel of Mariaschnee*, or 'Spitziger Berg' (2460 ft.; inn), situated on a sharp ridge, and commanding a magnificent prospect. Extensive panorama from the 'Belvedere' 10 min. above the chapel (key kept at the chapel). From the chapel to Habelschwerdt $2\frac{1}{2}$ hrs., to Langenau (p. 274) 3 hrs.; the keeper of the chapel acts as guide if desired.

FROM GLATZ TO NACHOD (28 M.). Railway to ($1\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Bückers (1 hr.; fares 1 M. 20, 80 pf.), thence diligence to (8 M.) Stadt Reiners four times daily in $\frac{3}{4}$ hr.; from Stadt Reiners to ($5\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Lewin twice daily in summer in $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr.; from Lewin to ($7\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Nachod once daily in $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr. — The railway runs viâ (8½ M.) Alt-Heide (Curhaus; Grüner Wald), a small watering-place with chalybeate springs. 12½ M. Rückers.

15½ M. Reiners (Schwarzer Bär; Deutsches Haus), a small town of 3100 inhabitants. The Roman Catholic church contains a curious pulpit, representing the whale that swallowed Jonah. Reiners is connected by an avenue as well as by the road with —

17½ M. Bad Reiners (1820 ft.; Germania, D. 2 M.; numerous lodging houses; Restaurants Badehaus, Victoria, Daheim; Café at the Villa Drescher, in the avenue), a favourite watering-place (4000 visitors), with alkaline springs, which are efficacious in nervous disorders, poverty of blood, and the like. Charming environs. The Höhe Mense (2870 ft.), 2½ hrs. to the S., commands an extensive view towards Bohemia.

21 M. Lewin (1880 ft.; Schmidt's; Deutsches Haus), the Prussian frontier town. Farther on we cross the Austrian border and reach —

28 M. Nachod, see p. 270.

38. From Liegnitz to Königszelt, Neisse, and Cosel.

136 M. RAILWAY in 6-8 hrs. (fares 17 M. 70, 13 M. 20, 8 M. 90 pf.).

Liegnitz, see p. 241. The line crosses the Katzbach, and between (4 M.) Neuhof and (9½ M.) Brechelschhof intersects the field of the Battle of the Katzbach, in which, on 26th Aug., 1813, Blücher signally defeated the French under Macdonald. Near this spot Duke Henry of Liegnitz defeated the heathen Mongolians in 1241, but fell in the battle. His mother St. Hedwig erected a chapel here, on which the monastery of Wahlstatt, now a military school, was afterwards founded. — 13 M. Jauer, noted for its sausages. — 25 M. Striegau (Deutscher Kaiser), famous for the victory gained by Frederick the Great over the Austrians and Saxons, commanded by Prince Charles of Lorraine, in 1745; the battle, however, is better known as that of Hohenfriedberg, where the Austrians were stationed. A tower to commemorate the victory has been erected on the 'Siegeshöhe' (extensive view). — From Striegau to Bolkenhain, see p. 253.

29 M. Königszelt, see p. 267. The train skirts the village of Bunzelwitz (p. 267) and crosses a long viaduct.

35 M. Schweidnitz (Thamm, at the station; Krone*, Scepter, both in the market-place; Deutsches Haus; Riedel's; Grüner Adler), a town with 26,100 inhab., formerly the capital of a principality of the name (since 1741 Prussian), is prettily situated on the left bank of the Weistritz. In the Wilhelms-Platz, near the station, are the handsome Law Courts. The tower (328 ft.) of the Roman Catholic Church commands an admirable prospect. The old fortifications were removed in 1862 and partly converted into handsome promenades. The beer of the place (Bierhalle*, with garden, in the Wilhelms-Platz) is famous, especially the 'Schwarze Schöps' (in autumn only), which was largely exported in the 16th century.

A pleasant excursion (diligence twice daily viâ Kynau to Wüste-Waldersdorf, p. 274) may be taken from Schweidnitz to Jacobsdorf (p. 274) and then by the highroad to Weistritz and (6½ M.) Breitenhain. Pedestrians should now quit the road, which leads on to (1½ M.) Kynau, cross the bridge to the left, and follow the pleasant wooded valley of the Weistritz, here called the Schlesier-Thal*. At the Thalmühle, about 1 M. from the bridge, the Mühlbach-Thal, another picturesque dale, opens to the left, while the 'Karetenweg' ascends to the right to the extensive and well preserved ruin of Kynsburg (1475 ft.; inn), near Kynau (Kynsburg). From Kynau to Charlottenbrunn (p. 253), $4\frac{1}{2}$ M., highroad.

37 M. Jacobsdorf. On a hill to the left, close to the line, is a red chapel in which Field-Marshal Moltke (d. 1891) is buried.

47 M. Reichenbach (Schwarzer Adler; Krone), a town of 14,100 inhab., is historically interesting as the scene of a victory gained by the Prussians over Daun in 1762. The Convention of Reichenbach in 1790, guaranteeing the subsistence of the Turkish Empire, and a treaty between the Allies and Austria, which was ratified at Prague in 1813, were also concluded here.

The Eulengebirge, a picturesque mountain-district, may be visited from Reichenbach as follows: by omnibus (carr. 8-12 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.) to (3 M.) Peterswaldau (Krone), with a château of Count Stolberg, and to (1 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Steinseifersdorf (Inn zur Ulbrichshöhe). Thence on foot through the Schmiedegrund to (4 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.) the Gasthof zu den sieben Kurfürsten, at the highest point (2480 ft.) of the road. We then follow a clearly marked path to the left to the Hohe Eule (3325 ft.; *View), the culminating point of the group, and thence in 20-25 min. to the trigonometrical survey-station on the Kleine Eule (3190 ft.), and descend in $\frac{3}{4}$ -1 hr. to the manufacturing village of Wüste-Waltersdorf (Eichner's Inn), $3\frac{1}{2}$ M. from Wüste-Giersdorf (p. 253; highroad or forest-path).

For NEURODE we proceed viâ Peterswaldau (see above) to (2 M.) Steinkunsendorf (inn), and (with guide, 1 M.) to the ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr.) Hausdorfer Kreuz (2625 ft.), Reimstöpfe, Sonnenköpfe, Ascherköpfe*, and the forester's house in the Tränkegrund. Thence to Neurode (p. 253) in 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ hr.

For SILBERBERG we take the railway to (8 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Ober-Langenbielau (Preussischer Hof; Schwert), the largest village (17,600 inhab.) in Silesia, and thence walk viâ Tannenbergl almost to the summit of the pass (Voigpetersdorfer Pflanzl; 2330 ft.; $9\frac{1}{2}$ M. from the station). Here we turn to the left and in 2 hrs. reach Silberberg (see below).

55 M. Gnadenfrei, a Moravian colony.

61 M. Frankenstein (Umlauf), a small town with 8200 inhab., is situated in the most fertile district in Silesia. The Schlossberg, crowned with an extensive ruin, commands a beautiful view of the Eulengebirge and Silberberg (diligence, see above).

A diligence runs hence twice daily in 2 hrs. to (8 M.) Silberberg (Prinz von Preussen*), a small town, with disused fortifications largely hewn in the living rock. — From Silberberg to Reichenbach, see above.

66 M. Camenz, the junction for the Breslau and Glatz railway (R. 37). — The train follows the course of the Neisse.

89 M. Neisse (Drei Kronen; Kaiserhof; Schwarzer Adler; Schwan), a pleasant town (formerly fortified), with 24,400 inhab., in a pretty district on the Neisse. In the Ring, or market-place, rise the Rathhaus, with a tower 240 ft. in height, the Stadthaus, and the Kämmerei (restored 1889). The Roman Catholic Parish Church, completed in 1430, was restored after a fire in 1542. The Kreuskirche, distinguished by its two towers and ornamented with frescoes, dates from 1715. The poet Joseph von Eichendorff died here in 1857 and is buried in the Jerusalem Kirohhof. Pleasant promenades, particularly the Neissedamm, with the Military Academy, and the Rochus-Allée, where there are several public gardens. About 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the

W. of the town are the Davidshöhe and the Sellerie (restaurant), two picturesque view-points.

FROM NEISSE to OPPELN (see below), 32 M., railway in 2¼ hrs. (fares 3 M 10, 2 M 10 pf.). — Branch-line to Brieg (29 M., in 1¼ hr.), see R. 39.

97 M. Deutsch-Wette, where a branch-line diverges to Ziegenhals (for Troppau and Olmütz; see Baedeker's Austria).

107 M. Neustadt, a manufacturing town with 19,200 inhabitants.
— 116 M. Deutsch-Rasselwitz.

FROM DEUTSCH-RASELWITZ TO LEOBSCHÜTZ, 9½ M., railway in ¾ hr. (1 M 30 pf., 1 M). The only intermediate station is Staubendorf. — Leobschütz (Deutsches Haus; Post; Weisses Ross), an industrial town with 12,800 inhab., was originally a Slavonic settlement and passed from Bohemia to Prussia in 1741. The Gothic parish-church dates from the 13th century. — From Leobschütz to Rathbor, see p. 276; to Jägerndorf, see Baedeker's Austria.

The train crosses the Hotzenplots near (121 M.) Ober-Glogau (Grüner Kranz; Suchaus; Schiesshaus), a town of 5700 inhab., with the château of Count Oppersdorff, built in the 13th cent. and containing interesting works of art and antiquities.

193 M. Cosel (Kronprinz), a town with 6500 inhab., on the left bank of the Oder, formerly the capital of a duchy and fortified down to 1874. Monument in memory of the defence of the town against the French in 1807. Promenades on the site of the old fortifications.

We now cross the Oder. — 196 M. Cosel-Kandrsin, the junction of the Breslau and Oderberg railway (see R. 39).

39. From Breslau to Oderberg (Vienna).

112 M. RAILWAY. To Oderberg in 3-5 hrs. (fares 14 M 70, 11 M 10, 7 M 40 pf.; express 16 M 50, 12 M 30, 8 M 60 pf.), to Vienna in 9 hrs. (fares 39 M 50, 27 M 60, 16 M 90 pf.).

Breslau, p. 242. — 16 M. Ohlau (Adler), a small town on the Oder, with extensive tobacco-fields. To the right, near Brieg, rises the church of Mollwitz, where the Austrians were defeated by Frederick the Great in 1741.

26 M. Brieg (Goldenes Lamm*; Hirsch; Löwe), the capital of a district, on the Oder, with 21,100 inhabitants. The old Schloss* of the princes of Brieg was begun under Duke Frederick II. in 1547, and completed by Italian architects in the most tasteful Renaissance style. The finest part of the building is the portal, constructed in sandstone and covered with figures and rich ornamentation. The carriage-approach and the court-yard are highly interesting in point of architecture. The plain yet picturesque Rathhaus and the Gymnasium also date from the 16th century. The most noteworthy churches are the Prot. Nicolaikirche, and the Roman Catholic Hedwigskirche. — Branch-line to Neisse (p. 274).

The Oder is crossed at (51 M.) Oppeln (Form's Hotel; Schwarzer Adler), the seat of government for Upper Silesia, with 23,000 inhabitants. The only relic of the old Château of the Dukes of Silesia is a tower incorporated with the gymnasium. The New Château, on an island in the Oder, was founded in the 14th cent., and is now occupied by government officials. The Adalbert-Capelle is said to have been founded by Adalbert, Bishop of Prague (995). We are now in Polish-speaking territory. — Branch-lines to Neisse, see p. 275; to Tarnowitz viâ Vossowska (see below); to Beuthen (see below) in 2¼ hrs.; to Namslau (see below) in 2¼ hours.

The main line next skirts the Annaberg (with a celebrated pilgrimage-church). — 76 M. Cosel-Kandrzin (Rail. Restaurant*), the junction of the Cosel and Liegnitz line (see p. 275).

FROM COSEL-KANDREIN TO CRACOW, 100 M., railway in 5 hrs. — 28 M. Gleiwitz (Schwarzer Adler), an old town with 25,000 inhab., and a fine church. A busy mining and manufacturing district is now traversed. 82 M. Morgenroth is the junction for Tarnowitz, and (40 M.) Kattowitz (Hôt. de Prusse*) the junction for Nendza. Beyond Mysłowitz the train enters a district which was formerly the free state of Cracow (comp. Baedeker's Austria).

The Vienna train continues its route towards the S. — 87 M. Hammer stands at the head of the navigable portion of the Oder. Alluvial deposits have here raised the bed of the river so considerably that inundations are of very frequent occurrence. — The train crosses to the left bank of the Oder.

95 M. Ratibor (Hôt. de l'Europe; Prinz von Preussen; Deutsches Haus, unpretending), with 21,700 inhab., possesses a handsome court-house by Schinkel, a beautifully situated château, and a modern Gothic church. Pleasant walk to the (4 M.) Stadtwald (view). — Branch-line to Leobschütz (p. 275).

The train again crosses the Oder, which here forms the boundary between Prussia and Austria, and stops at (112 M.) Oderberg, the seat of the Austrian custom-house authorities. — From Oderberg to Vienna, see Baedeker's Austria.

FROM BRESLAU TO BEUTHEN, 120 M., in about 5 hrs. (fares 18 M 20, 9 M 90, 6 M 60 pf.). — 8½ M. Sibyllenort, with a fine château and park of the King of Saxony. — 20 M. Oels (Hirsch; Goldener Adler), a pleasant town (pop. 10,000), on the Oelsa, once the capital of a principality, which formerly belonged to the Dukes of Brunswick and passed to Prussia in 1884. On a height is a Schloss of 1558, with an extensive park. Branch-line to Gnesen (p. 240). — 37 M. Namslau, near which is Minkowsky, where General Seidlitz died in 1773. From (59 M.) Kreuzburg (Fürst Bismarck; Stadt Warschau) a loop-line diverges viâ Vossowska (see above) to Oppeln. 112 M. Tarnowitz, the headquarters of the important Silesian mining-district. — 120 M. Beuthen (Prinz von Preussen; Sanssouci), the capital of a district, with 42,300 inhabitants. The line runs on to Warsaw, Cracow, and Vienna.

40. From Breslau to Dresden.

164 M. RAILWAY. Express in 5¾ hrs. (fares 23 M 90, 17 M 80, 12 M 50 pf.).

From Breslau to (84 M.) Kohlfurt, see R. 29. — 100 M. Möys (p. 252). Then (102 M.) Görlitz (p. 250). To the left rises the Landskrone (p. 252). — 105 M. Reichenbach, the last Prussian town.

114 M. Löbau (860 ft.; Rail. Restaurant; Wettiner Hof, well spoken of; Stadt Leipzig), the oldest of the six allied towns of Upper Lusatia (see p. 250), which entered into a league here in 1346, is a busy place with 8700 German inhabitants. The neighbouring country is peopled with Wends, a Slavonic race differing from their German neighbours in language, customs, and dress, and numbering about 130,000 in Upper Lusatia. The town lies at the foot of the Löbauer Berg (1420 ft.; inn and view-tower at the top, 660 ft. above the town, and $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. from the station).

FROM LÖBAU TO ZITTAU, 21 M., railway in $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr. (fares 2 M 10, 1 M 40 pf.; no first class). — 10 M. Herrnhut (Gasthof der Brüder-gemeinde*), a pleasant little place with 1200 inhab., was founded in 1722 by several families from Moravia who belonged to the Moravian brotherhood ('Herrnhuter'), and had quitted their country on account of their religion. The site was presented to the exiles by Count Zinzendorf (d. 1760), the proprietor. The Moravian meeting-house contains an ethnographical museum (adm. 50 pf.). View from the Hutberg (1195 ft.). — At (13 M.) Oberoderwitz our line joins that from Bischofswerda and Ebersbach (p. 278). 21 M. Zittau, see p. 263.

About $\frac{3}{4}$ M. to the S. of (122 M.) Pommritz lies the village of Hochkirch, memorable as the scene of one of the bloodiest and most disastrous battles fought by Frederick the Great (14th Oct., 1758).

MARSHAL KEITH, Frederick's well-known general, fell in this battle. He was the son of Lord Keith, and an adherent of the Pretender. After the battle of Sheriffmuir he was branded as a Jacobite, and obliged to quit Great Britain. He afterwards entered the Russian service, in which he greatly distinguished himself, and attained the rank of field-marshal. Having resigned his appointment he repaired to Berlin, where Frederick the Great nominated him a Prussian marshal and governor of Berlin. In 1776 Sir Robert Keith, British ambassador at Vienna, erected a monument in the church at Hochkirch to the memory of his kinsman, whose remains had been transferred to the garrison church at Berlin in 1759. Comp. 'A Fallen Star', by Charles Lowe.

A favourite point of view is the Ozerneboh* (i.e. black God; 1765 ft.), a summit in the range which stretches to the S. of Hochkirch, $4\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the S.W. of Pommritz (carr. to Wuischke, then on foot in $\frac{1}{4}$ hr.). At the top are a tower and inn. At the foot of the tower lies a huge block of granite, said to be an altar of the ancient heathen Wends. Fine view of the populous and fertile plain of Upper Lusatia.

129 M. Bautzen (Goldne Krone*; Weintraube, well spoken of; Weisses Ross; Gude, at the station; Stadtkeller Restaurant; Bier-Palast; cab from the station to the town 50 pf.), the handsome and busy capital of Saxon Upper Lusatia (23,700 inhab.), formerly one of the six allied towns, and still surrounded by picturesque walls and watch-towers, is situated on a height above the Spree. The Church of St. Peter, in the Fleischmarkt, built in 1441-54, has been used since 1635 by the Roman Catholics and Protestants in common. In front of it is a monument to Elector John George I. (d. 1656). Schloss Ortenburg (1635), situated on an eminence on the Spree at the W. end of the town, now contains government-offices. On the tower is a lifesize figure of Matthew Corvinus of Hungary (1483). The chamber of the District Court is embellished with a fine stucco ceiling, with scenes from Lusatian history. On the slope of the Schlossberg are the ruins of the old Mönchskirche. The Rathhaus, containing portraits of the burgomasters of the last 400 years, the Gymnasium, the Barracks, the Wendish Church, the Military Church, and the Landhaus, or Hall of the Estates, may also be noticed. The handsome new Gewandhaus, or Clothmakers' Hall, in the market-place (entr., Innere Lauen-Str.), contains the Public Library and the Stieber Museum, with antiquities and pictures (Wed. 2-4, 20 pf.; at other times on application at Weller's, the bookseller, adm. 50 pf., each pers. addit. 20 pf.; catalogue 20 pf.). The stone head on the Nicolaipforte is said to be a portrait of a town-clerk who tried to betray the town to the Hussites in 1429 and was condemned to be drawn and quartered. On the outside of the Reichenthurm is the Monument of Emp. Rudolf II., erected in 1611. On the left bank of the Spree rises the Proitschenberg, a good point of view, where a popular festival is celebrated at Easter. — From Bautzen to Schandau, see p. 319.

The valley of the Spree is now crossed by a long viaduct, which affords a fine retrospect of Bautzen. 142 M. Bischofswerda. About 3 M. to the N. lies Rammenau, the birthplace of J. G. Fichte (in 1762), with a monument to his memory.

FROM BISCHOFSWERDA TO ZITTAU, 40 M., railway in 2½ hrs. (by another route 46½ M., in 3 hrs.). — From (24 M.) Ebersbach the Bohemian N. Railway goes on to (11½ M.) Kreibitz, the junction of the line from Tetschen (p. 312). At (28½ M.) Eibau the longer route to Zittau via Warnsdorf (junction for Bodenbach, p. 311) diverges. — At (36 M.) Scheibitz the two routes reunite. — 40 M. Zittau, see p. 283.

151 M. Arnsdorf.

FROM ARNSDORF TO LÜBBENAU, 59 M., railway in 4 hrs. (fares 7 M 80, 5 M 90, 3 M 90 pf.). — 15½ M. Kamenz (Hirsch; Sonne), with 7700 inhab., was the birthplace of Lessing (in 1729), to whom a colossal bust was erected near the Wendish church in 1863. The house of his parents is denoted by an inscription. View from the tower on the Hulberg, ¼ M. from the town. About 6 M. to the S.E. of Kamenz is the Cistercian monastery of Marienberg, founded in 1264, with late-Gothic cloisters and old stained glass. — From Kamenz the train runs on to Hohenbocka, Benfienberg, Kalau, and (59 M.) Lübbenau (p. 249).

FROM ARNSDORF TO PIRNA (p. 310), 13 M., railway in 40 min. (fares 1 M 70, 1 M 30, 90 pf.).

154 M. Radeberg (Deutsches Haus), a small town with an old château, and iron and glass works, 1½ M. to the N. of which, in the midst of fragrant pine-woods, lies the small Augustusbad, with a chalybeate spring.

164 M. Dresden, see p. 280.

41. From Berlin to Dresden.

a. Via Zossen.

108 M. Express in 3 hrs. (fares 15 M 90, 11 M 90, 8 M 90 pf.); ordinary trains in 4½ hrs. (fares 14 M 20, 10 M 60, 7 M 20 pf.).

Berlin, see p. 1. Departure from the Anhalt Station. — Unimportant stations. 20½ M. Zossen. — 46½ M. Uckro, the station for Luckau (Krone), 4½ M. to the E. (omn.), with 4500 inhab., and a pretty Gothic brick church of the 14th cent., frequently restored. — At (64 M.) Dobrilugk-Kirchhain the train crosses the Halle-Cottbus-Guben line (p. 344), and at (76 M.) Elsterwerda the Kohlfurt-Rossau line (p. 241). A branch-line also runs from Elsterwerda to Riesa (p. 326). — 88 M. Grossenhain (Goldene Kugel; Gesellschaftshaus), with 12,100 inhab. and important cloth factories, the junction for Frankfort on the Oder (p. 236) and Priestewitz (p. 326). — 108 M. Dresden (p. 280), Leipsic Station; the trains then go on to the Bohemian station, corresponding with the trains to Bodenbach (R. 43).

b. Viâ JÜTERBOG-RÖDERAU.

116 M. Express in 3¼ hrs.; ordinary trains in 5 hrs. (fares as above).

Berlin, see p. 1. Departure from the Anhalt Station. — At (5½ M.) Lichterfelde the extensive red buildings of the Cadet School (p. 90) are conspicuous to the right. 11 M. Gross-Beeren, where, on 23rd Aug., 1813, the Prussians under Bülow defeated a French corps, under Oudinot. — 36½ M. Grüna.

The Cistercian abbey of Zinna, 1 M. to the E. of Grüna, was founded in 1170 and secularised in 1547. The church, a handsome granite edifice dating from about 1216 (key at Berliner-Str. 145), contains brick vaulting of the 16th cent.; the choir has five apses. The secular buildings of the abbey are also interesting; the larger dates from the 15th, the smaller from the 14th century. The town of Zinna (1800 inhab.) was founded in 1764-77 by Frederick the Great, whose statue adorns the market-place.

39½ M. Jüterbog (Herold; Stoll), a district-town with 8200 inhabitants. The Church of St. Nicholas dates from the end of the 14th cent., the tasteful New Sacristy from 1417, and the towers, which are connected near the top, were finished in the 16th century. In the interior is still shown one of the indulgences of Tetzl. The Old Sacristy is adorned with ceiling-paintings. The Rathhaus, completed in 1506, contains a room with handsome star-vaulting. The Abbot's House, which formerly belonged to the abbey of Zinna (see above), the Tetzl Chapel, now a Roman Catholic oratory, and the three old gates of the town also merit inspection. The line to Halle and Leipsic diverges here (p. 339).

Dennowitz, 2 M. to the S.W. of Jüterbog, was the scene of a great victory gained by the Prussians under Bülow, on 6th Sept., 1813, over Ney and Oudinot.

69½ M. Falkenberg, the junction of the Halle, Cottbus, and Guben line (p. 344).

88 M. Röderaue (line to Riesa, see p. 326); 90½ M. Langenberg. The train stops at (116 M.) Neustadt-Dresden, 1 M. from the hotels of the Altstadt; see p. 280.

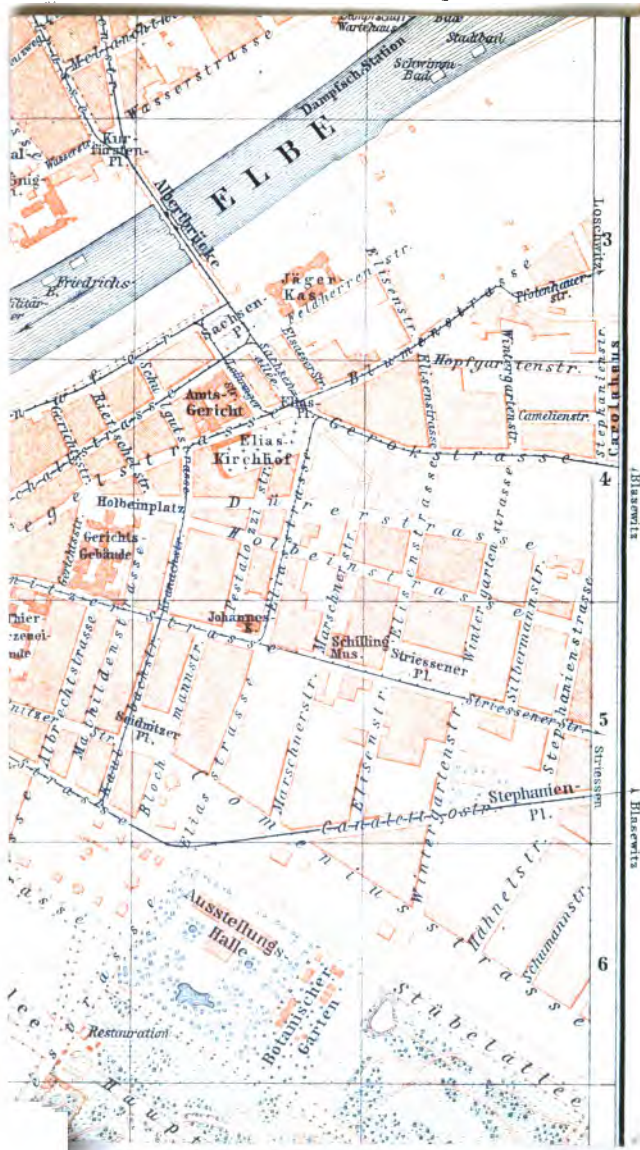

42. Dresden.

Arrival. Cab-tickets are handed to travellers on their arrival, as at Berlin (p. 1). Cab into the town from any of the stations, see p. 281. Tramway (No. 14) between the Leipzig and Bohemian stations, 10 pf.

There are four railway-stations at Dresden: 1. BOHEMIAN STATION (Pl. D, 7; Restaurant*), for the trains to the Saxon Switzerland, Bodenbach, and Prague, and for Tharandt, Freiberg, Chemnitz, and Berlin; 2. FRIEDRICHSTADT STATION (Pl. Excursion to the Bastei (p. 313) recommended.

Rapid changes of temperature are not unfrequent at Dresden, especially in summer, when the evenings are often very cool. This remark also applies to Schandau and other places in the valley of the Elbe.

Dresden (370 ft.), the capital of the Kingdom of Saxony, mentioned in history for the first time in 1206, and the residence of the sovereigns since 1485, was greatly extended and embellished by the splendour-loving Augustus II., the Strong (1694-1733), and has rapidly increased during the present century. Population 334,000 (garrison of 9400 men). The city lies on both banks of the Elbe, which separates the ALTSTADT and FRIEDRICHSTADT (S. side) with their suburbs from the NEUSTADT and ANTONSTADT, which were re-erected after a fire in 1685, with their suburbs. The beautiful environs and the magnificent picture-gallery attract numerous visitors, and a considerable English community resides here.

Dresden will probably long retain the designation of the Cradle of Rococo Art, although the expression 'rococo' is now used in a somewhat narrower sense than it formerly was, and no longer applies to the whole of the art of the 18th cent., which embraces both the 'baroque' and the degraded styles. During the reign of AUGUSTUS THE STRONG Dresden began to occupy a prominent position as a cradle of art, the foundation of the Zwinger and the Invention of Porcelain (by Böttger, a chemist, in 1709; see p. 306) being the two most important events in its art career. As Augustus the Strong bore some personal resemblance to Louis XIV., so the erection of the Zwinger recalls the palatial edifices built about that period as monuments befitting the glorious reign of the Grand Monarque of France. The era of Louis XIV. loved to be compared with the golden period of Roman culture; and so, too, the Zwinger, of which, however, a very small portion only (the anterior court) was completed, was intended to embrace all the handsomest and most useful features of Roman baths and palaces. The leading object of the rococo art, which to some extent finds an exponent in the style of the Zwinger, appears to have been to invest even the domestic life of monarchs with pomp and splendour, and to unveil to the eyes of the public the privacy of the princely boudoir and cabinet. Thus, in harmony with this tendency, the Zwinger would have afforded an admirable scene for the 'Merceries', or fairs, in the comedies and festivities of which the court would have acted a prominent part in transparent incognito. The porcelain manufacture was particularly well adapted for giving expression to the spirit of the style, as the material was equally suitable for being moulded into elegant, doll-like figures, or into flourishing and fantastic decorations. To this day, indeed, the rococo style may be regarded as the classical style for porcelain moulding. A characteristic of the style, however, was superficiality, and its reign at Dresden was accordingly but brief. About the middle of last century the city again lapsed into its former obscurity, unaffected to any material extent by the artistic labours of Mengs or the important archaeological researches of Winckelmann.

At length, about the beginning of the present century, Dresden began to regain a share of its former reputation in the province of art, when the city became the headquarters of the 'Romanticists', who were more given to poetry of conception than technical excellence of execution. The result of their labours has been a series of respectable, but stiff works in somewhat questionable taste. The chief masters of this period were Runge, Friedrich, Gerhard von Kugelgen, and Matthiä. An attempt was made to stimulate the progress of native art by the invitation of eminent artists (Bendemann, Hübner, and Schnorr) from Düsseldorf and Munich; but the experiment was only partially successful, and Dresden continued to be inferior to the other chief cradles of art in the sphere of painting. On the other hand, Dresden has made immense strides in the practice of the plastic art. Of this school Rietschel (1804-81) was the founder, and he was worthily succeeded by Johannes Schilling (b. 1828), the sculptor of the Niederwald Monument, and Donndorf (now at Stuttgart). Ernst Hänel (1811-94) is looked upon as the second head of the Dresden school; among his best pupils are Reinisch, Haertel, Henze, and Echtermeyer. The realistic school is powerfully represented by Robert Dias (p. 307). In the history of architecture Dresden has gradually attained a high reputation from having long been the headquarters of Semper (1804-79), one of the greatest German architects of the present century.

The Altstadt and Neustadt are connected by means of four stone bridges. The Old or Augustus Bridge (Pl. E, 3, 4), constructed in the 12-13th cent., widened in 1727-31, and partly blown up by Marshal Davoust on 19th March, 1813, is $\frac{1}{4}$ M. in length, and rests on 16 arches. — About $\frac{1}{3}$ M. below it is the Marienbrücke (Pl. D, 2), 250 yds. in length, and borne by 12 arches, completed in 1852, and serving both for railway and ordinary traffic. — Above the Augustus Bridge is the Queen Carola Bridge (Pl. F, G, 3, 4), completed in 1895, 356 yds. long and 50 ft. wide, commanding a pleasant view. The large building on the right bank is the Finance Ministry (p. 308). — Farther up is the Albertbrücke (Pl. H, 3), opened for traffic in 1877, 345 yds. long and 59 ft. wide. (Pedestrians as well as carriages are expected to keep to the right in crossing the bridges).

Several of the chief attractions of Dresden are situated close to the old bridge, on the left bank of the river. On our left as we approach from the Neustadt lies the Brühl Terrace, and opposite to us are the Royal Palace and the Roman Catholic Court Church; to the right are the Museum with the Zwinger, the Monument of King John, and the Hof-Theater.

The Brühl Terrace (Pl. E, F, 4), originally laid out as a garden in 1738 by Count Brühl, the minister of Augustus III., rising above the Elbe, and fully $\frac{1}{2}$ M. in length, is a favourite promenade, commanding a fine view of the river. It is approached from the Schloss-Platz by a broad flight of 41 steps adorned with gilded *Groups of Night, Morning, Noon, and Evening, in sandstone, by Schilling. The terrace is planted with trees, and the side next the town is bounded by the Brühl Palais (p. 289) and the old Academy of Art, opposite which rises the Rietschel Monument, by Schilling.

The new Academy of Art, built in the Italian Renaissance style by K. Lipsius in 1890-94, consists of several distinct but connected edifices. The Academy proper, next the Elbe, has a colonnaded portico with statues of the four creative arts, and corner pavilions with gilded figures of Phantasus (right) and Phœbus Apollo (left). Busts and medallions of artists and poets are introduced at other parts of the building. Adjoining is a small Domed Edifice, with four charming putti, symbolizing the Greek, Roman, Gothic, and Renaissance periods of architecture. Next comes the Exhibition Building of the Saxon Art Union (p. 283). In the portico, borne by eight columns of sandstone, are a statue of Rauch beneath a medallion of Winckelmann, to the left, and a statue of Cornelius below a medallion of Schinkel, to the right. In the pediment is Saxony as patron of the arts; above, Athena. The main cupola of this building is crowned with a gilded statue of Fame, 16 ft. high. — Between the Exhibition Building and the Albertinum is a bronze Statue of G. Semper (p. 285), by Schilling. — At the E. end of the terrace is the Café Belvedere (p. 281), near which, on the land-side, is the — Albertinum (Pl. F, 4), originally the Arsenal, built in 1559-63, entirely altered in 1706 and 1743-47, and adapted in 1884-89 for the reception of the sculpture-gallery and casts (adm., see p. 283; entr. opposite the Belvedere). Director, Prof. Dr. Georg Treu.

The MAIN FLOOR is occupied by the Collection of Antiquities. From the staircase we enter the VESTIBULE (XI), which is adorned with busts of Saxon rulers and reproductions of ancient sculptures. We then turn to the left and pass through ten rooms in order to begin with the Egyptian Room. I. Egyptian Room. Mummies; 4. Fragment of a papyrus of the Book of the Dead; limestone canopæ; scarabei and images. — II. Egyptian-Assyrian Room. 25, 26 (in the centre), Mummies from Sakkara (3rd cent. B. C.); 34-37. Four Assyrian reliefs from Nineveh; 28-30. Three lions of syenite; 31. Head of Antinous (Roman period); 32, 33. Tombstones from Palmyra; etc. — III. Room of the Archaic Sculptures. In the centre: '51. Base of a candelabrum, with reliefs referring to the theft of the Delphic tripod by Hercules; 50. Torso of Athena Promache (so-called 'Dresden Palladium'). By the left window, Torso of the Ephesian Diana. In front of the second window, 67. Bronze cinerary urn from Capua. In the cabinets, Greek and Etruscan vases, terracottas, and bronzes. — IV. Room of Phidias. By the entrance-wall, 131, 132. Replicas of the Athena Lemnia of Phidias; between these, 133. Milesian votive relief. In the cabinets, early Greek vases and terracottas. — V. Room of Polykleitos. 150. Zeus (Phidian school); 152. Head of a Diadumenos (after Polykleitos); 156, 154, 155. Statues of athletes. By the exit-wall, 158, 159. Statues of victorious boys (after Polykleitos). In the cabinets, later Greek vases. — VI. Room of Praxiteles. In the centre: 217. Son of Niobe; 204. Artemis; 201-203. Satyrs pouring wine (after Praxiteles). By the first window, Reliefs; in Cabinet N (to the right), Greek terracottas; 200. Statuette of Plutus (after Cephisodotus); 216. Head of Niobe. By the second window: Amazon, from Samamis; *209. Head of a girl, from Cyzicus; 210. Head of a girl, from Gisch. Terracottas from Asia Minor. — VII. Hellenistic Room. By the entrance wall, Aphrodite with Cupid and Psyche; in the centre, 314. Fragment of a wounded Gaul; 309, 310. Satyr and hermaphrodite. In the cabinets, vases and terracotta reliefs from Lower Italy. — VIII. Room of the Coloured Marbles. Specimens of marble; Etruscan bronze mirrors; Italian terracottas. — IX. Room of the Mosaics. In the centre, 371. Mosaic pavement with Bacchus and masks (from Civitã Vecchia). At the sides of the mosaic, each between Etruscan cinerary urns, 372. Aphrodite, 373. Serapis, two bronze statuettes from Alexandria. In front of the Aphrodite, 432. Glass case with gold ornaments from Bolsena. At the corner, 375. Statuette of Esculapius; by the third window, glass-case with Roman gems; to the left of the staircase, Torso of Cupid, found near Rome in 1875. — X. Room of the Four Combatants. In the centre, 450-453. Victorious pugilists. By the entrance-wall: 460. Antinous as Bacchus; 458. Cupid playing with a lion; sarcophagi; Roman terracotta lamps; statues of Aphrodite. Exit-wall: 454. So-called 'Dresden Venus'; 455. So-called mourning Ariadne. — We now traverse the Vestibule (XI; p. 286) and enter the XII. Room of the Herculean Women, so called from the three draped *Statues in the centre (*500, 501, 502), found in almost perfect preservation at Herculaneum in 1715. To the right, 503. Girl playing with astragali. Roman portrait busts. By the exit-wall, Tomb-relief of a butcher. — Rooms XIII and XIV contain Modern Sculptures of various kinds.

The FIRST FLOOR and the BASEMENT are devoted to the admirable *Collection of Casts of ancient, mediæval, Renaissance, and modern works. The arrangement is chronological, the modern works being placed in the basement, which is reached by a staircase to the right of the main entrance. The covered court is occupied by the Rietchel Museum, a collection of casts and models of the works of that master (p. 286). Explanatory labels are attached to all the exhibits.

Below the Belvedere, at the corner of the terrace next to the quay on the river, is the Maurice Monument, originally erected in 1553 and removed to this site in 1896. It commemorates the Elector Maurice of Saxony, who fell in a battle with the Margrave of Brandenburg at Sievershausen in 1553 (comp. p. 305), after having resigned his dignity to his brother Augustus, as the relief indicates. — To the E. of the Brühl Terrace, on the other side of a depression which descends to the Elbe, is the Synagogue (Pl. F, G, 4), a Romanesque edifice erected by Semper in 1840.

In the Pillnitzer-Str., which begins near this point, stand the Law Courts (Pl. G, 4), with sculptures, and the Church of St. John, a Gothic edifice with rich plastic ornamentation (1878). Farther on in the same street (No. 68) is the Schilling Museum (Pl. H 5; adm., p. 284), with models of the works of that master (Niederwald Monument, Schiller Monument at Vienna, etc.). In the Striesener Platz is a tasteful fountain.

The Roman Catholic Court Church (Pl. E, 4), opposite the old bridge, erected in the Baroque style in 1738-54 from designs by Chiaveri, and adorned with 78 statues of saints on the parapets and at the entrances, by Mattielli, contains an altar-piece by Raphael Mengs, representing the Ascension, formerly much overrated. The tower is 280 ft. high. Beneath the sacristy are the royal burial-vaults. *Church-music on Sun. and festivals at 11 a.m. A covered passage connects this church with the first floor of the palace.

The Royal Palace (Pl. E, 4) was founded in 1534, and frequently enlarged, notably by Augustus the Strong after a conflagration in 1701. Since 1890 it has been undergoing extensive alterations under the direction of Fröhlich. The lateral façade in the Theater-Platz has been restored in the style of the 17th century. The Renaissance Georgenthor (1534-37), formerly used as a passage to the Schloss-Strasse, has been removed during the present widening of the thoroughfare. Above the 'Grüne Thor', in the façade towards the Court Church, rises the loftiest tower in Dresden (331 ft.). The Green Gate leads into the Great Court, with interesting staircase towers at the four corners, and a gallery over the gate, dating from 1549-51. This court is also entered by a gateway in the Schloss-Strasse. In the S.W. corner is the Green Vault (see below).

The *Interior of the palace (admission limited during the building operations) is embellished with beautiful frescoes by Bendemann (1845). In the BALL ROOM are scenes from Greek mythology: procession of Bacchus and allegorical figures of poetry, music, dancing, architecture, sculpture, and painting; Marriage of Alexander and Roxana, Nuptials of Thetis, Apollo in the chariot drawn by swans, the three Greek tribes, and Homer. — In the THRONES ROOM, or Banquet Hall, the Four Estates are represented in scenes from the history of Emp. Henry I., who was of Saxon descent (d. 936): Battle of Merseburg (knights), Conversion of the Danish king (ecclesiastics), Foundation of cities (burghers), and Solicitude for the rural population (peasantry). On the frieze, the Occupations and Labours of Life. At the other end of the hall: Lawgivers, ranged on each side of Saxonia: on the left Moses, David, Solomon, Zoroaster, Solon, Alexander, Numa; on the right Constantine, Gregory the Great, Charlemagne, the emperors Henry I., Otto I., Conrad II., Frederick Barbarossa, Rudolph I., and Maximilian I. Above: Justice, Wisdom, Bravery, Moderation. — The PALACE CHAPEL contains a number of good pictures by Guido Reni, Annibale Carracci, Raphael Mengs, and others.

The *Green Vault (Grünes Gewölbe; entrance, see above; admission, see p. 283), on the groundfloor of the palace, contains one of the most valuable existing collections of curiosities, jewels, trinkets, and small works of art, dating chiefly from the late-Renaissance and rococo eras, but also including numerous fine examples of an earlier period. The German goldsmith's work of the 16th and 17th cent., the enamels of Limoges, and the arts of ivory-carving and crystal-cutting are particularly well represented. Catalogue 50 pf. Director, Dr. Julius Erbstein.

I. ROOM. Bronzes. To the right of the entrance: 4. Copy of the Farnese Bull, Adr. de Vries (d. 1627); 1. Crucifix, Giov. da Bologna; 3. Dog scratching itself, P. Vischer (?). Opposite, Models of equestrian statues of Augustus the Strong (87) and Louis XIV. (87); the former, by Weinhold (d. 1733), being the original model of the monument in the Neustadt market-place (p. 307). Between these, 24. Selene and Endymion, Corn. von Cleve (d. 1732). The tortoise-shell pedestals inlaid with brass are the work of Charles André Boulle or Buhl, the court cabinet-maker of Louis XIV. (1642-1732), who has bequeathed his name to this kind of work. — II. ROOM. Ivory. To the right, 394. Hunting goblet. To the left, 107. Frigate in full sail, Jak. Zeller (1820); 51, 52. Leaves of triptychs (under glass); to the left, above, *40. Shepherd and musician. By the exit-wall: on a glass-case, containing toilette cabinets, 131. Fall of the angels, in 142 figures carved out of a single mass of ivory about 1 foot in height; on the next case, 274. Crucifix with the Madonna (18th cent.). — III. ROOM. Magnificent porcelain chimney-piece by Neuber, 1782. Limoges enamels, shell-work, amber, and mother-of-pearl. Goblets and other vessels made of ostrich-eggs and shells. Wall E, 228, 229. Goblets; over Table I, by the right wall, 152. Ship; at the sides, 185, 189. Nautilus; over Table V, 108. Pelican; to the left, 144. Swan. Florentine table with pietra dura work. — IV. ROOM, the 'Green Vault', properly so called, owing to the colour of its walls: Vessels of Gold, Silver, and Crystal. To the left, 145. Work-box, presented by the Electress of Brandenburg to the Elector Christian I. of Saxony (1690); adjoining, to the right, *184. Nuremberg beaker in the shape of a maiden; by the first window, to the left, 34. Royal font, by Daniel Kollerthaler (1615); in the centre, Goblet presented to Luther by the Elector John Frederick (1599); in front of it, 50. Bible of Gustavus Adolphus; to the left, 42. Sacrament chalice, and 41. Goblet of the Archbp. Joh. Gebhard of Cologne (1658-62). In the glass-case by the first window on the right, 225, 226. Two Arabian glasses; above, 57. Ewer, by D. Kellerthaler (1629). By the second window to the left, 106. Private altar, by Hans Kellerthaler (1607); to the right, 110. Wall-mirror of the Electress Sophia (1592). Wall D. 12, 8, 296, 297, 186. Goblets. Exit-wall, *115. Jewel-casket by Jammitzer (1608-85), the greatest of the earlier goldsmiths. — V. Room. Vessels in Stone and Crystal: various objects in chalcedony, agate, lapislazuli, oriental jasper, and onyx; cups with cameos. To the left, 1. Large antique onyx cameo with portrait of Augustus. Between the first two windows, 152. Mary Magdalen, by Dinglinger (1712, the Benvenuto Cellini of Saxony), the largest known enamel upon copper. By the third window, to the right, 12. Onyx vase. 140. Clock ('perpetuum mobile') representing the Tower of Babel, by Schlottheim of Augsburg (1802). To the right of the fifth window, Objects in rock-crystal: *188. The Nesen Luther cup; *306. Crystal vase. *171. Mirror with frame in the style of Benvenuto Cellini; *178. Crucifix; Saxon and Chinese vases in serpentine; vases of nephrite or jade. — VI. CORNER ROOM, adorned in the Baroque style: Fancy Articles and Trinkets of gold, precious stones, and pearls (from the middle of the 17th to the beginning of the 18th cent.). — VII. Room. Articles in Wood, Dough, Wax, Cherry-stones, etc., and the Polish regalia. In the middle of the room is a glass-case containing specimens from the royal cabinet of coins. — VIII. Room, with handsome mural decorations. This room contains Jewels, including the Saxon crown jewels and ornaments. In the 1st wall-cabinet are the jewels: green diamond, 48½ carats in weight, set in a hat-clasp; shoulder-knot, with a brilliant, 59 carats in weight; valuable chains of different orders, clasps, buckles, studs; ladies' trinkets, including a bow with 662 diamonds; rings (in the 3rd division of the 1st case), including two of Luther and one of Melancthon; weapons arranged according to the precious stones with which they are decorated. 1st window, to the left, 377. Diana bathing, to the right, 203. Golden tea-service. 2nd window, to the left, 204. Court of the Grand Mogul Aurangzebe at Delhi, with 132 movable figures. Baroque enamel masterpieces of Dinglinger, including 199 (to the right), Onyx-plaque, 7 inches high, 4 inches broad, the largest known. In the centre, 378-80. Three fine silver-gilt groups, representing the outburst, the climax, and the end of human happiness. By the exit-wall, to the right, 282. Siren jewel (dating from the Renaissance).

The Cabinet of Coins, entered by a door to the left in the passage, was begun by George II. (d. 1680) and considerably extended under Frederick Augustus (d. 1827) and again in 1871. It is particularly rich in mediæval and Saxon coins and medals. Admission, see p. 283.

The Silberkammer, containing the king's plate, is also on the ground-floor of the palace (adm., see p. 284).

The outside of the old 'Stallgebäude' in the Augustus-Str., adjoining the palace on the E., was embellished by Walther in 1874 with a cavalcade of the Saxon princes of Wettin (since 1089) in 'sgraffito'. Museum Johanneum, see p. 304. — Opposite is the former Brühl Palais, the largest private mansion of the 18th cent. in Dresden. It is about to be considerably altered, the central portion being destined to form part of the new building for the Saxon Diet.

In the THEATRE-PLATZ with its promenades, extending to the N.W. of the Palace, are situated the Theatre (p. 290), the Court Church (p. 287), the Hauptwache, or Guard House (Pl. E, 4), erected from designs by Schinkel in 1831, with a vestibule borne by six Ionic columns, and the Museum (see p. 290). The centre of the square is occupied by the fine Equestrian Statue of King John (1854-73), by Schilling, unveiled in 1889. The pedestal is adorned with a frieze representing agriculture, mining, art, etc.; the open book is an allusion to the king's translation of Dante.

The Hof-Theater* (Pl. E, 4), a magnificent Renaissance structure, opened in 1878, was built by Manfred Semper after designs by his father Gottfr. Semper on the site of the former theatre, erected in 1837-41, which was burned down in 1869. The front of the building, containing the ante-rooms and auditorium, projects in a semicircular form and faces the Roman Catholic church. The principal entrance is in the 'Exedra', a castellated portico in front of the rotunda, surmounted by a quadriga in bronze by Schilling, representing Dionysus and Ariadne. The recess below the quadriga is decorated with ornamental paintings by Kiesling, including three large medallions of the Graces, Apollo, and Marsyas. The entrance is flanked with statues of Goethe and Schiller, and among the other sculptural decoration are figures of the Muses and of Sophocles, Euripides, Shakespeare, and Molière. The balustrades that crown the façade on both sides of the exedra bear statues, arranged in pairs, emblematical of various conflicts represented in the drama (Jupiter and Prometheus, Creon and Antigone, etc.; at the end, Faust and Mephistopheles, Don Juan and the Statue, Oberon and Titania). The Upper Vestibule* and Upper Foyer* are gorgeously decorated with imitation-marble and paintings. The interior can contain 2000 spectators; the dull green ground of the decorations and the dark drop-scene by Keller render the effect almost sombre. The ceiling-paintings, by Marshall, are too far from the eye to be thoroughly effective.

Between the theatre and the museum rises the bronze Statue of Weber, the composer (d. 1826; Pl. E, 4), by Rietschel (1860).

The Museum* (Pl. E, 4), a handsome edifice in the Renaissance style, designed by Gottfr. Semper, begun in 1847 and completed in 1854, is considered one of the finest examples of modern architecture. The sculptures on the exterior by Rietschel and Hähnel indicate the object of the building (mythical, religious, and historical subjects; those on the N. side from the ancient world, those on the S. from the age of Christianity and romance). — In niches on the right and left sides of the principal portal towards the court are statues of Raphael and Michael Angelo, by Hähnel. The cornice is adorned with statues of Giotto, Holbein, Dürer, and Goethe by Rietschel, Dante and Cornelius by Hähnel, and others.

The Museum forms the N.E. wing of the Zwinger* (Pl. D, E, 4), a building erected by Pöppelmann, the architect of Augustus II., in 1711-22, but left unfinished for more than a century. It consists of seven pavilions, connected by a gallery of one story, enclosing an oblong court 128 yds. long and 117 yds. wide. According to the still existing plans of Pöppelmann, the gardens, enclosed by similar galleries, were to have been extended, across the present Theater-Platz, to the Elbe. In some of its features the style of the Zwinger is Rococo, but in the main it is a Baroque edifice, and one of the most pleasing examples of that style. The original beautiful marble decorations have been preserved in the Mathematical Saloon (p. 303) and in the N.W. pavilion (no admission); the former is also adorned with paintings by Louis de Silvestre (1717-23).

In the centre of the Zwinger-Hof is a bronze Monument of Frederick Augustus I. (d. 1827), by Rietschel, with allegorical figures. — Best survey of the building from the Zwinger Wall, at the N. angle, reached by steps near Weber's statue (p. 290). In the gardens of the Zwinger is a fountain, which plays on Sun. and Wed., 12-1.

The Museum and the Zwinger contain the most important of the Dresden collections. In the Museum are the picture-gallery, engravings, and drawings. In the Zwinger are some rooms of the picture-gallery, the zoological, ethnographical, and mineralogical museums, and the collection of mathematical and physical instruments.

The *Picture Gallery occupies the first and second floors of the Museum (adm., see p. 283). The entrance is in the archway, on the right when approached from the theatre. Director, Prof. Woermann. Catalogue, in English, French, or German, 4, small edition 1½ M.

The Dresden picture-gallery, which now ranks with the Louvre, Pitti, and Uffizi as one of the finest collections in the world, is essentially the creation of Augustus III. (1733-63), who added to the previously existing royal collection by the purchase of part of the Modena gallery in 1746. The Sistine Madonna from Piacenza (1753), the Madonna of Bagnacavallo, from Bologna (1755), numerous Dutch and Flemish cabinet-pieces, etc., were also added about this period, so that at the time of the death of Augustus III. it had well-nigh attained to its present high rank.

In accordance with the taste prevalent at the time of its foundation, the gallery is somewhat sparingly provided with early works. This is notably the case with the ITALIAN SCHOOLS of the 14th and 15th centuries, where the following works are alone remarkable: a Holy Family by Mantegna (No. 51), St. Sebastian by Antonello da Messina (No. 52), a large Holy Family by Piero di Cosimo (No. 20), a characteristic example of Lorenzo di Credi (No. 13), several works by Cima, and three small pictures by Jacopo de' Barbari or Jacob Walch (Nos. 57-59), who is interesting as a German member of the Venetian school and also on account of his influence on Dürer.

The great masters of the GOLDEN PERIOD of Italian art are, on the other hand, admirably represented. The radiant magnificence of Raphael's Sistine Madonna, in which the most tender beauty is coupled with the charm of the mysterious vision, will forcibly strike every susceptible beholder, and the longer he gazes, the more enthusiastic will be his delight. Raphael's Florentine contemporaries are represented by Andrea del Sarto's large and gaily-coloured 'Sacrifice of Abraham' (No. 77) and by two companion-pieces of rare merit by Franciabigio and Ubertini (Nos. 75, 80). The most noteworthy of the later Florentine works is the portrait of the Duchess Eleanor by Bronzino (No. 82).

The only important work among the MILANESE paintings is the Daughter of Herodias (No. 201a), of the School of Leonardo da Vinci. — The PARMESAN SCHOOL, on the contrary, in the works of its great master Correggio, is even more richly illustrated here than at Parma itself. The Madonna enthroned (No. 150) is of the master's earlier period, and reveals in its strict composition and luminous colouring the influence of the earlier Ferrarese school. In the Madonna with St. Sebastian (No. 151) and his Holy Night (No. 152; unfortunately retouched), the master of chiaroscuro is seen at his best, while the Madonna and St. George (No. 153) charms by the beauty of its flower-like tinting. The famous little picture of the Magdalen (No. 154) must, however, be pronounced nothing more than a masterly copy, while the so-called Physician of Correggio (No. 155) is probably by a Ferrarese artist. — The SCHOOL OF FERRARA is represented by numerous works of Dosso Dossi, Benvenuto Garofalo (Nos. 128, 134), and others.

The pictures by the great VENETIAN MASTERS rank among the principal treasures of the gallery. Giorgione is represented by the fine Sleeping Venus (No. 186), from which the Cupid was obliterated by an early attempt at restoration. Titian is studied here to great advantage. The Tribute Money (No. 169), a grand work of his early period, is one of the most nobly-conceived and admirably-executed paintings ever produced. The portrait of his daughter Lavinia (the 'Lady with the fan', No. 171) and that of an unknown personage, formerly supposed to be Aretino (No. 172), are good examples of his later style. Palma Vecchio's Venus and the Three Graces (Nos. 190, 189) are among the finest works of this masterly delineator of ripe Venetian beauty. No other gallery possesses so extensive a collection of the gorgeous masterpieces of Paolo Veronese (Nos. 224-227, 230, 236). The close of the great epoch of Venetian art is illustrated by numerous good works by Tintoretto and the different members of the Bassano family, while the landscapes of Canale and his nephew Bellotto still reflect a favourable light on Venice at a time when Italian art generally had fallen into sad decadence (18th cent.). — The school of the ACADEMICIANS and mannerists is represented only too fully for the general character of the collection. The NATURALISTS are represented by the Card-sharper of Caravaggio (No. 408) and by a series of good works by Ribera, among which the Magdalen (No. 683) boasts a charm very unusual in this master.

The only works of the SPANISH SCHOOL that demand notice are the fine portrait of an elderly man by Velasquez (No. 697), and the charming genre-like Madonna and Child of Murillo (No. 705), deservedly a popular favourite. — The FRENCH SCHOOL of the 17th and 18th cent. is represented by a few good works of its leading masters, including two fine landscapes by Claude Lorrain (Nos. 730, 731), of magical atmospheric effect, two large pastoral scenes by Watteau (Nos. 781, 782), examples of Nicolas Poussin and Gaspard Dughet, and numerous characteristic portraits.

NETHERLANDISH SCHOOLS. The masters of the 15th cent. are almost entirely unrepresented, but the gallery possesses one priceless gem of this period in the small altar-piece of Jan van Eyck (No. 799). The masters of the 16th cent. are also represented either unfavourably or not at all. The culmination of art in the Netherlands during the 17th cent. is, on the other hand, illustrated by numerous attractive works. Peter Paul Rubens, the great master of the FLEMISH SCHOOL, may be studied here to great advantage. Some of the most popular of the works catalogued under his name, such as the Portraits of his Sons (No. 975), the Daughter of Herodias (No. 986), and the Garden of Love (No. 976), are, indeed, merely admirable school-pieces, but there is no lack of authentic productions from his own hand. Thus the gallery possesses several paintings of his Italian period, including a fine St. Jerome (No. 955). The Boar Hunt (No. 962), a powerful, broadly-handled work, and a series of admirable portraits which seem to be connected with each other belong to his early Netherlandish period, while his latest style is illustrated in the brilliant Bathsheba and in the large 'Quos Ego' (No. 966), an improvisation of imposing dramatic effect, produced for the entry of the Infant Ferdinand into Antwerp in 1635. Rubens's famous pupil, Anthony van Dyck, is represented by a series of admirable portraits, chiefly of his later English period, and by a St. Jerome (No. 1024), which surpasses, at least in picturesque treatment, that of his master. The well-known Danaë (No. 1039), however, is certainly by another hand, and the Children of Charles I. (No. 1033) is a school-replica. Jacob Jordaens, the most Flemish of all Flemish painters, can be studied here better than in any other collection. Snyders contributes numerous pieces of still-life. David Teniers the Elder and his more famous son are represented by several genuine though not striking works, which, however, yield in interest to the sketchy but powerful little works of A. Brouwer. The gallery also boasts of numerous works by the contemporary landscape-painters Paul Brill, Momper, Van Uden, and Jan Brueghel, with his followers Pieter Gysels and Pieter Bout.

DUTCH SCHOOL. The early masters are represented by a few moderate works only. Frans Hals, one of the great leaders of the school, also contributes only two or three insignificant portraits, but those by Ravesteijn and Mierevelt are more important. Honthorst, too, is represented, but not so well as the cognate master Caesar van Everdingen (No. 1834). The landscapes of Van Goyen, Vlieger, and Mulier (Molyn) also belong to this period. — Rembrandt van Rijn, the great master of chiaroscuro, is represented by several of his finest creations, such as the portrait of his wife Saskia of 1641 (No.

1562), the portrait of himself with his wife on his knee (No. 1559; an earlier work), Samson's Riddle (No. 1560), Manoah's Sacrifice (No. 1563), and the admirable portrait of an old man, dating from 1654 (No. 1567). Rembrandt's school is nowhere better illustrated. His earliest scholar G. Dou contributes seventeen pictures of the most varied styles and dates, and Vermeer or Van der Meer of Delft appears in a group of lifesize half-figures of rare beauty of colouring (No. 1335) and in the charming Love-letter (No. 1336). Scarcely a single one of the masters of low-life pieces is absent: the most prominent is Adriaen van Ostade, whose Studio and Village Tavern (Nos. 1397, 1396) are unsurpassed of their kind. The conversation pieces of Terburg and Gabriel Metsu are numerous and good, while Frans van Mieris the Elder contributes no fewer than fourteen works, several of which rank among his masterpieces. — Jacob van Ruysdael, one of the greatest of Dutch landscape-painters, is particularly well and fully represented. The Hunt, the Monastery, and the Jewish Cemetery (Nos. 1492, 1494, 1502) are among the most famous works in the whole gallery, but his delicate management of light and space are perhaps seen to still greater advantage in the less pretentious Château Bentheim, the Heath, and the Forest Path (Nos. 1496, 1503, 1500). Allart van Everdingen's Norwegian Mountain-lake (No. 1835) is almost as poetical as the finest of Ruysdael's works, and surpasses them in vigour of colouring. Jan Both, Cuyp, and Van der Neer, the great renderers of sunny atmosphere, are neither so happily nor so numerously illustrated, but their followers H. Saftleven, Griffier, and J. Moucheron are represented to excess. — The Dutch animal-painters may also be well studied at Dresden. Paul Potter contributes two works (Nos. 1629, 1630), Adriaen van de Velde several masterpieces, and Berchem thirteen works, one of which (No. 1478) is a little gem. The gallery also contains nearly seventy examples of Philip Wouverman, the masterly delineator of cavaliers and battles, many of which are of the highest excellence. — The masters of still-life and painters of poultry are almost all represented, as are also the somewhat affected and over-refined masters of the beginning of the 18th cent., such as the Van der Werffs and W. Mieris, who inaugurate the decline of the Dutch school into insipidity and conventionalism.

The GERMAN SCHOOL is not so well illustrated in the Dresden Gallery as those of Italy and the Netherlands. The famous Madonna of Burgomaster Meyer (No. 1892), long ascribed to Holbein, has been shown by modern criticism to be only an admirable Netherlandish copy of the original at Darmstadt. On the other hand Holbein's Portrait of the Sieur de Morette (No. 1890) is unquestionably genuine, and of such artistic finish, brilliant colour, and faultless modelling, that it long passed as a masterpiece of Leonardo da Vinci. The fine double portrait of Sir Thomas and John Godsalue (No. 1889) also dates from Holbein's English period.

Dürer's priceless Crucifixion (No. 1870), a small picture, is purely German in conception, but shows the beneficial influence of the Venetian school in its execution. The winged altar-piece (No. 1869) shows Dürer under the spell of Mantegna, while the portrait of Bernhard van Orley (No. 1871) was painted in 1521 during his tour in the Netherlands. The examples of the two Cranachs are numerous, but indifferent in quality, with the exception of the excellent study for a portrait of the Margrave George of Brandenburg (No. 1916) by the elder Cranach. The Lower Rhenish School is represented by two fine altar-pieces (Nos. 1962, 1963) by the Master of the Death of the Virgin, who, although a native of the Netherlands, was the founder of the school of Cologne. — The masters of the 17th cent. are happily represented by three small masterpieces of Adam Elsheimer (Nos. 1976-78) and a vigorous family-portrait by Knüpfer. — The portraits in chalk and Belotto's views of Dresden on the groundfloor possess little artistic merit, but afford an instructive insight into the manners of last century.

The ENTRANCE HALL (containing the cloak-room and the ticket office) is adorned with a frieze of stucco, illustrative of the history of painting: on the right that of Italy by Knauer, on the left that of Germany and the Netherlands by Schilling. Opposite are rooms 52-69, included in the gallery in 1891, with 18th Cent. Works and Pastels (comp. p. 302). In a straight direction is the Collection of Drawings and Engravings (p. 302); to the right are rooms 89-43 with the Secondary Italian Masters (p. 302) and the Miniatures (p. 302).

Ascending the staircase to the First Floor (Plan, see above), we traverse an ANTI-ROOM hung with large family-portraits (where tickets are given up), a corridor with a number of Netherlands masters of the 17th and 18th cent. (847a. A. Mor, Portrait; 1211. Fyt, Boy and dog), the Cupola Saloon G, and the adjacent rooms F-B (containing the Large Italian Paintings), and proceed, with unimpaired energy, to inspect and admire the Sistine Madonna in Room A.

Room A. *83. Raphael, Madonna di San Sisto, an altar-piece, 8 ft. high and 6 ft. wide (so called from the church of the Benedictines at Piacenza for whom the picture was painted), the Virgin and Child in clouds, with St. Sixtus on the right, St. Barbara on the left, and two cherubs beneath, indisputably a work of the great master's own hand throughout, painted probably about 1515 (purchased in 1753 for 9000*l.*). — The composition most resembles that of the Madonna di Foligno. A curtain has just been drawn back and the Virgin issues as it were from the depth of Heaven, awe-inspiring, solemn, and serene, her large eyes embracing the world in their gaze. The idea of the sudden revelation of a hitherto concealed mystery could not be more effectively expressed. The attention is usually concentrated upon the Madonna and the two cherubs below, pictures of naive innocence. The saints, however, should not be overlooked. Contrasted in age and sex, expression and movement, they supplement each other with admirable effect. Both must be thought of in connection with the whole community of Christians; the reverent and pious Sixtus commends himself to the Virgin's mercy, the beaming face of St. Barbara represents the joyful enthusiasm of the redeemed ('Raffaël und Michelangelo,' by Prof. Anton Springer). — In the same room is a marble bust of Raphael, by Hähnel.

Room B. 1st Wall: Carlo Dolci, 508. Daughter of Herodias with the head of John the Baptist, 509. St. Cecilia; 71. Rubens (?), Copy of Michael Angelo's Leda and the swan. — 2nd Wall: 181. Parmegianino, Madonna with the rose; *109. Giusto Romano, Holy Family ('Madonna della Scodella').

Room C. 3rd Wall: 528. Alessandro Turchi, David with the head of Goliath. — We now return through Rooms C and B to —

Room D. 1st Wall: Correggio, 150. Madonna enthroned, with four saints, a youthful masterpiece, showing the influence of the Ferrara school (1514-15); *151. Madonna surrounded by angels, with 88. Sebastian, Geminian, and Rochus, much damaged. *52. Antonello da Messina, St. Sebastian, with a view of a Venetian canal in the distance, a work of great charm in spite of its damaged condition; 102. Seb. del Piombo, Bearing of the Cross (half-length); 61. Cima da Conegliano, Christ blessing. Correggio, 152. Adoration of the Shepherds, the far-famed 'La Notte', his great masterpiece of chiaroscuro; *153. Madonna enthroned, with 88. George, Peter Martyr, John the Baptist, and Geminian, a work of his later period, distinguished by breadth of handling and by rich and luminous colouring. — 2nd Wall: 118. Bagmacavallo, Madonna with four saints; *270. Tintoretto, Man and youth. — 3rd Wall: 229. Paolo Veronese, Finding of Moses, distinguished from the other masterpieces of Veronese in the gallery by its perfect preservation. *77. Andrea del Sarto, Abraham's sacrifice; 184. Garofalo, Madonna and saints (1580); *20. Piero di Cosimo, Holy Family; 128. Dosso Dossi, The Fathers of the Church; *48. Franc. Francia, Baptism of Christ (1509); *228. P. Veronese, Christ and the Centurion of Capernaum. — 4th Wall: 204. Paris Bordone, Diana; 160. Parmegianino, Madonna and saints.

Room E. 1st Wall: Paolo Veronese, 226. The Wedding at Cana; 225. Adoration of the Magi, two priceless companion-pieces from the gallery of Modena. — 2nd Wall: *168. Titian, Madonna with four saints, an early work; 268. Tintoretto, Fall of the angels. Titian, *170. Portrait of his daughter Lavinia, *172. Portrait of a Venetian, formerly supposed to be Aretino, dated 1561, 171. Portrait of his daughter Lavinia at a later period. *185. Giorgione, Venus. — 3rd Wall: *224. Paolo Veronese, Faith, Hope, and Charity introduce the Cuccina family to the enthroned Madonna; 271. Tintoretto, Parnassus; *227. P. Veronese, Bearing of the Cross; *190. Palma Vecchio, Venus resting in a hilly landscape; *264. Tintoretto, The Woman taken in adultery. — 4th Wall: *236. Paolo Veronese, Portrait of Daniele Barbaro; *192. Palma Vecchio, Jacob and Rachel. — From Room E a side-door leads to Rooms 44-48, containing French paintings.

Room F. 1st Wall: *230. Veronese, The Good Samaritan, with a charming landscape; *408. Caravaggio, The card-sharper, a vigorous and masterly work; 411. School of Caravaggio, Guard-room. — 2nd Wall: *349. Lanfranco, Peter's repentance; *351. Domenichino, Caritas; 324. Guido Reni, Venus reclining. — 3rd Wall: 412. School of Caravaggio, The fortune-teller; Ann. Carracci, *304. Madonna and saints, painted under Correggio's influence (1588), 305. St. Rochus giving alms. — 4th Wall: *447. Fr. Trevisani, Rest on the Flight into Egypt, in a genre-like style.

Returning to Room E, we next enter CABINETS 1-5, containing the Smaller Italian Pictures.

1st CABINET. Wall a: 36, 37. Luca Signorelli, Painted pilasters; *18. Lorenzo di Credi, Madonna, an early work; *49. Franc. Francia, Adoration of the Magi; 123. Massolino, Christ before Pilate. *68. Cima da Conegliano, Presentation of the Virgin, of exquisite colouring and delicate conception, the model of Titian's celebrated picture in the Academy of Venice. 60. Giac. Francia, Madonna. — Wall b: Ercole Roberti, *45. Christ led away to be crucified, *46. Christ taken captive on the Mt. of Olives, two spirited compositions in the style of Mantegna. 47. Copy of Ercole Roberti Children of Israel gathering manna; *43. Fr. Cossa, Annunciation; 19. S. Botticelli, Life of St. Zenobius; 44. School of Fr. Cossa, Nativity. — Wall c: 41. Pintoricchio, Portrait; *194a. Lorenzo Lotto, Madonna and Child with St. John; *61. Mantegna, Holy Family; no number, Cosimo Tura*, St. Sebastian, an admirable example of the Ferrarese school (acquired in 1866).

2nd CABINET. Wall a: *188. Palma Vecchio, Madonna and Child, with John the Baptist and St. Catharine, an early work. 'There is so much loveliness in the serene rapture of St. Catharine, such sprightliness in the Child, nestling at its mother's throat, so much tender inquiry in the Virgin's eye, and a meaning so earnest in the glance of the Baptist, that we dwell with pleasurable sensation on each figure of the group and wonder at the harmony which it creates' (C. & G.). — 60. Previtali, Madonna; *191. Palma Vecchio, Holy Family with John the Baptist and St. Catharine. — Wall c: *189. Palma Vecchio, The 'Graces', an early work. 'These three young women are grouped with pleasing variety and artifice in front of a very pretty landscape. There is hardly a single peculiarity in the master remaining unrepresented; his melting shapes, his fair, almost waxen, complexions, his fine chiselled features, small hands, brocades and slashes, his draperies without depth, flow, or winding contour' (C. & G.). — *189. Titian, The tribute-money, painted about 1514. 'Simple as the subject is, the thought which it embodies is very subtle . . . The contrast is sublime between the majestic calm and elevation, and what Quandt calls the 'God-like beauty' of Christ, and the low cunning and coarse air of the Pharisee . . . The form of Christ was never conceived by any of the Venetians of such ideal beauty as this. Nor has Titian ever done better . . . Nothing can exceed the brightness and sheen or the transparent delicacy of the colours . . . The most perfect easel-picture of which Venice ever witnessed the production, this is also the most polished work of Titian' (C. & G.).

5th CABINET. Late-Italian pictures, by Dom. Feti, etc. 357-360. Guerctino, The four Evangelists.

The next CABINET contains works of the French School.

6th CABINET. Wall a: *731. Claude Lorrain, Coast-scene with Acis and Galatea (dated 1657). — Wall b: 719. Nic. Poussin, The realm of Flora; *754. Millet, Roman Campagna, a characteristic, richly coloured masterpiece. — Wall c: *780. Claude Lorrain, Landscape, with the flight of the Holy Family, a masterpiece of atmospheric effect, in perfect preservation (companion-piece to No. 731); 717. Nic. Poussin, Adoration of the Magi.

CABINETS 7-12 are devoted to the Smaller Works of the Netherlandish and German Schools.

8TH CABINET. Wall a: 1835. Allart van Everdingen, Norwegian mountain-lake, with stag-hunt, a masterpiece; *1836. Jan van Huysum, Flowers; 1462. Ph. Wouwerman, Soldiers attacked while crossing a ford. — Wall b: *1414. *Ph. The Collection of Engravings, which is also on the ground-floor of the New Museum (entrance, see p. 295; adm., see p. 283), founded by Augustus II. and afterwards gradually extended, now comprises 400,000 plates, from the earliest masters (15th cent.) down to the present day. The show-cases (beginning to the right, in Room A) contain a number of the most interesting plates, arranged so as to illustrate the development of the art. Room A contains the engravings, Rooms B and C the drawings, Room D the photographs and an exhibition (changed quarterly) of recently acquired drawings and engravings. The others are kept in portfolios, which are shown on application by filling up one of the printed forms in Room A. There is a separate room for students.

The Zoological and Ethnographical Museum (entr. on the S.W. side of the Zwinger, opposite the Sophienkirche; adm., see p. 283; catalogue 50 pf.) contains good collections of stuffed birds, shells, and (accessible only on application) of eggs and insects. The Japanese and Polynesian articles in the ethnological section (on the upper floor) are also interesting. — The Mineralogical and Pre-historic Museum (entr. in the W. passage, opposite the Museum; cat. 30 pf.; adm., see p. 283) contains some interesting fossils from Eichstädt. — In the N.W. angle of the Zwinger is the Mathematical and Physical Saloon (comp. p. 291), which is entered from the Zwinger Wall (adm., see p. 283).

Opposite the Zwinger, towards the E., rises the Prinzen-Palais (Pl. E, 4), erected in 1715, now the residence of Prince Frederick Augustus. The Sophienkirche (Pl. E, 4), or Protestant court church, dating from the 13th and 14th cent., was handsomely restored in the Gothic style in 1864-68 (interior in 1875). The altar, with greenish columns, was brought from Palestine in 1476, as a fragment of the Temple of Jerusalem. A motett is sung here on Sat. at 2 p.m. — To the E. of the church is St. George's Fountain, with a figure by Hähnel (1887).

In the Post-PLATZ, to the S., stands the Imperial Post Office (Pl. D, 4, 5; p. 282). In front of it is the 'Cholera Fountain', erected in 1842 and restored in 1891. — In the Antons-Platz, behind the new Market, is the Saxon Industrial Museum (Pl. D. E, 5; adm., p. 283). The contents include furniture, bronzes, pottery, etc., chiefly in the style of the German Renaissance; the textile section is the most complete. An Industrial School, a Collection of Models, and a Library are connected with the museum.

From the Post-Platz the Annen-Strasse (Pl. D, 5) leads to the S.W., passing the Ober-Post- und -Telegraphen-Direction, or administrative department of the post-office, to the Annenkirche (Pl. C, D, 5), a church of the 16th cent., restored after a fire in 1760. In front of the church is the Anna Monument (Annenendenkmal), erected in 1869 to the wife (d. 1585) of Augustus I., from a design by Henze. — The Annen-Realgymnasium (Pl. D, 5), in the adjoining Humboldt-Str., has its aula adorned with frescoes by Diethel.

The Wettiner-Strasse (Pl. D, C, 4), with the Wettin Gymnasium, leads to the N.W. from the Post-Platz to the FRIEDRICHSTADT, the quarter containing the Berlin Station (Pl. A, 3), the Central Market, the Winter Harbour, the old Roman Catholic Cemetery (p. 309), and the extensive Town Hospital (Pl. B, 2, 3). Part of the last occupies the old Marcolini Palais, in which Napoleon I. had his quarters at various times in 1813. The garden, formerly one of the finest in Dresden, contains a handsome fountain in sandstone, representing Neptune and Amphitrite, by Mattielli; the water plays in summer on Sun. 11-1 and Thurs. 3-5 p.m.; adm. gratis (entr. from the Wachsbleichgasse). — In the Ostra-Allée, near the Zwinger, is the Hersogin-Garten (Pl. D, 4), containing an orangery in the Renaissance style.

In the NEUMARKT (Pl. E, F, 4) rises the Frauenkirche, or Church of Our Lady, erected in 1726-40, with a lofty dome. The 'Lantern' is 310 ft. in height (fine view). — The Platz in front of the church is embellished with a *LUTHER MONUMENT, by Rietschel, a bronze cast from his original statue for the monument at Worms.

In the N.W. angle of the square is situated the *Museum Johanneum (Pl. E, 4), erected in 1586-89 and altered in 1744-47 and 1872-75, formerly the old Picture Gallery and now containing the Historical Museum (on the first floor) and the Collection of Porcelain (on the second floor). The figure of Cellini on the Augustus-Str. façade is by Behrens (sgraffitos, see p. 289). Adm., see p. 283; the entrance is in the Augustus-Str., through the quaint-looking court.

The *Historical Museum, on the 1st floor, contains weapons, armour, domestic chattels, costumes, and other objects of historical or artistic value. This collection, the most valuable of the kind in Germany, comprises many precious works of the German and Italian Renaissance. The objects are furnished with labels (catalogue 70 pf.). Some of Schnorr's cartoons for his frescoes at Munich from the history of Charlemagne, Frederick Barbarossa, and Rudolph of Hapsburg are also preserved here. — 1. MEDIEVAL SALOON (9-16th cent.). By the window, in the glass-case to the left: 31. Electoral sword of Frederick the Quarrelsome (1425); 37. Gala-sword of Count Eberhard of Württemberg (1474); in the glass-case to the right, 13. Battle-sword of Conrad of Winterstetten, Landvogt of Swabia (12th cent.). — 2. ART SALOON (Kunstkammer; for court furniture) to the right. By the entrance-wall, Glass and goblets (17-18th cent.); right wall, inlaid ebony cabinet, by Hans Schäfferstein (1615); adjoining, Portraits of Duke Henry the Pious (d. 1441) and his wife, by L. Cramach the Elder. By the next wall, two cypress-wood gaming-tables (17th cent.) and artistic clocks. In a glass-case to the left, Draughtsmen and wax-portraits. By the last wall, astronomical clock of 1568. In the middle of the room, 'positive' or choir-organ (1563-84), and jewel-cabinet of the Electress Sophia, by H. Kellerdaler (1565). — 3. TOURNAMENT HALL, to the right. Tournament weapons and equestrian armour of Saxon and other princes. To the right of the entrance, tournament in full armour (16th cent.); by the windows and walls, weapons and suits of armour of the same period. — 4. SALOON OF FOOT-COMBATS. In the centre, Bust of King John, by Schilling. Wall to the left of the entrance: in the centre, Gala armour of Charles Emmanuel of Savoy (d. 1630), manufactured in Italy; to the right and left, two suits in silver, executed in 1590 for Elector Christian I. of Saxony (d. 1591) and his friend Prince Christian of Anhalt (d. 1630). — 5. PARADE SALOON. Nine sumptuous suits of equestrian armour, belonging to Saxon princes. No. 6 (under glass), a suit of Christian II. (d. 1611), purchased at Nuremberg in 1606, is the most magnificent and valuable of the collection. Between Nos. 6 and 9 are three suits in gilded copper. In the cabinets are swords, shields, and helmets of different workmanship, several of them decorated with artistic reliefs. In the first window-case: 562. Electoral sword of Maurice (1548); 561. Luther's sword. In the wall-case to the left of the exit, 772. Consecrated sword presented to Augustus the Strong by Pope Benedict XIII. (1725). Good stained glass in the windows. — 6. PISTOL CHAMBER. Fire-arms of the 16-17th cent., many of them of Saxon princes.

In the first window-case, 66, 67. Pistols of Gustavus Adolphus and of Louis XIV. of France. To the left of the exit is a collection of early breech-loaders and revolvers (1680-1640). — 7. BATTLE SALOON. Armour and weapons which were used in battle by Saxon princes and celebrated generals. 1. Armour of Henry the Pious (d. 1541); several suits of armour of Elector Maurice. In an adjoining glass-case, the blood-stained scarf worn by the latter at the battle of Sievershausen (1653; see p. 287), and the bullet by which he was killed. On the walls are blunderbusses, maces, swords, daggers, cuirasses, etc. In the first window-case: Sword of Thos. Münser, leader of the Anabaptists (made of the blade of a scythe); batons of Tilly and Pappenheim. By the last window: Standards of Pappenheim's cuirassiers. — 8. MODERN SALOON. Modern weapons, from the Thirty Years' War down to the present time. To the right of the entrance, under glass, is the horse-shoe broken with his naked hand by Augustus the Strong in 1711. In the first window-case: 10. Sword and sword-belt of Charles XII. of Sweden; 14. Two swords of Peter the Great. In the centre: Saxon and Polish weapons and standards; French weapons captured in 1870-71; latest types of breech-loaders used in European armies. — 9. TURKISH TENT of the Grand-Vizier Kara Mustapha, captured at the raising of the siege of Vienna in 1683 by the German and Polish army under King John III. Sobiesky. In the centre, under glass: Polish scale-armour with Maltese crosses (ca. 1700); Polish gala shield of the early 17th century. Opposite, Suit of armour of Elector John George III. of Saxony (d. 1691); Polish and Oriental weapons. — 10. SADDLE CHAMBER. Sumptuous caparisons, embroidered trappings, etc., used on festive occasions, chiefly of the reign of Augustus II. (1684-1733). — 11. COSTUME CHAMBER. Court and gala costumes of the 16-18th cent.; mitres of bishops of Meissen (15th cent.); hat of Peter the Great; shoes of Kant, Wieland, and Maria Theresa; the boots Napoleon I. wore at the battle of Dresden, and velvet shoes worn at his coronation.

We now return to Room 2 and pass through Room 12 to the Royal Gallery of Arms (adm., see p. 288; cat. 50 pf.), containing a valuable collection of fire-arms and other weapons, pictures of tournaments, fine antlers etc. — On the walls, portraits of Saxon rulers down to Augustus II.

The *Collection of Porcelain, on the second floor, consists of about 18,000 specimens of Chinese, Japanese, Indian, French, Dresden, and Italian workmanship, and is, perhaps, the finest collection of the kind in existence.

The examination of the Vestibule should be deferred till after the main rooms have been visited. The following description begins in each room to the left of the entrance, dealing first with the specimens on the walls round the room, then passing to the stands in the centre.

ROOM I. Chinese Porcelain of the best period (16-18th cent.). The invention of porcelain in China dates from the 7th cent., but the oldest extant specimens are not earlier than the 14th. The secret of painting under the glaze, i. e. before firing, was not discovered, however, until the 15th century. Among the most noteworthy specimens are: figures of gods (Cases 1, 6); white ware with ornaments; six large dogs of Foh (blue and violet; Case 8); sea-green or Seladon porcelain; crackle-china (the cracks produced by a process of rapid cooling after the first firing); yellow imperial or dragon china, manufactured for the personal use of the Emperor of China, and therefore very rare (17th cent.); turquoise-blue china (very rare); Persian vases and bottles; vases belonging to Augustus the Strong; coral-red porcelain (Cases 12, 15); azure vessels and covered vases, with mosaic patterns (Case 17); dishes with scenes of court-life (Case 19). On the stands in the middle, early Chinese blue and white vases, including the tall 'Dragon Vases', given by Frederick William I. of Prussia to Augustus the Strong in 1717 in exchange for a regiment of dragoons; vases with portraits of court-ladies of the time of Louis XIV.; etc. — CORRIDOR. Porcelain by Böttger. The chemist Böttger (1692-1719) discovered the secret of making porcelain in 1706, at first producing only the red 'Böttger' or 'Jasper Porcelain', but soon afterwards also the white variety. The manufacture was removed from Dresden to Meissen in 1710; so that the English term 'Dresden China' is really a misnomer for what is more accurately called in German 'Meissen China'. After Böttger's death the manufacture was prosperously carried on under the court-painter Herold (d. 1755), assisted by the sculptor Kändler (d. 1775). Specimens of their products may be seen at the end of the corridor in the large group of the Crucifixion and the model for an equestrian statue of Augustus III.

Room II. a. Dresden China, arranged chronologically. Animals; snow-ball vases; nosegay, freely modelled by hand; busts; table-equipage belonging to Augustus the Strong (earliest attempt at painting); vases with hunting and battle scenes; jars of 1728 (marked with the sword); red 'dragon' or 'court-porcelain' (manufactured solely for the court); early figures and groups (Apollo on Helicon, Five Senses, etc.); the seasons, after Schilling's models; large vase dated 1829; figures in biscuit-china (fired without glazing); vases with raised and painted ornamentation ('pâte sur pâte'); small porcelain table; the Neptune Fountain. In Cases 64-87, on the side next the court, is the Spitzner Collection of early Dresden china. — Beyond the Neptune Fountain (see above) is European Porcelain: Cases 68-71. Berlin Porcelain: Bust of Queen Elizabeth of Prussia (1847) in biscuit-china, and large vase of 1837. Sevres Porcelain: large vases and gilded table-service, all of 1808; two large painted vases (1866 and 1870). Russian Porcelain, including the Carcel lamps of 1878. — b. Japanese Porcelain: Cases 72-77 and Stands 80, 81. In the middle of the room two large vases of the best period (17-18th cent.); plants; flowers; animals. — c. Majolica, Faience, Stoneware, and Terracotta. Large vases with lids; Wedgwood ware; jasper-ware with white reliefs on a blue ground.

We now enter the Vestibule, containing Italian majolica (Case 87), German stoneware of the 16-17th cent. (Case 88), and faience figures and vases (Cases 90, 91). In the centre stands the large drinking-table of the Elector Augustus I. (d. 1586). The glass of the 16-17th cent. in Case 92 (to the left of the exit) should be noticed.

Adjoining the Museum Johanneum on the S., in the Jüdenhof, is the handsome gate of the old palace chapel, in the Renaissance style, with sculptural ornamentation and a carved wooden door of 1556. Adjacent, Galerie-Str. 9, is the house of Carl Maria von Weber, the composer (tablet; statue, see p. 290; grave, p. 309).

In the opposite corner of the Neumarkt rises a Statue of Frederick Augustus II. (d. 1854), in bronze, by Hähnel, surrounded by figures emblematical of Piety, Wisdom, Justice, and Strength.

The ALTMARKT (Pl. E, 5) is embellished with a Figure of Germania in memory of the war of 1870-71, modelled by Henze and executed in Carrara marble by Cellai (1880). On the pedestal are allegorical figures of Peace, National Defence, Science, and Enthusiasm. The Rathhaus, on the W. side, was built in 1745. The busy König-Johann-Strasse leads hence to the Pirnaische-Platz. — The Kreuzkirche (Pl. E, 5), re-erected after the Prussian bombardment of 1760, has a tower 312 ft. in height, which commands a good survey of the town (open in summer 9-12 and 3-7, in winter 9-12 and 2-4; custodian 25 pf.). The interior of the church was destroyed by fire in Feb., 1897. No. 10 Kreuz-Str. contains the Stadt-Museum (adm. p. 283), illustrating the history of the town.

In the GEORG-PLATZ is situated the modern Gothic Kreusschule (Pl. F, 6), a grammar-school with a handsome hall (frescoes by Dietrich; first Sun. of each month 11-1, free; Tues. and Sat. 3-5, fee 50 pf.). — In front of the edifice are a bronze Statue of Theodore Körner (p. 308), designed by Hähnel, and busts of Karl Gutzkow (d. 1878), the author, and Jul. Otto (d. 1877), the composer.

In the adjoining BÜRGERWIESE, a large open space with promenades, and farther on, throughout the whole S. part of the town (Beust-Str., Goethe-Str., etc.), a number of handsome modern dwelling-houses have recently sprung up, nearly all built in the Renaissance style; one of the finest is Oppenheim's House on the Bürgerwiese, designed by Semper, now belonging to Baron Kaskel. — The MOLTKE-PLATZ (Pl. E, 6) is embellished with the Nymph Fountain by Brossmann (1865), and the FERDINANDS-PLATZ (Pl. E, 6), with the tasteful Goose-Stealer Fountain* by Diez (1880). — To the E., in the Wiener-Strasse, is the English Church* (Pl. E, 7; p. 282), consecrated in 1869, and embellished with stained-glass windows. — Herr Meyer's Collection of Modern Paintings, Beust-Str. 1, is shown from 3 to 5, on application. — The Grosse Garten, see p. 308.

At the S. end of the Prager-Str. (Pl. E, 7; No. 20) is a Panorama (p. 283), painted by Braun of Munich and representing the Saxons before Paris, with a diorama of the Emperor William in his study. Farther on, to the W., is the extensive Bohemian Station (Pl. D, 7).

In the large BISMARCK-PLATZ (Pl. D, E, 7, 8) is the Polytechnic School, built in 1872-75 by Heyn. To the right, in the Strehlener-Str., is the Scottish Presbyterian Church (p. 283). — Farther off, in the Reichs-Str., is the Russian Chapel (Pl. D, 8), with six towers, designed and built by Bosse of St. Petersburg (Russian service, Sat. 7 p.m., Sun. 11 a.m.), and in the Reichs-Platz is the tasteful American Church (p. 283). To the W., Liebig-Str. 1 (Pl. C, 8), is the Private Observatory of Herr von Engelhardt.

In the NEUSTADT, on the right bank of the Elbe, in the market place adjoining the old bridge, rises an equestrian Statue of Augustus II. (Pl. F, 3), 'the Strong', over life-size, in gilded copper, by Wiedemann of Augsburg, 1736 (model, see p. 288).

Turning to the left, we soon reach the Japanese Palace (Pl. E, 2), erected by Count Flemming in 1715, purchased by Augustus II. in 1717, and named after the Japanese porcelain formerly preserved here. It is now wholly occupied by the Royal Library (adm. p. 283).

The Library, founded by Elector Augustus (d. 1586), now comprises 400,000 vols., 1400 incunabula, 6000 MSS., and 2800 maps. Historical works and modern literature form the most valuable part of the collection.

Numerous interesting curiosities are exhibited in glass-cases. Case i. Hieroglyphic Codex from Yucatan, 12 ft. long, written on both sides; Parchment MS. of the Gospels (18th cent.); Codex Boermertanus of the Pauline Epistles, written in the 9th cent. by an Irish monk at St. Gall; poems by Hans Sachs; Bohemian Bible (16th cent.); part of Gutenberg's 42-line Bible; Biblia Pauperum; Psalttery, being the earliest printed work with a date; first German edition of Seb. Brant's Narrenschiff (1494), with 114 wood-cuts. — Case g. Persian Ful Nameh ('treasure-casket'), in golden characters, with numerous drawings; hieroglyphic fragment on parchment; octagonal Koran, of the size of a crown-piece; Koran of Sultan Bajazet II.; MS. of a Turkish poem against drinking, with fine illustrations. — Case h. Bunic calendars of boxwood, of the 12th and 13th cent.; Valturius 'De re militari', a parchment MS. of the 15th cent., with illustrations; translation of Dante by Philalethes (King John of Saxony), the beginning in the king's handwriting; municipal accounts of Leipsic, inscribed on black waxen tablets; Tournament Books with plates, among them that of King René of Anjou, of the 15th cent., once the property of Charles the Bold; *Volume with fifty-six miniatures of eminent men of the 15-16th cent., probably by Cranach the Younger; three Breviaries with miniatures of the 15-16th cent.; illustrated MS. of the 'Sachsenspiegel', 1386; facsimile of Dürer's Four Books on Human Proportions (original in the MSS. room); MSS. of Luther and Melanchthon; collection of portraits of Saxon princes from the earliest times until Augustus II. — By the windows are stamped bindings. — The next room contains a cast of Gellert's features after death, in coloured wax. — In the German Room are marble busts of Goethe and Tieck, by David d'Angers. — Amongst the treasures not shown to the public is the Atlas Royal, a collection in 19 folio vols. of portraits of princes and princesses of the 17th cent., with maps, plans, etc. (three copies only of the work were made at Amsterdam in 1707; one is now at the Hague, another at Copenhagen).

The Japanese Garden, or Palais-Garten, behind the palace, which is open to the public, affords a pleasant view.

Marble tablets and medallions on No. 7 Körner-Str. (Pl. E, 3) mark the house once occupied by Councillor Körner, where Schiller resided in 1784-86, and where Theodore Körner was born in 1791. It contains the Körner Museum, founded by Dr. Peschel, with many memorials of the poet of the 'Lyre and Sword' and of the wars of liberation at the beginning of the century (adm., see p. 283).

From the Markt-Platz (p. 306) the broad HAUPT-STRASSE, which is embellished with rows of trees, leads towards the N.E. On the left rises the Dreikönigskirche (Pl. F, 2), with its lofty tower adorned with statues of the Evangelists and the Magi by Hähnel. — Farther on, to the right, is the Roman Catholic Chapel (Pl. F, 2), built in 1863 by Bothen, with an elaborately-decorated interior (altar-piece by Schönherr). Above the portal is a figure of Christ by Hähnel. — The Haupt-Strasse ends at the ALBERT-PLATZ (Pl. G, 2), with its two handsome fountain-groups in bronze, by Rob. Diez (1894), representing Calm Water and *Stormy Waves. The Albert Theatre (p. 282) here is adorned with sculptures by Menzel and Henze, sgraffito paintings by Dietrich, and ceiling-paintings by Oehme. — The Bautzener-Str., to the right, leads to the Gothic Lutherkirche (Pl. H, 1), built in 1887. — To the S., near the Carola Bridge, rises the Finance Minister's Office (Pl. F, 3), with a large mosaic on a gold ground in the pediment facing the river.

The large buildings on the N.E. side of the town ('Albertstadt') are barracks, arsenals, and other military establishments.

The Grosse Garten (Pl. G, H, I, 7, 8; cafés and restaurant), outside the Pirna Gate, to the S.E. of the town, a royal park laid out in 1676 and subsequently enlarged, covers an area of about 376 acres. In 1813 it was the scene of several sharp engagements between the French and Prussians. The park is intersected by two broad avenues at right angles to each other, and is embellished with marble groups. At the intersection of the avenues stands the Lustschloss (Pl. I, 7; $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. from the old bridge), a château built in 1680, where the royal Museum of Antiquities is now established.

The Museum of Antiquities (adm., see p. 288) consists chiefly of ecclesiastical objects of mediæval origin, removed from the churches of Saxony in consequence of the Reformation, and collected here in 1841. It contains about 3000 objects in all (catalogue 1 M.).

The Botanical Garden, to the N.E. of the Grosse Garten, was laid out in 1891. The Zoological Garden (Pl. G, H, 7, 8; adm., see p. 284), to the S., contains a number of fine specimens of animals. Good restaurant (frequently concerts).

Cemeteries. In the Old Neustädter Kirchhof, $\frac{3}{4}$ M. to the N. of the Silesian Station, rises an obelisk to the memory of soldiers who fell during the revolution of 1849. The wall of the cemetery is adorned with a Dance of Death, consisting of 27 figures in relief, executed in 1534. — In the St. Pauli Cemetery, 1 M. farther, are buried numerous victims of the wars of 1866 and 1870-71. — Weber (d. 1828) and Friedrich Schlegel (d. 1829) are interred in the Roman Catholic Cemetery (Pl. B, 2), and Rietchel (d. 1861), the sculptor, in the Trinitatis Kirchhof on the Blasewitz road.

The Environs* of Dresden afford many pleasant excursions (comp. Map, p. 312, and RR. 43, 44, 46).

The Bergstrasse (Pl. D, 8) leads to the village of Räcknitz, $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the S. of the town, just beyond which is situated Moreau's Monument, surrounded by three oaks, erected near the spot where the general was mortally wounded, 27th Aug., 1813. — An extensive prospect is enjoyed from the Goldene Höhe (1140 ft.; Restaurant), $\frac{1}{2}$ M. farther to the S.

A pleasant drive may be taken along the slopes of the vine-clad hills on the right bank of the Elbe, passing numerous villas and the popular establishments of Waldschlösschen ($\frac{1}{2}$ M.; tramway, see p. 282) and Saloppe (view) near a steamboat-station. — Below, on the Elbe, is the turreted building of the Dresden water-works. About $\frac{1}{4}$ M. from the Waldschlösschen is the Albrechtsberg, with a handsome modern château (accessible daily in summer, Sun. excepted, 3-7 o'clock), the property of Count Hohenau. A little farther up the river are the Villa Stockhausen and the Villa Eckberg, the latter in the English style, with three towers. — Pleasant silvan walks from the Albrechtsberg to the Wolfshägel, with pretty view of Dresden and its environs.

The Weisse Hirsch (Curhaus*; Dr. Lahmann's Sanatorium, pens. 7-12 M.; Restaurant Lutschnhof), 2 M. farther on, is a favourite summer-resort, on the edge of the Dresdener Heide, a wooded plateau. A cable-tramway ascends hence from Loschwitz (up 25, down 10 pf.).

Farther on lies Loschwitz (Hôtel Demnitz; Restaurant Burgberg; Restaurant Victoria-Höhe), near which there is a small summer-house in a vineyard where Schiller wrote his Don Carlos in 1785-87. A small monument has been erected here to Ludwig Richter (d. 1884), the painter.

Pillnitz (376 ft.; steamboat-station), on the right bank of the Elbe 8 M. above Dresden and $\frac{1}{4}$ M. from the railway-station of Nieder-Seiditz (see below), is a château of the king, with pleasant grounds and a botanical garden. The chapel and the dining-room are adorned with good frescoes by Vogel. In an old part of the château, since burned down, an alliance between Emp. Leopold II. and King Frederick William II. of Prussia was entered into in 1791 with a view to oppose the advance of the French revolution. An artificial ruin at the back of the village of Pillnitz, on the route to the Porsberg, commands a pleasing view, which is finer and much more extensive from the Porsberg (1185 ft.) itself, 1 hr. to the E. of Pillnitz. At the top is a good inn. — From Pillnitz we may now proceed to (½ M.) Lohmen direct or through the pretty Liebethaler Grund; from Lohmen a picturesque route leads by Uttewald and through the Uttewald Grund to the Bastel (2½ hrs.); comp. p. 313, and Map.

43. From Dresden to Bodenbach (for Prague) and Tetschen (for Vienna).

89 and 88 M. RAILWAY. To Bodenbach in 1¼-2 hrs. (fares 5 M., 3 M. 80, 2 M. 50 pf.; express 6 M. 20, 4 M. 70, 3 M. 10 pf.); express from Dresden to Prague in 3¼ hrs. Fares to Tetschen, 5 M. 10, 3 M. 80, 2 M. 50 pf.; express from Dresden to Vienna in 8-12 hrs.

Dresden (Bohemian Station), see p. 280. — The train gradually approaches the Elbe. — 5 M. Nieder-Sedlitz.

On the right bank of the Elbe, 2¼ M. to the W., lies Pillnitz (p. 309). — A pleasant excursion may be taken through the Lockwitzer Grund to (½ M.) Kreyscha and thence to the S.E. to (3 M.) Mazen.

From (7 M.) Mügel a branch-line ascends the romantic Müglitz-Thal via Glashütte, with important watch-manufactories, to (22½ M.) Geising-Altendorf, two little towns with a station in common.

At (½ M.) Weesenstein on this branch is the royal château of Weesenstein, the construction of which is very curious, the château being partly hewn out of the rock on which it is situated. The stables are on the 3rd, the ice-cellar and chapel on the 5th floor. — From Geising we may drive to Graupen (carr. 7 M.) via Zinnwald and the Mückenberg.

About 1 M. to the S. of (9½ M.) Heidenau is the royal château of Gross-Sedlitz, with a park in the French style. The train reaches the river here, and follows its windings through the Saxon Switzerland (p. 312). Finest views to the left.

10½ M. Pirna (385 ft.; Kaiserhof, near the station; Sächsischer Hof; Schwarzer Adler; Rail. Restaurant), a town with 15,700 inhab., on the left bank of the Elbe, is commanded by the Sonnenstein, an old fortress converted into a lunatic asylum. The Rathhaus contains a few antiquities. Above the town, on both banks of the Elbe, are quarries which yield excellent sandstone for building purposes, but do not add to the beauty of the landscape.

FROM PIRNA TO BERGGIESHÜBEL, 9½ M., railway in 1 hr. (80, 60 pf.). The train ascends the picturesque and narrow valley of the Gottleuba. — 9½ M. Berggieshübel (Sächsisches Haus; Station Hotel; Rail. Restaurant) is a small town with mineral baths, mines, and foundries. — A pleasant walk (omn.) may be taken hence via the Postengang and Giesenstein to (2½ M.) Gottleuba (Kronprinz; Curhaus), a chalybeate spa prettily situated in a deep valley.

From Pirna to Grosscotta, branch-railway, 5 M.; to Arnsdorf, see p. 278.

14 M. Obervogelgesang. — 16 M. Pötzscha, at the foot of the Bärensteine (1095 ft.; 1 hr.), opposite Wehlen, the usual starting point for a visit to Saxon Switzerland (comp. p. 312). To the left rise the lofty rocks of the Bastei. 18 M. Rathen, see p. 313.

22 M. Königstein (König Albert*, at the station, R., L., & A. 1 1/2-3, B. 3/4, pena. 5-8 M.; Stadt London; Blauer Stern; Kronprinz; Rail. Restaurant) is a small town (4200 inhab.) at the mouth of the Biela-Thal, commanded by the small Fortress of Königstein* (1180 ft. above the sea, 815 ft. above the Elbe).

This fortress (no admission) was formerly regarded as impregnable, and in time of war the treasures and archives of Saxony have usually been deposited here. It is mentioned as belonging to the King of Bohemia in 1241, and about 1400 it was in the possession of the Counts of Dohna, from whom it passed to the Margraves of Meissen. The present fortifications date from the 16-18th centuries. Fine view from the Neue Schänke and from the Palm-Schänke at the foot of the rock (3/4 hr. from the station).

On the opposite bank of the river rises the Lilienstein* (1925 ft.). The traveller crosses the Elbe to the village of Halbestadt, opposite the Königstein station, and proceeds thence through the E. end of the village of Ebenheit direct to the foot of the Lilienstein. Ascent, partly by steps, somewhat steep, 1 hr. Restaurant and belvedere (10 pf.) at the top.

In 1756, at the beginning of the Seven Years' War, the Saxon army of 14,000 men was surrounded at the foot of this hill by the Prussians under Frederick the Great and compelled by hunger to surrender.

The Pfaffenstein (1405 ft.; inn), 4 1/2 M. to the S. of Königstein, is another good point of view. We follow the road to Pfaffendorf and thence proceed by a footpath.

FROM KÖNIGSTEIN THROUGH THE BIELAGRUND TO THE SCHWEISERMÜHLE (carr. 7 M.) and thence to the top of the Schneeberg, 5 1/2-6 hrs. About 1 1/2 M. to the S. of Königstein is situated the water-cure establishment of Königsbrunn, on the Biela, at the entrance to the Bielagrund, an interesting ravine with the most fantastic rock-formations. Pleasant walk up this valley to the (6 1/2 M.) Schweisermühle (1150 ft.), where there are another water-cure and a large hotel. About 2 1/2 M. farther on we turn to the left and proceed (guide-posts) via the (1 1/4 hr.) Zollhaus (Restaurant) to the (3/4 hr.) village of Schneeberg (Schweizerhof; Werner's Inn). Thence we ascend in 40-50 min. more to the summit of the Schneeberg* (2255 ft.), where a tower commanding a fine view and a small Inn* (R. 1 fl. 20, B. 55 kr.) are situated. From Schneeberg to Bodenbach 8 M., see p. 312.

About 8 M. to the W. of Schneeberg (guide necessary) are situated the Tysaer Wände, a curious labyrinth of chasms and grotesque rock-formations. Fine view from the plateau.

25 M. Schandau (Rail. Restaurant); the town (p. 314) lies on the right bank, and is reached in summer by a steam-ferry (10 pf.). Below the town the branch-line from Schandau to Bautzen (p. 319) crosses the river.

30 1/2 M. Schöna (Railway Restaurant), the station for Herrnskretschen (p. 316) on the opposite bank. — The line now crosses the Austrian frontier, passes (32 M.) Niedergrund (branch-line to Tetschen, see p. 312), and penetrates the Schäferwand (690 ft.) by two tunnels.

38 M. Bodenbach (440 ft.; Hôtel Umlauf, at the station; Frieser, well spoken of; Post, R. 1 1/4 fl.; Bad-Hotel*, Hôt. Stark, in Obergrund, 1/2 M. from the station, recommended for a prolonged stay; Rail. Restaurant), a town of 7800 inhab., with the Austrian custom-house. A suspension-bridge (toll 2 kr.) and a railway-bridge here cross the river to Tetschen (*Ulrich, 1 M. from the station, adapted for a prolonged stay, R., L., & A. 1 fl. 20-1 fl. 50 kr.; *Silberner Stern; Stadt Prag; Goldene Krone; *Dampfschiff-Hotel, at the pier; good Bohemian wine at the Schloss-Schenke), perhaps the pleasantest point in the valley of the Elbe, commanded by the handsome château of Count Thun, the beautiful garden, library, and armoury of which are open to the public daily 12-4 and 6-8, on Sun. and holidays the whole day.

From Bodenbach the Schneeberg (p. 311) may be ascended in about 2½ hrs. See Baedeker's Austria.

FROM BODENBACH TO DUX, railway in 2½ hrs., through the Bodenbach-Thal, see Baedeker's Austria.

FROM BODENBACH TO WARNSDORF, 38 M., railway in 2½-3 hrs. (fares 2 fl. 45, 1 fl. 64, 82 kr.). — At Warnsdorf (Börse; Union; Endler) the line joins the Saxon railway to Zittau (p. 278).

From Bodenbach to Prague (Vienna) and from Tetschen to Vienna, see Baedeker's Austria.

44. Saxon Switzerland.

The Meissener Hochland, a very picturesque district, remarkable for its singular rock-formations, known for the last century as the "Saxon Switzerland," extends on both banks of the Elbe from Liebethal to the Bohemian frontier, a distance of 26 M., and from the Falkenberg to the Schneeberg, about the same distance.

Plan. Two days at least are requisite for a visit to this interesting district. 1st. Walk from Pötzscha-Wehlen via the Bastei, Hockstein, and Brand to Schandau; 6½-7 hrs. — 2nd. Walk from Schandau via the Kuhnstall, Winterberg, and Prebischthor to Herrnskretsch; 7½ hrs. If a carriage be taken to Winterberg the detour via the Edmundsklamm from the Prebischthor may be conveniently included. — The Königstein (p. 311) should also be visited. — Two additional days may be disposed of thus: — 3rd. Railway from Schandau to Sebnitz in ¼-1 hr., walk via Grenadierburg, Tausplan, Wachberg, Saupsdorf, and Hinter-Herrnsdorf to the Obere Schleuse and Hinter-Dittersbach; 6-7 hrs. — 4th. Walk from Hinter-Dittersbach, via the Rudolfstein, Wilhelminenwand, and Marienfelsen, to Dittersbach in about 3 hrs.; thence drive or walk to Böhmisches-Kamnitz and take the railway to Tetschen-Bodenbach (see above). — The Schneeberg and Bielgrund, see p. 311.

Guides (4-6 M per day, 2 M per half-day; in Austria 2½ and 1½ fl.) are to be found at the most frequented places, and though seldom necessary, are sometimes desirable. As they are generally in league with the innkeepers, their recommendations of inns are seldom trustworthy. — Carriages may be hired at Wehlen, the Bastei, the Brand, Schandau, etc.; carr. and pair for 4 pers., 18 M per day, 10 M per half-day; one-horse carr. for two pers., 12 or 7½ M, besides fee to the driver. Horse generally 2 M per hour (comp. p. 315). — Steamboats on the Elbe, see p. 282. — During Whitsuntide the Saxon Switzerland is apt to be over-crowded with holiday-makers. The hotel-charges at the most frequented places are as high as in towns.

a. FROM PÖTZSCHA-WEHLEN VIA THE BASTEI, HOCKSTEIN, AND THE BRAND TO SCHANDAU. — At Pötzscha (p. 310) we quit the railway and cross the Elbe by ferry (10 pf.) to the small town of Wehlen (Freyer, Dampfschiffs-Hotel, both near the quay; Deutsches Reich, in the market-place; Elb-Terrasse, on the Elbe; Sächsische Schweiz; Stadt Wehlen). From the ferry we turn to the right beyond the Elb-Terrasse Inn, and ascend the paved 'Schlossberg'. If we arrive by steamboat, we quit the market by the path marked 'Uttewalder Grund', to the left of the Stadt Wehlen, and ascend the Wehlener Grund, soon joining the path from the ferry. The valley, which is enclosed by rocky and wooded hills, gradually contracts, and 25 min. from Wehlen divides. We keep to the right for the Zscherre-Grund and the Bastei.

Geograph. Anst. von

König, Müller, Wagner & Leberecht

The path to the left leads to the *Uttewalder Grund, one of the finest rocky gorges in Saxon Switzerland (restaurant). At the upper end of the valley steps ascend to Uttewald (p. 310). Those who visit the Uttewalder Grund from the above-mentioned finger-post usually proceed as far as the (1/4 hr.) Felsenhor only.

The route hence to the (ca. 2 hrs.) Bastei can hardly be mistaken. The broad path ascends through the *Zscherre-Grund, a wild and narrow wooded ravine 1 1/2 M. in length, bounded by lofty and grotesque rocks which are partly clothed with moss and fern. A pine-wood is next traversed. At the top of the hill the highroad (finger-post) is crossed, the Steinerne Tisch (direction-post) passed, and the Bastei reached in 25 min. more. A rocky plateau, the Wehlstein, 50 paces to the left of the path, immediately before the Bastei is attained, commands a fine survey of the rocks of the Wehlener Grund.

The *Bastei (1030 ft. above the sea-level, and about 645 ft. above the Elbe; *Inn on the summit; admission to the tower 20 pf.), a rock with several peaks, rising precipitously from the Elbe, is the finest point in Saxon Switzerland. The view is magnificent and extensive, affording an admirable survey of the wooded gorges and of the abrupt peaks resembling gigantic castles that surround us on all sides: to the N. Rathewalde and Hohnstein; E. the Brand, Rosenberg (in Bohemia), Kleine and Grosse Winterberg, Zirkelsteine, and Kaiserkrone; S. the Papststein and Gohrischstein, in the foreground Lillienstein and Königstein; S.W. the Rauhestein and Bärenstein; far below the Elbe, visible from Wehlen to above Rathen.

From the inn the traveller descends in 5 min. to the *Basteibrücke, a stone bridge of seven arches constructed in 1851, connecting the rocky pinnacles that here rise from the valley. (To the left before the bridge is reached a path diverges to the Ferdinandstein, which affords a good survey of the environs and of the bridge itself.) About 20 min. beyond the bridge the path emerges from the wood and divides. The branch to the left, skirting the wood, leads to the Amselgrund (p. 314); that in a straight direction leads to (5 min.) Rathen (Erbgericht; Rosengarten, plain), a village on the Elbe with a ruined castle, and a steamboat and railway-station (the latter on the opposite bank; see p. 311). The ascent of the Bastei from Rathen occupies about 1 hr., that of the Lillienstein (p. 311) 1 1/2-2 hrs.

ascends the Amselgrund, passes a small waterfall, and leads in $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr. to Rathewalde (Mittag, well spoken of; Büttner's Restaurant*). Beyond the church we cross the bridge to the right, and follow the Hohnstein road to ($\frac{1}{4}$ M.) a group of trees (guide-post), where a road diverges to the right to Schandau. The first footpath on the left of this road leads in $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. to the Hockstein (956 ft.), a rock rising abruptly 380 ft. above the green Polenzgrund and affording a fine view of the little town of Hohnstein (Hirsch; Sächs. Schweiz), on the opposite side of the valley, commanded by an old castle now used as a house of correction. — We then descend through the Wolfsschlucht to the ($\frac{1}{4}$ hr.) Hôtel-Restaurant zum Polenzgrund, about 1 M. from Hohnstein.

From Hohnstein to Schandau, $7\frac{1}{2}$ M., diligence (1 M. in $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) every morning and afternoon. Railway under construction.

We now descend the Polenz-Thal for about 35 min. until the first house, the Waltersdorfer Mühle (Inn), becomes visible. Crossing a bridge, we ascend the hill to the right. Where the paths divide, we follow that to the right until it joins the carriage-road on the hill, which leads to the right in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. more to the Brand* (1080 ft.; Inn), commanding a magnificent view. From right to left (S.W. to S.E.): Bastel, Bärensteine, Königstein, Lilienstein, etc., and to the extreme left the Grosse Winterberg.

About 100 paces from the finger-post on the carriage-road a footpath diverges from the broad path to the left to a singular group of rocks somewhat resembling corn-sacks. The main path forks $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. farther on, the right branch leading to the Frinzel-Thal, the left branch (which we follow) descending through the Tiefe Grund, to the (10 min.) Hohnstein and Schandau road, which leads to the ($2\frac{1}{4}$ M.) Elbe at Wendisch-Fähre, a station on the railway from Schandau to Bautzen (p. 319) which crosses the Elbe here. Above the bridge mentioned at p. 312 is the Hôtel Wilhelmshöhe, $1\frac{1}{4}$ M. from Schandau.

Schandau. — Hotels. SENDIG'S HOTEL & VILLAS*, 3 min. above the steamboat-pier, on the Elbe, with shady grounds, R., L., & A. 2-5, B. $1\frac{1}{4}$, D. $3\frac{1}{2}$, pens. from 7 M.; FORSTHAUS & DEUTSCHES HAUS*, with garden on the Elbe, R., L., & A. from 2, B. 1, D. 3, board 4-5 M.; CURHAUS (p. 315), R., L., & A. 2-4, pens. from $5\frac{1}{2}$ M. — DAMPFSCHIFF*, also with garden on the Elbe, R., L., & A. 2- $2\frac{1}{2}$ M.; GOLDENER ENGEL; STADT BERLIN; ELB-HOTEL*; SÄCHS. SCHWEIZ*, R., L., & A. from $1\frac{1}{2}$ M.; LINDENHOF, at the entrance of the Kirnitzsch-Thal; SCHWEIZERHOF; ANKER; STADT TEPLITZ, GAMBRINUS, plain. — Pensions. Villa Quisisana, Königs Villa, Villa Königin Carola, Villa Lucia, Russische Villa, all under the same management and with same charges as Sendig's Hotel (see above). — Pens. Hohes Haus, 5 M. — Restaurants at the hotels; also Valentin, in the Bade-Allée; Schlitzhaus, in the Kirnitzsch-Thal; Schlöss-Bastel, on the Schlössberg. — Private apartments abundant.

Guides, see p. 312. — Carriage (fixed tariff) with two horses, for 4 pers., per hr. 3, $\frac{1}{2}$ day 10, whole day 18 M.; to the waterfall 5, there and back $7\frac{1}{2}$ M.; to the Bastel viâ the Hockstein 11 and 16; to Hinter-Hermesdorf 12 and 16; to the Papstein and back 9 M. Two hours' halt included in each case. — Chair-Porters from the waterfall to the Kuhstall 3 M., from the Kuhstall to the Kleine Winterberg 4 M., thence to the Grosse

Winterberg 3 M., to the Prebischthor 4 M. more, thence to Herrnskretschchen 5 M. — Horse or Mule from Schandau to the waterfall 4 M., thence to the Kuhstall 2 M., Kleine Winterberg $2\frac{1}{2}$ M., Grosse Winterberg 2 M., Prebischthor $2\frac{1}{2}$ M., Herrnskretschchen $2\frac{1}{2}$ M. — Railway, see p. 310. — Steam Ferry to and from the station in connection with the trains, 10 pf.; ferry to Klein-Hennersdorf, 5-10 pf. — Steamboat, see p. 282. — Diligence to Hohnstein, twice daily, see p. 314.

The small town of Schandau (395 ft.), with 3100 inhab., is prettily situated on the right bank of the Elbe, at the mouth of the Kirnitzsch-Bach. In the valley of the latter, $\frac{1}{2}$ M. above the town, is a Hydropathic Establishment, on Kneipp's system. Schandau is the central point of Saxon Switzerland, and is much frequented in summer.

WALKS. In the Kirnitzsch-Thal, see below; to the Ostrauer Scheibe; to the Schloss-Bastei, the Schüllerhöhe, the Schützenhaus; farther distant to the Carola-Felsen (view-point), $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr., and the Grosse Winterberg, 1 hr. more; to the Schrammsteine $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr., and thence to ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr.) Schmilka, on the Elbe, 4 M. above Schandau; to the Wolfberg (Inn), $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr., and thence to the ($\frac{1}{4}$ hr.) Kleine and Grosse Zschirnstein.

A very pleasant excursion may be made from the railway-station, past the station of Krippen and Klein-Hennersdorf, to ($\frac{1}{4}$ hr.) the top of the Papstein* (1475 ft.; small Inn* at the top). The view embraces the entire district of Saxon Switzerland. The most conspicuous points are: N.W. the Lilienstein and Königstein, E. the Grosse Winterberg and the Kleis rising like a tower, S.E. the basaltic Rosenberg (1770 ft.), the highest peak in the district. A mere speck only of the Elbe is visible at Schandau. — From the Papstein a good path leads to the N.W. via Gohrsch to Königstein in 1 hr. (in the reverse direction $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr.). Small boat from Königstein to Rathen (p. 313) in 40 min., $3\frac{1}{2}$ M.

D. FROM SCHANDAU VIA THE KUHSTALL, WINTERBERG, AND PREBISCHTHOR (EDMUNDSEKLAMM) TO HERRNSKRETSCHCHEN, $7\frac{1}{2}$ -10 hrs.

— The Kirnitzsch Valley is ascended by a good road from Schandau, passing the Schützenhaus, the Ostrauer Mühle, and the Heidemühle (Restaurant), to the Little Waterfall and the (5 M.) Great or Lichtenhain Waterfall (Inn, R., L., & A. $1\frac{1}{2}$ M.). Driving thus far ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr.) advisable. The footpath quits the road 50 paces beyond the waterfall (guide-post), crosses the Kirnitzsch, and ascends in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. to the —

Kuhstall (1100 ft.; Inn), an archway of rock, 20 ft. in height, commanding in one direction a view of the Habichtsgrund, a profound wooded ravine, enclosed by sandstone rocks. It was probably once employed by the peasantry as a refuge for their cattle in time of war, and has thence derived its name ('cow-stable'). The summit is attained by 83 steps through a narrow cleft in the rocks.

The path descends (to the left, immediately before the entrance, to the Kuhstall) through a narrow gorge to the Habichtsgrund. It next ascends gradually and then in zigzags to ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr.) the so-called Plateau (pretty view) at the base of the basaltic Kleine Winterberg (1640 ft.), on the top of which a small pavilion marks the spot where Elector Augustus I. by a fortunate shot saved himself from an infuriated stag in 1568. — We follow the slope of the Kleine Winterberg (avoiding paths diverging to the right), and in about 1 hr. ($1\frac{3}{4}$ -2 hrs. from the Kuhstall) reach the summit of the —

Grosse Winterberg (1810 ft.; Inn, R. 2 M., B. 80 pf.), a basaltic ridge, $\frac{1}{2}$ M. long. The tower (72 ft. in height) commands a picturesque and extensive view, embracing the Saxon, Bohemian, and even the Silesian Mts.

The PATH TO THE PREBISCHTHOR (1 hr. to the S. E.) leads from the inn on the Winterberg to the left through the wood. At the ($\frac{1}{4}$ hr.) first bifurcation a path leads to the left to the ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Zeughaus (see below), but our path keeps to the right, and afterwards skirts the Bohemian frontier, which is indicated by stones. The Prebischthor (1435 ft.; Hotel & Restaurant, good Austrian wines), a rocky arch of far more imposing dimensions than the Kuhlstall (66-100 ft. wide; roof 48 ft. long, 10 ft. thick), is in Bohemian territory. The top, which may be ascended by steps hewn in the rock (adm. 10 kr.), commands a striking view of the wild environs. — Descent to Herrnskretschchen $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr.; a good zigzag path descends between huge walls of rock to the (20-25 min.) Herrnskretschchen and Dittersbach road, where a carriage may usually be found (to Herrnskretschchen, 2 M.), in the Biela-Thal. The Biela flows into the Kamnitz, which joins the Elbe at Herrnskretschchen.

The detour through the Edmundsklamm is recommended to those who have time to spare (2-3 hrs. extra). At the foot of the zigzag path descending from the Prebischthor, we turn to the left and follow the winding Gabrielensteig* (guide-posts) to the ($1\frac{1}{2}$ - $1\frac{3}{4}$ hr.) inn of Reinwiese (p. 319) on the Herrnskretschchen and Dittersbach road. Beyond the village of Stimmerdorf (field-path in $\frac{1}{4}$ hr.), we descend a steep path into the Edmundsklamm*, or gorge of the Kamnitz, the most remarkable rocky gorge in the entire district (adm. 90 kr.). At the narrowest point is a small inn, whence the lower end of the gorge is reached by boat in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. A picturesque path thence descends to Herrnskretschchen in about $\frac{3}{4}$ hr.

Herrnskretschchen (Herrenhaus, R., L., & A. $1\frac{1}{2}$ -3 M.; Hetschel's, R., L., & A. 1- $1\frac{1}{2}$ fl.; Hübel's, R., L., & A. $1\frac{1}{2}$ M.; Grüner Baum, cheaper), a village on the Elbe. On the opposite bank is stat. Schöna (steam-ferry), see p. 311. — Steamboat to Tetschen and Dresden, see p. 282. Small boat to Schandau (in $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr.) 6 M. Road to Dittersbach, see p. 319.

A path descends the left bank of the Kamnitz and then skirts the Elbe, passing the Dürkkamnitz Mill at the entrance to the Dürkkamnitz Grund, and then following the slope to ($1\frac{1}{4}$ - $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) the Beledere (Inn) at Ellbogen. Thence the 'Allée' leads straight to the S.E. to (1 hr.) Binsdorf, whence we proceed to the S.W. viâ the Binsdorfer Höhe or viâ the Steinhübel (1425 ft.) and the Rosenkamm to ($1\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Tetschen (p. 312).

The visit to the Edmundsklamm (see above) from Herrnskretschchen may be combined with the ascent of the Rosenberg (2035 ft.; about 3 hrs.).

c. FROM SCHANDAU TO DITTERSBACH VIÂ THE OBERE SCHLEUSE (carriage there and back, about 18 M.). — The road at first ascends the Kirnitzsch-Thal (p. 315) viâ (5 M.) the Lichtenhain Waterfall (p. 315) and (8 M.) the Neumannsmühle at the mouth of the 'Grosse Zschand'.

A pleasant path leads through the Grosse Zschand to the lonely forster's house known as the Zeughaus (rustic restaurant). Paths (sign-posts) lead hence through the woods to the S. to Reinwiese (see above); S.W.

(Roossteig and Goldsteig) to the Grosse Winterberg; and N.W. (Zeughaus-Strasse) between the Hintere Raubschloss (left) and the Lorenssteine (right) to the Kirnitzsch-Thal and Schandau.

From the bifurcation about 1 M. farther on we may reach (11½ M.) Hinter-Hermsdorf either by the main road which here quits the Kirnitzsch-Thal, or by the slightly longer road to the right which follows the stream for 1¾ M. more and then turns to the left.

Hinter-Hermsdorf. — ZUM ERBGERICHT, unpretending, R. & B. 1½ M.; ZUR HOFFNUNG, plain. — Restaurant zur Sächsischen Schwelt. — Carriage to Schandau, with two horses 10, with one horse 8 M., to Sebnitz (see p. 319), 6 M. — Guide unnecessary.

The large village of Hinter-Hermsdorf (1260 ft.), situated in a wide valley, and frequented as a summer-resort, is an excellent centre for excursions in the 'Hintere' Saxon Switzerland.

About ½ M. to the S. of Hinter-Hermsdorf, on the road to Hinter-Dittersbach, at the beginning of the wood, we reach a deer-fence, immediately beyond which, to the left, a broad carriage road, known as the 'Hohweg', ascends to the (1 M.) footpath (guide post) to the Obere Schleuse (see below). About halfway along the Hohweg a path diverges to the right (passing a finger-post indicating the way, to the left, to the Dachsenhöhlen and Obere Schleuse) to (½ M.) the Friedrich-August-Thurm (view). Returning to the Hohweg and following it for 3 min. farther, we pass a guide-post ('Tunnel') on the left and reach the Königs-Platz (1420 ft.), a fine point of view on a steep cliff. To reach the Obere Schleuse, we may now return and take either of the above-mentioned routes; or we may proceed from the Königs-Platz by the footpath, which descends to the right after 2 min., to the Tunnel, a short rocky archway, beyond which it leads through tall trees. Crossing an open space in the wood (numerous guide-posts), we now descend to the Holl, a wooded rocky basin, whence a carriage-road (sign-post) leads to the right to Hinter-Dittersbach. A gentle ascent to the left brings us in about 20 min. to the Hohweg (see above), whence the footpath (guide-post) to the Obere Schleuse leads to the left. In less than ½ M. we reach the Boat Station (rustic rfmts.).

The Obere Schleuse (Upper Sluice; 870 ft.) is a dam or sluice on the Kirnitzsch, constructed for the benefit of the timber-rafts. The water is let off in spring and autumn. A boat may be hired for a pleasant row on the picturesque sheet of water (usually not before the end of May; one pers. 60, two or more, each 30 pf.). Landing beside the sluice on the right bank of the stream, which here forms the boundary between Saxony and Bohemia, we ascend the steps to the right to the path above. After about ¼ M. a path (guide post) ascends to the right to the Hermannseck, a rocky projection, on which is the 'Schlegel-Hütte' (view). We may then either retrace our steps, or descend the somewhat difficult steps in the rocky fissure near the hut, to the path we quitted. We now follow the course of the Kirnitzsch, high above the stream, but in 18 min.

we descend to its bank by a flight of steps near a bench, and continue to skirt it. (The bridge to the left leads to the footpath to Schönlünde, $7\frac{1}{2}$ M.) In 6 min. more we descend the steps and cross the bridge to the left bank, but in 7 min. return to the right bank. A path with steps immediately to the right at this point (no guide-post) leads to the Wolfs-Schlucht (there and back $\frac{1}{4}$ hr.; attractive), a narrow ravine with huge boulders. We continue to skirt the Kirnitzsch, the valley of which expands a little, and finally cross a foot-bridge (for customers of the Kirnitzsch-Schenke only) or a large bridge to —

Hinter-Dittersbach (810 ft.; Weisser Hirsch; Kirnitzsch-Schenke; Hegerhaus, all rustic), a hamlet inhabited mainly by foresters and others in the service of Prince Clary or Prince Kinsky, whose estates meet here. [Those who have driven to Hinter-Hermsdorf and desire to return to Schandau, should order the carriage to meet them here.]

TO DITTERSBACH, 6 M. The new road leads through a wooded valley, with lofty sides. Nearly the whole of this district, which is known as the Bohemian Switzerland, is the property of Prince Kinsky. After about $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. a road (guide-post) leads to the left into a narrower valley, with rich meadows. The path to the solitary shooting-lodge of Balzhütte (rustic rfmts.) leads to the left, through the Langengrund, $\frac{3}{4}$ M. farther on (guide-post). We proceed straight on in the narrow valley to a deer-fence, beyond which the road continues to Dittersbach. We follow, however, the cart-track skirting this side of the fence, to the left (guide-post), and in 9 min., at a clearing, ascend the narrow footpath to the right to a smooth path, from which a short ascent brings us to the Rudolfstein* (1590 ft.), an isolated rock commanding a fine view.

We return to the above-mentioned smooth path and follow it to the left to the top. Here we turn to the right (guide-post: 'Wilhelminenwand'), skirt the clearing ('Schneise'), cross a broader track, and descend by a footpath to the right, through a deer-fence, to the point where the paths cross (guide-post, to the left). Above us, to the right, rises the Wilhelminenwand (1410 ft.), a projecting cliff, with a view. Thence we return in 7 min. to the last-mentioned guide-post, and descend the steps to the right to (8 min.) Balzer's Lager, a rock-grotto with an inscription dating from 1632 (rfmts. on Sun.). The path (guide-post) descending hence to the right brings us in 10 min. to the foot of the Marienfelsen* (1380 ft.), a sharp-pointed rock, ascended by means of steps (view). — Returning to Balzer's Lager (a direct but not very attractive path leads to the right into the valley, before we reach the Lager), we thence follow the path to the right, skirting some young plantations. In about 12 min. more (guide-post at the deer-fence) we descend to the right through the wooded and narrow Stammbrücken-Thal, with fine rocky formations; and in 20 min. more reach — Dittersbach (Sächsische Schweiz, R. from 80 kr., well spoken of; Kronprinz Rudolf; Bellevue, R. from 1 fl.), the central point of the 'Bohemian Switzerland'. To the N.E. of the wide valley in which it lies rise the peaks of Rabenstein, Falkenstein* (1½ hr.; ruined castle on the top), Marienfelsen (p. 318), etc.

FROM DITTERSBACH TO HERRNSKRETSCHEN, 8 M. (carr. and pair in 2 hrs., 5 fl.; also diligence). The road forks to the W. of Dittersbach. The left branch follows the Grosse Biela to (1¼ M.) the Grund-Mühle (inn) at the confluence of the Biela and Kamnitz, then turns to the N. and joins the shorter (right) branch at (1 M.) Hohenleipe. About halfway between this and Herrnskretschchen lies the hotel-pension of Reinwiess (p. 318; pens. 3½-4½ fl.), whence a road to the Zeughaus in the Grosse Zschand (p. 316), and the Gabrielenstein to the Prebischthor (p. 316) diverge to the right, and a road to Stimmersdorf (Edmundsklamm; p. 316) to the left. Thence we descend the valley of the Biela to (8 M.) Herrnskretschchen (p. 316).

From Dittersbach via Kunnersdorf to Böhmisch-Kamnitz, 8¼ M., carriage in 1¾ hr., 5 fl.; also diligence. Short-cuts for pedestrians.

From Schandau to Bautzen.

40 M. Railway in 3-3¾ hrs. (fares 5 M 20, 3 M 90, 2 M 60 pf.). Views to the right.

Stat. Schandau, see p. 314. The train crosses the Elbe to Wendisch-Führe (comp. p. 314), passes through a tunnel, and ascends the Sebnitz-Thal. 1¾ M. Porschdorf. Beyond (3 M.) Kohlmühle the train quits the sandstone and enters a granite district. Two tunnels. 6 M. Übersdorf. The Sebnitz is crossed several times. Four tunnels.

9½ M. Sebnitz (1020 ft.; Stadt Dresden*; Sächsischer Hof*; Rail. Restaurant), a manufacturing town with 8200 inhabitants.

FROM SEBNITZ TO THE TANZPLAN AND WACHBERG. — We cross the railway by the bridge to the right of the station, and descend through the 'Büschigt' to the Sebnitz. On the opposite bank we ascend to the left and follow the field-track towards the Grenadierburg (above, to the right). In ½ hr. we reach a guide-post pointing to the right to the (5 min.) Grenadierburg (Inn, with belvedere), and to the left to the Tanzplan. At the beginning of the wood, beyond a solitary farm-house, the path begins gradually to ascend. 20 min. Guide-post to the (5 min.) Heilige Hallen, a group of pines. From the six-armed guide-post, a little farther on, we follow the white-marked track to the left to the (½ hr.) Tanzplan* (1985 ft.) or Thomaswald. The view from the top (adm. to tower 10 kr.) is one of the finest in the Saxon Switzerland (rustic inn). — From the inn a carriage-road to the left (guide-post), and the na footpath to the right descend (several guide-posts) to (¼ hr.) the village of Thomsdorf (Inns), on the frontier. We ascend the road to the left of the custom-house for less than ¼ M., then, at a guide-post, enter the Diebs-Strasse or 'Thieves' Road', to the right. In ¼ hr. more we pass a carriage-road (guide-post) and immediately afterwards reach a footpath, leading to the right to the (¼ hr.) Schweizerkrone or Wachberg (1835 ft.), with a rustic inn and a view-tower (10 pf.). A path descends hence to the right to Saupsdorf (Inn), whence a road, generally destitute of shade, leads to (2¼ M.) Hinter-Hermisdorf (p. 317).

FROM SEBNITZ TO THE HOCHBUSCH. We follow the Hertigswald road to the (¾-1 hr.) direction-post, cross the brook to the right, and ascend by the footpath to the right a little farther on. We then follow the 'Hohe Strasse' to the right, whence after 8 min. a footpath diverges to the right, leading to the summit of the Hochbusch (1410 ft.; inn and view-tower), which commands an extensive view.

Beyond Sebnitz the line reaches its highest point. 14 M. Krumhermsdorf. The castle of Stolpen is seen on the left. Several small stations. 31 M. Wülthen (branch to Ebersbach, p. 278). Beautiful view to the right. — 40 M. Bautzen (p. 277).

45. From Dresden to Reichenbach via Chemnitz and Zwickau.

89½ M. RAILWAY in 3½-6 hrs. (fares 12 M 20, 9 M 20, 6 M 10 pf.; express 15 M 20, 11 M 40 pf.).

Dresden (Bohemian Station), see p. 280. — At (2½ M.) Plauen (tramway, see p. 281), where there are extensive breweries, begins the Plauensche Grund*, a picturesque and rocky part of the valley of the Weisseritz, 1½ M. in length, disfigured by factories. The train crosses the stream several times. On the height to the right rises the château of Begerburg (¼ hr. from stat. Plauen), commanding a pleasing prospect.

At (4½ M.) Potschappel a branch diverges to Wilsdruff. — 7 M. Hainsberg.

A branch-line runs from Hainsberg to (15½ M.) Dippoldiswalde and (22½ M.) Kipsdorf. From Kipsdorf travellers may go on to Tepitz (see Baderer's Austria), either via Niklasberg or via Graupen.

8½ M. Tharandt (685 ft.; Badehotel; Deutsches Haus; Villa Clara), with 2600 inhab., romantically situated at the junction of three valleys. On a rocky eminence rise the ruins of an ancient castle (840 ft.). The Forst-Academie, founded in 1816, an institution for the education of foresters, enjoys a high reputation. Pleasant walks and beautiful woods in the environs. — 11 M. Edle Krone, a pleasure-resort. Tunnel.

The line now quits the valley of the Weisseritz, and ascends the picturesquely-wooded Seerenbach-Thal as far as (16 M.) Klingenberg-Colmnitz. To the right, below (22½ M.) Muldenhütten, is the Muldener Hütte, an extensive government-foundry. The Freiberger Mulde is then crossed. On the right and left are numerous mines and foundries.

25 M. Freiberg (1345 ft.; Hôtel de Saxe*, R., L., & A. 2-4, D. 2-2½ M, B. 80 pf.; Rother Hirsch; Stern; Kronprinz; Restaurant Brauhof), a mining town, founded in 1171, on the discovery of the silver mines, is the centre of the Saxon mining district and the seat of a Mining Academy (180 students), founded in 1765. Pop. 29,300. A well-kept promenade, with remains of the old walls and towers and the extensive Law Courts, surrounds the town.

The Annaberger-Strasse leads to the left from the station to the site of the old Peterssthor, where a Gothic Monument, erected in 1844, commemorates the brave defence of the town by the townspeople and miners against the Swedes in 1642-43. The Peters-Str. leads hence to the Obermarkt, with the handsome Rathhaus on the E. side, a late-Gothic building of 1410, with additions in the Renaissance style, and the Kaufhaus on the N. The former contains a number of portraits of Saxon princes, and the latter a Museum of Antiquities (open daily). The spot where Kunz von Kaufungen (p. 348) was executed in 1455, opposite the Rathhaus, is marked by a stone with a cross; the stone head above the oriel of the Rathhaus is said to be a portrait of the bold robber.

The Weingasse, at the corner of the market diagonally opposite the Peters-Str., and then the second side-street to the left (Rittergasse), lead to the CATHEDRAL, a late-Gothic edifice erected on the site of a Romanesque church which was burned down in 1484. The cloisters on the S. side were completed in 1509 (restored in 1890); the choir was added in 1576. A beautiful relic of the earlier church, dating from the 12th cent., is the S. Portal, or Goldene Pforte, the rich sculptures of which probably date from the beginning of the 13th century. These plastic decorations, which were perhaps originally gilded, rank amongst the best works of the mediæval period, those in Italy not excepted.

The sculptures represent the Kingdom of God revealed to man by Christ. Below are eight statues of representatives of the Old Testament and antetypes of Christ: to the left Daniel, the Queen of Sheba, Solomon, and St. John the Baptist; to the right Aaron, a woman with a crown (the church?), David, and Nahum the prophet. The nine lunettes above contain reliefs from the New Testament: in the central field are the Virgin and Child, to the left the Adoration of Magi, to the right the angel Gabriel and St. Joseph; in the middle arch, God the Father and four angels, with Christ, an angel, and seven saints above; on the third arch, the Holy Ghost (represented by a dove) with eight apostles; on the highest arch, the Angel of Judgment and the Resurrection of the dead.

INTERIOR (sacristan, Untermarkt 1; 1 M.). Behind the high-altar is the Kurfürsten-Gruft, in which repose forty-one Protestant princes of Saxony, from Duke Henry the Pious (d. 1541) to Elector George IV. (d. 1694). The finest monument is that of the Elector Maurice (d. 1553 at the battle of Sievershausen) in the Renaissance style of the 16th cent., a sarcophagus of several rare kinds of marble, with a kneeling statue of the prince, and richly sculptured, designed by Italian masters and executed by Netherlandish sculptors in 1583. Beside it is the suit of armour worn by the Elector at the time of his death. The Allerheiligen-Kapelle, completed in 1594, contains gilded bronze statues of Saxon princes, by Italian sculptors. Fine tombstones in the pavement. The late-Gothic Pulpit (ca. 1500), in the form of the stalk and calyx of a flower, with steps borne by the figures of the master and his assistants, is also worthy of inspection. The powerful Organ was built in 1714, by Silbermann, a native of Freiberg.

Near the Kreuzthor, at the N.W. corner of the town, is Schloss Freudenstein, dating from the 12th cent., but entirely rebuilt in 1577 (now a magazine).

The mines in the neighbourhood of Freiberg belong to the state. One of the most easily inspected is the Abraham-Schacht, to the W. of the town, a visit to which takes 2-3 hrs. (open 7-6; adm. 2, 8½, or 5 M. for 1, 2, or 3 pers., incl. use of mining costume). The processes of smelting the ore, etc., are most conveniently seen in the Muldener Hütte (apply at the office; 50 c. each pers.). — The Rötschöberg-Stollen, a conduit 10 ft. in height, constructed in 1814-77 to carry off the superfluous water, has a length of 30 M., including its branches.

FROM FREIBERG TO MOLDAU, 24 M., in 2¼ hrs. (fares 2 M. 50, 1 M. 70 pf.); from Moldau to Brück, 20½ M., in 1½ hr. — The train follows the valley of the Freiberger Mulde. — From (16 M.) Bienenmühle (Inn) diligences ply to (6 M.) Frauenstein (2170 ft.; Stern), a loftily-situated little town, and to (6 M.) Sayda (2220 ft.; Löwe, Stern), one of the oldest towns in Saxony. About 6 M. beyond Sayda lies Bad Einsiedel (2465 ft.; Badehaus), a summer-resort with a sulphurated chalybeate spring, charmingly situated in the Erzgebirge (p. 823), among woods. Thence the road proceeds, crossing the ($1\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Austrian frontier, to (7 M. farther on) Obersteinendorf, a busy little toy-making town, with 3500 inhab., on the Bodenbach and Komotau railway. — The Austrian frontier is crossed near (24 M.) Moldau, where the custom-house examination takes place. — 30 M. Richwald. — $44\frac{1}{2}$ M. Brüx (Ross; Löwe; Adler; Railway Restaurant), see Baedeker's Austria.

From Freiberg to Riesa, see p. 326.

Near (35 M.) Oederan the château of Augustusburg (p. 323) is seen on a lofty hill to the right. Beyond Oederan the line enters the attractive valley of the Flöha, and follows it to its influx into the Zschopau, crossing the stream near Hetsdorf. — 42 M. Flöha, a pretty village in the Zschopau-Thal. Branch-lines to Reitzenhain and to Annaberg (both for Komotau), see p. 323. — From (44 M.) Nieder-Wiesa a branch diverges to Rossweln (p. 329).

50 M. Chemnitz. — Hotels. Near the station: CAROLA; DEUTSCHE EICHE, Brühl 4; VIER JAHRESZEITEN, Waisen-Str. 20; HERRMANN, König-Str. 38. — In the town: "BÖMISCHER KAISER, in the market-place (Pl. E, 4); "STADT GOTHA, Johannis-Platz, R., L., & A. from 2 M., B. 80 pf.; VICTORIA, Wiesen-Str. 1, R., L., A., & B. 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ -3 $\frac{1}{2}$, D. 2 M.; HÔTEL DE SAXE, Kloster-Str. 3; DREI SCHWANE, ROTHER HIRSCH, Lange-Strasse.

Restaurants. Deutscher Kaiser, Moritzburg, Theater-Str.; Kaisersaal, Erich, Lange-Str.; "Zur Prälaten, Kloster-Str.; "Hartenstein's Wine Rooms, Breitagasse 12. — Cafés. Theater-Café; Wiener Café, Johannis-Str.; Reichskanzler, König-Str., with garden.

Cabs. Per drive in the inner district, 1 pers. 50, 2 pers. 60, 3 pers. 80 pf., 4 pers. 1 M.; from the inner to the outer district 60, 80 pf., 1 M., 1 M. 25 pf.

Electric Tramways. 1. From the railway-station (Pl. F, 3) to Kappel (Pl. B, 6) viâ the Theater-Str. (Pl. E, D, 4). 2. From the station to Kappel viâ the Post-Str. (Pl. E, 4). 3. From the Schlachthof to the Wilhelms-Platz (Pl. F, 1, 2) and Kappel.

Theatres. Stadt-Theater, in winter; Thalia Theatre, Zwickauer-Str., in summer. — Colosseum, at Kappel.

Chemnitz (1000 ft.; pronounced Kemnitz), the third largest town in Saxony and one of the most important manufacturing places in Germany, with 160,900 inhab., lies in a fertile plain at the base of the Erzgebirge. It was originally a settlement of the ancient Wends, and became celebrated at an early period for its linen manufactories and bleaching-grounds. The staple products are stockings, gloves, woven goods, and machinery, which are manufactured on a large scale both in the town itself and in the neighbourhood. Large quantities of Chemnitz manufactures are exported to the United States.

The late-Gothic Rathhaus (Pl. 15) in the Hauptmarkt (Pl. E, 4) is flanked with arcades and possesses a lofty tower. Near it is the Jacobi-kirche (Pl. 8), of the 15th cent., skilfully altered in the 18th, and again in a Gothic style in 1883. Among the other prominent buildings are the Central Railway Station, the Cattle Market, the Reichs-Bank, the Law Courts (Pl. D, 4), the Technical Schools (Pl. F, 3) of the Saxon government, and several modern churches. Interesting visits may be paid to the Foundry for Artistic Purposes (Pl. 19; E, 5), in the Annaberg-Str. (Sun. & Wed. 10-3), and to the Industrial Museum (Sun. 10-12). The Stadt-Park may also be visited. — The Schloss (Pl. D, 2), to the N.W. of the town, once a Benedictine abbey, is now a restaurant with pretty grounds and a good view. The adjoining Schlosskirche, a late-Gothic edifice of 1514-25, with a fine portal, contains paintings of the old Franconian School. The Schlosssteich (Pl. D, E, 2, 3) is surrounded by pleasant grounds.

From Chemnitz to Döbeln and Riesa, see p. 326.

FROM CHEMNITZ TO LEIPZIG, 51 M., viâ Lausigk in 2-3 hrs. (fares 6 M 70 pf., 5 M, 3 M 40 pf.). From (7 M.) Wittgensdorf a branch-line diverges to Limbach. 14 M. Cossen lies in the valley of the Zwickauer Mulde, which is here crossed by the imposing Göhrener Railway Viaduct, 500 yds. long, 220 ft. high (excursion from Cossen down the Mulde Valley to Rochlitz, see p. 329). 19½ M. Narsdorf, the junction for Penig (p. 329). 22½ M. Geithain; 29 M. Lausigk, with 3700 inhab.; 37 M. Belgershain; 45 M. Liebertswitz, where the battle of Leipzig (p. 338) began. — Another line from Chemnitz to Leipzig runs viâ Geithain and Borna.

FROM CHEMNITZ TO ROSSWEIN, 28½ M., railway in 2-3 hrs. (fares 3 M 80, 2 M 80, 1 M 90 pf.). The line diverges to the N. from the Dresden railway at (5 M.) Nieder-Wiesa (p. 322). 10½ M. Frankenberg, a busy manufacturing town with 11,900 inhab., prettily situated on the Zschopau. — 16 M. Hattnichen, on the Kleine Striegis, with extensive manufactures of flannel. A monument was erected here in 1885 to the poet Gellert (1715-1749), a native of the town (comp. p. 337). — 28½ M. Rosswein, on the Leipzig, Döbeln, and Dresden line (p. 329).

Chemnitz is a convenient starting-point for a visit to the Erzgebirge or Ore Mountains, a range between Saxony and Bohemia, about 85 M. in length and 25 M. in breadth, with a mean elevation of 2480 ft. The highest summit is the Kellberg or Sonnenwirtel (4080 ft.), in Bohemia. — The lams are primitive but prices are low. Carriages may be obtained almost everywhere (one-horse 8-12 M per day, two-horse 12-18 M). The three branch-railways described below afford easy access to the chief points in the Erzgebirge.

FROM CHEMNITZ TO KOMOTAU VIÂ REITZENHAIN, 73 M., railway in 4½-6 hrs. (fares from Chemnitz to Reitzenhain 5 M 60, 4 M 20, 2 M 80 pf.). — The line diverges from the Dresden railway at (8 M.) Flöha (p. 322) and ascends the valley of the Flöha. From (24½ M.) Pockau a diligence plies thrice daily to (2 M.) Lengefeld (Post; Erbgericht). on the slope of the Adlerstein, and a railway runs viâ (7 M.) Olbernhau (Gerichtsschenke), an industrial place with 7000 inhab., picturesquely situated on the Flöha, to (13½ M.) Neuhäusen (Erbgericht). — 31½ M. Marienberg (1995 ft., Drei Schöne; Kreuz; Ross), a little town with 6600 inhab. and various industries. — 43 M. Reitzenhain (2490 ft.; Kurhaus; Malzhäus), the frontier-station (luggage examined), is a summer-resort. — The Bohemian railway crosses the brook forming the frontier by a lofty viaduct and reaches its culminating point (2895 ft.) near (48 M.) Sebastiansberg. At (52 M.) Krima-Neudorf our line unites with the Chemnitz-Annaberg railway (see below). The train then descends in numerous windings (gradient 1:50) to (78 M.) Komotau ("Scherber; Reiter; Railway Restaurant), an old and wealthy little town at the foot of the Erzgebirge. Comp. Basdeker's Austria.

FROM CHEMNITZ TO KOMOTAU VIÂ ANNABERG, 91 M., railway in 7¼ hrs. (fares to Weipert 6, 4½, 3 M). From Chemnitz to (8 M.) Flöha, see p. 322. Our line then ascends the busy valley of the Zschopau. — 10½ M. Erdmannsdorf (960 ft.), a summer-resort. Diligence five times daily to (2 M.) Schellenberg (1620 ft.; Hirsch), a little town commanded by the extensive Augustusburg, a château erected in 1568-72. — 18 M. Zschopau (Stadt Wien; Deutsches Haus), a small town of 7000 inhab., with cloth-factories. The château of Wildeck includes a round tower said to date from the time of Emp. Henry I. — 28 M. Wolkenstein (1540 ft.; Sächsischer Hof), with 2100 inhab., has a partly-ruined château. About 2 M. from the town are the warm springs (88°) of the same name, with a Curhaus. — 29 M. Wiesbaden is another little watering-place with a Curhaus and springs (62°). — 35 M. Annaberg (1870 ft.; Wilder Mann, D. 2 M.; Museum*; Rail. Restaurant*; Bahl's Restaurant, with garden and view), a town with 15,000 inhab., busily occupied in making lace and trimmings, which are largely exported to the United States (American Consulate). Annaberg was founded in 1496 and first attained importance through its mines, now of little value. Lace-making was introduced in 1561 by Barbara Uttmann (1514-75), a statue of whom stands in the market-place. The Annabergkirche, built in 1498-1525 and restored in 1884, contains some interesting works of art. The sculptures on the 'Schöne Pforte' are particularly noteworthy. On the sides of the galleries are 100 painted reliefs, of 1523, representing biblical, legendary, and humorous scenes. The high-altar, the work of A. Dowher of Augsburg, and the pulpit are adorned with reliefs of the same period. Several old German pictures also deserve notice: Woman taken in adultery, by Cranach the Younger, Coronation of the Virgin, and St. Catharine*, by an unknown master of the 16th century. The smith's work on the sacristy door is admirably executed. Near the church is a Statue of Luther, by Völker (1833). — A branch-railway runs hence to (18½ M.) Schwarzenberg (p. 325) in 1¼ hr. — 38 M. Buchholz (1880 ft.; Deutsches Haus; Restaurant Felsenschlösschen), a town of 8000 inhab., lies on the Schma. The Gothic church of St. Catharine contains some paintings of Wolgemut's school. — The Austrian custom-house is at (48½ M.) Wespert (2340 ft.). — From (55 M.) Schmiedeberg (2790 ft.; Kalla's Inn) excursions may be made to Joachimsthal and Carlsbad (see Baedeker's Austria), viâ (4½ M.) Oberwiesenthal (2995 ft.; Inns), whence the Fischelberg (3980 ft.) may be ascended, and (7 M.) Gottesgab, whence the Keilberg (p. 323; 1 hr.) may be ascended. — At (70½ M.) Krima-Neudorf this line unites with the one above described. — 81 M. Komotau.

FROM CHERMNTZ TO ADOLF, 72 M., railway in about 5 hrs. (fares 9 M 20, 6 M 90, 4 M 60 pf.). — The first important station is (23 M.) Zwönitz (1800 ft.), ½ M. from the little town of that name (Ross). About 4 M. to the S. of Zwönitz (diligence thrice daily) lies Grünhain (Rathskeller), a small town amid wooded hills, with the remains of a Cistercian convent founded in 1238, now used as a reformatory. About 5 M. to the S.E. of Zwönitz (diligence twice daily) lies Elterlein (Sonne), a small town, surrounded by woods, near which are the Schatsenstein (2505 ft.). — The train now crosses the ridge (1820 ft.) and descends (1:40) in three long windings to the Lösnitz-Thal. — 31½ M. Aue, the junction of the Zwickau-Schwarzenberg line (p. 325). We next ascend the valley of the Mulde. — 43 M. Eibensteck (2100 ft.; Stadt Leipzig), a town of 7200 inhab., 1½ M. to the E. of the station, the chief seat of the tambour embroidery. Romanesque church built in 1884-88. — From (63 M.) Zwota (2210 ft.) a branch-railway runs to (5 M.) Klingenthal, Grasslitz, and Falkenau (see Baedeker's Austria). — The railway continues to descend rapidly. 69 M. Markneukirchen (1540 ft.), 1 M. from the town, which is the centre of the Ergebirge manufacture of musical instruments. Fine views from the Obers Berg and the Hohle Stein (2550 ft.). — 72 M. Adorf (1100 ft.; Goldener Löwe; Victoria), a small town in the valley of the Weiße Elster, and the junction for the Leipzig and Eger railway (see p. 349).

70 M. Glauchau (800 ft.; Deutsches Haus; Stadt Hamburg), a manufacturing town with 24,900 inhab., with a château of the counts of Schönburg, lies on the Mulde. U.S. Consul, Geo. Sawter, Esq.

FROM GLAUCHAU TO GÖSSNITZ, 10 M., railway in ½ hr. (fares 1 M 30 pf., 1 M 60 pf.). The only intermediate station is (7 M.) Moeran (Härls), an active industrial town with 23,000 inhabitants. 10 M. Gössnitz, on the Leipzig, Hof, and Eger line (p. 349).

From Glauchau to Grossbothen, see p. 329.

Beyond Glauchau the train crosses the Mulde by a long bridge, and runs along the left bank. 75 M. Mosel.

80 M. Zwickau (930 ft.; Kästner, Wagner*, near the station; Post; Grüne Tanne, R., L., & A. 2½ M.; Weisser Hirsch, Weintraube, unpretending), an old manufacturing town with 50,400 inhab., on the once important commercial route from the Danube to E. Franconia, lies on the Mulde.

The Marienkirche*, the best example of late-Gothic architecture in Saxony, was built in 1453-1536 on the model of the church of St. Lawrence in Nuremberg, and was thoroughly restored in 1885-91. Nave, aisles, and choir are all covered with flat groined vaulting. The buttresses are prolonged into the interior of the church to serve as supports for the galleries in the aisles.

Winged altar-piece in carved wood, with paintings by Wolgemit, executed in 1479, representing Mary and the eight holy women. The Sacristy contains similar carvings, dating from 1507, and a highly interesting Pietà in painted wood-carving by an unknown Saxon master (15th cent.). Handsome choir-stalls. Fine view from the tower (227 ft.). The sacristan lives on the N. side of the church.

The Catharinenkirche of the 14th and 15th cent., subsequently altered, contains an altar-piece of 1518. Thomas Münzer (p. 391) was pastor here in 1520-22. Adjacent is the château of Osterstein, built in 1590, now a penitentiary. — In the market-place are the Rathhaus of 1581, the late-Gothic Kaufhaus (now a theatre) of 1522-24, and other fine old buildings; also the new Zwickau Bank and the house (No. 5) in which the composer Robert Schumann (1810-1856) was born (with a medallion). In front of the Gymnasium is a War Monument. Opposite are the Law Courts, the Post Office, and the Realschule.

The environs are well-peopled. The important coal-mines of this district employ upwards of 11,000 hands.

From Zwickau to Oelsnitz (p. 349), 37 M., railway in about 2 hrs., viâ Lengenfeld, Auerbach, and Falkenstein; to Werdau, see p. 349.

FROM ZWICKAU TO JOHANNESGEORGENSTADT (Carlsbad), 8½ M., railway in 3¼-4¼ hrs. (fares to Schwarzenberg 2 M. 50, 1 M. 70 pf.; from Schwarzenberg to Johannesgeorgenstadt 1 M. 10, 80 pf.). — The train ascends the valley of the Zwickauer Mulde, through a busy district rich in coal. From (3¼ M.) Wilkau a branch-line runs to (21 M.) Wiltschhausen. About 2 M. to the E. of (10 M.) Fährbrücke is the small town of Wildenfels, with a château. — 12½ M. Stein, with a picturesque old castle; 1 M. to the N.E. is Hartenstein, the birthplace of the poet Paul Fleming (1609-40), commemorated by a bronze monument erected in 1896. — 16 M. Niederschlema (1090 ft.), with paper-mills. [Branch-line from Niederschlema (in 25 min.; 40, 30 pf.) to (3 M.) Schneeberg (1525 ft.; Sächsisches Haus; Sonne), a mining and lace-making town with 8300 inhabitants. The late-Gothic church, erected in 1516-40, contains a large altar-piece, with wings, representing the Crucifixion, painted by Cranach the Elder and his pupils in 1539. The tower (280 ft.) commands a fine view. The numerous mines in the vicinity, formerly rich in silver, now chiefly produce cobalt, bismuth, and nickel.] — 18½ M. Aue (Erzgebirgischer Hof), a small town pleasantly situated in a hollow at the confluence of the Mulde and the Schwarzwasser, is the junction for Chemnitz and Adorf (p. 324). — The line then ascends the valley of the Schwarzwasser to (25 M.) Schwarzenberg (1400 ft.; Sächsischer Hof; Rathskeller), a small town with an old Schloss, on an eminence skirted by the Schwarzwasser. Railway to Annaberg, see p. 324. — The railway continues to ascend the valley of the Schwarzwasser. — 35½ M. Johann-georgenstadt (2460 ft.; Hôtel de Saxe; Rathhaus), a small town (5300 inhab.) on the left bank of the Schwarzwasser. In the market-place is a statue of Elector John George, who founded the town in 1654 as a refuge for Bohemian Protestant exiles. — From Johanngeorgenstadt a diligence plies twice daily in 5 hrs. (fare 3 M 40 pf.) to (20 M.) Carlsbad (see Basdeker's Austria).

At (89 M.) Neumark we join the line from Leipsic to Reichenbach and Hof (p. 349).

46. From Dresden to Leipsic.

a. Via Riesa.

74 M. RAILWAY. Express in 2¼ hrs. (fares 10 M 50, 7 M 80, 5 M 60 pf.); ordinary trains in 3-3¼ hrs. (9 M 30 pf., 7 M, 4 M 70 pf.).

The train starts from the Altstadt (Bohemian Station, p. 280), describes a wide bend towards the N. between the town and its W. suburbs, and crosses the Elbe to the (2¼ M.) Leipsic Station in the Neustadt (p. 280). Beyond the town it skirts the Lössnitz, a range of vine-clad hills with numerous villas. — 5¾ M. Radebeul.

FROM RADEBEUL TO RADEBURG, 10¼ M., railway in 1 hr. — 5½ M. Moritzburg-Eisenberg, near which are the village of Eisenberg (Adam's Inn) and the royal shooting-box of Moritzburg, situated on a rocky islet in a large pond. The Moritzburg was begun in 1542 by the Elector Maurice and completed under Augustus the Strong by Pöppelmann (p. 280); the interior is interesting. — 10¼ M. Radeburg (Hirsch), an industrial town on the Röder.

7 M. Weintraube, ½ M. from the station of which is the Paradies, a favourite resort of the Dresdeners. 8 M. Kötzschenbroda, near which is the restaurant of Friedensburg; 10½ M. Coswig, the junction for Meissen and Döbeln (see p. 327).

14¼ M. Niederau. From (21 M.) Priestewitz a branch-line diverges to Grossenhain (3 M.; p. 279). 28¾ M. Langenberg is the junction of the Berlin line (p. 279). Röderau (see below) lies on the right bank of the Elbe. The train crosses the Elbe.

33 M. Riesa (Rail. Restaurant; Railway Hotel), a busy town on the Elbe (11,800 inhab.), is the junction for several railways.

FROM RIESA TO CHEMNITZ, 41 M., railway in 1½-2¼ hrs. (fares 5 M 40, 4 M 10, 2 M 70 pf.). — 16 M. Döbeln is the junction of the Leipsic, Meissen, and Dresden line (see p. 329). The train crosses the Freiberger Mulde here, and the Zschopau farther on, commanding several pleasing views of the valley of the latter. 22 M. Waldheim, a small town with a large prison. — 30 M. Mittweida ("Sächsischer Hof"), a busy town with 13,400 inhab. and a technical school for mechanical engineers. — On a lofty rock on the right bank of the Zschopau, 1 M. to the N. of (35 M.) Oberlichtenau, is the château of Sachsenburg; 1½ M. to the S. lies the extensive château of Lichtenwalde, with beautiful fountains. — 41 M. Chemnitz, see p. 322.

FROM RIESA TO FREIBERG, 35 M., railway in 3¼-4¼ hrs. (fares 4 M 80, 3 M 60, 2 M 40 pf.). 8½ M. Lommatzsch (3000 inhab.), on the Jahna, in the most fertile part of Saxony. 20¼ M. Nossen, also a station on the Leipsic, Döbeln, and Dresden line (p. 329). — 35 M. Freiberg (p. 320).

Lines also run from Riesa to (2½ M.) Röderau (p. 279) and (16 M.) Elsterwerda (p. 279).

41 M. Oschatz (Weisses Ross), an attractive town (10,000 inhab.) with a church with a lofty tower.

FROM OSCHATZ TO NERCHAU, 21½ M., railway in ca. 2½ hrs. 7 M. Mügel (see below). At the Hubertsburg, an old château near (14 M.) Wermendorf, a peace terminating the Seven Years' War was concluded by Austria, Prussia, and Saxony in 1763. — 21½ M. Nerchau (see below).

FROM OSCHATZ TO DÖBELN, 19 M., railway in 2¾ hrs. — 7 M. Mügel (Hirsch), with 2600 inhab., on the Döllnitz. — 19 M. Döbeln (p. 329).

FROM OSCHATZ TO STREHLA, 7 M., railway in about ½ hr. Steamboat from Strehla to Dresden (fare 1 M. 85 pf.).

46½ M. Dahlen (to the left rises the Kolmberg, 995 ft., with a view-tower); 51½ M. Dornreichenbach.

57½ M. Wurzen (Post), a manufacturing place of 15,600 inhab., with an old cathedral and château (view from the tower). It is the junction of a line to (15½ M.) Grossbothen (p. 329), passing Nerchau (see above) and Grimma (p. 330).

The Mulde is now crossed. 66½ M. Borsdorf; 70½ M. Paunsdorf. — 74 M. Leipzig, see p. 330.

b. VIA Döbeln.

82 M. RAILWAY in 3-4 hrs. (fares 9 M. 30 pf., 7 M., 4 M. 70 pf.). This route is longer, but more attractive than the above.

As far as (10½ M.) Coswig the route is the same as the preceding. The train crosses the Elbe, and soon reaches — 16 M. Meissen. — Hotels. BLAUER STERN (Pl. a), Leipziger-Str., E., L., & A. 1½-2¼, D. 2 M., B. 80 pf.; SONNE; HIRSCH, in the market-place; GOLDENER LÖWE (Pl. c); BAHNHOF-HOTEL. — Restaurants. Rathskeller, in the old Rathaus, which dates from 1471; Burgkeller, by the cathedral; Katzengarten, with garden, near the station. — Cab from the station or steamboat-quay to the Albrechtsburg or to the porcelain-factory, 1 pers. 80 pf., 2 pers. 1 M. 20 pf.

Travellers coming from Leipzig to visit the porcelain-factory should alight at Triebischthal (p. 329).

Meissen (360 ft.), one of the most ancient towns in Saxony, founded about 930 by King Henry I. and the seat of the Margraves of Meissen down to 1090, is most picturesquely situated at the influx of the Triebisch and the Meisse into the Elbe, which is here crossed by two bridges. Pop. 18,800.

On leaving the station we turn to the right, cross the old Elbe bridge, and follow the Untere Elbgasse to the Heinrichs-Platz, in which is a fountain-figure of Henry I. and the Franciscan Church (sculptures in the cloisters; 25 pf.). Farther on is the Grosse Markt. We next follow the Burg-Strasse to the right, passing under the Schlossbrücke, then turn to the left, cross the bridge, and reach the Schlossberg, 160 ft. above the town, on which stand the cathedral and the Albrechtsburg. In front of the latter is a bronze Statue of Albert the Brave (1443-1600), by Hultzsch (1876).

The *CATHEDRAL was founded in the 13th, and completed in the two following centuries. The S.E. tower (254 ft.), with its elegant spire, dates from the 15th century. The portals and the interior are adorned with numerous interesting sculptures.

INTERIOR (the sacristan lives at Dom-Platz 7; adm. ½, 2-4 pers. 1 M.). In the Johannis-Kapelle (1291) are good carved figures of John the Baptist, and of the Madonna and Child with an angel (?); and in the choir are four statues (Emp. Otho I. and his wife, St. John the Evangelist, and Bishop Donatus) resembling the statues in the cathedrals of Bamberg and Naumburg. Most of the ancestors of the royal family of Saxony of the 15th and 16th cent. repose in this church. The finest monument is that of Friedrich 'der Streifbare' (d. 1428), in bronze, in the Fürsten-Kapelle (built in 1428-25), in front of the W. portal. The 'Brasses of the Duchess Sidonia (d. 1510) and the Duchess Amalia, and those of the princes Ernest (d. 1486) and Albert (d. 1500), the founders of the present reigning lines (see p. 348), all probably from the workshop of Hermann Vischer and his son Peter, are noteworthy. The reliefs over the portal of this chapel (1342) should also be noticed. — The Georgen-Kapelle, adjoining the Fürsten-Kapelle, with the tomb of George the Bearded (d. 1539) and his wife Barbara, contains a small altar-piece by Lucas Cranach the Elder, representing Christ between St. Mary and St. John, with George and Barbara on the wings (1534). On the screen between the nave and choir is a winged altar-piece, with early-German paintings (Crucifixion in the middle). In the choir is a similar altar-piece, with paintings (Adoration of the Magi, with saints and a portrait of Bishop Sigismund, the donor) by a German master under Netherlandish influence (1443). The central stained-glass window in the choir (restored) dates from the 14th century. — Near the cathedral is a small cloister with the Magdalenen-Kapelle.

The ALBRECHTSBURG, erected in 1471-83 by the brothers and co-regents Ernest and Albert, from plans by Arnold of Westphalia, is one of the most extensive castles of that period, with remarkably fine vaulting and staircase. From 1710 to 1864 it was occupied by the royal porcelain-factory. Since 1873 it has been thoroughly restored, and decorated with frescoes illustrative of its history by modern German artists. The windows command a number of beautiful views. Visitors are conducted through the Schloss by the castellan from 9 a.m. to 4, 5, 6, or 7 p.m. according to the season; fee for 1-5 pers. 2 M., each additional pers. 40 pf. The entrance is behind the statue of Duke Albert (see p. 327).

A handsome spiral staircase ('Grosser Wendelstein') ascends to the FIRST FLOOR, debouching on the Church Hall, which is adorned with frescoes by Diétrich: Foundation of Meissen by the Emperor Henry I. (about 980); Storming of the castle by the Poles (1015); Entry of Conrad the Great, Margrave of Meissen (1127); princes and princesses of the Wettin family. The adjoining Johannis-Kapelle contains an altar of the 15th cent.; on the side-walls, to the right, Bishop Benno of Meissen, to the left, Emperor Otho I. — The Large Banqueting Hall* contains excellent painted wooden figures of several Saxon princes, carved by Schneider from designs by modern German artists. The frescoes represent: the Abduction of the Saxon princes (three pictures), by Oehme; Victory of Albert the Brave at the tournament at Pirna (1459); Investiture of Ernest and Albert by the Emperor Frederick III. (1486), both by Diétrich. — The frescoes in the Small Banqueting Hall include the Betrothal of Albert the Brave and Princess Sidonia of Bohemia (1445), by Hoffmann, and four landscapes by the younger Preller, representing Grimma, Albert's birthplace, Eger, where he was married, Tharandt, his favourite residence, and Emden, his burial place. The Large and Small Electors' Rooms (Kurfürstenzimmer), on the other side of the Church Hall, are adorned with nine pictures, by Scholz, of scenes from the life of Albert.

SECOND FLOOR. The Böttger Room contains two paintings by Kieselring: Böttger as an alchemist (1706) and Augustus the Strong in Böttger's laboratory (1710). — Small Judgment Hall: Opening of the Fürsten-Schule at Meissen by the Elector Maurice (1543); Arrival at Meissen of students from Leipzig (1547), both by Spieß. — Large Judgment Hall. The frescoes, by Marshall, represent an Ecclesiastical Council under Maurice (1548) and the Death of Maurice after the battle of Sievershausen (1553). The adjoining Tower Room* commands a good view. — A Vestibule (Father Augustus's Room), with wall-paintings by Gey, leads to the finely-vaulted Armoury, with an elaborate chimney-piece and pictures of Saxon castles by Choulant. The Ladies' Apartment ('Frauentgemach'), with 15 portraits of Saxon princesses (school-pieces), and the Velvet-Makers' Room are uninteresting.

On the Afra-Berg, which is connected with the Schlossberg by the above-mentioned bridge of the 13th cent., is the new building of the Fürstenschule, where Gellert (1729-34) and Lessing (1741-46) received their early education. The Gothic Church of St. Afra, built in 1295-1329, was afterwards altered.

The celebrated Royal Porcelain-Manufactory (7-800 workmen) is now established in the Triebisch-Thal, $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. from the Grosse Markt (p. 327). It is shown on week-days 7-12 (winter 8-12) and 2-6 (Sat. 2-4); fee 2 M. for 1 pers., or 1 M. for each member of a party. The manufactory was founded in 1710, the year after Böttger (d. 1719; bust in the Neugasse) had discovered the art of making 'china'.

Among several beautiful points of view in the environs of Meissen may be mentioned Schloss Scharfenberg; the rocky height of the Poehl, near Börnewitz; and Schloss Siebenbrunn, all steamboat-stations between Dresden and Meissen (see p. 232).

$17\frac{1}{2}$ M. Triebischtal, near which is the Meissen porcelain-factory (see above). At (30 M.) Nossen (branch-line to Freiberg), with a Schloss, the pretty valley of the Mulde is entered. On a wooded hill to the left beyond it are the ruins of the monastery of Zella, with a burial-chapel of the margraves of the house of Wettin. From (35 M.) Rosswein a branch-line diverges to Chemnitz (see p. 323).

42 M. Döbeln (Sonne), a thriving little town with 15,800 inhab. (to Riesa and Chemnitz, see p. 326; to Oschatz, p. 327). — $46\frac{1}{2}$ M. Klosterbuch, with a ruined abbey and beautiful walks. — 50 M. Leisnig (Goldener Löwe), a manufacturing town with 7800 inhab., is commanded by Schloss Mildenstein. The little watering-place of Mildenstein, on the Mulde, is a favourite summer-resort. To the right of (54 M.) Tannendorf rises the finely-situated Schloss Kössern. — 59 M. Grossbothen.

FROM GROSSBOTHEN TO GLAUCHAU, 35 M., railway in about 2 hrs. (fares 4 M. 60, 3 M. 50, 2 M. 30 pf.). The railway, coming from Wurzen and Grimma, traverses the pretty Muldenthal, which offers many charms to the pedestrian. — 4 M. Oelditz (Kreuz), a small town on the Zwickauer Mulde, commanded by an old castle, now a lunatic asylum. — $10\frac{1}{2}$ M. Rochlitz (Löwe; Sächsischer Hof), an ancient town of 6800 inhab., with an old electoral Château with two towers. Of its three churches the late-Gothic Kunigunden-Kirche is the most interesting. The Rochlitzer Berg (1115 ft. above the sea, 630 ft. above the river), $2\frac{1}{2}$ M. from the town, with a tower, commands a beautiful view. A branch-line diverges hence to Narsdorf and Penig (see below); another to Waldheim. — $15\frac{1}{2}$ M. Wechselburg (Sächsischer Hof), with a château, the late-Romanesque chapel of which, containing interesting late-Romanesque and Gothic 'Sculptures', was formerly the church of the Augustine abbey of Zschillen (founded 1174). — The train now passes under the imposing Göhrener Viaduct (p. 323). $23\frac{1}{2}$ M. Penig (Stadt Leipzig), a small town of 6800 inhab., where the above-mentioned line to Narsdorf and Rochlitz diverges. — 27 M. Wolkentburg, with a château and park and a church of 1794. — 90 M. Waldenburg (Goldener Löwe), the residence of Prince Schönburg-Waldenburg. — 96 M. Glauchau (p. 324).

From Grossbothen to Wurzen, see p. 327.

63½ M. Grimma (Löwe; Schiff; Kronprinz), picturesquely situated on the Mulde, with 9800 inhab.; also a station ('Untere Bahnhof') on the Wurzen-Grossbothen line (p. 327). The electoral Schloss, by the Mulde bridge, is now occupied by public offices. The Fürsten-Schule, in a handsome new building, farther up the river, was established in 1550. The Gattersburg Restaurant, ½ M. from the upper or Dresden station, commands a fine view. Pleasant wood-walks on the opposite bank of the Mulde. The convent of Nimbschen, where Catharine von Bora, Luther's wife, was once a nun, now lies in ruins (station, see p. 327).

The line traverses the valley of the Parthe. Stations: Gross-Steinberg, Naunhof, and (75 M.) Borsdorf, where the Riesa line (p. 327) is reached.

47. Leipsic.

Arrival. Cab-tickets are issued at the stations, as at Berlin; tariff, see p. 331. Electric tramways pass all the stations, but these are of comparatively little use to the stranger with luggage (comp. p. 331). There are six principal railway-stations at Leipsic. 1. BAVARIAN STATION (Pl. E, 6, 7), for Chemnitz, Hof (Munich, Nuremberg), Eger (Carlsbad, Vienna, and Munich via Ratisbon), and Berlin. 2. BERLIN STATION, 1 M. to the N. of the town (see Pl. F, 1), for trains to Berlin. 3. MAGDEBURG STATION (Pl. E, 2, 3), for Halle (Cassel, Vienenburg), Magdeburg, Hanover (Cologne), Hamburg, and Bremen. 4. DRESDEN STATION (Pl. E, 3), for Dresden, Görlitz, Breslau, and Chemnitz. 5. THURINGIAN STATION (Pl. E, 2), for Weimar, Eisenach, and Frankfurt on the Main, and for Gera and Saalfeld. 6. EILENBURG STATION (Pl. G, 5), for Cottbus, Sorau, Guben, Breslau, etc.

Leipsic, Ger. Leipzig (385 ft.), one of the most important commercial towns in Germany, with 398,500 inhab., including a garrison of 3300 men, and the centre of the German book-trade, is the seat of the supreme law-courts of the German Empire, and of one of the most ancient and important universities in Europe. The city lies in an extensive plain, near the confluence of the Elster, the Pleisse, and the Parthe. The interior of the city consists of lofty and closely-built houses, dating chiefly from the 17th and 18th cent., and is surrounded by pleasant Promenades (about 2 M. round) on the site of the old fortifications, beyond which lie the inner suburbs, enclosed in their turn by a girdle of outer suburbs (Reudnitz, Neustadt, Gohlis, Lindenau, Plagwitz, Connewitz, Eutritzsch), incorporated with the city since 1889-91.

Leipsic derives its name from a Slavonic village, called Lipsi or Lipsk ('the town of the lime-trees'), beside which a Germanic settlement is mentioned at the beginning of the 11th century. This town, situated at the intersection of the trade-routes between Poland and Thuringia and between North Germany and Bohemia, was endowed with privileges by Otho the Rich, Margrave of Meissen, who forbade markets to be held within a radius of four miles. Markets were held at Leipsic biennially at 'Jubilate' and Michaelmass, but it was not until the 15th cent., that the Leipsic Fairs attained any great importance. In 1458 a New Year's Fair was added to the number, and in 1497 and 1507 the Emp. Maximilian confirmed the privileges of the town by prohibiting markets to be held at any town within a wide circle around, and by guaranteeing a safe conduct to all the frequenters of the Leipsic fairs. The trade of Leipsic was temporarily depressed by the various wars of the 17th and 18th cent., but the fairs retained their importance until the development of new commercial methods fostered by railways and telegraphs. The Jubilate Fair (Easter) and to some extent the Michaelmas Fair are still of importance, especially for furs, of which nearly one million pounds' worth change hands annually; next in value are leather, cloth, woollen wares, glass, and linen.

Leipsic is still more important as the centre of the Book Trade of Germany, a position which it has occupied since the middle of the 18th century. There are over 700 booksellers' shops and publishers' offices and over 100 printing-offices in the town, and publishers in other parts of Germany almost invariably have depots of their books at Leipsic, whence they are sent to all parts of Europe and more distant countries. On the Monday after Cantate (fourth Sun. after Easter) the yearly balancing of accounts takes place (p. 338).

On the E. side of the old town the promenades are interrupted by the spacious AUGUSTUS-PLATZ (Pl. E, 4), which is enclosed by the New Theatre, the Museum, the University (p. 334), and the Post Office (with a façade surmounted by six allegorical statues by Kaffsack). The fine monumental fountain (Mende-Brunnen) in front of the Museum was erected in 1886.

The New Theatre (Pl. E, 4), a handsome building in the Renaissance style, designed by C. F. Langhans of Berlin, was completed in 1867. The principal façade is adorned with a Corinthian portico. The back of the building, with its semicircular projecting terrace, adjoins the Schwanenteich, a miniature lake, where a fountain rises to a height of 66 ft., producing a very picturesque effect. The interior is also worthy of a visit (open daily, 2-4 p.m.; 50 pf.). — The Goethe-Strasse leads to the N. past the New Theatre to the Dresden and Magdeburg Stations. At the corner of this street and of the Ritter-Str. is the unpretending Royal Palace (Pl. 14). Farther on, in the grounds near the stations, is an Obelisk (Pl. 30) commemorating the construction of the Leipsic and Dresden Railway, which was the first of any importance in Germany (opened in 1837), and not far from it a bust of G. Harkort (d. 1866), the founder and promoter of this railway.

Opposite the theatre stands the *Museum (Pl. E, 4), erected from designs by Prof. L. Lange in 1858 and enlarged by Licht in 1883-86. In the niches in front are statues of Dürer and Holbein, by Hähnel; on the W. end, of Rembrandt and Rubens, by Zurstrassen; on the E. end, of Raphael and Michael Angelo, by Werner Stein. On the groundfloor are the sculptures and on the first floor the picture-gallery, including an excellent modern collection.

The Museum is open daily, 10-4 (10-3 in winter, Mon. 12-3 or 12-4, Sun. 10.30-3); adm. on Mon. 1 M., Tues., Thurs., and Sat. 50 pf., Sun. during the fairs 25 pf., at other times free. Catalogue 1 M.

Ground Floor. To the right are the rooms of the Kunstverein (p. 331), adm. 50 pf. To the left are the ticket-office and the cloak-room, beyond which is Room I: Sketches, water-colours, cartoons. 33. Hähnel, Bacchic procession, cast. — Rooms II-IV: Water-colours and drawings. — Room V: 2A. Wieland, Prometheus; no number, Männchen, Peace. — Room VIa: Pernoster, Condemnation (marble); Montanes (?), Mater Dolorosa (painted). — Room VI: Casts of works by Michael Angelo. Also *Salome and *Cassandra, two coloured marbles by M. Klinger. — Rooms VII-IX: Casts of Italian sculptures of the 14-17th centuries. Magr, Fate (relief). — Room X: Casts of modern works. Here also are original works in marble by Thorvaldsen (*80. Ganymede and the eagle), Hildebrand (*159. Adam), Kopf, Rauch, Donndorf, Schilling, etc. — Rooms XI, XII: Casts of German works of the 18th and 19th centuries.

First Floor. Room I: *Cartoons by Preller (landscapes illustrative of the Odyssey; comp. p. 358). — Room II: Paintings by old Italian and Spanish Masters (104. Murillo, Madonna and Child); 714. Frie, Faith (trip-tych); *713. Herkomer, Emigrants; 719. Thoma, On the Main; marble *Statues of Phidias, by Schilling, and of Raphael, by Hähnel. — Room III: Frescoes by Gross. — Room IV: 270. Veit, Germania. — The following —

Rooms V-XV contain pictures by Preller, Lindenschmit, Schrader, Heine, Spangenberg, Achenbach (Room VII, *543. Moonlight on the Bay of Naples), Deztrager, Vautier, Lendach (Room XII, 601. Emperor William I.; *600. Prince Bismarck), Von Göbhardt, Böcklin (Room VII, *563. Island of the dead), etc.

Rooms XVI-XXVII contain pictures of the ancient and modern Dutch and German Schools, by Verboeckhoven, Kesckhook, Ley, Van Hove, Knaus, Meyerheim, Rembrandt (347, B. XXII), Cranach (BB. XXIII, XXIV), etc.

Rooms XXVIII-XXX contain works of the modern French School, by Vernet, Robert, Biard, Delacroix (Room XXIX, *55. Napoleon at Fontainebleau), Calame (Room XXX, *25. Monte Rosa; *26. Oaks in a storm; *27.

Pæstum; *28. Fall of rocks in the Hasli valley), and Gudén (Room XXX, *98. Sea-piece).

In the Upper Rooms is a Collection of Engravings and Photographs, illustrating the history of painting from the 13th cent. to the present time.

The Augusteum, on the W. side of the Augustus-Platz, erected in 1831-36 from designs by Schinkel, and handsomely restored since 1894, forms part of the University Buildings (Pl. E, 4), which include also the Fridericianum, the Mauricianum, the Bornermanum, etc. The University, founded in 1409, is now attended by over 3000 students. (Medical faculty, see p. 337.)

The Aula, in the Augusteum, contains a monument to students who fell in the war of 1870-71, a number of busts and statues by Knauer and Rietschel, and twelve *Reliefs by the latter, illustrative of the development of civilisation.

The adjacent Paulinerkirche (Pl. 50) was founded in the 13th century. The choir, built in 1519-21, was demolished in 1546. The church contains a monument by Rietschel to Margrave Diezmänn of Meissen, assassinated in St. Thomas's in 1307. — To the S.W. of the Museum, near the I. Bürgerschule, rises a Statue of Thaer (Pl. 46; D, E, 4), the agriculturist (d. 1828), by Rietschel; and close by is a memorial stone with a medallion-portrait (Pl. 43) of Robert Schumann (d. 1856), who lived in Leipsic in 1830-44.

The busy GRIMMA'SCHE STRASSE (Pl. D, E, 4), which contains several handsome old houses, particularly No. 30 (on the left), the Fürstenhaus, completed about 1558, at the corner of Universitäts-Str., leads from the Augustus-Platz to the market-place. The old Gewandhaus (Pl. 24), or Hall of the Foreign Cloth-merchants, Universitäts-Str. 16, well known for the famous concerts which took place here annually for over a century (comp. p. 337), was altered for business-purposes in 1894. On the first floor is the Municipal Library (open Mon. & Thurs. 11-1, on Tues., Wed., Frid., & Sat. 3-5), consisting of 110,000 vols. and 1500 MSS. — A few paces to the N. of the Fürstenhaus is the Nicolaikirche (Pl. 49; E, 4), a building of 1513-25, with an interior restored in the so-called classical style in 1785-96. Beside the S. door (outside) is a Gothic stone pulpit in a vaulted recess. Opposite the church, to the N., is the Clergy House; and to the E., in the Ritter-Str., is the old Booksellers' Exchange (comp. p. 338), now belonging to the university.

The Grimma'sche-Str. next passes the small Naschmarkt, with the Old Exchange, erected in 1678-82. Opposite its S. end is Auerbach's Keller (p. 331), celebrated as the scene of a part of Goethe's Faust, with curious mural paintings of the 16th cent. (restored in 1863), representing the tradition on which the play was based.

The centre of the old town is occupied by the MARKET PLACE (Pl. D, 3, 4), whence radiate the Grimma'sche-Str. on the E., the busy Peters-Str. on the S., the Thomas-Gasse (widened in 1895) on the W., and the Katharinen-Str. and Hain-Str. on the N. The square is embellished with the *War Monument, by Siemering, erected in 1888. This is surmounted by a Germania; the pedestal bears a seated figure of Emp. William I., and is surrounded by equestrian figures of the Crown-Prince Frederick William, Prince (now King) Albert of Saxony, Moltke, and Bismarck. On the E. side of the market-place rises the quaint old Rathhaus (Pl. 20), built by Hieronymus Lotter in 1556.

The N. part of the old town is intersected by the wide BRÜHL (Pl. D, E, 3), a great resort of the Jewish frequenters of the fairs, and containing the offices of many wholesale fur-dealers, which runs from the Goethe-Str. (p. 333), on the E., to the Theater-Platz (see below), on the W. Richard Wagner (1813-83), the composer, was born at No. 3 in this street (memorial tablet), near the W. end. — On the Promenade to the N. of the old town are the Permanent Exhibition of Machinery and Furniture (adm. 10-6) and the Exchange (Pl. D, 2, 3), a handsome building of 1884-86.

At the W. end of the Brühl is the Theater-Platz, in which stands the Old Theatre (Pl. 1; C, D, 3), built about 1770, near which is a monument (Pl. 34) to Hahnemann (d. 1843), the father of homœopathy.

A small monument at the end of the Ranstädter Steinweg (Pl. 45; B, 3) commemorates the premature blowing up of the bridge by the French on 19th Oct., 1813, which proved so fatal to their rear-guard. The spot where Prince Poniatowski was drowned in the Elster on that occasion is indicated by a monument with the Polish eagle (Pl. 41; B, 3; Lessing-Str., at the S. end of the Besirke-Schule), but the ground has been completely built over since then.

Following the Promenade to the S. from Hahnemann's monument, we pass on the left the Matthäikirche (Pl. 48; C, 3), built in 1494-1504, and beyond it, also to the left, the Church of St. Thomas (Pl. D, 4), with its lofty and conspicuous roof, consecrated in 1496. Both churches have lately been restored. Motett, sung by the boys of the Thomas-Schule, of which J. S. Bach was 'cantor' in 1723-50, see p. 331. In the place on the S. side of the church (Pl. 39) is a bronze Statue of Leibnitz (1646-1716), a native of Leipzig, by Hähnel, erected in 1883. — Opposite, at No. 16, is the rich Historical Museum of Music (adm. daily, 10-12.30).

The S.W. corner of the inner town is occupied by the Pleissenburg (Pl. C, D, 4, 5), erected in 1549-51, formerly the citadel, now containing barracks. This building, however, is about to be pulled down to make room for new streets. To the W., on the other side of the Pleisse, is the Roman Catholic Church (1846; Pl. C, 5), beyond which we may cross the N. end of the Johanna Park (Pl. B, 5) to the Anglo-American Church (Pl. 53; B, 4; see p. 332). The Carl Tauchnitz-Strasse, a new street with handsome residences, leads to the W. from the Pleissenburg. To the S. rise the imposing new Supreme Courts (p. 336).

To the E. of the Pleissenburg begins the Peters-Str. (p. 334), at the entrance of which (corner of Schiller-Str.) is the Imperial Bank (Reichsbank; Pl. 21, D, 4).

The KÖNIGS-PLATZ (Pl. D, 5), with a poor marble Statue of King Frederick Augustus (Pl. 32) by Oeser, lies to the S. of the Pleissenburg.

The S. side of this square is occupied by the Grassi Museum (Pl. D, 5), containing Ethnographical and Art-Industrial Collections. Adm. on Sun. and holidays, 10.30-3, free (on Sun. during the fairs 25 pf.), Mon. 12-3, 1 M., Tues., Thurs., Sat. 10-3, 50 pf., Wed. and Frid. 10-3, free. The building, erected in 1893-96 by H. Licht, from a bequest by Herr D. Grassi (d. 1880), has a ground-floor in rustica work, above which rise twelve semi-columns, bearing a Baroque pediment. The figures in relief on the pedestals of the columns refer to the double purpose of the museum: to the left, Asia, America, Africa, and Australia; to the right, Painting, Stained Glass, Pottery, Goldsmiths' Work.

The centre of the front building is occupied by the imposing staircase. ART-INDUSTRIAL MUSEUM. To the right, on the ground-floor, are the collections of pottery and glass, a rich collection of wrought iron-work, works in tin and bronze, and the valuables belonging to the city of Leipzig. On the first floor are collections illustrating painting and book-binding, impressions of seals, and works in wood and ivory, including a collection of furniture, ending in a handsome Renaissance room from the castle of Flims in the Grisons. The extensive collection of textiles is exhibited on the first floor of the front building. — The ETHNOGRAPHICAL MUSEUM is the richest collection of the kind in Germany next to that in Berlin. On the ground-floor, to the left, are articles from Australia and the South Sea Islands; on the first floor, collections from Siam, China, Japan, Korea, and other Mongolian countries; and in the remaining rooms are objects from Africa and America.

The Market (Pl. D, 5), in the Brüder-Str., and the Police Office (Pl. 19; C, 5), in the Wächter-Str., which leads to the Supreme Courts, were also designed by Licht.

The Imperial Supreme Courts (Reichsgerichts-Gebäude; Pl. C, 5), built in 1888-95 from the plans of Ludwig Hoffmann, form a worthy pendant to the Hall of the Imperial Diet at Berlin (p. 83), both in skilful arrangement and in imposing architecture, though the limited sum (about 300,000*l.*) set apart for the building has prevented alike the use of costly materials and a lavish employment of sculptured ornament. The building, with its two court-yards, covers an area 136 yds. long and 83 yds. broad, and has four stories, of which the highest, intended for the preservation of documents, is lighted from the court-yards only. The central edifice, containing the court-rooms, is crowned by a conspicuous copper-sheathed dome, 224 ft. in height, upon which stands a bronze figure of Truth, by O. Lessing, 18 ft. high. The principal façade, on the W. side, fronts a wide square formed by covering over the Pleisse. The imposing portico of six Corinthian pillars supports a pediment containing a group of Justice, flanked by niches with statues of Emp. William I. and Emp. William II. Behind this portico is the large hall for the meetings of the united 'senates', as the judicial benches of the different courts are called. The N. wing, the centre of which is adorned with six massive semi-columns, contains the library, as is indicated by the statues of German jurists on the attica. The W. wing accommodates the six courts of law in its central portion (three on each floor); the sculptures in and on the pediments and on the attica illustrate the Might of Law. The S. wing is devoted to the dwelling and reception rooms of the President of the court, with appropriate sculptures: in the pediment of the central building, women adorning the domestic altar with garlands, above, a group representing Hospitality.

The sittings of the imperial courts are open to the public. Visitors who desire to inspect the building should apply to the porter at the principal entrance after 3 p.m. (fee). We pass through the handsome wrought iron gates and enter the main vestibule, beyond which are the great Waiting Room* and the staircase. This imposing room (109 ft. long, 75 ft. broad, and 76 ft. high) is adorned with sculpture referring to the condemning and the acquitting powers of justice, while the stained glass in the semi-circular windows illustrates the entire sphere of German legislation: N. Trade, with the arms of Hamburg and Lübeck; E. Agriculture, with the arms of Königsberg and Marienburg; W. Manufactures, with the arms of Cologne and Strassburg; S. Art, with the arms of Nuremberg and Augsburg. — The Court Rooms are plainly fitted up with oak panelling of different patterns; but the Large Meeting Hall is more elaborately adorned. — The corridors leading to the rooms of the judges are shut off from the central building by artistic iron gates.

To the W. of the Imperial Courts is the University Library (Pl. C, 6; Bibliotheca Albertina), completed in 1891, containing 350,000 vols. and 4000 MSS. (open daily 9-1 and, Sat. excepted, 3-5). Opposite is the New Gewandhaus* (Pl. C, 6), designed by Gropius & Schmieden. The sculptures in the pediment, by Schilling, represent Apollo and the Shepherds (interior shown daily 9-12 & 3-6, adm. 1 M.). In front of the Gewandhaus, to the E., a monument, by Werner Stein, to Felix Mendelssohn-Bartholdy (1809-1847), conductor of the Gewandhaus Concerts (p. 334) in 1835-1841, 1842, and 1846-47, was unveiled in 1892. — The Academy of Art, including a School of Industrial Art, adjoins the University Library on the N. Opposite are the Technical School and the Royal Conservatorium of Music (see Pl. B, C, 6), opened in 1887, one of the most famous in Europe, attended by about 600 pupils.

In the S. quarter of the town, the Gothic Peters-Kirche (Pl. 51; D, 6), completed in 1885, may be mentioned. — Since 1867 a number of buildings for the medical faculty of the University have been erected in the neighbourhood of the Johannisthal (Pl. F, G, 5, 6), to the S.E.

The Church of St. John (Pl. 47; F, 4), 1/4 M. to the E. of the Augustus-Platz, was rebuilt in 1894-96 in the style of the original church (17th cent.). During the operations the tomb of Johann Sebastian Bach (p. 335) was discovered. In front of the W. portal stands the Reformation Monument (Pl. 42), erected on Nov. 10th, 1883 (the 400th anniversary of Luther's birth), with bronze statues of Luther and Melancthon by Schilling. To the E. of the church is the tomb (Pl. 33) of Gellert (d. 1769), the poet, who was a professor at the university of Leipsic. Near it, in the Johannis-Anlagen, is a large iron cross marking the grave of Captain John Motherby, who fell in the vicinity in 1813. A monument at the corner of the Salomon-Str. and Dresdner-Str. (Pl. 31; F, 4) marks the spot where Major Friccius stormed the Grimma'sche Thor on 19th Oct., 1813, after the battle of Leipsic. — On the first floor of Johannis-Platz 8 is the collection of the Leipsic Historical Society (open on Sun., 10.30 to 12.30), containing a few reminiscences of the great battle.

In the Hospital-Strasse, running to the S. past St. John's Cemetery, rises the Booksellers' Exchange (Pl. 5; G, 5; comp. p. 334), an imposing edifice in the German Renaissance style. Besides large rooms for meetings, it contains the archives and library of the Society of German Booksellers, etc. (adm., 50 pf.).

A visit should be paid to the Museum of the Book Trade (admission gratis Sun., Tues., Thurs., and Sat., 10.30-1; entrance to the left), the nucleus of which is formed by the valuable Klemm Collection of specimens of early printing, acquired by the Saxon government in 1836. Among these is a series of specimens from the 18 towns that possessed printing presses before the year 1471, arranged in chronological order, comprising works by Gutenberg (the famous 42-line Bible, Mayence, 1450-66), Fust, and Schöffer. In connection with these another historically-arranged collection illustrates the technical processes in the production of books (printing, wood-cutting, engraving, lithography, book-binding, etc.) by means of models and proofs (these are in part the property of private owners and are consequently changed from time to time).

Environs of Leipsic. The Rosenthal* (Pl. A, B, 4, 2), with its pleasant meadows and fine woods, is embellished with a marble statue of Gellert (Pl. C, 4) and a bust of the composer Zöllner (Pl. B, 2). Near the entrance are the cafés mentioned p. 331, and the Zoological Garden (adm. 50 pf.). — To the N. of the Rosenthal lies Gohlis, where an inscription on one of the houses records that Schiller there composed his 'Ode to Joy'. — Farther to the E. is Eutritzscli, where 'Gose', a favourite kind of beer, may be tasted at the Gosenschenke or the Helm.

To the S.W. of Leipzig, skirting the Pleisse, stretch the extensive Connewitz Woods, usually known as the 'Linie' and traversed by pretty drives and walks. They may be reached from the 'Zwischenbrücken' station of the Plagwitz tramway (Pl. A, 5), or through the 'Scheibenholtz' and across the suspension-bridge near the racecourse (Pl. A, 7; turn to the left beyond the bridge). The direct distance to Connewitz (Wald-Café; tramway, see p. 331) is about 1¼ M., but the above route is about 3-3½ M. long.

The Battle of Leipsic, which lasted four days, 16th-19th Oct., 1813, is the most prolonged and sanguinary on record. It was conducted on both sides by some of the greatest generals of modern times. Napoleon's forces numbered 140-150,000 men, of whom 80,000 survivors only began the retreat to the Rhine on 19th Oct.; the allied troops were 300,000 strong. The Russians lost 21,000 men, the Austrians 14,000, the Prussians 16,000. The entire number of cannon brought into the field is estimated at 2000. — A visit to the battle-field by carriage takes about 3 hrs. The chief points are marked by memorial stones.

The scene of the engagement of the decisive 18th Oct. is perhaps best viewed from the Napoleonstein, situated on a height planted with trees near the Thonberg suburb (comp. Pl. G, 6), 2 M. to the S.E. of Leipsic, whence the progress of the battle was watched by Napoleon. The neighbouring Gasthaus zum Napoleonstein contains a collection of reminiscences of the battle and other relics of the period (adm., 50 pf.). The village of Probstheida, $\frac{1}{4}$ M. farther, was the centre of the French position. On the Monarchenbügel, a hill by the roadside, $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the S.E. of Probstheida, rises an iron Obelisk on the spot, where, according to an erroneous tradition, the three monarchs (Russia, Austria, Prussia) received the tidings of the victory on the evening of 18th October. On the right of the road, a little nearer Leipsic, near the Park Meusdorf (restaurant and view-tower), stands a simple block of granite with an inscription to the memory of Prince Schwarzenberg, the general of the allied forces (d. 1820).

48. From Berlin to Leipsic.

101 M. RAILWAY in $2\frac{1}{4}$ -5 hrs. (express fares 14 M 70, 10 M 90, 7 M 70 pf.; ordinary 13 M, 9 M 80, 6 M 60 pf.).

From Berlin to ($39\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Jüterbog, see R. 41. — 52 M. Zahna.

59 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Wittenberg. — Hotels. KAISERHOF, Collegien-Str. 58, R., L., & A. 2 M, GOLDENE WEINTRAUBE, in the market-place, R., L., & A. 2-3, B. $\frac{1}{4}$, D. 2 M, with garden, these two well spoken of; ADLER, in the market-place; SCHWARZER BÄR, Schloss-Str. — Railway Restaurant; Stehler's Garten, outside the Neue Thor, a favourite resort.

The Railway Station is $\frac{1}{2}$ M. from the town; tramway to the market-place. About $2\frac{1}{2}$ -3 hrs. suffice for a visit to the town.

Wittenberg, on the Elbe, with 16,500 inhab., a fortress down to 1875, and one of the cradles of the Reformation, was a residence of the Electors of Saxony down to 1542. In 1760 it was bombarded by the Austrians, in 1813 occupied by the French, and in 1814 taken from them by storm by the Prussians under Taubentzen.

Not far from the station, outside the Elster-Thor, we observe on the right an oak surrounded by a small garden, which is said to mark the spot where Luther publicly burned the papal bull on 10th Dec., 1520.

Passing through the Elster-Thor, we enter the Collegien-Strasse, on the left side of which (No. 54) rises the Augusteum, erected in 1564-83, and lately restored; it is now a seminary for clergymen. The court contains Luther's House, being part of the old Augustine monastery, where 'Brother Augustine' took up his residence in March, 1508, when summoned from Erfurt to occupy the chair of philosophy at the university of Wittenberg. At a later period also the house was occupied by the great Reformer, and it was afterwards presented to him by the Elector. The first floor has been restored in the style of the period and fitted up as a 'Luther Halle', or Luther Museum (adm. 1-2 pers. 50 pf., 3-6 pers. 1 M).

The VESTIBULE contains a Crucifixion by Cranach and other pictures. In the cabinet are Luther's drinking-goblet and Catharine von Bora's rosary. — In LUTHER'S ROOM are Luther's table, bench, and stove of coloured tiles. — Room 8 is adorned with modern paintings, representing Charles V. at the grave of Luther (by Teiche), the Diet of Worms (Pladdemann), the Translation of the Bible (Gay), Luther's Betrothal (Spangenberg), and Luther fixing his theses on the door of the church (Hübner). — The CORNER ROOM contains Luther's pulpit and portraits of 'Luther (1528), Luther and Catharine (1528), and 'Magdalen Luther, by Cranach. The 'Vineyard of the Lord', with allegorical allusions and portraits of the Reformers, is by Cranach the Younger (1568). In the glass-case are old translations of the Bible. —

Room 5 contains a cartoon by König representing Luther at his translation of the Bible, wood-cuts, engravings, and paintings, including the Ten Commandments, ascribed to Cranach the Elder (?). In the glass-cases are medals, autographs, and printed books and pamphlets. — Room 6. Model of the Luther Monument in Worms (by Rietchel). First editions of works by Luther. Documents. — The AULA, or lecture-room of Luther, contains an old 'Cathedra', with the arms of the four faculties of Wittenberg university, and portraits of Luther, Melancthon, and the Electors of Saxony.

In the same street, a little farther on, is Melancthon's House (No. 60), indicated by a tablet, the property of the clergymen's seminary; in the garden is a stone table with an inscription of 1551. — The adjacent Infantry Barrack was once occupied by the famous University founded by Elector Frederick the Wise in 1502, where Luther became a teacher of the Holy Scriptures in 1509. In 1817 the university was incorporated with that of Halle.

In the neighbouring Market Place, under a Gothic canopy, rises a Statue of Luther*, designed by Schadow, and erected in 1821, bearing the inscription, 'Ist's Gottes Werk, so wird's bestehn; ist's Menschen Werk, wird's untergehn' (if it be God's work it will endure, if man's it will perish). Farther to the W. is a Statue of Melancthon, by Drake, erected in 1866. — The old Rathhaus, situated at the back of Luther's Monument, dates from the 16th cent., and was restored in 1768. — No. 1, Schloss-Strasse, is the dwelling-house of Lucas Cranach the Elder (1472-1553), the painter, who was once burgomaster of Wittenberg; it has been frequently restored. — The Schloss-Strasse leads to the old Electoral Palace, with its two round towers. It has been burned down several times, and part of it is now used as an Arsenal.

Farther on is the Schlosskirche, erected in 1439-99, seriously injured by the bombardment of 1760, and again in 1813-14, and restored in 1814-17 and in 1890-92 (always open).

The wooden doors (N. side) to which Luther affixed his famous 95 Theses were burned in 1760, and were replaced in 1868 by Metal Doors, 10 ft. in height, presented by Frederick William IV., and bearing the original Latin text of the theses. Above, on a golden ground, is the Crucified, with Luther and Melancthon at his feet, by Prof. v. Klöber. On the right and left, above the doors, are statues of the Electors Frederick the Wise and John the Constant, by Drake.

In the INTERIOR of the church are brazen slabs with Latin inscriptions which mark the graves of Luther (d. at Eisleben, 1546) and Melancthon (d. at Wittenberg, 1560). — Among other interesting monuments the choir contains that of Elector Frederick the Wise (d. 1525), by Peter Vischer, cast at Nuremberg in 1527, and that of John the Constant (d. 1532), by Hans Vischer. The brass of Henning Goden, behind the altar, with a coronation of the Virgin, is also by Peter Vischer, 1522 (replica at Erfurt, see p. 363). The portraits of the Reformers are by Lucas Cranach the Younger (1534).

In front of the Schlosskirche is a Monument to Emp. Frederick III. (d. 1888), by Arnold (1894).

In the Stadtkirche, dating from the 14th cent., but afterwards much altered, Luther frequently preached; and here in 1521 the Holy Communion was for the first time administered in both kinds (sacristan, in the arcade in the corner to the right).

The INTERIOR is embellished with an altar-piece by Lucas Cranach the Elder representing the Holy Eucharist, with Baptism and Confession at the sides, and portraits of the Reformers Melanchthon and Bugenhagen; on the easel is Luther preaching. The Font was cast by Hermann Vischer of Nuremberg in 1457.

From Wittenberg to Rossau and Kohlfurt, see p. 345; to Torgau, 28 M., in 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ -2 $\frac{1}{4}$ hrs.

Beyond Wittenberg the Leipsic train crosses the Elbe. 64 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Bergwitz; 72 M. Gräfenhainichen, the birthplace of Paul Gerhardt (1607-76), the hymn-writer. 75 M. Burgkernitz, with a handsome château. To the left flows the Mulde. — 82 M. Bitterfeld (Prinz von Preussen; Rheinischer Hof), with 10,600 inhab. and manufactories of earthenware piping, the junction for Halle (18 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.; p. 342) and Dessau (p. 345). At (89 M.) Delitzsch our line passes under the Halle, Cottbus, and Guben railway (see p. 344). To the right rises the Landsberg, with its chapel. 92 M. Zschortau; 95 M. Rackwitz.

The line passes near Brettenfeld, where Gustavus Adolphus defeated Tilly and Pappenheim in 1631. The highest point of the battle-field is indicated by a stone surrounded by eight pines.

101 M. Leipsic, see p. 330. The Berlin Station is fully 1 M. from the town (electric tramway, see p. 331), but passengers may go on to (6 M., in 15-25 min.) the Bavarian Station.

49. From Hamburg to Leipsic viâ Magdeburg.

There are two lines of railway from Hamburg to Magdeburg, and also two from Magdeburg to Leipsic, so that this journey may be accomplished in four different ways. The most direct route, on which through-carriages are always provided, is viâ Uelzen, Stendal, Magdeburg, and Halle (see below).

a. Viâ Magdeburg, Cöthen, and Halle.

230 M. RAILWAY in 7 $\frac{1}{4}$ -11 hrs. (express fares 33 M 30, 24 M 70, 17 M 80 pf.; ordinary 30 M 90, 23 M 10, 15 M 50 pf.).

From Hamburg to (53 M.) Uelzen, see R. 17. The line to Stendal and Magdeburg here diverges from that to Hanover. The country traversed is flat and uninteresting. 84 M. Salzwedel, see p. 105.

Unimportant stations. 120 M. Stendal (junction for Berlin, see p. 105). Farther on the train runs along the bank of the Elbe to (156 M.) Magdeburg (p. 113).

Another route from Hamburg to Magdeburg is by the line to the N. of the Elbe viâ Wittenberge, which is 10 M. longer (to Leipsic 240 M., in 9-11 hrs.; same fares as above). From Hamburg to (99 M.) Wittenberge, see R. 22. The Elbe is then crossed, and a flat district traversed. Stations: Seehausen, Osterburg. At (130 M.) Stendal the line unites with that above described.

158 M. Buckau (p. 113); 16 M. Westerhüsen. — 165 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Schönebeck (Hôtel Landhaus), a manufacturing place of some importance.

Schönebeck is the point of divergence of the line from MAGDEBURG to GÜSTROW (27 $\frac{1}{2}$ M., in 2 $\frac{1}{4}$ -1 $\frac{1}{4}$ hr.; fares 8 M 60, 2 M 70, 1 M 80 pf.). — 11 M. (13 M. from Schönebeck) Elmen (Curhaus), with saline baths. — 23 M. Stassfurt (Steinkopf, well spoken of), with very extensive salt-mines, connected by railway with Blumenberg on the Magdeburg and Oschersleben line (p. 395). At (27½ M.) Güsten the line joins the Berlin and Cassel railway (R. 60).

168½ M. Gnadau is a Moravian settlement. The train now crosses the Saale by a bridge ¼ M. in length. 173 M. Grisehne, station for Calbe an der Saale (p. 388), 2 M. to the W.

187 M. Cöthen (Prinz von Preussen; Grosser Gasthof; Weintraube), with 20,500 inhab., is the junction for Dessau and Berlin (p. 348), and for Aschersleben (see below). Naumann's Ornithological Collection in the Schloss (a building of 1550) deserves mention. The Gothic church (15th cent.) contains old stained glass and a font by Thorvaldsen. Pleasant walks may be taken to the Ziethenbusch and the Fasanerie. Sugar is largely manufactured here from beet-root, of which vast fields are seen in the environs.

From Cöthen to ASCHERSLEBEN, 27½ M., in 1¼ hr. (fares 3 M 60, 2 M 70, 1 M 70 pf.). — 12½ M. Bernburg (Kaiserhof; Dessauer Hof), a pleasant town with 32,400 inhab., a late-Gothic church, and a fine old Schloss (14-18th cent.). From (20 M.) Güsten a branch-line runs to Stassfurt (p. 341). — 27½ M. Aschersleben (p. 394).

From Cöthen to Dessau, see p. 348.

To the right rises the Petersberg (655 ft. above the Saale), 6 M. from Halle, commanding a fine view. The old abbey-church here (12th cent.), restored in 1857, contains tombs of Wettin (Saxon) princes.

209 M. Halle. — Hotels. *STADT HAMBURG (Pl. a; D, 5), R., L., & A. from 3, D. 2½, B. 1 M, omn. 75 pf.; *GRAND HÔT. BODE, near the rail. station; *KRONPRINZ (Pl. b; B, 5); *GOLDENE KUGEL (Pl. e; F, 7), R., L., & A. from 2, D. 2, B. 1 M; *CONTINENTAL, Riebeck-Platz, R., L., & A. 2 M. — GOLDENER RING (Pl. c; C, 5), in the market-place; PREUSSISCHER HOF (Pl. g; D, 4), Grosse Stein-Str. 20; HÔTEL GARNI ZUR TULPE, Alte Promenade 6. — Pens. Zeiss, Magdeburger-Str. 42 (Pl. E, 4, 5).

Restaurants. Besides the hotels: Grün, Rathaus-Str. 7; Becker, Grosse Ulrich-Str. 28; Ehrenberg, Mittel-Str. 15 (wine-rooms); Theatre Restaurant & Café; Rathskeller (p. 343); Heinrich, Grosse Ulrich-Str. 10, with the Mars-la-Tour Gallery; Münchener Bürgerbräu, Franziskaner, both Grosse Märker-Str.; Dresdener Bierhalle, Kaulenberg 1; these near the University (Pl. C, 4).

Cafés. Wiener Café*, Post-Str.; Bauer, Grosse Stein-Str.; Monopol, on the Promenade (Pl. D, 4). — 'Hallenkuchen', a favourite kind of cake, may be bought at Lauffer's, Leipziger-Str. 101.

Baths. Weinck's*, in the Klausendor suburb; Flora-Bad, in the Pulverweiden; Park-Bad (Pl. E, 6), Dorotheen-Str. 15.

Post & Telegraph Office (Pl. D, 4), Stein-Str.

Cabs. Per drive within the town for 1 pers. 50 pf., 2 pers. 60, 3 pers. 80 pf., 4 pers. 1 M; to or from the station 60, 80 pf., 1 M, 1 M 20 pf.

Tramways. ELECTRIC: 1. From the station by the Magdeburger-Str., Grosse Stein-Str., Markt, and Schmeer-Str. to the Steinweg. 2. From the station by the Neue Promenade (Francke's Institutions) and Markt to the Mansfelder-Str. 3. From the station to the Merseburger-Str. (Pl. F, 8). Fare 10 pf. — HORSE CARS: From the railway-station to the Round Tower (Pl. D, 6), and thence by the Promenade to Giebichenstein. Another line leads from the Round Tower through the Leipziger-Str. and the Markt, joining the other at the end of the Ulrich-Str. Fare 10-20 pf.

Steamers ply on the Saale in summer to Giebichenstein (p. 344), Trotha, Haidsweg, and Weinberg, also (upstream) to the Raben-Insel.

Halle (300 ft.), an old town on the Saale, with 116,200 inhab., was an important place at a very early period in consequence of its salt-works, and is now a commercial place of considerable importance, with manufactures of agricultural machinery, sugar, and starch. Halle possesses a university of great repute, founded in 1694, with which that of Wittenberg was united in 1817.

In the picturesque MARKET PLACE (Pl. C, 5), in the centre of the old town, rises the Rothe Thurm, a clock-tower 276 ft. in height, and near it a stone statue of Roland (see p. 161). Adjacent are a War Monument for 1870-71, in the form of a fountain, and a bronze Statue of Händel (d. 1759; Pl. 5), who was born here in 1685 (Nicolai-Str. 6), erected by subscriptions from Germany and England. The great composer is represented in the English court-dress; at the back of the music-desk is St. Cecilia (a portrait of Jenny Lind). The Rathhaus (Pl. 17), in the S.E. corner of the square, was begun in the 14th cent.; the central part, in the Renaissance style, dates from 1568. — The S. side of the market-place is occupied by the Rathskeller, in the late-Gothic style, erected in 1893 and adorned with statues. It contains the meeting-room of the town-council.

The Marktkirche*, or Church of Our Lady (Pl. 7; C, B, 5), erected in 1530-54, with four towers of which the two to the E. are connected by a bridge, bounds the market on the W. side. Outside the E. end of the church is a bust of Luther, erected in 1883.

Interior (sacristan, in the house facing the S. side of the church). Altar-piece, a scene from the Sermon on the Mount, by Hübner of Dresden. To the right by the altar a small picture of Cranach's School, the Fourteen Helpers in Need. The chief treasure of the church is a double winged *Picture, said to have been painted by Grünewald in 1529 for Card. Albrecht of Brandenburg, the builder of the church, representing SS. Magdalen, Ursula, Erasmus, and Catharine, the Virgin with the cardinal at her feet, at the sides St. Maurice and St. Alexander, the latter placing his foot upon the Roman Emp. Maximin; on the outside the Annunciation, St. John, and St. Augustine.

The finest church is that of St. Maurice* (Pl. 8, B 6; sacristan, No. 6 on the E. side) in the lower part of the town, near the 'Halle' (salt-works), founded in the 12th cent.; elegant choir finished in 1511; fine carved *Wood-work over the altar, representing Christ and Mary with saints; near it, ancient winged pictures of the end of the 15th cent.; pulpit, with reliefs of 1588, resting on a pillar representing Sin, Death, and Satan. This church is frequented by the workmen employed in the manufacture of the salt, called 'Hal-loren', a distinct race, who until recently preserved many of their ancient peculiarities.

The University Buildings (Pl. C, 4) were erected in 1834; of the 1500 students a large proportion study agriculture. The Aula contains portraits of Prussian rulers and busts of eminent professors. The lions in front of the university originally adorned the market place. — Adjacent are the Archaeological Museum (casts; adm. Sun., Wed., and Sat., 11-1), and the handsome Theatre, built in 1886 (tasteful interior). — The University Library, Friedrich-Str. 50 (Pl. 2, C, 3), is open in the forenoon (Wed. & Sat. also 2-4). In the Wucherer-Str. is the Agricultural Institute (Pl. D, E, 3), with a collection of domestic animals. — The Medical Institutes of the university are in the E. part of the town (Pl. E, 4, 5). — The adjacent Town Cemetery (Pl. D, E, 5), dating from 1565 and surrounded with Renaissance arcades, is unique of its kind in Germany.

Francke's Institutions (Pl. C, D, 7), on the S. side of the town, comprising an orphan-asylum, schools, a printing-office, a book-shop, etc., were begun in 1698 by the founder, whose sole means then consisted of a strong and simple faith. The court of the asylum is adorned with a bronze Statue of Francke (d. 1727), by Rauch. — In the Aichamt in the Grosse Berlin is the Industrial Museum (50 pf.; Sun. and holidays, 11-1, free).

The Cathedral (Pl. A, B, 4, 5), consecrated in 1523, contains interesting figures of Christ, Apostles, and Saints on the pillars. Adjacent is the old Residence (Pl. 4; B, 5) of the Archbishops of Magdeburg, which now contains the valuable collections of the Provincial Museum (Sun., Tues., & Thurs., 11-1, free, Mon. & Frid. 50 pf., at other times 1 M.) and the Mineralogical Museum (Tues., 2-4).

Near the cathedral are the ruins of the late-Gothic Moritzburg, built in 1484-1503, and the Jägerberg (Pl. A, 4), which affords a view of the town. Opposite the former is the Physical Institute.

A pleasant walk leads by the Kleine Wiese (Pl. A, 3, 4), the Ziegelwiese, and the right bank of the Saale to (1½ M.) the village of Cröllwitz (Bergschenke, with fine view), with a royal stud-farm. Opposite is the Giebiehenstein, a ruined castle with pleasure-grounds (Brewery zum Saal-schloss, at the tramway and steamboat terminus, p. 342). Lewis 'the Springer', Landgrave of Thuringia, was imprisoned here in 1102, and, according to tradition, escaped by a daring leap into the river. Duke Ernest II. of Swabia, immortalised by Uhland, was also a prisoner here for a considerable time. A little higher up is the pretty 'Nachtigallen-Insel', now a public park. Wittekind* (Curhaus, D. 1½ M.), a watering place at Giebiehenstein, is much frequented in summer (concerts). — The Kolkthurm, on an eminence in the Dölauer Heide, about 3 M. beyond Cröllwitz, commands a wide panorama.

From Halle to Aschersleben, see R. 62.

FROM HALLE TO COTTBUS (Sorau) AND GUBEN, 132 M., railway in 5-6 hrs. (fares 17 M., 12 M. 80, 8 M. 50 pf.). — 17 M. Delitzsch, junction for Berlin and Leipzig (p. 341). — 81 M. Eilenburg (Hirsch; Adler), a busy industrial town with 13,400 inhab., where the Mulde is crossed, the junction for the line to (15 M.) Leipzig viâ Jesewitz and Tauscha.

48 M. Torgau (Gold. Anker*, in the market), a fortified town on the Elbe, which is crossed here by a handsome stone bridge and by that of the railway, with 11,800 inhab., is frequently mentioned in the history of the Reformation. In 1780 Frederick the Great defeated the Austrians here, and from 1810 to 1813 the town was held by the French against Taubentzen. Schloss Hartenfels*, one of the largest Renaissance buildings in Germany (1481-1544), formerly a residence of the Electors of Saxony, is now a barrack. The half-Gothic palace-chapel was consecrated by Luther; the staircase and the bay window in the court-yard, as well as the other in the N. wing of the palace, and the plastic decorations are all worth noticing. The late-Gothic Marienkirche contains the tomb of Catharine von Bora (d. 1552), Luther's wife, and several pictures of Cranach's school. The Rathhaus, with three high gables, dates from about 1560 and contains a collection of Saxon antiquities (adm. 1 fr.). — Graditz, a royal stud-house, 2 M. from Torgau, has acquired some renown for its breed of horses. — Branch-line to Wittenberg, see p. 341.

60 M. Falkenberg, the junction of the Kohlfurt-Rossau (p. 241) and the Berlin-Jüterbog-Dresden lines (R. 41). 93 M. Katala, the junction of the Lübbenau-Kamenz-Arnsdorf line (p. 278).

108 M. Cottbus (p. 249), where the train crosses the Berlin and Görlitz line. The line to (36 M.) Sorau (p. 241) diverges here.
 116 M. Pelitz. — 182 M. Guben, see p. 241.

Near (221 M.) Schkeuditz the Leipzig train enters Saxony, passes Möckern, where a bloody battle between the French and Prussians was fought on 16th Oct., 1813, and reaches (230 M.) Leipzig (Magdeburg Station; see p. 330).

b. Via Magdeburg, Zerbst, and Bitterfeld.

Distance and fares the same as in Route a, the line from Magdeburg to Leipzig via Zerbst being about the same length as that via Halle.

From Hamburg to (156 M.) Magdeburg, see p. 341. Beyond (158½ M.) Neustadt-Magdeburg (p. 116) the train crosses the Elbe. At (177 M.) Güterglück the line intersects the Berlin and Cassel railway (R. 60).

182 M. Zerbst (Gold. Löwe, well spoken of; Anhalt), an old town with 16,900 inhab., once the seat of the Princes of Anhalt-Zerbst, who became extinct in 1797, possesses a large Schloss. The market-place, with its handsome gabled houses, is adorned with a Roland Column of 1415 and a female figure on a slender column, called the Butterjungfer, the significance of which is doubtful. The Rathhaus, with two handsome gables of 1479-81 but disfigured by additions in 1610, contains a Bible printed on parchment, with wood-cuts coloured by Lucas Cranach the Younger (1541). The handsome Nicolaikirche, built in 1432-94, was restored in 1827. The Gymnasium is established in an old Franciscan monastery on the ramparts, founded in 1250, and possessing fine cloisters.

190 M. Rosslau, terminus of the Kohlfurt and Rosslau railway (p. 241). Our line crosses the Elbe and the Mulde.

194 M. Dessau. — Hotels. GOLDNER BRUTEL*, in the Stein-Str., not far from the Ducal Palace; GOLDNER SCHIFF, in the Kleine Markt, KAISERHOF, both near the station; RAILWAY HOTEL, with beer-garden. — ASCATISCHERS BAD, with lodgings and baths, a little to the W. of the town.

Cab, for 1 pers. 60, 2 pers. 80, 3 pers. 80 pf., 4 pers. 1 M.; each trunk 30 pf. — STEAMER on Sun. & Wed. in summer to Coswig (p. 328).

Dessau (200 ft.), the capital of the Duchy of Anhalt and the residence of the Duke, with 42,300 inhab., lies on the left bank of the Mulde, 2½ M. from its confluence with the Elbe. The DESSAU ART-COLLECTIONS are of considerable value and deserve to be better known; but they are unfortunately distributed among several different places, in or near Dessau. The nucleus of the collections was inherited by the Dukes of Dessau in 1675 from Princess Amalia of Nassau-Orange, wife of the stadtholder Frederick Henry; and numerous additions were made in the 18th century.

The Kaiser-Strasse leads from the station to the town. In the grounds are monuments to Moses Mendelssohn (p. 346; erected in 1889), to the Anhalters who fell in 1870-71, and to Emp. William I. (1892). The Kaiser-Strasse ends at the Friedrich-Strasse, opposite the Behördenhaus, which is surmounted by a figure of Ascania (library, open 9-1 and 3-5). Following the Friedrich-Str. to the left, we reach the Cavalier-Str., which is adjoined by the Neumarkt, containing the Lutheran Church of St. John (1690-1702), a fountain, and a statue of Duke Leopold Frederick Francis (1758-1817). Opposite St. John's is the Ducal Library (75,000 vols.).

In the Cavalier-Str. are the palaces of the Princess Louise and the Erbprinz (built in 1883-87), and the Theatre (performances in winter). Farther on in the Cavalier-Str. are the Gymnasium and the Real-Gymnasium (1880-82), in front of which is a monument to Wilhelm Müller, author of the 'Griechenlieder' (b. at Dessau 1794, died there 1827). At the corner of the Ascanische-Str. is the Leopoldstift, an alms-house for old men. The tower contains a *Geological Collection. In the same street are the Church of St. George and the Mendelssohn Institution, on the site of the house in which Moses Mendelssohn (1729-86) was born. — The Stein-Strasse leads hence to the Grosse Markt, in which rises a Statue of Prince Leopold, erected in 1860, on the model of that by Schadow in the Wilhelms-Platz at Berlin (p. 59). — To the E. is the Schloss-Platz, where a military band plays on Sun., Tues., and Frid. in front of the guard-house, at 12 o'clock, invariably performing the Dessau March ('Ça donc, ça donc'), the favourite air of Prince Leopold.

THE DUCAL PALACE is situated on the bank of the Mulde. The main building was erected in 1872-74, and the E. wing was rebuilt by Knobelsdorf of Berlin in 1748-51, but the fine W. wing dates from 1530-49. The so-called *Old German Rooms, a suite on the groundfloor, are fitted up in the taste of the 16th century.

THE INTERIOR (castellan on the groundfloor of the W. wing) contains several hundred pictures. Those on the first floor, by Filippino Lippi, Borgognone, Santa Croce, Perugino, Garofalo, and other Italian masters, are of no great importance. A number of the Netherlandish pictures, however, on the second floor, are excellent (Asselyn, Jan Steen, Wynants, Neischer, Adr. van de Velde, and Lairesse). On the third floor are several good modern works by Lessing, Triebel, Irmer, etc., and a few pieces of sculpture. — The so-called GIPS-KAMMER on the groundfloor contains a number of precious objects, antiquities, coins, and relics, including the sword and stick of Prince Leopold, the 'Old Dessauer' (1676-1747), a famous Prussian general of the 18th cent., and Napoleon's silver goblet and his plate captured at Waterloo.

On the N. side of the palace lies the Lustgarten, laid out in the form of an ancient racecourse and containing an Orangery, a Riding School, with reliefs by Döll, and the Ducal Stables.

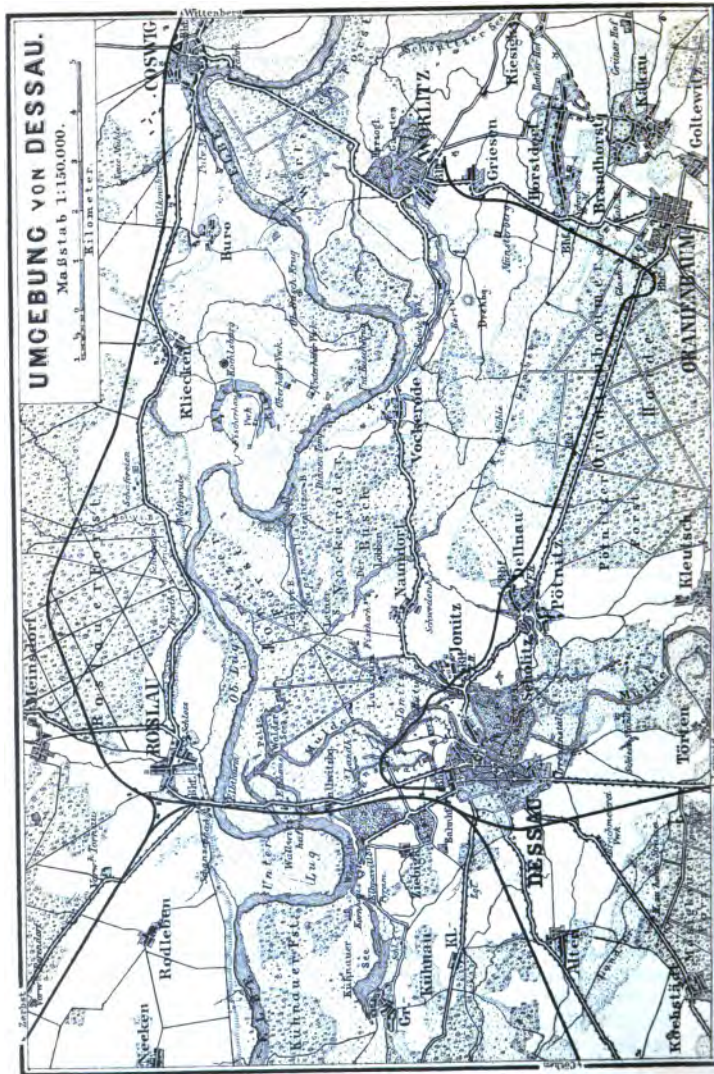

To the N. of the Grosse Markt stands the SCHLOSSKIRCHE or Church of Our Lady (sacristan, Schless-Str. 7), erected at the beginning of the 16th century. It contains an Entombment and a Resurrection by Franz Schubert, a Dessau artist, and also two good pictures by Cranach the Younger (the Last Supper, with portraits of some of the chief promoters of the Reformation, and Christ on the Mt. of Olives). The vaults below the church contain the tombs of Prince Leopold (d. 1747; sarcophagus supported by twelve grenadiers) and other Anhalt princes.

Proceeding northwards from the Grosse Markt, we reach the Kleine Markt, with the Rathhaus (1561; restored in 1883) and a marble Monument by H. Schubert, erected in 1867, on the fiftieth anniversary of the accession of Duke Leopold Frederick (d. 1871), to commemorate the reunion of the Anhalt territories in 1863.

No. 12 in the Zerbster-Strasse, a broad adjacent street, is the AMALIEN-STIFTUNG, for the reception of poor old women, founded by the daughter (d. 1793) of Prince Leopold. Adm. daily on application.

The PICTURE GALLERY on the upper floor, numbering about 700 works of no great merit, affords the visitor an excellent opportunity of becoming acquainted with the German painters of the 18th cent. (Listewsky, Schuks, Seekatz, etc.). Among the really valuable works are: Van Dyck, Portrait of Maurice of Orange; Honthorst, Portrait of Princess Amalia of Nassau-Orange; D. Mytens, Portrait-group, 1666; Steenwyk, Architectural pictures; J. Pyt, Dead poultry; Adr. van Oostade, Peasant at a window; Frans and Dirk Hals, Roisterers and 'rommelpot' players; Pieter Potter, Expulsion of Hagar; Avercamp, Village-feast; Lingselbach, Harbour-scene; Mierevelt, Portrait of a lady; Van Goyen, Landscape; C. Netscher, Exhibition of jewels; Momper, Italian landscape.

A little to the N. is the new Roman Catholic Church, by Statz. The Leopold-Strasse leads hence to the left to the railway-station.

About $\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the N. of the station lies the Georgengarten. The château is not shewn to the public. A pleasant walk may be taken hence to the ($1\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Wallwitzberg, near Wallwitzhafen (restaurant at the Elbhaus), returning to (2 M.) Dessau by the Gänsewall, a shady avenue. — The ducal château of Kühnau, situated on a small lake in a fine park, 2 M. to the W. of the Georgengarten, contains a collection of objects illustrative of the history and archæology of Anhalt. Cab there and back 4 M.

On the right bank of the Mulde lies the Thiergarten, whence a road leads to Jonitz (see below) and ($2\frac{1}{2}$ M.) the park and château of Luisium. The latter contains an extensive collection of pictures (castellan on the ground-floor). Refreshments at the forester's house. Beautiful walks in the neighbouring woods.

FROM DESSAU TO WÖRLITZ, 12 M., railway in 1 hr. — $2\frac{1}{2}$ M. Jonitz (see above). — 8 M. Oranienbaum (Goldnes Horn), the château of which contains a collection of all kinds of rococo ornaments and other valuables. — 12 M. Wörlitz. Walkers may go to Wörlitz viâ Luisium, the Stieglitzer Berg, and Vockerode; nearly the whole way (11 M.) is shaded by trees. Wörlitz is 8 M. from Coswig (p. 526).

Wörlitz (Eichenkranz; Grüner Baum), a town with 1600 inhab., is famous for its beautiful park. The extensive and well-kept ducal *GARDENS and PARK were laid out at the end of last century and afford beautiful walks. The traveller who desires to explore them (3-4 hrs.) had better take a guide (from the Eichenkranz, 1 M.) to pilot him through their intricacies and across the various lakes. — The PALACE contains portraits of Countess Solms and the Prince of Orange by Van Dyck, and others, and landscapes by Hackert. — The GOTHIC HOUSE (adm. 50 pf.) contains weapons, goblets, and a large collection of pictures, some of which are very valuable. Among the works of the early-Flemish School an admirable Madonna by Memling is noteworthy. The early German School is well represented, the Cranach's, in particular, being much better than the works usually coupled with the name. Among the best works by Netherlands are portraits by Fr. Pourbus the Younger, J. Ravesteyn, Verspronck, Mierevelt, Boi, and Netscher, and landscapes by Vinckboons and Arlets. The works of Abraham Snaphan (1641-91), a good master of the 17th cent., who lived and died at Dessau, are to be met with here alone. — The PANTHEON, containing several antiquities (Apollo with the Muses, etc.), and the FLORA may also be visited.

FROM DESSAU TO CÖTHEN, 13 M., railway in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. — $4\frac{1}{2}$ M. Monigkau, with a CHÂTEAU erected in 1762 and now occupied by an Adlig-Fräulein-Stift (institution for ladies of the German noblesse). This building contains a valuable picture-gallery, with works by Rubens, Sayders, Van Dyck, Rombouts, Dujardin, S. Koninck, Seghers, De Heem, Hondecoeter, G. Honthorst, C. Netscher, Latresse, etc. — 8 M. Elsmgk. — 13 M. Cöthen, see p. 342.

At (210 M.) Bitterfeld the line unites with the line from Berlin to Leipzig (p. 341).

230 M. (240 M. viâ Wittenberge) Leipais (Berlin Station; the trains go on to the Bavarian station), see p. 330.

50. From Leipzig to Nuremberg viâ Hof and Bamberg.

221 M. EXPRESS in $8\frac{1}{4}$ hrs. (fares 29 M 50, 21 M 50, 14 M 10 pf.). — SAXON RAILWAY to Hof, 102 M., in $3\frac{1}{2}$ - $5\frac{1}{2}$ hrs. (fares 13 M 50, 10 M 10, 6 M 80 pf.; express 15 M 20, 11 M 80 pf.). — BAVARIAN RAILWAY from Hof to Nuremberg viâ Lichtenfels, in $4\frac{1}{4}$ - $6\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.

Leipais, see p. 330. Departure from the Bavarian Station.

5 M. Gaschwitz, the junction for Meuschwitz (p. 349) and for Plagwitz-Lindenau, on the Leipzig and Gera railway (p. 350). — 13 M. Kieritzsch, the junction for Chemnitz (p. 322).

24 M. Altenburg. — Hotels. WETTINER HOF, near the Schloss, R., L., & A. from 2 B. 1 M; THÜRINGER HOF, BAIRISCHER HOF, near the station. Restaurants: Wermann, Naumann (wine-rooms); Stadt Gotha, with garden; Rathskeller; Plateau. — Café: Böttger, by the theatre.

Altenburg (596 ft.), the residence of the Duke of Saxe-Altenburg, with 33,400 inhab., is overlooked by the Schloss, which rises picturesquely above the town upon a wooded porphyry rock. The older parts of the castle date from the 14th cent., the remainder from the 17-19th. From this castle, in 1455, the knight Kunz von Kaufungen carried off the young princes Ernest and Albert, founders of the present royal and ducal families of Saxony. In the interior, which has been handsomely restored, the throne-room and armoury are worthy of notice (adm. on application). The late-Gothic Schlosskirche, enlarged in 1413, contains a handsome choir. Pleasant public walks in the Schlossgarten, on the E. side of the Schlossberg. — The Theatre, the Bartholomäikirche, the Landesbank (with the ducal library); and the Gymnasium may also be noticed. — The Rathhaus, in the market, was built in 1562-64 in a good German Renaissance style.

The Museum, near the station, contains the collections of natural history and art bequeathed to his country by the minister B. v. Lindenau (d. 1854; open in summer on Wed. 2-4 and Sat. & Sun. 11-1, free; in winter, Sun. 11-1, free; on other days 11-1, 50 pf.).

Of special importance are the 166 Italian pictures of the 14th and 15th cent., amongst which may be mentioned: five paintings on wood by Luca Signorelli representing scenes from the Passion; No. 60. a Madonna of the school of Botticelli; 73, 90. Madonna with Angels, and Madonna Enthroned, by Giovanni di Paolo of Siena; 118, 119. St. Helena, and St. Antony, winged pictures by Perugino; eight tablets with allegorical figures, of the School of Pinturicchio; 98. Madonna in a landscape, remains of a mural decoration, by Gentile Bellini. Also 78 copies from Raphael, Titian, etc., more than 800 Greek, Roman, and Etruscan vases, and a considerable collection of casts from the antique.

The well-to-do peasantry of the neighbourhood, who are of Wendish origin, wear a curious costume. The card-game of 'Skat', now universal in Germany, originated among these peasants.

FROM ALTENBURG TO ZEITZ (p. 350), 18 M., branch-line in 1½ hr. viâ Meuselwitz (see p. 348).

40 M. Gössnitz (junction for Chemnitz, p. 322, and Gera, p. 350), Crimmitschau, (46 M.) Werdau, all manufacturing towns.

From Werdau branch-lines diverge to Zwickau and Annaberg on the E. (pp. 324, 325), and to Wünschendorf and Welda on the W. (see p. 350).

To the left, on a wooded height, rises the castle of Schönfels. 51 M. Neumark is the junction of a line to Zwickau (p. 326).

From Neumark by a branch-line in 40 min. (fares 1 M. 20, 90, 60 pf.) to Greiz (Hennig*; Löwe; Thüringer Hof), at the station, well spoken of; Restaurants Göltzschtal, Centralhalle, the capital of the small principality of Reuss-Greiz, charmingly situated in the valley of the Weisse Elster, and consisting of the regularly built new town on the left bank, and the quaint and irregular old town on the right bank. The population (22,400) is largely engaged in the manufacture of dress-goods. The bridge beside the Änger commands a fine view of the old castle on the left bank of the Elster and of the modern palace with its lofty tower, on an isolated wooded hill below. The park fills the whole bed of the valley, and in order to avoid injuring it a tunnel for the Gera railway was driven through the Schlossberg. The environs abound in romantic walks.

Greiz is also a station on the GERA AND WEISCHLITZ RAILWAY (34 M.), which traverses the romantic Elster-Thal*, passing numerous bridges and tunnels. — From Greiz to Gera, 19 M., in 1½ hr., viâ Wolfsgefärb (p. 350). — The portion of the line between Greiz and Weischlitz, 18 M., is still more picturesque, passing the château of Döhlau, the ruins of Elsterberg and Liebau, the Steinigt ravine, etc. The last two stations are (14 M.) Plauen (see below) and Kürbitz. 18 M. Weischlitz.

From Herlasgrün a branch-line diverges to Oelsnitz, viâ Auerbach and Falkenstein, where it rejoins the main line.

The train now crosses the Elster-Thal by another handsome viaduct.

72 M. Plauen (1230 ft.; Deil's Hotel*; Wettiner Hof; Engel; Fürstenhalle; Löwe), a loftily-situated manufacturing town on the Weisse Elster, with 55,100 inhab., the capital of the Voigtland. The castle of Hradschin was anciently the seat of the Vogt (advocatus regni). American consul. — At Plauen the lines to Hof and Eger divide.

TO EGGER. — 94 M. Bad Elster (1610 ft.; Hôtel de Saxe*; Wettiner Hof*, R. 2-4, D. 2½ M.), a frequented watering-place. — 109 M. Voitersreuth is the first Bohemian station (custom-house examination). — 118 M. Eger (see Baedeker's Austria).

To HOF. Next stations: 78 M. Mehltheuer; 82 M. Schönberg.

From Schönberg a branch-line runs in $\frac{3}{4}$ hr. (fares 90, 60 pf.) to Schleiz (Sonne; Erbprin), a small town (5100 inhab.), pleasantly situated, and commanded by the palace of the prince. The late-Gothic Bergkirche is worthy of notice. $4\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the W. is Schloss Burgk*, a château of the prince, situated on a wooded rock, high above the Saale. — About $7\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the S.W. of Schleiz, halfway to Lobenstein, is Saalfeld (Weisses Ross), a small town on a hill with towers and ramparts.

Another branch runs from Schönberg to Hirschberg (Goldener Hirsch), on the Saale, the valley of which offers pleasant excursions.

102 M. Hof (Kaiserhof, near the station; Lamm; Rail. Restaurant) is a Bavarian town on the Saale, with 27,500 inhabitants. Gothic Rathhaus of 1563. The tasteful Michaelskirche was restored in 1884.

From Hof to Nuremberg viâ Schnabelwaid, see Baedeker's S. Germany.

Cuttings, embankments, and dark ravines follow each other rapidly. To the left, in the distance, is the monastery of Himmelskron, the traditional burial-place of the 'White Lady' (p. 34; d. about 1300).

Stations: Neuenmarkt (junction for Baireuth), Unter-Steinach, and (146 M.) Culmbach (Hirsch*), a town celebrated for its beer, formerly the residence of the Margraves of Brandenburg-Culmbach, situated on the Weisse Main, and commanded by the Plessenburg, which is now used as a prison. — Near (149 M.) Mainleus the Weisse and Rothe Main unite to form the Main, the broad valley of which is now traversed. Beyond (155 M.) Burgkunstadt the Main is crossed. — 159 M. Hochstadt is the junction of the Saalfeld, Gera, and Leipzic line.

FROM LEIPZIG TO HOCHSTADT viâ GERA AND SAALFELD, 137 M., railway in 5-9 $\frac{1}{4}$ hrs. (fares 17 \mathcal{M} 70, 12 \mathcal{M} 90, 8 \mathcal{M} 60 pf., express 20 \mathcal{M} 10, 14 \mathcal{M} 80 pf.). Stations: Leutzsch (p. 351), Flaßwitz-Lindenau (p. 348), and Pegau.

$27\frac{1}{2}$ M. Zeitz (Löwe*; Kronprinz; Herold), an old town with cloth and other manufactories, situated on an eminence on the Weisse Elster, and an episcopal see from 968 to 1028. Pop. 24,800. The Moritzburg, erected in 1654 by the Dukes of Sachsen-Zeitz on the site of the old episcopal palace, is now a reformatory and poor-house. Gothic Trinity Church of the 15th cent. with Romanesque crypt of the 12th century. The Stiftsschule (Gymnasium) has a library with a number of MSS. dating from the time of the Reformation. — Zeitz is the junction of a line to Weissenfels (p. 352; 20 M., in 52 min.), traversing a district rich in brown coal.

Then through the Elster-Thal to Crossen (branch-line to Eisenberg), Köstritz (famous for its beer and flowers; near it Bad Köstritz, with warm sand and salt baths), and — 45 M. Gera (Victoria; Frommter; Stadt Dresden), the capital of the principality of Reuss-jüngere-Linie, a busy manufacturing town with 43,100 inhab., on the Weisse Elster. The Johannis-Platz is adorned with a modern statue of Count Heinrich Posthumus (d. 1636). On the Hainberg, opposite the town, rises the château of Osterstein, the residence of the prince. — Railways to Göbnitz (p. 349), viâ Ronneburg, in 1-1 $\frac{1}{2}$ hr., and to Jena and Weimar (p. 357) in 2-2 $\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.

Beyond (49 M.) Wolfsgefäth, junction for the line to Greiz and Plauen (p. 349), the Elster is quitted. 53 M. Weida (branch-line to Werdau, p. 349, in 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.). — From (82 M.) Triptis a branch-line runs to (33 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Lobenstein (Kurhaus; Volkmars; Reussischer Hof), a favourite watering-place (2900 inhab.) on the Lennitz, commanded by a ruined castle.

87 M. Neustadt on the Orla (Gold. Löwe), a manufacturing town in the duchy of Weimar, with a handsome late-Gothic Rathhaus. — 78 M. Pönnick (Ritter; Hirsch), a town in the duchy of Meiningen, with porcelain, flannel, and other manufactories; branch-line to Orlamünde; diligence once daily to Ziegenrück (Preuss. Hof), 11 M., and thence to Lobenstein (see below). To the left rises the picturesque castle of Ranis.

87 M. Saalfeld (Rother Hirsch; Preussischer Hof; Meiningen Hof), an old town, with 9900 inhab., picturesquely situated on the Saale, possessing sewing-machine and other manufactories. Rathhaus in the market-place in the latest Gothic style, 1588-87. Gothic Johanniskirche of the 14th cent. with good stained glass of 1514 in the choir. In the S.E. part of the town are the Kitzerstein, a château of the 16th cent., and the ruins of the Sorbenburg, which is said to have been erected by Charlemagne for protection against the pagan Slavs. — Railway from Saalfeld to Rudolstadt and Jena, see R. 52.

102 M. Probstzella (Löwe), a village with extensive slate-quarries. The train now enters Bavaria. From (106 M.) Ludwigsstadt a branch-line runs to Lehesten, with important slate-quarries. — 126 M. Kronach (Goldener Wagen; Sonne), a small town picturesquely situated at the confluence of the Hasslach and Rodach, formerly fortified, and the birth-place of the painter Lucas Cranach (1472). — 137 M. Hochstadt (see p. 350).

165 M. Lichtenfels (Anker; Moulin; Krone) is the junction of the Werra line (to Coburg and Eisenach, see R. 57). On a hill to the right are the extensive buildings of the celebrated old Benedictine abbey of Bans. On the hill opposite Banz rises the richly-decorated abbey-church of Vierzehnheiligen, the most frequented pilgrimage shrine in Franconia.

184 M. Bamberg, and thence to Nuremberg, see Baedeker's Southern Germany.

51. From Leipzig to Bebra (Frankfort on the Main) and Cassel. Thuringian Railway.

172 M. RAILWAY. Express in 5¼ hrs. (fares 22 M. 80, 16 M. 80, 11 M. 80 pf.); from Leipzig viâ Bebra to Frankfort in 7½-8½ hrs. (fares 84 M. 70, 25 M. 70 pf., 18 M.). Dinner-cars (D. 8 M.) accompany the trains on this line. — By Halle and Nordhausen, see R. 60.

This line traverses one of the most picturesque districts in Central Germany. 4 M. Leutzsch, the junction for Zeitz, Gera, and Hochstadt (p. 350). — The salt-works of (16 M.) Dürrenberg (Curhaus) are passed, and the Saale is crossed. — 19½ M. Corbetha is the junction for Halle (p. 342).

BATTLE FIELDS. Three celebrated battles have been fought near Corbetha. At Rossbach, 5 M. to the W., Frederick the Great with 22,000 Prussians signally defeated 80,000 French and their German allies under Soubise, on 5th Nov., 1757. — Near Lützen, 5 M. to the E., two battles were fought. In the first of these, on 8th Nov., 1632, Gustavus Adolphus, King of Sweden, was mortally wounded, after having defeated the imperial troops. A block of granite with a Gothic roof marks the spot. — At Gross-Görschen, a little to the S. of Lützen, a fierce but indecisive engagement was fought on 2nd May, 1813, by the allied Russians and Prussians against the French, in which the Prussian Gen. Scharnhorst was mortally wounded. On the previous day the French Marshal Bessières had been killed in a skirmish near Lützen.

Merseburg (Goldene Sonne; Goldener Arm; Rudolph), 6 M. from Corbetha, on the line to Halle, an ancient town on the Saale, with 18,800 inhab., mentioned in history as early as the 9th cent., was a favourite residence of the emperors Henry I. and Otto I., and frequently the scene of imperial diets. It was an episcopal diocese from 968 to 1561. Halfway from the station to the cathedral stands a Bronze Monument to Emp. Frederick III., by Hundrieser. The Cathedral*, founded in the 11th cent. and recently restored, consists of a choir of the 13th and late-Gothic nave of the 15th century. The choir contains the brazen monument of Rudolph of Swabia, who fell in 1080 in a battle with his rival Henry IV., a Crucifixion and Entombment by L. Cranach (with a portrait of Luther among the soldiers), and a Marriage of St. Catharine in Albert Dürer's style. The pulpit and screen are carved in the late-Gothic style. Fine organ. The stone font is coeval with the church. The Schloss, built in 1488-1561 and partly restored in the 17th cent., once a residence of the Saxon princes, presents an imposing appearance with its numerous towers. — A diligence runs once daily to the sulphur-baths of (7 M.) Lauchstädt (Goldener Adler).

25 M. Weissenfels (Schütze; Goldner Hirsch), on the Saale, which is crossed by two bridges, a town with 26,000 inhab., possesses an old Schloss of the extinct Dukes of Weissenfels-Querfurt. The Klemmberg, which rises above the Schloss, is a good point of view. — From Weissenfels to Zeitz, see p. 350.

On the slope to the right rises the château of Goseck, and to the left the lofty tower of the ruin Schönburg. The country becomes more hilly, and the vine is cultivated here with some success.

33 M. Naumburg (Schwarzes Ross*, Reichskrone*, at both R., L., & A. from 13¼ M.; Sächs. Hof), an ancient town, mentioned as early as the 10th cent., with 21,200 inhab., ¾ M. from the station (steam-tramway 15 pf., cab 50 pf.), is an important-looking and pleasantly-situated place. The Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul* (sacristan in the Dom-Platz), dating from the 12-13th cent., and probably consecrated in 1242, with pointed arches and vaulting, but round-arched windows, is built in the so-called Romanesque transition style. The two choirs are Gothic; each is separated from the nave by a tasteful screen. The W. choir (1245-72) is adorned with twelve Statues of founders* of the church and other sculptures. Below the E. choir (14th cent.) is a spacious crypt with pillars and capitals of most varied form. The S.W. tower was erected in 1894, the other three date from the 15th century. The whole was restored in 1875-85. — The Stadtkirche, in the market, contains two pictures by Cranach the Elder: an Adoration of the Magi and 'Suffer little children to come unto Me' (1529). Fine views are obtained from the Bürgergarten on the Galgenberg, the Spechtsart, a hill to the N.W., and the Georgenberg*.

FROM NAUMBURG TO ARTERN, 35 M., railway in 2 hrs. (fares 3 M. 40, 2 M. 30 pf.). — 3½ M. Freyburg on the Unstrut (Goldner Ring; Jahn's Haus Restaurant), possesses a fine church, half Gothic and half Romanesque, dating from the 13th and 15th cent., with two towers connected by a kind of bridge. The ancient Neuenburg on the hill, with its Romanesque double chapel, was one of the chief seats of the landgraves of Thuringia. Extensive view. In the interior is shown a chair in which Queen Louise of Prussia is said to have rested on her flight after the battle of Auerstädt (see p. 353). Ludwig Jahn, the 'father of gymnastics' (p. 68), lived and died (1852) at Freyburg, where a monument was erected to him in 1859. Near the town is the so-called Edelacker, or nobles' acre, where Landgrave Lewis II.

is said to have compelled his rebellious nobles to draw his plough. — A number of small stations are passed. — Near (18 M.) Nebra (Preussischer Hof) is Memleben with the Romanesque Ruin of a Benedictine abbey founded in 975; crypt and statues of emperors of the 13th century. — Beyond (25 M.) Rosleben the line traverses the Goldene Aue. — 85 M. Artern, p. 339.

Beyond Naumburg, to the left of the line, is the celebrated school of Schulpforta, established in 1543 in an old Cistercian monastery, where Klopstock, Fichte, and other celebrated men were pupils. The fine early-Gothic church was completed in 1268. The valley of the Saale from Naumburg to Stadt-Sulza is very picturesque.

37½ M. Kösen. — Hotels. *ZUM MUTHIGEN RITTER, E., L., & A. from 2, D. 1½-2, pens. 5-6 M; KURZHALS, pens. 4-6 M; PREUSSISCHER HOF; TANNE. — Restaurants. At the first two hotels; Railway Restaurant; Curgarten, with picturesque view.

Kösen (2800 inhab.) is a pleasant little watering-place with salt-baths on the Saale, which is here crossed by an old bridge with pointed arches and the railway-bridge. On the left bank lie the station, the Cursaal, and the Curgarten, on the right the Evaporating Works. The Geyersberg, Göttersitz, and Himmelreich are among the prettiest points in the environs. A fine view is enjoyed from the conspicuous Wilhelmsburg Restaurant (20 min.).

To the left on the hill, 2 M. from Kösen, rises the Rudelsburg* (280 ft. above the Saale; restaurant), where a monument has been erected to students who fell in 1870-71 (footpath from Kösen viâ the evaporating house or the Katze, a restaurant on the right bank, where there is a ferry; to the castle ¾ hr.). A statue of Bismarck as a student was erected here in 1896, and there is also an obelisk in memory of Emp. William I. Farther on are the two round towers of Saaleck.

41 M. Gross-Heringen (Zur Saalbahn; Rail. Restaurant), at the influx of the Ilm into the Saale, is the junction for Jena (see R. 52).

FROM GROSS-HERINGEN TO STRAUSSFURT, 33 M., in 2½ hrs. (fares 3 M 20, 2 M 20 pf.), a branch-line, passing near Auerstädt (see below). Straussfurt, see p. 339.

The train quits the Saale and approaches the Ilm. — 43 M. Stadt-Sulza (Grossherzog von Sachsen), another small place with salt-baths.

In a side-valley to the right lies Auerstädt. On the hill, about 3 M. from the station, lies Hassenhausen, near which the battle of Jena, or Auerstädt, which proved so fatal to the Prussians, was fought on 14th Oct., 1806. A monument marks the spot where the Duke of Brunswick was wounded.

49 M. Apolda (Post; Weintraube; Adler) is a busy place with stocking and other manufactories (20,800 inhab.) and a clever war monument by E. Lepke (1895). The train now crosses the Ilm.

59 M. Weimar, see p. 357. To Gera, see p. 362.

Beyond Weimar the country is hilly. — 72 M. Erfurt, see p. 362.

View of the cathedral to the right, on leaving the station.

From Erfurt to Nordhausen, see R. 61; to Sangerhausen, see R. 60.

The train now approaches the N. slopes of the Thuringian Forest. 79½ M. Neu-Dietendorf (Rail. Restaurant*, D. 1½ M) is a well-built Moravian colony. — Railway to Ritschenhausen, see p. 379.

To the left, farther on, rise three picturesque castles situated on three isolated hills, called the Drei Gleichen: viz. the Wachenburg (1415 ft.), still preserved (Restaurant), the Mühlberg, and the Gleichen, both in ruins. The train skirts the Seeberg (p. 367).

89 M. Gotha (Rail. Restaurant), see R. 55. Route to Leinefelde, see p. 391; to Gräfenroda, see p. 383.

Beyond Gotha a fine view is obtained (left) of the mountains of Thuringia, among which the Inselsberg is conspicuous. In the foreground is the château of Tenneberg (p. 385). — 96 M. Fröttstedt.

The railway now follows the course of the Hörsel. On the right, extending nearly as far as Eisenach, rises the long, deeply-furrowed ridge of the Hörselberg (1575 ft.). Here, according to popular tradition, is situated the Grotto of Venus, into which she enticed the knight Tannhäuser. The ascent is best accomplished from Schönau (see below; 1 hr.) through the Zapfengrund (blue marks; Quendt's Restaurant*); fine view from the top. — 102 M. Schönau (see above). — 104 M. Wutha (Bamberger Hof). Hence to Ruhla, see p. 387).

107 M. Eisenach, see R. 56. From Eisenach to Coburg, see R. 57.

The train follows the course of the Hörsel (view of the Wartburg on the left) to its union with the Werra. Beyond a tunnel the train quits the valley of the Werra and enters that of the Fulda.

135 M. Bebra (Rail. Restaurant, D. 1½ M.; Hôtel Schlüter, near the station) is the junction for Frankfurt via Fulda (R. 65).

139 M. Rotenburg; 151 M. Malsfeld, the junction for Niederhone and Treysa (p. 415); 155 M. Melsungen (Rail. Restaurant), an old town on the left bank of the Fulda. 160½ M. Guxhagen, a picturesque town, situated on both banks of the Fulda, with the extensive Benedictine abbey of Breitenau (founded in 1120, now suppressed).

162 M. Guntershausen (p. 414) is the junction for the line from Cassel to Frankfort. 169 M. Wilhelmshöhe.

172 M. Cassel, see p. 121.

52. From Gross-Heringen to Jena and Saalfeld.

RAILWAY to (16 M.) Jena in 50 min. (fares 2 M 40, 1 M 80, 1 M 30 pf.); to (47 M.) Saalfeld in 2½ hrs. (fares 6 M 80, 5 M 10, 3 M 80 pf.).

Gross-Heringen, see p. 353. The line ascends the pretty valley of the Saale to (5 M.) Camburg (Erbprinz), with sugar-works.

9½ M. Dornburg, situated on a lofty rock, possesses three Castles. The oldest was erected in the 11th cent.; that in the centre was built by Duke Ernest Augustus in 1724-48; and the third was occupied by Goethe for several months in 1828 (no admission). Fine views from the garden-terraces. Adjacent is the Schiesshaus (restaurant). At the foot of the rocks lies Dorndorf (Zum blauen Schild), whence a pretty walk may be taken to (3 M.) Tautenburg (Schenk), picturesquely situated on a hill in the middle of a wooded dale. —

12 M. Forstendorf; 14 M. Zwätzen, with an agricultural school. To the left, on a steep hill on the right bank of the Saale, rises the ruined Kunitsburg (1155 ft.; *View).

16 M. Jena. — Hotels. *SCHWARZER BÄR, R., L., & A. 1 1/2-3, D. 2 M.; *DEUTSCHES HAUS, R., L., & A. 2 M.; *SONNE; WEIMARISCHER HOF, with restaurant; LÖWE; STERN, at the Paradies station, unpretending. Rooms at the Stations. — Bismarckhöhe, Schöne Aussicht, two garden-restaurants near the town.

The station of the Saale railway is 1 M. from that of the Weimar line; the hotel-omnibuses meet the trains.

Jena (480 ft.), a town of Weimar with 15,500 inhab., celebrated for its university (ca. 650 stud.), which was founded in 1548, is very pleasantly situated at the confluence of the Saale and Leutra.

Many of the streets contain memorial tablets to illustrious men who were once teachers or students at the university; thus to Arndt (Leutra-Str. 7), Fichte (Fichte-Platz 18), Oken (Johannis-Str. 8), and Schiller (Schlossgasse, Jenagasse 26, the Market Place, and Schillergässchen 3). Goethe's lodgings in the Schlossgasse and in the Botanical Garden are also pointed out. The 'Schwarze Bär' ('Black Bear') commemorates the name of the inn in which Luther met the Swiss students in 1522, on his way from the Wartburg to Wittenberg.

The Market Place is embellished with a Statue of John Frederick the Magnanimous* (d. 1554), the founder of the university, by Drake, and with a Bismarck Fountain. — The choir of the Stadtkirche (15th cent.) contains a figure of Luther in relief, originally destined for his tomb at Wittenberg, but placed here in 1572. On the first floor of the Weimarische Hof (see above) is an Educational Museum. — Goethe frequently resided at the Schloss, where he composed his 'Hermann and Dorothea'. This building, which was formerly the residence of the Dukes of Saxe-Jena, now contains most of the university collections, amongst which that of coins is the most valuable. — In the Eichplatz is the Burschenschafts-Denkmal, or Students' Monument, by Donndorf, erected in 1883 in commemoration of the efforts made by German students in the cause of national liberty after the downfall of Napoleon.

In the pleasant promenades surrounding the town are monuments to Fritz Reuter (p. 368) and to F. G. Schulze (d. 1860), an eminent political economist and agriculturist. In the vicinity is the University Library, containing 190,000 vols. (daily, 12-1 and 2-4). Farther on in the Fürstengraben are the busts of the naturalist Oken (d. 1851), by Drake, of the philosopher Fries (d. 1843), and others. The Botanical Garden is open daily.

The garden of the Observatory on the S. side of the town (Schillergässchen 3) contains a bust of Schiller by Dannecker, on the spot where the poet wrote his 'Wallenstein' in 1798.

On the Weimar road rises the Thuringian District Court, built in 1879. The large Lunatic Asylum, conspicuously situated on a hill above the town, was erected in the same year.

The 'Tanne Inn' at Kamsdorf, on the opposite bank of the Saale, bears an inscription to the effect that Goethe once resided there; a path by the Saale is said to be the spot where he composed the 'Erlkönig'. — A little farther down the river is the village of Wenigenjena, in the little church of which Schiller was married in 1790.

The Environs of Jena (comp. the Mag), where the peculiar stratification of the rock is an object of interest (layers of various kinds of shell-limestone with beds of greyish marl, overlying at places gypsum or red sandstone and clay), afford a number of pleasant excursions. On the left bank of the Saale a double avenue of trees, the 'Paradies', leading from the river to the station, affords a pleasant view. On the Hausberg, 2½ M. to the E., rises the Fuchsturm, a remnant of the castle of Kirchberg, generally open in summer (10 pf.), reached from the village of Ziegenhain (where the key is kept), or from Kamsdorf in ¾ hr. From Ziegenhain a pleasant path leads round the Kernberge and over the Luisenhöhe (a little below is the Sophienhöhe, with good restaurant and view) and Alexanderhöhe to Wöllnitz (2 hrs.). — The 'Forst' (restaurant), 2 M. to the W. of Jena, is another picturesque spot; the tower at the top was built in memory of the Jena students who fell in 1870-71. A good path leads hence to the S.E. to Lichtenhain, which, like Ziegenhain and Wöllnitz, is a favourite resort of the students. From Lichtenhain back to Jena, ½ hr.

The Battle of Jena was fought on 14th Oct., 1806, a little to the N. of the town, where Napoleon, with his superior generalship, and an army of 130,000 men, of whom about 80,000 were actually brought into the field, signally defeated 48,000 Prussians under Prince Hohenlohe. The battle raged most fiercely at Viersehnheiligen, 5 M. from Jena, on the way to Apolda, about ¼ M. to the right of the road. At the same time the rest of the Prussian army was engaged at the battle of Auerstädt (comp. p. 353).

26 M. Kahla (540 ft.; Goldener Löwe), a small town in the duchy of Altenburg (4400 inhab.). Opposite to it rises the old fortress of Leuchtenburg* (½ hr.), a good point of view (now a hotel and meteorological station). — 30 M. Orlamünde (Stern), at the confluence of the Saale and the Orla, once the seat of the powerful counts of that name.

40 M. Rudolstadt (645 ft.; Ritter*, Löwe*, R., L., & A. 2-2½, D. 2 M.; Deutscher Kaiser*, unpretending; Thüringer Hof; Adler; Krone*, ¼ M. from the town, with a garden and baths; Rudolstadt*, see p. 357; Rail. Restaurant), the capital of the principality of Schwarzburg-Rudolstadt, is charmingly situated on the Saale. Pop. 11,900. On a height (200 ft.) rises the castle of Heidecksburg, the residence of the prince, containing a handsome rococo hall. Pretty views from the W. portal and the garden; picturesque walks in the Hain, a wood above the town. The Ludwigsburg in the town contains a cabinet of natural history, including a valuable collection of shells. The Anger, near the station, is a favourite resort on fine summer-evenings (band 2-3 times weekly).

About 5 M. to the S.W. of Rudolstadt (one-horse carr. 5 M.) is the famous school of Keilhau, founded by Fröbel in 1817. The Baropthurm, 1 M. to the W., built in 1878, commands an admirable view (key kept at Keilhau).

On the highroad, 2 M. to the S. of Rudolstadt, lies Volkstedt, in one of the first houses of which Schiller resided in 1788 (with a tablet; visitors admitted to a room with Schiller's writing-table and chair). The Schillerhöhe on the opposite bank of the Saale, adorned with a copy of his bust by Dannecker, commands a fine view. — About halfway between Rudolstadt and Volkstedt, a little to the left of the road, rises the Justinshöhe (920 ft.), another good point of view. At the foot of the Justinshöhe, near a large chemical factory, is the Rudolstadt*, with baths, restaurant, and lodgings (R. 1½-3, pens. from 3½ M.). — Other pleasant points are the (2 hrs.) Kulm*, the Marienthurm (¾ hr.), and the Möriaser Grund (to the S.W.).

43 M. Schwarza (Traube), the station for visitors to the Schwarza-Thal (p. 378; branch-line to Blankenburg, see p. 377.)

Beyond Schwarza the train crosses the Saale. To the right is the battle-field of 10th Oct., 1806, where Lannes and Angereau with 30,000 men defeated 11,000 Prussians and Saxons under Prince Lewis Ferdinand of Prussia. Between Saalfeld and Schwarza, a monument has been erected to the prince on the spot where he fell.

47 M. Saalfeld, where the line joins the Leipsic and Hochstadt railway, see p. 350.

53. Weimar.

English Church in the Bürger-Schule; service at 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. U.S. Consular Agent, Thos. E. Moore, Esq.

Weimar (670 ft.), the capital of the grand-duchy of Saxe-Weimar, with 26,600 inhab., an irregularly-built old town with modern suburbs, pleasantly situated on the Ilm, derives its principal interest from the literary associations connected with it. By the invitation of Duke Charles Augustus (d. 1828), a liberal patron of literature, Goethe resided here in an official capacity (latterly as minister) during 56 years till his death in 1832. His contemporaries Herder and Wieland also held appointments here under the Duke, during whose reign Weimar was visited by many other celebrated men of letters. In 1789 Schiller, at Goethe's request, was appointed a professor at the neighbouring university of Jena, but he resigned in 1801 and retired to Weimar, where he died in 1805. — Weimar is now the seat of a school of art, founded in 1860, to which Genelli (d. 1868), Preller (d. 1878), Pauwels (d. 1872), Verlat (d. 1890), and Kalckreuth (d. 1876) belonged.

The wide Sophien-Strasse leads from the station into the town, $\frac{1}{2}$ M. distant. On the right stands a War Monument*, by Härtel.

The Museum* (Pl. 15; B, 2), a conspicuous red and yellow sandstone edifice in the Renaissance style, at the end of the Sophien-Str., erected by Zitek in 1863-69 (open from April 16th to Oct. 15th daily, except Mon., 10-4, on Sun. and holidays 11-4; from Oct. 16th to April 15th on Sun. 11-3, on Wed. and Thurs. 10-3; on Sun. and Wed. free, at other times 50 pf.; catalogue 60 pf.).

GROUND FLOOR. Sculptures, chiefly casts from antique and Renaissance works. In the N. Gallery: Frieze in relief by Härtel of Dresden, representing the Education of the youth of Germany, the Battle of Arminius, and the Waihalla. Smaller objects of art, carvings in ivory, glass vessels, Japanese lacquer-work. — A niche in the staircase contains Steinhäuser's colossal group of Goethe and Psyche in marble (from a sketch by Bettina von Arnim).

FIRST FLOOR. The W. saloon, lighted from above, and the four smaller rooms adjoining it contain oil-paintings of no great value, with the exception of Nos. 25. a portrait of an English ecclesiastic by Holbein the Younger, 7-18. by Lucas Cranach, a portrait by Van der Helst (No. 159), two landscapes by Ruysdael (171, 172), three fine sea-pieces by Van de Velde (*181-186), and works by Schwind (111) and Preller (90-109). — The N. (or Preller) Gallery contains a cycle of "Mural Paintings from the Odyssey by Preller (d. 1878), representing the fortunes of Odysseus from his departure from Troy till his return to Ithaca. The large landscape-paintings depict the most important events in his wanderings and return; the pictures on the base (red figures on a black ground, like those on Greek vases) represent scenes at Ithaca before and after his return. They are painted in wax-colours, and rank among the best modern works of art, while their arrangement is very skilfully adapted to the architectural construction of the room. — The E. saloon, lighted from above, with the rooms adjoining it, contains celebrated modern drawings by Carstens, Cornelius, Genelli, Schwind, and others. The cycle of water-colour drawings, illustrating the 'Fable of the Seven Ravens', painted in 1857, is also by Schwind. — The S. gallery contains engravings, etchings, wood-cuts, models, and a small library; the walls are hung with cartoons by Neher (d. 1891), Carracci, and Guido Reni.

To the S. of the Museum, in the Karl-August-Platz, is the Victoria Fountain, by Härtel. — In the old Jakobskirchhof (Pl. 20; B, 3) repose the remains of Lucas Cranach the Elder (see below) and Christiane Vulpius (d. 1816), Goethe's wife.

In the centre of the town, in an open square called the HERDER-PLATZ, rises the Peter-Pauls- or Stadt-Kirche (Pl. 19; B, 4), built in 1488-90 (sacristan, Hinter der Stadtkirche 6).

It possesses one of the elder Cranach's largest and finest pictures, a Crucifixion*, containing portraits of Luther, Melancthon, Bugenhagen, the artist, etc. Herder (d. 1803) reposes in the nave of this church, beneath a simple slab, bearing his motto 'Licht, Liebe, Leben'. The lifelike stone figure of L. Cranach (d. 1553), 'pictoris celeberrimi', was brought hither from the churchyard of St. James (see above) and has been recently restored. The brass which marks the grave of Duke Bernard (see p. 359) is the most interesting of the numerous monuments to princes of Weimar interred here.

In front of the church, to the S., stands a Bronze Statue of Herder (Pl. 29), by Schaller, erected in 1850; the pedestal bears the poet's favourite motto (see above). Behind the church is the Parsonage (Pl. 24), occupied by Herder from 1776 till his death.

To the E. of the Stadtkirche rises the grand-ducal Palace*

(Pl. C, 4), erected on the foundation of an older edifice in 1790-1803, partly under Goethe's superintendence.

The W. WING (intendant in the court-yard, to the left; 1-2 pers. 1 M., 3-4 pers. 1½ M.) is decorated with Frescoes: in the 'HERDERZIMMER' symbolical figures of that scholar's various spheres of activity, by Jäger; in the SCHILLERZIMMER scenes from Plesco, Don Carlos, Wallenstein, Mary Stuart, etc., by Neher; in the GÖTTERZIMMER scenes from Egmont, Faust, Hermann and Dorothea, etc., by Neher; in the *WIELANDZIMMER Oberon, etc., by Preller. — The APARTMENTS OF THE GRAND-DUKE and the GRAND-DUCHESS in the E. WING are accessible in their absence only. They contain drawings of the heads of the Apostles in Leonardo da Vinci's Last Supper, which some authorities regard as originals, others as copies. There are also two interesting works by Perugino and by a Pupil of Leon. da Vinci. The Grand-Duke's Room is adorned with modern pictures by Ary Scheffer, Wisslicenus, etc.; in the DRAWING ROOMS are landscapes by Preller.

To the N.E. of the Palace stands the new building (Pl. C, 3) for the safe-keeping of the Goethe and Schiller Archives, accessible only for purposes of study. Director, Prof. Dr. Suphan.

In the FÜRSTEN-PLATZ (Pl. C, 4), to the S. of the Palace, is an equestrian statue of Charles Augustus, by Donndorf of Weimar.

The grand-ducal *Library (Pl. 12), in the 'Grüne Schloss' on the E. side of the Fürsten-Platz, is open daily, except Sun., 9-12 and 2-6 (closed in June and on the principal festivals; fee 1 M., for a party 50 pf. each).

It contains 200,000 vols. and 8000 maps, amongst which are two celebrated old maps of America (1527 and 1529), drawn on a large scale upon parchment, and 4-500 old genealogical works. — The principal room is decorated with a number of interesting busts and portraits of celebrated men and women, most of whom have resided at Weimar, including portraits of members of the grand-ducal family, such as the Duchess Anna Amalia (d. 1807), portrait and bust of her son Charles Augustus, and several of Goethe; marble bust of Goethe over life-size by David d'Angers (1851), another marble *Bust by Trippel of 1788, representing his Apollo-like head; bust of Schiller by Dannecker, that of Herder by Trippel; also those of Tieck, Wieland, Winckelmann, Gluck, etc. Many historical and literary curiosities are also shown. — The Cabinet of Coins and Medals is a valuable collection. — The spiral staircase of 64 steps in the tower was constructed by a prisoner in 1671 out of the stem of a gigantic oak.

The Fürstenhaus (Pl. 9), to the S., was the residence of the dukes before the erection of the new palace (1774-1803). Farther to the S. is the Greek Church (Pl. 21), adjoined by the pastor's residence, formerly the house of Frau von Stein, Goethe's friend.

In the market-place is the handsome modern-Gothic Rathhaus (Pl. 11; B, 4), which contains an interesting painting by Martersteig, representing Bernard of Weimar's entry into Breisach. The opposite house (No. 11) was once occupied by the painters Lucas Cranach, the older and younger, as their device (winged serpent with crown) still indicates. — In front of the Law Courts (Pl. B, 4) is the tasteful Donndorf Fountain.

Schiller's House (Pl. 26; B, 4), No. 12 Schiller-Strasse, has been purchased by the town, and the rooms occupied by Schiller (2nd floor) contain a few reminiscences of the poet (shown daily, 8-12 and 2-6, in winter 9-12 and 2-4; adm. 30 pf.).

In front of the Theatre (Pl. B, 4) rises the Goethe-Schiller Monument* (Pl. 30), erected in 1857, in bronze, designed by Riet-schel. — Opposite is the Dower House (Withums-Palais; Pl. 10), the home of the Duchess Amalia (d. 1807), fitted up by the grand-duke with its old furniture, and containing numerous portraits and other interesting reminiscences of Weimar's classic period (open on week-days 9-1 and 2-5, Sun. 9-1; fee). — In the Wieland-Str., to the N., is Wieland's House (Pl. 25). In the adjoining pleasure grounds is a bust of Hummel (d. 1837), the composer.

Goethe's House* (Pl. 27; B, 5), in the Goethe-Platz, was presented to the great poet by Duke Charles Augustus and occupied by him for 40 years. After Goethe's death it remained inaccessible to the public for half-a-century, but it was bequeathed in 1885 to the state, with its contents, by Walther von Goethe, the poet's last grandson, and opened as the Goethe National Museum. Adm. in summer daily, except Mon., 11-4; in winter Sun. & Wed. 11-3 (fee 1 M., on Sun. 50 pf.). Director, Dr. Rutland.

The house has been restored as far as possible to its condition during Goethe's life-time. The spacious Staircase, built in 1792 from a design by Goethe and adorned with sculptures and cartoons, leads to the Reception Room, which contains portraits of Goethe (by Kraus, 1776, Angelica Kauffmann, 1787, and Kolbe, 1822), his family, members of the ducal house (Anna Amalia by Tischbein, Charles Augustus by Kolbe), and friends (Marianne von Willemer, Goethe's Suleika, etc.). In the window-recesses are Goethe's collection of antique gems, medals with his image, his orders and rings, and other relics. — To the left is the Juno Room, fitted up exactly as in Goethe's time, with the original furniture and decorations by H. Meyer, the piano on which the young Mendelssohn played, portraits of Goethe after Stieler (1829), Goethe and his wife by Bury, Zelter by Begas, a copy of the Aldobrandine Nuptials by H. Meyer, etc. A glass-case contains medallions of Goethe (1785) and his parents (1778) by Melchior, gifts from the city of Frankfurt and from English friends, etc. — The next room, known as the Umbino Room, contains paintings by Tischbein, Carus, L. von Klense, and others, busts, sketches by Goethe, portrait-medallions by David, a cup with a beautiful miniature of Goethe (1826; by Sedders), etc. — To the right of the Reception Room are three rooms containing Goethe's art-collections proper. In the first of these (the DROCKENZIMMER) are a selection of valuable drawings (P. Vischer, Rubens, Angelica Kauffmann, Watteau) and specimens from the fine cabinet of coins (*Italian portrait-medals of the 15-18th cent.). Rooms II and III contain *Italian Majolica, plaques of the Italian Renaissance, and ancient (Victoria, Jupiter, Bacchus) and modern (Giov. da Bologna, Venus bathing; Donatello, Venus) bronze statuettes. Also drawings (Boucher, Rembrandt), busts (Trippel's first effort), portraits and masks of friends, autographs, etc. — The Bust Room, to the S. of the Reception Room, contains busts of Herder (by Trippel; 1790), Goethe and his wife, Wieland, Lord Byron, etc.; the ceiling-painting is by H. Meyer. Adjacent is the small GARDEN ROOM. — At the back of the house, overlooking the old-fashioned garden, are Goethe's simple Study and Bedroom, arranged exactly as on the day of his death (Mar. 22nd, 1832), which took place in the large arm-chair in the latter room. — In the attic are Goethe's natural history collections, portraits of his contemporaries, etc.

Farther on, near the former Frauenthor, is Wieland's Monument (Pl. 31; B, 5), by Gasser, erected in 1857.

The Cemetery (Pl. B, 6), on the S. side of the town, contains the Grand Ducal Vault (Pl. 22; open in summer, 11-12 and 3-5; when closed, apply at the Hofmarschallamt in the Bastille, Pl. 7, O 4; gratuity), in which Schiller (d. 1805) and Goethe (d. 1832) are interred in coffins of oak covered with laurel wreaths, beside the ancestors of the reigning Duke, beginning with Duke William (d. 1662). Dukes Charles Augustus (d. 1828) and Charles Frederick (d. 1853) and their consorts also repose here. Adjoining the ducal vault is the small, but richly-decorated Russian-Greek Chapel (Pl. 23), beneath which the Grand-Duchess Maria Paulowna (d. 1859) is interred. On the middle wall of the cemetery is a memorial stone to the philanthropist and satirist Johannes Falk (d. 1826).

To the W. of the cemetery is the Felsenkeller, commanding an excellent view. At No. 11 Luisen-Str. is the Natural History Museum (Pl. A, B, 5; open on Sun., 11-2), also containing antiquarian and ethnographical collections. — To the E. is the Grand-Ducal School of Art (Kunstschule, Pl. 16; p. 357). In the adjacent Marien-Strasse (No. 17) is the Liszt Museum (adm. 11-1 and 3-5; fee), in the house last occupied by Franz Liszt.

Dr. Schwabe possesses a collection of early German and mediæval antiquities, ethnographical curiosities, etc. (Am Horn 15), to which visitors are kindly admitted.

The Park* (Pl. C, D, 5, 6) lies to the S. E., on the charming banks of the Ilm, where Goethe once occupied a modest summer-abode, called the Garten-Haus (Pl. 28; fee). — By the bridge, on this side of the Ilm, is the Borkenhäuschen or Klaue (Pl. 34), built by Goethe in 1778 and often occupied by Charles Augustus in summer. Adjacent is the monument erected by Goethe 'genio hujus loci'. Higher up are the so-called Ruine (Pl. 33) and a pavilion called the Tempelherrenhaus (Pl. 32). Farther to the S. is a monument erected by Goethe to Francis, Duke of Dessau. At the S. extremity of the park is the Römische Haus (Pl. 35), a summer-residence of Charles Augustus and still occasionally used. The verses inscribed at the foot of the flights of steps leading to the lower part of the park are by Goethe. — At the S. end of the park is the village of Ober-Weimar. — On an eminence beyond rises the Belvedere château (Pl. B, C, 6), built in 1724-32, with hothouses and pleasure-grounds, connected with Weimar by a fine old avenue (1 hr.; restaurant and pretty view). The open-air theatre (fee) here is still preserved.

The château and park of Tiefurt*, on the Ilm, 2 M. to the E. of Weimar, are also pleasantly situated. At the village of Osmannstedt, on the Ilm, farther distant in the same direction, Wieland (d. 1813) is interred in the garden of his former estate, by the side of his wife (d. 1801) and his friend Sophia Brentano (d. 1800).

Ettersburg, 4½ M. to the N. of Weimar, the summer-residence of the heir-apparent, also abounds in reminiscences of the golden era of Weimar. An amateur company, including members of the ducal family, frequently performed here in the open air, the trees, meadows, and fountains constituting the scenery and decorations. Plays of Goethe were often thus acted. The way to the Ettersburg passes the Herdersruhe, at the foot of the Ettersberg, a favourite resort of Herder.

FROM WEIMAR TO BLANKENHAIN, 15½ M., railway in 1½-2 hrs. (fares 1 M 80, 1 M 20 pf.; comp. Map, p. 577). — 12 M. Berka (Deutscher Kaiser; Tanne; Weimartischer Hof; Curhaus), a small town and watering-place on the Ilm, with pine-cone, sand, and cold water baths, and charming walks in the environs. — 15½ M. Blankenhain (1920 ft.; Bdr; Mohr; Lindenhaus), a favourite summer-retreat and small watering-place. The old Schloss Gleichen is now a hospital and lunatic asylum.

FROM WEIMAR TO GERA, 43 M., railway in 2-3 hrs. (fares 6 M 30, & M 50, 3 M 20 pf.). — 14 M. Jena (p. 355); 17 M. Göschwitz (p. 356). — 43 M. Gera, see p. 360.

Theatre (Pl. 30), Theater-Str. — Post & Telegraph Office (Pl. 21), in the Anger. — Baths (Pl. 34), Hermanns-Platz.

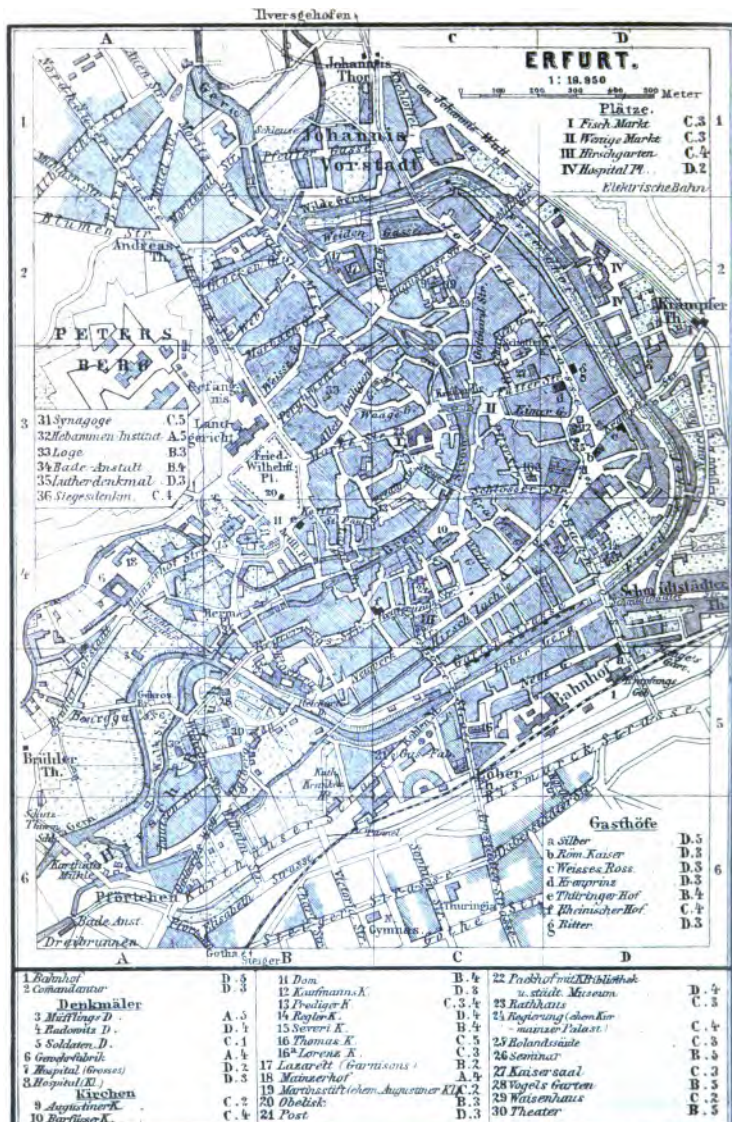

Erfurt (655 ft.), a very ancient town on the Gera, with 78,200 inhab. and a garrison of 2100 soldiers, was a fortress down to 1873, but most of the works have been removed. It possesses several handsome Gothic churches, and private dwelling-houses of the 16th and 17th centuries.

The town existed in the form of a fortified agricultural settlement as early as the time of St. Boniface (741), the English apostle of this district. Henry the Lion, Duke of Saxony, made his submission to the Emperor Frederick I. here in 1181. In the 14th and 15th cent. Erfurt was a member of the Hanseatic League; at a later date it became part of the Electorate of Mayence; in 1802 it was annexed to Prussia, from 1806 to 1814 it was under the French supremacy, and it was afterwards finally restored to Prussia. The so-called Erfurt Congress took place in the autumn of 1808. The Parliament of 1860 held its sittings in the Augustine church (p. 364). The university, founded in 1392 and suppressed in 1816, was one of the chief seats of the Humanists at the time of the Reformation.

From the Railway Station we follow the Bahnhof-Str. to the left to the Anger. At the corner is the Steueramt (Pl. 22), with a small Public Picture Gallery (open on Sun., Tues., Wed., and Frid., 11-1) and the Royal Library.

In the ANGER, a broad street planted with trees, are the Post Office (Pl. 21), the Military Headquarters (Pl. 2), and the Luther Monument* (unveiled 1890; Pl. 35) between them.

The Schlösser-Strasse leads from the Post Office to the Fischmarkt, in which are a Roland Column (1591) and the Bathhaus* (Pl. 23; C, 3), erected in 1869-75 on the site of an earlier building. The latter is adorned with frescoes by Kämpffer (Faust and Tannhäuser legends, Luther's life) and Janssen (scenes from the history of Erfurt, in the reception-room; fee 30-50 pf.). Two of the private houses in the Fischmarkt are handsome Renaissance edifices of the 16th cent., and there is another of equal interest in the Johannis-Str. (No. 169). The adjacent Krämer-Brücke is flanked with houses on each side. — The Hospital (Pl. 7), beyond the Wilde Gera, contains a collection of antiquities.

To the W. of the Fischmarkt is the principal square, the FRIEDRICH-WILHELMS-PLATZ (Pl. B, 3), in the centre of which rises an Obelisk in memory of Frederick Charles, Elector of Mayence (1777). On the N. side is the handsome Court House, and on the S. the old 'Lillie' Inn, where Luther, Maurice of Saxony, and Gustavus Adolphus are all said to have put up. To the S.W. is an eminence, on the top of which the Cathedral and the Severikirche form a picturesque group, approached by a broad flight of steps (sacristan in the corner house to the right, at the top).

The Cathedral* (Pl. 11; B, 4; Rom. Cath.) was begun after the middle of the 13th cent., in the transition-style, on the site of an older structure (1153); the choir, built in 1349-72 in the pure Gothic style, is erected on a massive substructure (the 'Cavaten'); nave and aisles date from 1456-72. The portals are worthy of inspection. The church was seriously damaged by fires and sieges at various periods, but was restored in 1845-70. The W. façade, which is also approached by a flight of steps, has been adorned with a large figure of the Virgin in mosaic on a gold ground (1870).

INTERIOR. By the first pillar on the N. side a 'Bronze relief, Coronation of the Virgin, by P. Vischer, being a monument 'Henningsen Geden jurec.' (d. 1521; replica at Wittenberg, see p. 340). Near it, on the opposite pillar, a curious painting of 1534, representing the Transubstantiation; on the S. wall a figure of St. Christopher, in oil (1499); below it the tombstone of a Count von Gleichen and his two wives, of the 13th cent.; pulpit and organ-loft by Schinkel; modern stained glass. The *Relief in wood of the Resurrection, above an altar to the right of the choir, has well preserved painting (15th cent.). Another relief of 1429. The choir contains finely carved stalls of the 15th cent., and a curious bronze candelabrum of the 11-12th, representing a Worshipper. Fine stained glass of the 14th century. The Blutkapelle, with two Gothic altars, has recently been restored.

Beautiful Cloisters on the S. side, partly Romanesque and partly Gothic. — The Towers, dating from the beginning of the 13th cent., contain ten bells, the largest of which ('Maria Gloriosa') weighs upwards of 13 tons. Fine view from the top (260 steps).

The church of St. Severus (Pl. 15, B 4; also Rom. Cath.), dating from the 14th cent., with its three spires, contains a late-Gothic font, good reliefs (14th cent.) on the altar, and a figure of St. Michael (1472). — The Predigerkirche (Pl. 13; C, 4), erected in 1228, contains a carved altar, in admirable preservation, from Wolgemut's studio (1460-70). The Barfüsserkirche (Pl. 10; C, 4), another simple but tasteful Gothic structure of 1285-1316, restored in 1850, also contains a carved altar (14th cent.).

The Government Buildings (Pl. 24; C, 4), formerly the palace of the governors appointed by the Electors of Mayence, were occupied by Napoleon in 1808, who convened a congress of reigning princes here. In the square in front of them, called the 'Hirschgarten', a monument has been erected in memory of 1866 and 1870-71.

The Augustine Monastery (Pl. 9; C, 2), now an orphan-asylum (Martinstift), contains the cell of Luther, who was a monk here in 1505-8, but nearly all reminiscences of the illustrious Reformer were destroyed by a fire in 1872.

The Steiger (best reached by the tramway to the Flora, p. 362) and the Cyriaxburg, to the S.W., are the favourite promenades at Erfurt. The horticulture of the environs enjoys a high reputation. The nurseries of J. C. Schmidt, Haage & Schmidt, Benary, Heinemann, Platz, and Christensen contain a great variety of plants. A rich display of flowers may also be seen in summer and autumn beyond the Brähler-Thor, to the right. Near the Steiger are numerous well-kept market-gardens.

The salt-mine of Ileersgehoven, 3 M. to the N. of Erfurt (on the railway to Sondershausen, see p. 393; tramway, see p. 362), with a shaft 1300 ft. deep, may be visited in the forenoon by permission of the overseer (1-1½ M.).

Theatre. Performances during the first four months of the year only.

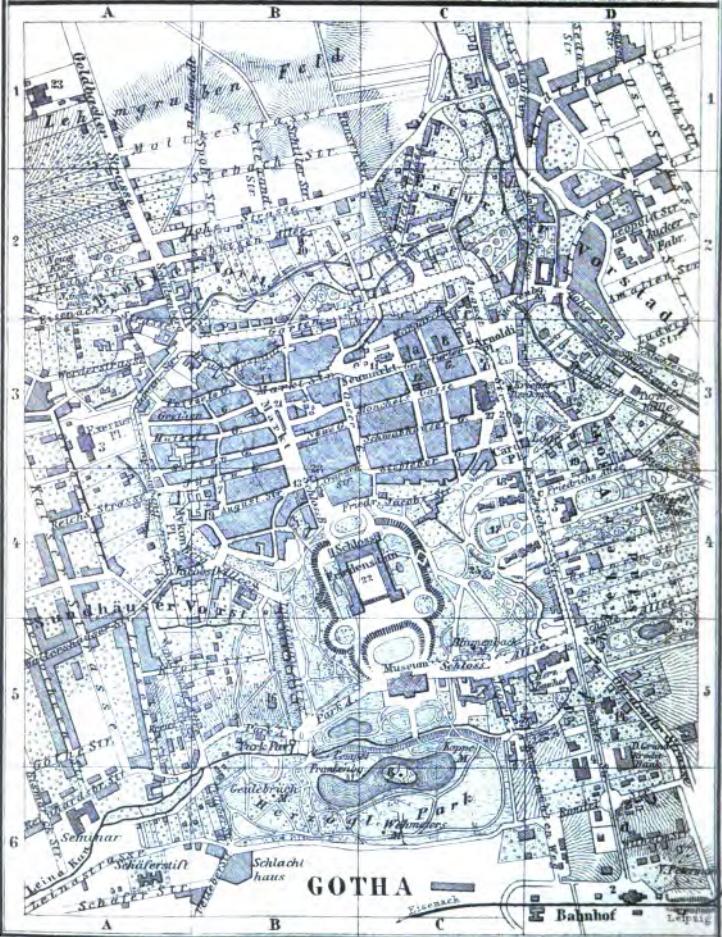

Gotha (1080 ft.), the second residence of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, with 31,700 inhab., is a pleasant place with attractive environs. It is one of the busiest mercantile places in Thuringia, containing several banks and the well-known geographical establishment of Justus Perthes (Pl. 19), founded in 1786.

In the BAHNHOF-STRASSE (Pl. D, 6, 5), leading from the station into the town, we pass several handsome new buildings: on the right a bank, and on the left a fire-insurance office; on the right the Life Insurance Office (Pl. 14) and the former Palace of Duke Ernest II. (Pl. 29); to the left the Ducal Stables (Pl. 15).

The Bahnhof-Str. is continued by the FRIEDRICH-STRASSE (Pl. D, 4), in which, to the right, is the Palais Friedrichsthal (Pl. 5), now occupied by the ministry; in its grounds are the new Law Courts. Farther on in the Friedrich-Str., to the left, is the Orangerie (Pl. 17), with its extensive hot-houses; then (r.) the Masonic Lodge and the Post Office (Pl. 20), and (l.) the Privatbank and the Court Theatre (Pl. 27; C, 3). Opposite rises a war-monument for 1870-71, and to the N. is a monument (Pl. 1; C, 3) to Arnoldi (d. 1841), the founder of the large insurance-offices of Gotha.

The Rathhaus (Pl. 21), in the Haupt-Markt (Pl. B, 3), dates from 1574 and has an elaborately adorned N. façade. The house in the S.E. corner of the square was once the property of the painter Lucas Cranach, and still bears his device (comp. p. 359).

The cloisters of the old Augustine Convent (Pl. 9; B, 4), founded in 1258, are still extant; the Church, rebuilt last century, contains a large Crucifixion by Jacobs, a native of Gotha (1802-66), to whom a monument has been erected in the Berg-Allée (Pl. B, 4).

On a slight eminence rises the extensive Friedenstein Palace (Pl. 22; B, C, 4), built in 1643-46, and in 1894 once more made the ducal residence by the present Duke of Saxe-Gotha (Duke of Edinburgh). The castellan (fee) lives in the court, to the right.

The Throne Room, adorned with stucco work of 1837, and the apartments of the duke are in the E. wing. The rooms in the centre and W. wing contain a few pictures, tapestry, Dresden china, etc. In the tower are the Theatre (first floor); the Armoury (groundfloor); the Library (upper floor; open daily 10-1), which contains 200,000 vols., numerous incunabula, MSS., miniatures, and autographs (letter of Henry VIII. against Luther); and the Cabinet of Coins (75,000 in number; numerous Greek specimens).

On the terrace to the S. rises the Museum* (Pl. C, 5); entr. on the S. side. It is open from 1st April to 31st Oct. on Mon., Tues., Frid., and Sat., 10-1, 50 pf.; Sun., first floor, 8-10, and second floor, 10-1, gratis; Wed., first floor, 10-1, free, and second floor, 1 M.; in winter, Wed. and Sat. 10-1, 50 pf.; on other occasions (except Thurs.), 1-4 pers., 5 M.

Ground Floor. To the left is the Collection of Casts of ancient and modern sculptures; also Busts* by Houdon of Molière, Voltaire, Rousseau, Diderot, and Franklin. To the right is the Mineral Cabinet, with numerous fossils.

First Floor. The Natural History Cabinet on this floor includes valuable collections of shells (80,000 varieties) and Thuringian insects.

Second Floor. The four inner rooms are devoted to the PICTURE GALLERY* (catalogue, 50 pf.). — Room I: Netherlandish Masters. 1. School of Rogier van der Weyden, Philip the Good of Burgundy; 8. Ant. Mor, Portrait; 12. J. Brueghel, Landscape; 9. Valckenborch, Flemish fair (1574); Rubens, 39. The 'Garden of Love' (copy), 36-38. Müller* and E. Wolfgang.

Two of the outer rooms on the S. side contain the CABINET OF ENGRAVINGS (100,000), comprising a number of old Italian and German specimens. A selection of the most valuable plates is on exhibition. Among the DRAWINGS are specimens of Raphael and Correggio. Original plate of Dürer's 'Melancholy'. *Miniatures and bookbindings from Venice (15th cent.).

On the N. and W. sides is the CABINET OF ART AND ANTIQUITIES. — Room I. Egyptian antiquities. — R. II. Greek and Græco-Italian vases, statuettes, and terracottas; Roman busts and reliefs. — R. III. Ancient bronzes; Greek and Etruscan gold ornaments; ancient glass; prehistoric weapons and ornaments, mainly from the vicinity of Gotha; cork models of ancient buildings. — R. IV. Objects in gold, silver, enamel, ivory, amber, crystal, and precious stones; cups and dishes of the 16-18th cent.; field service of Peter the Great. — R. V. Bijoux of all kinds, including a costly *Breviary, a *Dagger, and a necklace of the 16th cent., a *Bust of Louis XIV. in amethyst, a bust of Confucius in sapphire, etc.; miniatures of Bernard of Weimar, the Saxe-Coburg-Gotha princes, Spinoza, Raphael Mengs, Marie Antoinette, and others. By the second window is a rich collection of antique and modern gems, the finest of which are an oriental *Garnet with a portrait of the Sassanide emperor Shapoor I, and an antique onyx-cameo with Jupiter and Ceres. Statuettes of angels (Ital., 16th cent.). Landscapes by Hackert. Feuerbach, Portrait of himself; Weber, Portrait of Gustav Freytag. Busts of Dukes Frederick II. and Ernest I. The cases in the loggia contain the ducal silver plate, including a fine specimen of Jamnitzer. In the middle, reproduction of the Farnese Bull, by A. de Vries. — R. VI. *Böttger's porcelain (see p. 306), Italian majolica, Spanish 'azulejos' (enamelled plaques), German earthenware, Meissen and Sèvres china, German and Venetian glass; in the middle, Limoges and other enamel; *Pallissy ware; *Majolica dish with mother-of-pearl (ca. 1600; at the back of the cabinet). — R. VII. Embroideries. Ecclesiastical antiquities. Mediæval carvings in ivory (hunting-horn and casket of the 14th cent.), wood (Adam and Eve, by Conrad Meiß), and metal; *Gospels of the 10th cent. with portraits of Otho II. and Empress Theophano; garments of the 18th and 16th cent.; reminiscences of Napoleon, Marie Antoinette, Mme. de Maintenon, etc.

On the E. and S. sides are the ETHNOGRAPHICAL COLLECTIONS, including numerous objects from China and Japan.

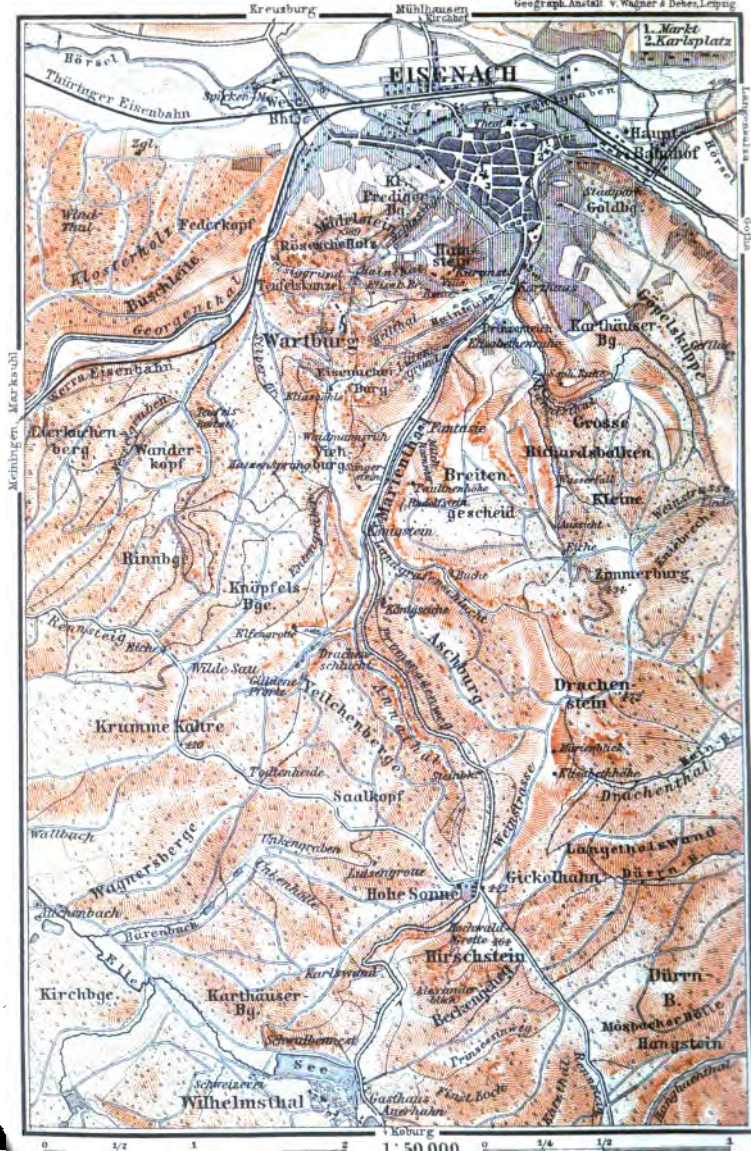

On the W., S., and E. sides of the palace are extensive Promenades. In a grove on the E. side are the Thee-Schlösschen (now used as the English church) and a statue of Blumenbach, the naturalist, a native of Gotha (1752-1840). To the S. of the palace, beyond the terrace of the Museum, is the *Park, with a pond, on an island in which is an old ducal burial-place. — The Leina Canal, which intersects the park and supplies the town with water from the Thuringian Forest, was constructed in 1369 by the Landgrave Balthasar. Eisenach (725 ft.), a pleasant town with 24,300 inhab., the finest point in the Thuringian Forest and since 1595 the residence of the dukes of Saxe-Eisenach, who became extinct in 1741, now belongs to Weimar.

The Church of St. Nicholas, at the entrance to the town from the station, is a fine Romanesque structure, with an octagonal tower, restored in 1887 and adorned with painting in 1894 (open free, 12-1). In front of the church is a Monument to Luther*, by Donnerdorf, unveiled in 1895.

The Palace in the market-place was erected by Duke Ernest Augustus of Weimar in 1742; in front of it rises a large fountain, with a gilt statue of St. George. A bronze statue of Johann Sebastian

Bach, by Donndorf, was erected in 1884 in front of the Marktkirche or Georgskirche, opposite the palace. A memorial tablet in the Frauenplan marks the house (No. 21) where the great composer was born in 1685 (d. at Leipsic 1750). At the back of the church is a monument in memory of 1870-71. — Farther on, in the Luther-Platz, is the Lutherhaus, where Luther is said to have lived with Frau Ursula Cotta when attending school here in 1498. To the S.E. is the Marien-Strasse, leading to the Marien-Thal.

To the left, immediately beyond the garden of the Goldene Löwe, lies the grand-ducal Karthausgarten*, commanding a pleasing view of the Wartburg (best light in the morning). — The Marien-Thal, through which runs the Coburg road, is studded with pretty villas and gardens. At the entrance, to the right, is a villa once occupied by Fritz Reuter, the Low-German poet (d. 1874), which is now open to the public as the 'Reuter Museum' (9-12 and 2-6). Farther on are the beer-gardens and lodging-houses mentioned at p. 367. A pleasant walk skirts the Prinzenteich (to the Anna-Thal, $1\frac{1}{2}$ M., see p. 369).

FROM EISENACH TO THE WARTBURG there are several routes (guide unnecessary). From the market-place, opposite Bach's statue, we ascend, past the Post Office, and then to the right through the Obere Predigergasse to the Prediger-Platz. Hence we either ascend to the ridge ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.; brown way-marks), leaving the old burial-ground and the Mädelstein to the right; or ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr.; blue marks) proceed through the Röses Hölzchen to the Mädelstein and then through wood. — A more picturesque footpath and the carriage-road quit the town by the Marien-Strasse and diverge to the right from the Marien-Thal road, the former opposite the entrance to the Karthausgarten, the latter a few yards farther on. The footpath passes Fritz Reuter's (see above) and other villas, at the foot of the Hainstein (on the top is Dr. Köllner's Kuranstalt, a health resort, with hydropathic, etc.); where it divides, we ascend the steps to the left through wood, farther on first mounting rapidly and then ascending gradually to the right.

The Wartburg* (1290 ft. above the sea-level, 565 ft. above Eisenach), founded by Lewis the Springer in 1070, was occupied by the Landgraves of Thuringia down to the extinction of the family in 1247, and is now the occasional residence of the Grand-Duke of Weimar. It is one of the finest existing secular buildings in the Romanesque style, and since 1847 has been restored in its original shape and appropriately decorated by the architect Dr. von Ritgen. — At the entrance is an Inn* (R., L., & A. $2\frac{1}{2}$, B. $\frac{3}{4}$ M.; fine view from the platform), built in a mediæval style, where tickets of admission to the castle are obtained (50 pf.).

The castle consists of the Vorburg, with the Gateway, the Bitterhaus, and some stables, and the Horburg, with the so-called Dürnitz (servants' quarters), the Kemenate (apartments of the Landgraves), the Bergfried (oldest tower of defence, lately rebuilt), the Landgrafen- haus or Palace, the Marshall or stables, and the S. Tower of Defence. The object of the restoration has been to present to us 'a faithful picture of the condition of the castle in the 12th cent., its most glorious era, when it was occupied by the art-loving Landgraves and was the scene of the contests of the greatest mediæval German poets; where, too, Martin Luther, at the beginning of the 16th cent., found an asylum, and where the mighty struggle for religious liberty took its rise'. The 'Kanon-Batterie', to the left of the gate, affords a fine view of the castle.

Interesting reminiscences of the Reformer, who was intercepted on his return from Worms and conducted hither by his friend the Elector Frederick the Wise, are still preserved in the Ritterhaus in the Vorburg. A room, which has undergone little alteration, is shown here, containing Luther's table, drinking-vessel, armour as 'Junker Georg', book-case, letters, portrait, and other memorials, where the great Reformer zealously worked at his translation of the Bible from 4th May, 1521, to 6th March, 1522.

The greatest splendour of the castle as it existed in the 12th cent. is exhibited in the Hofburg. In the Landgrafenhaus here we first visit the Landgrafenzimmer, embellished with seven *Frescoes by Moritz von Schwind (1856), representing scenes from the history of the first Landgraves. The Sängersaal, in which the traditional 'Sängerkrieg', or contest between the great rival minstrels of Germany, is said to have taken place, contains a mural painting by Schwind representing that event (portraits of Wagner, Kaulbach, Schwind, Liszt, etc.), while the raised platform is adorned with arabesques and figures of the minstrels, with quotations from their ballads, by Riigen and Hofmann of Darmstadt. It is an undoubted historical fact that Walther von der Vogelweide, Wolfram von Eschenbach, and other famous minstrels visited the court of Landgrave Hermann I. (1190-1217), but the other contents of the 'Krieg von Wartburg' (contest at the Wartburg), a poem dating from about 1300, are mere fable. — The Elizabeth Gallery, adorned with *Frescoes by Schwind from the life of St. Elizabeth (1207-81), daughter of Andreas II. of Hungary, and wife of the Landgrave Louis the Clement of Thuringia, and with the Seven Works of Mercy, next leads us to the Chapel, with ancient mural paintings and stained glass. — On the third floor is the spacious Fest- und Waffensaal, rising to the height of the roof, with rich symbolical ornamentation, and painted by Welter of Cologne.

The KEMENATE (i.e. 'camera caminata', an apartment warmed by a fireplace and chimney), fitted up for the use of the grand-ducal family, is seldom shown to visitors. The Reformation Rooms contain 18 pictures of scenes from Luther's life, by Pauwels, Thumann, Linnig, and Struys.

The DIENITZ contains a large Rüstkammer, with weapons and armour of the 12-17th cent., the 16th being admirably represented (closed on Mon.).

The Wartburg is also locally famous as the scene of the 'Burschen-fest' of 18th Oct., 1817, an enthusiastic festival celebrated by students from every part of Germany.

A visit to the Anna-Thal may conveniently be combined with the excursion to the Wartburg. The path (red marks) descends under the castle-bridge; after 5 min., to the right round the rocks; 4 min., finger-post indicating the way (left) to the Eisenacher Burg, with a good view of the Wartburg. The route to the Anna-Thal and the Hohe

Sonne, with which the paths to the Eisenacher Burg, the Waidmannsruh (l.), and the Eliashöhle (r.) afterwards reunite, is indicated by red marks on the trees. At last we follow the highroad.

The Anna-Thal*, 2 M. to the S. of Eisenach (direct route, p. 368), is a very picturesque wooded ravine. The narrowest part, 8 min. from the entrance, is called the Drachenschlucht (200 yds. long, 3 ft. wide), the precipitous sides of which are luxuriantly clothed with moss and ferns, and moistened with trickling water.

We may now either return from this point, or proceed through the valley to the (1 M.) Hohe Sonne (1400 ft.), the highest point on the road, whence a picturesque glimpse of the Wartburg is obtained. The forester's house is also an inn. A path runs parallel with the road from the Hohe Sonne to (3 M.) Eisenach. Comp. p. 387.

A path to the left (brown marks), near the entrance to the Anna-Thal leads into the Landgrafenschlucht*, a picturesque ravine considerably wider than the Anna-Thal, which leads to the Drachenstein* (1520 ft.), where a fine view is enjoyed. On the road to the right, $\frac{3}{4}$ M. farther on, is the Hohe Sonne forester's house above mentioned. To Wilhelmsthal, the Hirschstein, Wachstein, and thence to Ruhla, an attractive walk of $3\frac{1}{2}$ hrs., see pp. 388, 387.

57. From Eisenach to Coburg and Lichtenfels.

84 M. RAILWAY in $4\frac{1}{2}$ hrs. (fares 18 M 80, 9 M 20, 6 M 10 pf.); to Coburg $8\frac{1}{2}$ hrs. (fares 11 M 80, 7 M 90, 5 M 30 pf.).

Soon after quitting the station the train penetrates the N.W. slopes of the Thüringer Wald by a tunnel $\frac{1}{3}$ M. in length. Fine retrospect of the Wartburg. Beyond (9 M.) Marksuhl it enters the valley of the Werra; 5 M. to the S.W. lies the small health-resort of Frauensee (Curhaus, pens. 25-28 M per week), on the bank of a lake.

$16\frac{1}{2}$ M. Salzungen (853 ft.; Curhaus, Hüttilinger, on the lake; Sächs. Hof, pens. 5 M; Meininger Hof, at the station, pens. from 4 M; visitors' tax 10 M), possesses salt-springs, baths, and establishments for the inhalation of the vapour; near it is a small lake with a château at the S. end and a park at the other.

The village of Möhra, $4\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the N. (carr. 9 M), was the home of the parents of Luther, to whom a monument was erected here in 1861.

FROM SALZUNGEN TO KALTEN-NORDHEIM, $24\frac{1}{2}$ M., narrow-gauge railway in $2\frac{1}{4}$ hrs. (fares 2 M 75, 1 M 95 pf.; tickets from the conductor). The line descends the valley of the Werra viâ Dernbach. Kalten-Nordheim (Löwe; Schlossmühle Restaurant) is about 9 M. from Hilders (p. 420).

$19\frac{1}{2}$ M. Immelborn; branch-line to Liebenstein, see p. 373.

$25\frac{1}{2}$ M. Wernshausen.

FROM WERNSHAUSEN TO ZELLA-ST. BLASII, $19\frac{1}{2}$ M., in 2 hrs. — $4\frac{1}{2}$ M. Schmalkalden (Deutsches Haus; Krone), an old but entirely modernized town with 7900 inhabitants. In the market-place are a late-Gothic Church, the Luther Fountain, and a monument to Karl Wilhelm (1815-73), the composer of the Wacht am Rhein, who was a native of the place. In the 'Krone' the Protestant League of Schmalkalden, so important to the cause of the Reformation, was concluded in 1531. The articles were drawn up by Luther, Melancthon, and other reformers in a house on the Schlossberg near the market, indicated by a golden swan. Both buildings bear appropriate inscriptions, but have been completely altered. The old Wilhelmsburg rises above the town. Valuable iron-mines in the vicinity. Near the station are the Salt Baths, with two thermal springs of 66° Fahr. — 11 M. Steinbach-Hallenberg (Zur Hallenberg), a small town with iron manufactures (nut-crackers, smoothing-irons, etc.), is a summer-resort. — 13 M. Viernau; 17½ M. Mehlis. — 19½ M. Zella-St. Blasii, see p. 381.

30½ M. Wasungen (Schwan), an industrial town on the Werra, with an old château. — 35 M. Walldorf.

As Meiningen is approached, the ducal château of Landenberg (1845 ft.) looks down from an eminence on the right; it contains some good modern stained glass from Munich and numerous mediæval curiosities; fine view of the Thüringer Wald and the Rhöngebirge. Visitors admitted to the rooms not occupied by the ducal family. The château may also be visited from Meiningen, either by the direct route (3 M.), or by the ‘Marienweg’, which leads through pleasant wood, passing the ruins of Habichtsburg.

38½ M. Meiningen (860 ft.; Sächsischer Hof, R., L., & A. 1½-3, B. 1, D. 2-2½ M., well spoken of; Erbprinz; Hirsch; Post; Deutsches Haus; Railway Restaurant, with rooms to let), a well-built town with 12,900 inhab., on the Werra, surrounded by wooded heights, is the capital of the duchy of Saxe-Meiningen.

The chief ornament of the town is the ‘English Garden’, or park, opposite the station, containing the ducal mortuary chapel, a monument in memory of the war of 1870-71, and a bust of Jean Paul Richter, who resided at Meiningen from 1801 to 1803. In the Bernhard-Str., beyond the pond, is the Ducal Theatre, and farther to the W., opposite the Palace of the Duchess Dowager, is the so-called Kleine Palais. We then proceed to the N., past the Arsenal, the Gymnasium, and the Riding School, to the —

DUCAL PALACE, of which the left wing, restored in 1861, dates from 1511, while the rest was completed in 1682.

The Interior (castellan in the court, to the right) contains the grand-ducAL PICTURE GALLERY, consisting of about 200 works, chiefly Netherlandish. Among the best are: ‘A. van der Neer, Moonlight; ‘I. van Ostade, Market; J. van der Meer van Harlem, Distant landscape; S. Koninck, Old woman; J. van Ruysdael, Dutch landscape; Sal. van Ruysdael, View of a village; G. Coques, Portrait (ascribed to Van Dyck). Among the Italians represented are Fra Angelico, Filippino Lippi, Boticelli, Palmezzano, Garofalo, and Luvini. The palace also contains a collection of COINS and a LIBRARY.

To the N.W. of the palace lie the Stables and Park. Opposite, on the left bank of the Werra, is the ‘Herrenberg’, a pretty natural park, with pleasant walks. — The Rathhaus (with a collection of antiquities) and the Stadtkirche (rebuilt in 1888) are both in the market-place, which is adorned with a statue of the Emperor Henry II.

The Grosse Dolmar (2405 ft.; refreshments at the top), to which a road leads from Meiningen via Helba and Kühndorf in 2¼ hrs., commands a beautiful view of the Thuringian Forest. — Schiller resided at the village of Bauerbach, 6 M. to the S. of Meiningen, in 1782-83.

FROM MEININGEN TO KISSINGEN (47 M.) AND SCHWEINFURT (49 M.), railway in 2¼-2¾ hrs. — 4½ M. Ritschenhausen, junction of the line to Suhl and Neudietendorf (p. 381). The line skirts the E. slope of the Rhöngebirge (p. 420). — From (9½ M.) Reinwertschhausen a branch-line runs to (6 M.) Bömbild (Schmundhausen), formerly the capital of the county of Henneberg.

The Schloss was converted into a military orphanage in 1884. The late-Gothic church contains the monuments of several Counts of Henneberg, including two by Peter Vischer of Nuremberg: Count Otho IV. (d. 1502) and *Count Hermann VIII. (d. 1531) and his wife (cast of the latter in South Kensington Museum). — From (16 M.) Meilrichstadt, a Bavarian town on the Streu, a diligence plies in 8 hrs. to Fladungen (p. 420). — 24½ M. Neustadt (Goldener Mann*), on the Saale, an industrial town, prettily situated at the foot of the ruins of the Salzburg, which dates from the time of Charlemagne; fine view. Pleasant walk down the valley of the Saale to Kissingen (3 hrs.). Branch-lines to (12 M.) Bischofsheim (p. 420) and (14½ M.) Königshofen. — 40 M. Ebenhausen; thence to Kissingen and Schweinfurt, see Baedeker's S. Germany.

42½ M. Grimmenthal (Rail. Restaurant; see p. 381). — 50½ M. Themar (Drei Rosen). To the W. rise the Gleichberge (see below).

FROM THEMAR TO SCHLEUSINGEN, 7 M., branch-railway in ½ hr. — Schleusingen (1900 ft.; Grüner Baum), with 3900 inhab., was once the residence of the Counts of Henneberg, who became extinct in 1588. A chapel by the Church contains monuments of the counts, fine knightly figures of the 15th and 16th centuries. The golden hen on the fountain in the market-place belonged to the armorial bearings of the counts. Quaint Rathhaus. — Diligence from Schleusingen daily to (20 M.) Immenau (p. 382).

58½ M. Hildburghausen (1175 ft.; Englischer Hof*; Rautenkranz), a pleasant town on the right bank of the Werra, the residence of the dukes of Saxe-Hildburghausen down to 1826, now belongs to Meiningen. Pop. 6900. In the garden of the Schloss (1685-95) is a monument to Queen Louise of Prussia. The mediæval Rathhaus with its two towers was begun in 1395. The large Lunatic Asylum is common to several Thuringian principalities.

An excursion may be made hence via (4½ M.) Zeitzfeld (guides) to the (3 hrs.) Gleichberge (2225 ft. and 2100 ft.), two basaltic hills with curious rock-formations. Fine view from the Kleine Gleichberg, on which are some interesting prehistoric fortifications. About 3 M. farther to the W. (diligence) lies Römhild (p. 371).

A branch-railway runs from Hildburghausen to (18½ M.) Lindenau-Friedrichshall, passing (15½ M.) Heldburg (Sonne), commanded by the Feste Heldburg*, on the top of a lofty basaltic rock.

67 M. Eisfeld (Deutsches Haus*; Rail. Restaurant), a small town (3700 inhab.) on the Werra. The Stadtkirche (tower begun in 1488, the rectilinear choir in 1505) contains a statue of Luther and the cenotaph of Dr. Justus Jonas (d. 1555), his friend and ally, who was pastor here; his grave adjoins the cemetery chapel. Diligence daily to Schwarzburg (26 M.; p. 378), to Neuhaus, and to Probstzella (28½ M.; p. 351). — 74½ M. Tiefenlauter (Schnepfe). The train now quits the Werra. — 81½ M. Coburg, see p. 374.

FROM COBURG TO LAUSCHA, 24 M., railway in 2 hrs. — 12½ M. Sonneberg (1310 ft.; Krug's Hotel, well spoken of; Germania; Löwe; Hydropathic Establishment of Dr. Bauke; Amer. Consul), with 12,200 inhab., where toys are extensively manufactured. The town is surrounded by woods and hills, and has become of late years a favourite summer-resort. The chief ornament of the place is the handsome Gothic church, with its wooden vaulting and stained glass, erected in 1845. Modern château on a hill above the town. Diligence twice daily to (10 M.) Stockheim. — 24 M. Lauscha (Böhm) with 4300 inhab. and glass-works. Hence to Schwarzburg, see p. 379.

About 6 M. to the N. of Sonneberg, and 9 M. to the W. of Eisfeld (see above), is Meschenbach (inn), near which is the Zinselhöhe. Pleasant excursion by Forschengereuth, Mengersgereuth, and Rebendüssig to Meschenbach, and thence by Limbach (inn) to Eisfeld, about 15 M. in all.

The Werra Railway now traverses the Itzgrund, passes stations Niedersfüllbach and Ebersdorf, and reaches — 94 M. Lichtenfels, a station on the Bavarian N. Railway (p. 351).

FROM IMMELBORN (p. 370) TO LIEBENSTEIN, 4 M., branch-railway in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. (fares 60, 45, 30 pf.). — $\frac{1}{2}$ M. Barchfeld.

Liebenstein. — Hotels. BELLEVUE, R., L., & A. $1\frac{1}{2}$ -3, D. $2\frac{1}{2}$, pens. $5\frac{1}{2}$ -6 $\frac{1}{2}$, omn. $\frac{1}{2}$ M.; Curhaus, R., L., & A. $1\frac{1}{2}$ -5, D. $2\frac{1}{2}$, board 4 M.; MÜLLER'S, R. & L. $2\frac{1}{2}$, D. 2 M. — MEININGER HOT; SCHNEIDER; LÖWE, in the lower part of the village. Hydropathic Establishment; Villa Abrecht, pens. 5-8 M. — Private apartments, from 10 M. per week, are easily obtained. — Theatre, during the season. — Music 7-9 a.m. and 4-6 p.m. — Visitor's Tax for a stay of more than five days 10 M. — Carriage to Altenstein 4, with two horses 6 M. — Guides, 3 M. per day.

Liebenstein (1120 ft.), a village with 1300 inhab. in the duchy of Meiningen, 12 M. to the S. of Eisenach (railway, see p. 370), is a beautifully situated and favourite watering-place, possessing chalybeate and other springs and a hydropathic. On the slope at the back of the Curhaus is the Italian Garden, tastefully laid out. Adjoining it stands the simple villa of the Duke of Meiningen. The Erdfall near the Curhaus is a kind of open grotto, fringed with wood. Paths lead hence to the Helle Blick and the Bernhards-Platz, and the new Marienweg leads to the Werner's Platz, all fine points of view.

The path to the (20-25 min.) extensive ruins of the Burg Stein* ascends in zigzags through the Italian Garden. The castle was restored in 1564, but it was deserted at the close of the 17th cent., and has since fallen to decay. The View* embraces the entire chain of the Rhöngebirge, the W. spurs of the Thuringian Forest from the Dolmar to the Ochsenberg, and the broad valley of the Werra with its villages.

FROM LIEBENSTEIN TO ALTENSTEIN ($2\frac{1}{2}$ M.), a good road. For footpaths, see the Map, p. 385. At Glücksbrunn (Hotel Glücksbrunn), halfway, is the Altensteiner Höhle, a limestone cavern 220 yds. in length, easily accessible, with a subterranean lake. Illumination in summer, on Sun. 11-12 (adm. $1\frac{1}{2}$ M.; at other times 75 pf.).

Schloss Altenstein, a summer-residence of the Duke of Saxe-Meiningen, standing on a rocky height on the S.W. slope of the Thuringian Forest, is itself uninteresting (open 2-3), but the Park* and grounds extending along the precipitous limestone rocks afford beautiful walks. Inn on the road to the château.

FROM ALTENSTEIN TO RUHLA ($4\frac{1}{2}$ M.), a good road, through wood. After a short distance a broad road diverges on the right to ($\frac{1}{4}$ M.) the Luther Monument, erected in 1857, on the spot where Luther's Beech, destroyed by lightning in 1844, formerly stood. Here the Reformer on his return from Worms was subjected to a pretended arrest by his friend the Elector of Saxony (p. 368). A poor footpath runs hence to the Gerberstein (2906 ft.), a steep hill covered with large blocks of granite. A broad path leads from this point to the road to Winterstein (p. 385). Turning to the left along the latter, we soon regain the main road at a point about 2 M. from Ruhla (p. 387).

The Inselberg (p. 336) may be ascended from Liebenstein viâ Herges, the Trusen-Thal, and Brötterode (p. 336) either by road (carr. 15 M) or on foot (5 hrs.). Shorter routes (3½-4 hrs.) lead by Steinbach and the Drei-Herrenstein (p. 336).

58. Coburg.

Hotels. BAHNHOF-HOTEL*, at the station, R., L., & A. 2-3, B. 3½, D. 2-2½ M. — In the town: LEUTHÄUSER*, Spitalgasse (Pl. B, C, 2), R., L., & A. from 2, D. 2½ M; GOLDENE TRAUBE*, Judengasse (Pl. A, B, 2), with restaurant and garden, R., L., & A. 1½-2½, D. 2 M, well spoken of; GRÜNER BAUM*, in the market-place (Pl. B, C, 3); DEUTSCHES HAUS*, Heilighaus-Str.; ANKER*, Rosengasse, THÜRINGER HOF, Judengasse, less pretentious.

Restaurants. Railway Restaurant*; Bellevue*, Schloss-Platz; Erholung*, with garden, Judengasse; Grübelet*, An der Mauer; Vereinsbrauerei* (Pl. C, D, 1); Culmbach*, with garden, Viktoria-Str.; Loreley*, Herrengasse. — Outside the town, Zur Capelle* (Pl. A, 4), with fine view. — Wine: Herber, Rosengasse; Herold, Theater-Platz.

Post and Telegraph Office (Pl. C, 2), in the Allée.

Theatre. Performances on Sun., Tues., Thurs., and Frid., from Easter to Whitsunday, and from Sept. to December.

Carriage to the Castle 6 M, to the Castle and Callenberg 10 M.

U. S. Consular Agent, Herr Emil Albrecht.

Coburg (990 ft.), one of the residences of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, the most important town in the Franconian portion of the Saxon duchies, with 18,700 inhab., is prettily situated in the valley of the Itz, a tributary of the Main, and boasts of a number of handsome buildings, especially in the neighbourhood of the market and Schloss-Platz. Around the town a girdle of villas with gardens has gradually sprung up on the site of the old fortifications.

The MARKET PLACE (Pl. B, C, 3) is embellished with a Statue of Prince Albert by Theed, inaugurated in the presence of Queen Victoria on 26th Aug., 1865. The Rathhaus (Pl. 3) and Government Buildings (Pl. 4) in this Platz, as well as the Arsenal (Pl. 5), which contains the library (adm. Wed. 2-4), were erected by Duke John Casimir (d. 1633).

The spacious Moritzkirche (Pl. C, 3) of the 15th cent., in the late-Gothic style, with Renaissance additions and a lofty tower (230 ft.), contains a monument of Duke John Frederick II., erected in 1598 on the site of the high-altar. Near it the finely-executed brasses of John Casimir (d. 1633), John Ernest (d. 1521), John Frederick V. (d. 1595), and his wife Elizabeth (d. 1594) are built into the wall. — The Gymnasium (Pl. C, 3) was founded in 1604 by John Casimir, whose statue is seen at the corner. Goethe's father was a pupil at this school. Jean Paul Richter resided in 1803 in the house opposite the Gymnasium. — In the Steingasse (Pl. C, 3), opposite the Palace, is an Anthropological Museum, with prehistoric remains found in the environs.

In the SCHLOSS-PLATZ (Pl. C, 2, 3), which is partly enclosed by colonnades, are situated the Ducal Palace, with its stables and riding-school, the Theatre (Pl. C, 2), with the small Palais Coburg-Cohary behind it, the Guard House (Pl. 2), a second and smaller Palace of the Duke (Pl. 1), with an interesting collection of glass (admission generally obtained on application), and other handsome buildings. In front of the larger palace rises a bronze Statue of Duke Ernest I. (d. 1844), by Schwanthaler. On a height behind the smaller palace stands the new Gothic Roman Catholic Church.

The Palace (Pl. C, 3), or Ehrenburg, a handsome winged edifice in the English-Gothic style, was converted from a monastery of the Recollets into a ducal residence in 1549, and was altered and extended by Ernest I. (visitors apply to the castellan).

INTERIOR (bell in the second court; fee). Portraits of Duke Ernest I., Queen Victoria, Prince Albert, King Leopold I. and his queen, etc.; and several other modern and ancient pictures, one of them by Van Dyck; handsome apartment with Gobelins tapestry and stucco mouldings; grand hall with caryatides as light-bearers.

In the Ernst-Platz (Pl. B, 3) is a War Monument by Scheler, commemorating the events of 1870-71.

A flight of steps on one side of the palace (by the guard-house, in the arcades) and a steep footpath on the other ascend to the beautiful Hofgarten* (Pl. D, E, 2, 3), extending for $\frac{3}{4}$ M. along the steep slope of the hill, which is crowned by the castle. The garden contains the Kleine Palais, built in 1868 in the English-Gothic style; the Mausoleum of Duke Francis (d. 1806) and Duchess Augusta Caroline (d. 1831); and a pavilion with a cast of the Prometheus group by Müller (p. 52; adm. daily in summer 3-5, 10 pf., Wed. and Sun. free).

The ancient Castle of Coburg* (1520 ft.; Pl. F, 1), 520 ft. above the town, to which a path ascends from the palace in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr., commands the entire district. It is a late-Gothic structure of the close of the 15th century, and was the residence of the dukes until John Ernest transferred his seat to the Ehrenburg (see above) in 1549. About the time of the Diet of Augsburg (1530) Luther resided here for three months and translated the prophets and psalms. In 1632 the fortress was occupied by the Swedes and besieged in vain by Wallenstein. The S.W. wing with its projecting corner-turrets was formerly the Arsenal; and the large building on the N. side is called the Fürstenbau.

The castle, which has been restored and tastefully fitted up as a Museum*, is entered on the S. side. The entrance to the collections is under the open wooden staircase in the first court; visitors ring at a door to the left. In summer it is open from 8-12 and 2 to 6, in winter 9-12 and 2-4 (tickets, 50 pf., in the restaurant).

The wall of the staircase is adorned with Frescoes* by Schneider and Rothbart (1838-55), representing the nuptials of Duke John Casimir with the Princess Anna of Saxony (1585); among the attendants is a portrait of Rückert (p. 376). — We first enter the CARRIAGE ROOM, containing curious old state-coaches, etc. — The VESTIBULE of the armoury contains a fresco by Schneider (1841), representing two bears breaking into the ducal dining-hall. — LUTHER'S ROOM contains relics of the period of his residence here and a collection of his writings. — The ARMOURY contains a large iron stove, cast in 1430, adorned with coats-of-arms and figures of saints; also armour, shields, helmets, coats-of-mail, etc. — In the GUN ROOM, by the staircase, rifles, falconets, blunderbusses, etc.

UPPER FLOOR and HALL. Hunting apparatus and weapons. The FIRE-ARMS ROOM contains a number of valuable specimens of the earliest descriptions. Most of the portraits here are modern. — The ROSETTE ROOM, the ceiling of which is adorned with 365 rosettes of different forms, with portraits of the Landgraves of Thuringia, contains a number of goblets. — The ORATORY contains sculptures in wood from the life of the Virgin, from designs by Martin Schön, and a Bible by Hans Luft, printed in 1560 and furnished with coloured wood-cuts by Burgkmair. — In the REFORMATION ROOM is a copy of an old picture in the Moritzkirche, representing the Diet of Augsburg; full-length portraits on a gold ground by Rothbart. On a column are the arms of the sixteen German towns that first embraced the reformed faith. — The HORN ROOM, a masterpiece of the Renaissance period (ca. 1600), is adorned with mosaics in wood representing hunting scenes during the reign of John Casimir.

The S.W. wing contains the NATURAL HISTORY CABINET, founded by Prince Albert and the reigning Duke of Coburg (open free in summer on Wed., 8-11 and 2-4; good collection of birds).

The N. wing contains a collection of ENGRAVINGS and DRAWINGS (seldom shewn); also COINS and AUTOGRAPHS.

*VIEWS. The adjoining N.E. Hohe Bastei commands one of the most extensive and picturesque views in Germany. The N.W. Bärenbastei commands the finest view to the W., over the town itself (seldom open).

The SCHLOSSHOF-HALLE contains the figure-head of a Danish man-of-war, captured in 1849, and some trophies of the war of 1870-71.

From the castle good footpaths lead to the N.E., skirting the Bausenberg, to the (1 M.) Teufelskanzel, which commands a fine view. — The Eckartsberg, to the S. of the castle, is crowned by a lofty tower commanding a beautiful panorama. A pleasant path leads hence viâ the Löbleinstein to the castle in $\frac{3}{4}$ hr. — Other good points of view are the Adamiberg, just above the station, with the summer house of the poet Jean Paul Richter (p. 374), and the Hohe Fichte, near Ahorn, $\frac{2}{4}$ M. from Coburg.

Rosenau (restaurant), $\frac{4}{2}$ M. to the N.E. of Coburg (station Oeslau; 3 M. to the N. are the ruins of Lauterburg), and Callenberg, $\frac{3}{2}$ M. to the N.W. (carriage, see p. 374), are country-seats of the duke, tastefully fitted up and picturesquely situated (shewn only in the absence of the court). Rosenau was the birthplace (26th Aug., 1819) of Prince Albert (of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha; d. 14th Dec., 1861), brother of the late Duke Ernest II. Queen Victoria spent eleven days here in 1845. Below Callenberg are a model farm and a good restaurant; in the wood, farther down, the Fasanerie (adm. 10 pf.).

The handsome Schloss on the right bank of the Itz, opposite Coburg, was erected by Duke Ernest of Wurtemberg in 1838.

The Cemetery (Pl. D, 4), on the E. side of the town, contains the modern Mausoleum of the ducal family, and the burial-vault of Baron Stockmar (d. 1863), embellished at the expense of the English and Belgian reigning families in honour of their old counsellor.

FROM COBURG TO RODACH, 11 M., branch-railway in 1 hr. — $\frac{1}{4}$ M. Neuses, with the house of the poet Rückert (d. 1866) adjoining the church. The garden contains a colossal bust in marble to his memory. On a wooded slope on the opposite bank of the Saale rises an obelisk over the tomb of the poet Thimmel (d. 1817). Above stands the château of Falkenstein. — 11 M. Rodach, the starting-point for a visit to ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) the Heidelberg (p. 372).

59. The Thuringian Forest.

The "Forest of Thuringia, or Thüringer Wald, a mountainous and wooded district 70 M. in length and 6-22 M. in breadth, bounded on the W. by the Werra and on the S.E. by Franconia, is full of interest for the pedestrian. The tour may conveniently be divided into two parts, the Eastern, beginning at Schwarza, and the Western, beginning at Eisenach. This is also a geological division, clay-slate occurring towards the S.E., as far as the Erzgebirge, and porphyry to the N.W. as far as Eisenach. The boundary between these formations is near Ilmenau. The Rennsteig, an old frontier-path, runs along the crest of the mountains, separating Thuringia from Franconia.

The summer-resorts on the N. slope, such as Oberhof, Ilmenau, Friedrichroda, Ruhla, etc., are the most frequented and most expensive. Pleasant though more modest quarters for a prolonged stay may also be obtained at Schmalkalden, Schleusingen, and other places to the S.

Inns fair, but on the whole capable of improvement, especially in sleeping-accommodation. Those at the most frequented places are often crowded in summer, and then very expensive.

Guides generally charge 2 M for half-a-day, 4 M for a whole day.

Carriages with one horse 10-15, with two horses 15-20 M per day.

Plan. 1st DAY. By train to Blankenburg; walk in 2-2½ hrs. to Schwarzburg; in the evening view from the Trippstein. — 2nd DAY. To Paulinzella and Ilmenau, either by carriage or (better) from Schwarzburg by the upper Schwarza-Thal and the Langenberg to Gehren and thence by train to Ilmenau. — 3rd DAY. Kickelhahn, Manebach, Schmücke, Schneeberg. — 4th DAY. Oberhof. From Oberhof through the Schmalwassergrund to Tambach. — 5th DAY. To Friedrichroda and Reinhardtsbrunn; ascend the Inselsberg. — 6th DAY. Through the Trusen-Thal by Brötterode to Liebenstein, Allenstein, and Ruhla. — 7th DAY. By Wachstein and the Hohe Sonne to Eisenach. — The finest points in the district are Schwarzburg and the vicinity of Eisenach.

a. Schwarzburg and the Valley of the Schwarza.

DILIGENCE from Blankenburg to Schwarzburg, 11 M., twice daily in 1¾ hr. (in the reverse direction 1¼ hr.); from Schwarzburg to Lauscha, 16 M., twice daily in 5-9¼ hrs., and to Eisfeld, 27 M., once daily in 6 hrs.

Schwarza (see p. 367) lies at the confluence of the Schwarza and the Saale. A railway ascends the valley of the former (walkers follow the left bank) to — 2½ M. Blankenburg (738 ft.; Schellhorn's Hotel, pens. from 25 M per week; Löwe; Ross; carriage to Schwarzburg 6, with two horses 10 M), with several pretty country-houses, situated at the entrance to the narrower part of the Schwarza-Thal. Above the town (20 min.) rise the ruins of Greifenstein (1310 ft.; restaurant), the ancient castle of the German Emp. Günther of Schwarzburg. Railway to Paulinzella and Arnstadt, see pp. 380, 379.

The railway-station (½ M. from the village) lies on the right bank of the Schwarza. The road to Schwarzburg (a walk of 2-2½ hrs.) crosses the river and diverges to the left from that to Blankenburg. Near the fork is a small monument to Fröbel. Walkers turn to the left before crossing the river, then cross a small affluent of the latter, and follow a shady footpath to the paper-mill, where they cross a foot-bridge to (1 M.) the Gasthof zum Chrysopras and the restaurant Lösche's Hall (with rooms to let), situated at the entrance to the narrower part of the Schwarza-Thal.

The high mountain to the S. is the Hainberg (1755 ft.), easily ascended from the Chrysopras in 1 hr. (view). — The top of the Griesbach-Felsen*, reached from Blankenburg in $\frac{3}{4}$ hr. or from the Chrysopras in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr., commands a fine and very characteristic view of the Thuringian Forest. On the one side we see the rounded and dark wooded summits and narrow valleys of the slate formation, and on the other the light-coloured limestone peaks with wide, flat valleys between them. From the Griesbach Felsen we may go on to the ($\frac{1}{4}$ hr.) Teufelstreppe, another point of view, and thence viâ Böhlscheiben to ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) the Trippstein (see below).

The Schwarza-Thal*, between Blankenburg and Schwarzburg (7 M.) is one of the most picturesque and beautifully-wooded valleys in Thuringia. About $\frac{1}{2}$ M. above the Chrysopras is another inn, named the Waidmann's Heil. A foot-bridge here leads across to a boar-park, with a tower named the Eberstein. A pleasant walk may be taken to the Eberstein, by crossing the bridge to the right bank of the Schwarza (opposite the Waidmann's Heil), whence a path through the woods leads to the top. At the third bend of the road the Kirchfelsen (1295 ft.), so called from its supposed resemblance to a church, rises on the right. From the ($\frac{4}{4}$ M.) Schweizerhaus (rfmts.) a direct path may be taken to the Trippstein (see below; ca. 1 hr.), with the aid of a guide. High above the road, on the opposite side of the valley, is the Dürre Schild pavilion. A winding road to the right, farther on, ascends to the Kienberg. About $\frac{1}{4}$ M. farther on, to the right, is a memorial tablet, whence a zigzag path ascends in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. to the Trippstein (see below). In $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. we reach (7 M. from Blankenburg) the village of — Schwarzburg. — Hotels. WEISSER HIRSCH, with veranda, fine view, and two dépendances (Schwarzburg, Villa Hübner), R. $\frac{1}{2}$ - $\frac{4}{2}$, B. 1, D. $\frac{2}{2}$, board from 4 \mathcal{M} ; THÜRINGER HOF, well spoken of, R., L., & A. $\frac{1}{2}$ - $\frac{2}{2}$, B. 80 pf., D. 2, pens. 5-6 \mathcal{M} ; TRIPPSTEIN, close to the wood. — In the village: SCHWARZBURGER HOF, well spoken of, R., L., & A. 1-2, D. $\frac{1}{4}$ \mathcal{M} ; SÄCHSISCHER HOF*; THAL SCHWARZBURG. Lodgings also obtainable. — CARRIAGE to Blankenburg, with one horse 7, with two horses $\frac{10}{2}$, to Paulinzella 10 or 13, to Ilmenau viâ Paulinzella (two-horse) 24, to Blumenau 7 or 8 $\frac{1}{2}$, to Katzhütte $11\frac{1}{2}$ or 14, to Eisfeld 23 or 34 \mathcal{M} , inclusive of gratuities. A previous bargain should be made in each case, as also with the guides.

SCHLOSS SCHWARZBURG* (1150 ft.), the ancestral castle of the counts and princes of Rudolstadt since the 12th cent., charmingly situated on an eminence 255 ft. above the Schwarza, dates in its present form from 1726, when the older building was burned down (shown in the absence of the family; fee to the castellan). It contains an interesting armoury and some fine antlers. The Kaisersaal, which escaped the fire, is adorned with frescoes by R. Oppenheim.

A carriage-road ascends from the Weisse Hirsch past the toll and post house through the woods to the ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr.) Trippstein* (1530 ft.), a beautiful open space with a summer-house (open to the public), commanding a striking view of the Schwarzburg (best by evening light). Numerous guide-posts. — Hence to the Schweizerhaus, see above. — On the carriage-road, 1 M. to the W. of the Trippstein, lies the Fasanerie, a shooting-lodge containing furniture made of antlers and surrounded by a park (inn).

SCHWARZATHAL.

Maßstab 1:70,000.

Among the numerous other fine points in the vicinity of Schwarzburg may be mentioned the Eichensteitz* ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr.); the Bismarckhöhe (1690 ft.); and the Schabshöhe or Schafshöhe ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr.).

FROM SCHWARZBURG TO LAUSCHA, 16 M. (diligence, see p. 377). The road quits the Schwarza-Thal at Blechhammer (see below) and leads through the finely-wooded Lichtegrund to (4 M.) Unterweissbach and (3 M.) Oberweissbach (Anker). The 'herb-sellers' ('Balsammänner') of this neighbourhood drive a brisk trade in their home-made drugs and decoctions. The road then passes the Cursdorfer Kuppe (see below; ascended from Oberweissbach in $\frac{3}{4}$ hr.) and reaches (7 M.) Neuhaus (2865 ft.; Grüner Baum; Post), a village famed for its glass and painted china. The contiguous Igelshieb (2740 ft.) is the highest village in Thuringia. The road then descends through pleasant wooded valleys to (2 M.) Lauscha, on the Coburg railway (p. 372). — An interesting circuit may be made by returning from Neuhaus via Wallendorf (Saalfelder) and the Lichtegrund to Unterweissbach ($\frac{3}{4}$ hrs.).

FROM SCHWARZBURG TO EISFELD, 27 M. (diligence, see p. 378). The upper part of the Schwarza-Thal, though less known, is scarcely inferior to the lower. The road follows the valley of the Schwarza, and leads via Sitzendorf (Linde), Blechhammer (inn), and Glasbach to (7 M.) Mellenbach (with an old church) and Blumenau (three inns), two industrial villages, separated by the Schwarza. Pleasant environs. The conspicuous Cursdorfer Kuppe (2600 ft.) may be ascended from Mellenbach in $\frac{1}{4}$ hr., and the descent may be made via Meuselbach to Katzhütte in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. Beyond Blumenau we ascend the valley to the (7 M.) Cirkel (rftms.), where the road forks, the right branch leading via the Langeberg to Gehren (p. 382). At the Schwarzühle, a little farther on, we cross the Schwarza. 12 M. Katzhütte (1400 ft.; Wurzelberg; Rosenbaum), a village with iron works and potteries, at the junction of the Katze and the Schwarza. About 5 M. to the S. of this point rises the Wurzelberg (2740 ft.; path marked in red), with a shooting-lodge, near which is a grove of magnificent pines, several hundred years old. At (15½ M.) Oelze (Ritter) a road diverges to the right to Grossbreitenbach (p. 382; $\frac{1}{2}$ M.). 18 M. Langenbach, on the S.W. slope of the Wurzelberg. — 27 M. Eisfeld (rail. station), see p. 372.

FROM SCHWARZBURG TO ILMENAU VIA PAULINZELLA, a road almost destitute of shade, not recommended to pedestrians. — To the ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Fasaneerie, see p. 378. 25 min. Allendorf. At (40 min.) Unter-Ködditz we reach the highroad which leads via ($\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Ober-Rottenbach and ($\frac{1}{4}$ M.) Milbitz to (2 M.) Paulinzella. The direct footpath leads through pine-wood via Angstedt and Wümbach (about 10 M.). One carriage-road (16½ M.) leads via Königsee, Amt Gehren, and Langewiesen, another (19½ M.) via Gasselborn, at the foot of the Singerberg (see p. 380; ascent $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.), Singen, Dörnfeld, and Bücheloh.

b. From Neu-Dietendorf to Ritschenhausen.

47 M. RAILWAY in 2-3 hrs. Best views at first to the right, beyond Zella to the left. — Through-trains to Kissingen, Würzburg, and Stuttgart pass over this line.

Neu-Dietendorf, see p. 353. $\frac{3}{2}$ M. Haarhausen; on a hill, 2 M. to the right, rises the Wachsenburg.

6 M. Arnstadt (920 ft.; Goldene Henne*, R. & B. $2\frac{3}{4}$ M.; Sonne*, unpretending), a prettily-situated town in the principality of Schwarzburg-Sondershausen, with a Rathhaus of 1585 and Schloss (view from the tower). Pop. 13,600. The Liebfrauenkirche* of the 12th and 13th cent. contains some fine sculptures and tombstones, among which is a monument of two Counts Günther of Schwarzburg and their wives (1368 and 1583). Arnstadt possesses a strong salt spring, which attracts visitors.

FROM ARNSTADT TO SAALFELD, 30 M., branch-railway in 2 hrs. (fares 2 M 90 pf., 2 M, 1 M). — The train crosses the valley of the Gera and runs towards the S. E. $3\frac{1}{2}$ M. Marihausen; 10 M. Stadtilm (1150 ft.; Hirsch), with a church of the 11th century. The line bends to the S. and skirts the E. base of the Singerberg (1910 ft.; view), which may be ascended from (13 M.) Singen in $\frac{3}{4}$ hr. — 16 M. Paulinzella (Menger's Inn) is a hamlet with a ruined abbey with the beautiful remains of a Romanesque "Church, erected in 1114 by Pauline, daughter of the knight Moricho. The abbey was suppressed in 1584 in consequence of the Reformation. We may proceed from Paulinzella to Gehren (p. 382; 2 hrs.) through the Paulinzeller Forst (route indicated by red marks on the trees). — $19\frac{1}{2}$ M. Ober-Rottenbach (Rail. Restaurant); $24\frac{1}{2}$ M. Blankenburg (p. 377); $27\frac{1}{2}$ M. Wohledorf. — 30 M. Saalfeld, see p. 351.

Beyond Arnstadt the Ritschenhausen line passes (7 M.) Längwitz and ascends the valley of the Gera.

11 M. Plaue (1080 ft.; Ehrenburg; Rail. Restaurant), with the fine ruins of the Ehrenburg (1280 ft.; *Restaurant). From the Reinsberg, $2\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the E. of Plaue, one of the finest panoramic views in Thuringia may be obtained; fine view also from the wooden tower on the Halskuppe, $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. farther to the S. — Branch-railway from Plaue to Ilmenau and Gross-Breitenbach, see pp. 381, 382.

The line beyond Plaue, one of the boldest examples of modern railway engineering, traverses the romantically picturesque valley of the Wilde Gera. — 15 M. Gräfenroda, $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the E. of the village of that name. The valley contracts. Beyond a gorge known as the 'Zwang', where a short tunnel is threaded, the line ascends through the Gehlbberger Grund in a succession of steep curves (gradient 1:50). Farther on the train runs between steep porphyry cliffs, which it finally pierces by means of the Brandleite Tunnel (2 M.; 7 min. transit), containing the highest point of the line. Just beyond the tunnel is (25 M.) the station of Oberhof (2093 ft.; Rail. Restaurant), whence a road ascends to the N. to the village, which lies on the crest of the hill.

Oberhof (2625 ft.; Curhaus, pens. 6 M.; Domänen-Gasthaus; Hôt. Wünscher; Thüringer Wald, plain; lodgings) is a small village inhabited by wood-cutters, with a ducal shooting-lodge, now frequented for its fine air. Fine view from the Luisenlust (2590 ft.), at the foot of the Schlossbergkopf (view), 5 min. to the N.

Beautiful walks may be taken from Oberhof to the Gebrannte Stein ($3\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the S.W.; view), the Hohe Möst ($1\frac{3}{4}$ hr.; with guide), and the 'Ausgebrannte Stein', $3\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the E. — A longer walk, but quite repaying the fatigue, is through the Kanzlergrund, via Ober- and Unter-Schönaue to Steinbach-Hallenberg (p. 371), about 3 hrs. to the W. of Oberhof (the way back somewhat longer, as it ascends). The formation and the outlines of the peaks to the S. of the valley (Gebrannter Stein, Ruppberg, Gr. Hermannsberg) are very striking and peculiar to this part of the Thuringian Forest.

FROM OBERHOF TO OHRDRUF, see p. 384. Another pleasant route is by the carriage-road via Lin's Ruhe, a fine point of view, and Friedrichsanfang, a distance of about 10 M., nearly all through wood.

FROM OBERHOF TO FRIEDRICHRODA, $22\frac{1}{2}$ M. (luncheon should be provided). The road diverges to the left from the highroad about $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the W. of Oberhof and enters the Kanzlergrund (see above). [The Bennsteig, which also crosses the road at this point, offers an alternative route, which we may follow for about 2 M., rejoining the highroad, near the marshy Teufelsbad, by a road to the right.] At a point 3 M. farther on, where the road divides into three branches, we choose the middle one, which leads to (2¼ M.) the Falkenstein, a porphyry rock at the beginning of the Dietharz* or Schmalwasser Grund, one of the loveliest valleys of Thuringia. Through the fine woods and picturesque rocks of this valley our route lies for the next ¼ M. — Dietharz, Tambach, and the route thence to Friedrichroda are described at p. 384.

From Oberhof to the Schmücke (road), see p. 383.

28½ M. Zella-St. Blasii (1778 ft.; Rail. Restaurant), the common station for the contiguous towns of Zella-St. Blasii (Stadt Gotha; Müller), and Mehlis (Stadt Wien), with numerous iron-works. Pretty view of the Lerchenberg valley, with its parks. Branch-line to Wernshausen, see p. 370. — Beyond another tunnel (740 yds.) the train crosses the boundary between Gotha and Prussia, and stops at —

32 M. Suhl (807 ft.; Deutsches Haus*; Krone; Rail. Restaurant), a town with 11,900 inhab., which has been famous for several centuries for its manufacture of firearms. The town lies picturesquely in the valley of the Lauter, at the base of the Domberg (2195 ft.; view-tower), and is shaded by the precipitous porphyry cliff of the Ottlienstein (1716 ft.; restaurant), which also commands a fine view. At the foot of the Domberg is a mineral spring, used both for drinking and bathing. Diligence once daily in summer in 5½ hrs. to (19½ M.) Ilmenau (p. 382), and thrice daily in 1¾ hr. to (10 M.) Schleusingen (p. 372).

The railway now descends the valley of the Hasel. 36 M. Dietzhausen. At (41 M.) Rohr, the seat of a suppressed monastery, the Hasel is joined on the right by the Schwarza. — 45 M. Grimmenthal, junction of the Werra railway (p. 372). Branch-line to (4½ M.) Meiningen. — The train now crosses the Valley of the Werra.

47 M. Ritschenhausen, also a station on the line from Meiningen to Kissingen and Schweinfurt (p. 371). — Kissingen, see Baedeker's Southern Germany.

c. From Plaue to Gross-Breitenbach. The Schmücke.

24 M. RAILWAY from Plaue to Gross-Breitenbach in 2½ hrs. (to Ilmenau in 1 hr.).

Plaue, see p. 380. The line ascends the valley of the Zahme Gera and crosses it by a lofty viaduct.

7½ M. Elgersburg (1790 ft.; Curhaus and Hydropathic of Dr. Barwinski, board 24½, R. 7-25 M per week; Preiss's Hydropathic, similar charges; Herzog Ernst*, with baths; Hirsch, moderate; Victoria, at the station, visitors' tax 5 M), a village belonging to Gotha, with porcelain-manufactories. On a lofty porphyry rock above the village rises a well-preserved mediæval castle. Pleasant walks may be taken to the Körnbachgrund, the Klarahöhe, etc. (numerous guide-posts).

FROM ELGERSBURG TO THE SCHMÜCKE, a walk of 3-3½ hrs. Pedestrians proceed via the Pultfels (view of the Körnbachgrund), and the Schlossquelle, and there turn to the right and follow the road to Mönchshof, where we join the road from Ilmenau (p. 382). (From the 'Salzmann's Umsicht', at the second bend, a path leads in 10 min. to the Hohwartstapf, a hill 2480 ft. high, with a good view.) — Of the two carriage-routes one leads via Mönchshof (see above), the other passes (1½ M.) the prettily-situated village of Ariesberg (inn) and ascends the valley of the Gera to (2 hrs.) Gehlbach (Anker), whence we follow the picturesque highroad to the (3 M.) Schmücke (p. 383).

11½ M. Ilmenau, see below. The station lies to the E. of the town.

13 M. Grenshammer (Fridolin), an iron-foundry at the mouth of the pretty Schorte-Thal. — 14¼ M. Langewiesen.

17 M. Gehren or Amtgehren (Hirsch), a small town with a château of the Prince of Schwarzburg-Sondershausen. Hence to Paulinzella, see p. 380; to Schwarzburg, see p. 379. — From (17½ M.) Bahnhof Gehren a diligence plies thrice daily to (4½ M.) Königssee (Löwe). — 20 M. Mührenbach; 22 M. Neustadt-Gillersdorf.

24 M. Gross-Breitenbach (2080 ft.; Wilder Mann), a small town with porcelain-manufacture.

Ilmenau. — Hotels. FANNE*, well-situated, with a garden, LÖWE* (in room No. 1 Goethe spent his last birthday, 28th Aug., 1831); charges at these two: R., L., & A. from 1½-2, D. 1-2, pens. 5-6½ M.; CURHAUS. — SONNE; SCHWAN, R 1 M.; ADLER; THÜRINGER HOF, R. 1½, D. 1½, pens. 4-5 M. — At the station: DEUTSCHER KAISER*.

Restaurants. At the hotels, Dr. Preller's Heilanstalt; Korb's Badeanstalt; Felsenkeller; Schöne Aussicht; Waldschlösschen. — Dittmar, confectioner.

Diligence twice daily to (11 M.) Schmiedefeld (p. 383); once daily to (20½ M.) Schleusingen (p. 372).

Carriages (fixed tariff, which should be inspected). To Gabelbach with one horse 4½, there and back 6 M.; to the Schmücke via Manebach with one horse 9, two horses 12; to Oberhof, 12 or 15; to Paulinzella, 9 or 12; to Schwarzburg, 15 or 21 M., excluding fees (1½-3 M.) and tolls.

Ilmenau (1565 ft.), a small town with 8000 inhab. in the duchy of Weimar, on the Ilm, with manganese and other mines, is a favourite summer-resort (1700 visitors). Pretty walks in the valley of the Ilm and the Sophien-Thal, and thence up to the Schwalbenstein (2250 ft.), where Goethe wrote the fourth act of 'Iphigenia' on March 19th, 1779 ('sereno die, quæta ments'); also in the Gabelbach-Thal. Numerous guide-posts.

FROM ILMENAU TO THE KICKELHAHN (there and back 3½ hrs.; blue way-marks). We follow the well-wooded Frauenfeld road, passing (20 min.) a simple monument to the poet Scheffel, and in ½ hr. more (guide-post) take the road to the right to (5 min.) the Kleine Gabelbach (2490 ft.; rfmts.), a charmingly situated forester's cottage. The path thence traverses the wood, past the (5 min.) grand-ducal shooting-lodge of Gabelbach (2535 ft.; no adm.), to (20 min.) the summit of the Kickelhahn* (2830 ft.), one of the highest points in the Thuringian Forest, surmounted by a tower (usually open, 10 pf.; rfmts.) which commands a very extensive prospect.

About 200 paces to the N.W. formerly stood a small wooden Shooting Hut, where Goethe frequently spent the night, and on the wall of which he wrote his exquisite lines 'Ueber allen Gipfeln ist Ruh', on 7th Sept., 1793. It was burned down in 1870, and was replaced by a similar hut in 1874.

FROM ILMENAU TO THE SCHMÜCKE. The carriage-road (10 M.) leads via Kammerberg (1706 ft.; *Inn) and Manebach (1650 ft.);

*Hirsch), two villages separated by the Ilm, 3 M. from Ilmenau. Thence we ascend the Manebacher Grund to (3 M.) the Kleine Rödel, where we turn to the right to ascend the Freibachs-Grund to the road from Elgersburg, which we then follow to the Schmücke.

The FOOTPATH (3½-4½ hrs.) quits Ilmenau behind the Felsenkeller (p. 382) and ascends to the lower Berggraben, where it turns to the left to the Sophien-Thal and continues (guide-post) by the 'Dihm's Weg' to the Berthaquelle (pleasant detour by the Hangeberg, ¼ hr.) and the Schwalbenstein (p. 382). About ½ M. farther on is a five-armed guide-post in a large meadow, whence we ascend to the S.W. finally through wood, to the Bornwiese, where a path from Elgersburg joins our route on the right. We proceed to the left to (1½ hr. from Ilmenau) the Marienquelle (view), and pass the (left) Emmastein to Mönchshof (inn), a prettily situated game-keeper's cottage. In ¼ hr. more we join the above-described carriage-road. — A detour may be made from Mönchshof viâ the (½ hr.) Laurafelsen and Gehlberg (p. 382) to (1 hr.) the Schmücke.

The Schmücke (2990 ft.) is a much-frequented inn, prettily situated amidst woods and meadows.

A pleasant excursion may be made from the Schmücke to the *Adlersberg (2785 ft.), 3 hrs. to the S., an excellent point of view. The route to it passes the Mordheckswiese and the Stutenhaus Inn (2455 ft.). — About 3 M. from the Stutenhaus Inn lies Schmiedefeld (inns), a summer-resort.

About ½ M. to the N.W. of the Schmücke, on the road to Oberhof, stands a finger-post, indicating the path to the right to the (20 min.) —

Schneekopf* (3210 ft.), the tower on which (adm. 20 pf.) commands a magnificent survey of the plains of Thuringia (best towards evening), as far as the Brocken and Kyffhäuser, S. the Franconian and Rhön Mts., the Gleichberge near Römheld, etc. We now return by the same path to the road.

To (6 M.) OBERHOF we may follow either the highroad or the Rennsteig (p. 377). The former skirts the N., the latter the S. side of the Beerberg (3240 ft.), and both command picturesque views. From the point where the Rennsteig crosses the road a red-marked path descends to Goldlauter, whence we may go on through the Lautergrund to (2 hrs.) Suhl (p. 381). Farther on, at Plänkner's Aussicht (3192 ft.), a fine view is obtained of Suhl, the Dolmar (p. 371), the Gleichberge (p. 372), and the Rhön. At the Rondel, ¾ M. from Oberhof, where several roads meet, a stone pillar commemorates their construction in 1830-32 by Duke Ernst of Saxe-Coburg.

d. From Gotha to Gräfenroda.

22½ M. RAILWAY in 1½ hr. (fares 2 M 20, 1 M 50 pf.).

Gotha, see p. 364. — 3½ M. Erleben.

8 M. Georgenthal (Schlenk*, Deutsches Haus, in the village; Thüringer Hof*, between the station and the village, unpretending; Schützenhof Restaurant, with view). The village, which lies ¾ M.

to the W. of the station, is much frequented in summer (baths). It possesses the ruins of a Benedictine abbey of the 12th cent., destroyed in 1525. Pleasant walks lead to the Borkenhäuschen, the Hohe Gemeinde, the Hammerwand ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr.), and other points. Railway to Tambach, see below.

FROM GEORGTENTHAL TO FRIEDRICHRODA, $\frac{5}{2}$ M., railway in 21-40 min. — $2\frac{1}{2}$ M. Schönaus-Ernstroda. — $\frac{5}{2}$ M. Friedrichroda, see p. 385.

The ROAD to Friedrichroda leads to the W. from Georgenthal. On the right is the village of Katterfeld; on the left the Immanuelkirche and above it the 'Candelabrum' (see below). Altenbergen (2 M.) is said to be the oldest village in Thuringia. About $\frac{3}{4}$ M. above it is a stone monument, 30 ft. high, in the shape of a church candlestick (hence known as the 'Candelabrum'), erected in 1811 on the site of the Church of St. John, which, according to an erroneous legend, was founded in 724 by St. Boniface as the first Christian church in Thuringia. — Returning to the road at Altenbergen, we continue our route to Engelsbach. The Philosophenweg, diverging to the left beyond the village, leads along the edge of the woods to Friedrichroda; while the footpath, farther on to the right, also leads thither, skirting the Dacheberg, and passing the Damm-Mühle (restaurant).

$10\frac{1}{2}$ M. Ohrdruf (Deutscher Kaiser; Anker) is an old industrial town, with 6200 inhab. Numerous pleasant walks in the vicinity.

From Ohrdruf a DILIGENCE runs daily in summer to ($10\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Oberhof in $2\frac{1}{2}$ hrs. (in the reverse direction twice daily in $1\frac{3}{4}$ hr.). The road gradually ascends the wooded hills of Thuringia and traverses a beautiful valley with varying views. At the entrance to the Ohra-Thal is the deserted iron-fundry of Luisenthal, now a good hotel. To the S.E. rises the Kienberg (2665 ft.; view). The villages of ($1\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Stutzhause and ($1\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Schwarz-wald are next passed. A little beyond the latter opens the Stutzhäuser Grund on the right; $\frac{1}{2}$ M. farther on the Triefstein is passed, and the ducal shooting-lodge soon becomes visible at the head of the valley. Oberhof, see p. 380.

Beyond Ohrdruf the railway runs to the S.E. 13 M. Luisenthal (see above). To the right is the Kienberg (see above). — $15\frac{1}{2}$ M. Crawinkel; $18\frac{1}{2}$ M. Frankenhain. — $22\frac{1}{2}$ M. Gräfenroda, see p. 380.

FROM GEORGTENTHAL TO TAMBACH, $3\frac{1}{2}$ M., branch-railway in $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. The line ascends the pretty Apfelstädtgrund. — $3\frac{1}{2}$ M. Tambach (Falkenstein*, with garden; Lamm; Bär), 'a favourite summer-resort with many picturesque spots in its vicinity' (Spit-tergrund*, with a waterfall 65 ft. high; there and back 3 hrs.).

The shortest route from Tambach to FRIEDRICHRODA (2 hrs.) leads to the N.W. viâ the Neue Haus, a forester's house at the junction of several roads; whence we may proceed either to the left by Finsterbergen, or to the right by Engelsbach. — The route to the INSELSBERG ($3\frac{3}{4}$ hrs.) leads from the Neue Haus (see above) to the ($\frac{5}{2}$ M.) Kreuz, whence we follow the Rennsteig to ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) the Heubergshaus (p. 386) and the Inselsberg (p. 386).

e. From Fröttstädt to Friedrichroda. Inselsberg.

$5\frac{1}{2}$ M. RAILWAY in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. (fares 80, 60, 40 pf.).

Fröttstädt, see p. 354. — $2\frac{1}{2}$ M. Waltershausen (Bahnhofs-Hotel; Hirsch, unpretending), a small manufacturing town. The château of Tenneberg, 1 M. from the station, now occupied by public offices, commands a beautiful view. — 4 M. Schnepfenthal (inn), where there is an excellent school founded by Salzmann in 1784. The château of Reinhardtsbrunn then becomes visible among the trees.

Ohdruf

5½ M. Friedrichroda. — Arrival. The station (restaurant, with rooms) is ¼ M. to the N. of the town, on the road to Reinhardtsbrunn. Cabs and hotel-omnibuses (50 pf.) await the arrival of the trains.

Hotels (crowded in summer). CURHAUS*, R., L., & A. 1½-2½, B. 1, D. 2¼, pens. from 6 M.; WALDHAUS*, R., L., & A. 2-3, B. 1, D. 2¼, pens. 5¼-6¼ M., with baths; SCHAUENBURG*, R., L., & A. 1½-3 M.; HERZOG ERNST*, R. 3 M.; WAGENER*; BERLINER HOF*, pens. 5½-6 M.; BELLEVUE*; SCHWEIZERHAUS*, pens. 5½ M.; HOLLÄNDISCHER HOF*; LANGE*; GOLDENER STERN*, with the summer-theatre; GERTH*; etc. — Dr. Kothe's Sanatorium, for nervous patients, 180-300 M. per month; Dr. Böhm's Natur-Heilmittel; Lodgings in the town 10-18, on the hills 15-40 M. per week. — Visitors' Tax 6 M.

Restaurants. Curhaus, see above; Rathskeller; R. Maas (luncheon-rooms). Baths. Zum Herzog Ernst; Schreiber's, with all kinds of baths.

Diligence to Klein-Schmalkalden (p. 370), 13 M., once daily. — Omnibus to the Inselsberg (there and back 2½ M.) daily; to Tabarz, several times daily (60 pf.). — Carriage with one horse 10-12, with two horses 15-20 M. per day. — Guide 4 M. per day; to the Inselsberg 2 M.

Friedrichroda (1320-1430 ft.), with 4300 inhab., pleasantly situated among meadows and pine-clad hills, is, perhaps, the most popular among the summer-resorts of Thuringia. The environs afford many pleasant excursions. The walks in the neighbourhood are marked in accordance with the so-called 'terrain cure'. In the promenades is a monument to F. A. Perthes (d. 1843), the eminent publisher.

About ¾ M. to the N. of the town (⅓ M. from the station, to the left, then to the right at the crossing) is the ducal château of Reinhardtsbrunn* (1300 ft.), formerly a Benedictine monastery, and converted in 1827-35 into a château in a highly-ornate mixed style of architecture (circular and pointed). The extensive W. façade is entirely modern. The interior is shown to visitors in the absence of the Duke, and the charming park is open to the public.

About 1 M. to the W., on the way to the Ungeheure Grund, is the Marienglas-Höhle, a large double grotto; the walls of the inner chamber are covered with crystals, which produce a dazzling effect when illuminated with Bengal fire (adm. 50 pf.; illumination extra).

*WALK of 4-5 hrs.: from Friedrichroda by the 'Burgweg' to the Tansbuche (2820 ft.) and the ducal hunting-lodge of Jägersruh; then through the Lauchgrund (p. 386), with the Thorstein (p. 386) to the left, and back by Tabarz and Reinhardtsbrunn. Or by the Gottlob, the Spießberg, and the Heubergshaus (tavern), to the Tansbuche, and back through the Ungeheure Grund, or over the Abtsberg (2185 ft.; view similar to that from the Uebelberg).

About 2½ M. to the N.W. of Friedrichroda, in a hill-girt plain, watered by the Laucha and Mühlbach, lie Gross-Tabarz (1800 ft.), Schlesshaus*; Curhaus*; Deutscher Hof; Thorstein; Waldhütte, Klein-Tabarz (Jagdhaus), and Kabarz (Krone), generally included under the one name of Tabarz and frequented by numerous summer-visitors. About 8 M. to the W. of Kabarz lies Winterstein (Adler; Hirsch), whence a visit may be paid to the picturesque Sembach-Thal. From Winterstein to the Inselsberg 1½ hr. Road to Altenstein, see p. 378.

Other pleasant objects for walks from Friedrichroda are the Dammühle (2 M.), Finsterbergen (¾ M.), and the Wolfstieg.

FROM FRIEDRICHSDORF TO THE INSELSBERG ($2\frac{3}{4}$ - $3\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.) there are several different routes. One ROAD leads viâ the Heubergshaus and Jagdberg; another, traversing the Ungeheure Grund, joins the former beyond the Tansbuche. A third by Tabarz and through the Lauchgrund is also pleasant.

The most frequented of the FOOTPATHS passes the Marienglas-Höhle (p. 385) and the Tabarzer Schiesshaus (p. 386; 1 hr.), and leads through the Lauchgrund*. To the right is Bad Laucha and just beyond it the Pension Schweitzerhaus. After about $1\frac{1}{2}$ M., near a prettily-situated mill, the picturesque Felsen-Thal opens to the right. Immediately beyond the bridge over the Strenge, which flows through the Felsen-Thal, a finger-post to the right indicates the path to the ($\frac{2}{3}$ M.) Thorstein (1730 ft.; fine view). Beyond the opening of the Thorstein we reach a small mountain-meadow, whence the Inselsberghaus is seen to the right. We continue to ascend by the broad path, keeping to the right where it divides ($\frac{1}{2}$ M.), cross two arms of the Wilde Graben, and (still to the right) follow the path skirting the Rabelsberg till we strike the highroad from Kabarz. Here we proceed to the left for a short distance and then take the path on the right to the summit. [Or, after the double crossing of the Wilde Graben, we may ascend the stream for a few minutes to the left, then turn to the right through fine beech and pine woods to the highroad, cross the latter, and traverse a beechwood to a bench, whence a steep path to the right, known as the Gemsenstieg, leads to the summit.]

A somewhat longer but scarcely less interesting route passes the Marienglas-Höhle and enters the Ungeheure Grund (see above), turning off immediately (finger-post) to ($1\frac{1}{2}$ M.) the Kickelhahnprung. From this point we retrace our steps for some distance, turn to the left, and in 10 min. reach a road, which in 10 min. more brings us to a finger-post indicating the path to the (10 min.) summit of the Webelberg* (2330 ft.). View to the N. similar to that from the Inselsberg (though less extensive and now marred by the growth of the trees), with a more picturesque foreground. We again retrace our steps, turn to the right, and reach the (25 min.) Aschenbergstein, which affords a picturesque view of the sombre defiles, and through the rocky valley to the N. as far as the plain. We next descend to the Lauchgrund and ascend to ($1\frac{1}{2}$ M.) the Thorstein. Thence as above.

The Grosse Inselsberg* (3005 ft.; two Inns), the summit of which consists of porphyry, commands an extensive panorama, especially towards the N., but unfortunately too often obscured by clouds and fog. About $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. below the summit is the Inselsberg-Loch, with a fine view of the valley far below.

FROM THE INSELSBERG TO RUHLA: We follow the Bennsteg to the ($1\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Drei-Herrenstein, where a finger-post indicates the route (to the right) to (2 hrs.) Ruhla (p. 387). Comp. p. 387.

FROM THE INSELSBERG TO LIEBENSTEIN. The shortest way (9 M.) leads through the Thüringer-Thal* (guide, p. 377, necessary). A guide is also required for the route viâ the Hohe Klänge, an admirable point of view, 3 M. to the E. of Liebenstein. The ordinary route (12 M.), however, is also attractive and can be found without assistance. This leads to the S. from the smaller inn (finger-post) to ($2\frac{1}{4}$ M.) Brötterode (1896 ft.; Inns berger Hof; interesting excursion hence to the Mommelstein, 3 M. to the S.), a large village visited in 1895 by a destructive conflagration. Beyond the village we follow the highroad, skirting the Inselberggraben, to the "Trusen-Thal", a picturesque rocky ravine, with an artificial waterfall (Inn). At the point where the ravine expands lies Herges (inn), separated by the Truse or Druse from Auwaldenburg, a village with a ruin. [Picturesque path from Herges to Schmalkalden (p. 370), 6 M.] We now follow the highroad to the W., viâ Beirode, to ($\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Liebenstein (p. 378).

f. From Wutha to Ruhla.

$\frac{1}{2}$ M. RAILWAY in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. (fares 60 or 40 pf.).

Wutha, see p. 354. — The train ascends the valley of the Erbstrom. $\frac{1}{4}$ M. Farnroda. — 3 M. Thal (Curhaus; Tannhäuser; Scharfenburg), picturesquely situated at the foot of the ruin-crowned Scharfenberg (1340 ft.; view), with a stalactite cavern. Pleasant walks to the Königshäuschen and to the Meisenstein* (1775 ft.), a porphyry rock 2 M. to the E., rising 210 ft. above the valley, and commanding an admirable panorama. — $\frac{3}{2}$ M. Heiligenstein.

$\frac{1}{2}$ M. Ruhla. — Hotels. CURHAUS, R., L., & A. $\frac{1}{2}$ L., B. $\frac{1}{4}$ L., D. 2- $\frac{1}{2}$ L.; BELLEVUE*, in an elevated position, with view, R., L., & A. $\frac{1}{2}$ L., pens. $\frac{1}{2}$ L.-5 M.; LANDGRAF, with view-terrace, R. from $\frac{1}{4}$ L., board $\frac{3}{2}$ L.; TRAUBE; SCHLÖFFEL; SCHWAN; DEUTSCHES HAUS; ROSE; all good, and situated near each other. — Mineral, pine-cone, and other baths at the Badehaus.

Ruhla (1595 ft.), locally known as 'Die Ruhl', a favourite summer-resort, extends to a length of upwards of 2 M. in the valley of the Erbstrom, a brook which divides the town into two parts, of which the E. belongs to Gotha, the W. to Weimar. The chief occupation of the inhabitants (5700) is the manufacture of wooden and meerschäum tobacco-pipes, to the value of 300,000l. annually. In the Sarkophag-Platz a monument has been erected to the poet Storch (1803-81), a native of Ruhla. The village-feast on 2nd Aug. is interesting. Good points of view are the Ringberg (2290 ft.; to the N.W.) and the Breitenberg (2280 ft.; to the E.).

FROM RUHLA TO THE INSELBERG. Carriages (18 M) generally make a long circuit by Winterstein and Kabars (p. 385). The attractive route for pedestrians occupies 3-4 hrs. We leave Ruhla by the Rittergasse at the upper (S.) end, and after a few minutes turn to the right and cross the Erbstrom; after 25 min. we cross the brook again and regain the highroad in 50 min.; we cross the latter and proceed in a straight direction to the (35 min.) Drei-Herrenstein; or follow the highroad to the right for about 400 paces and enter the wood to the left by a path leading in 20 min. to the Gerberstein (see p. 375), thence back towards the E., along the top of the hill in 12 min. to a grassy clearing, and then to the right in 20 min. to the above-mentioned Drei-Herrenstein (2340 ft.). Of the four paths diverging here, the Rennsteig, that most to the left, is to be selected, and the boundary-stones along the top of the hill followed to the ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) summit of the Inselberg (p. 386). The Venezianerstein, reached by diverging to the left before the last ascent (at boundary-stone 50), is a fine point of view.

FROM RUHLA TO EISENACH. The direct route (3 hrs.) leads through the Bärenbachs-Thal, ascends to the ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Rennsteig, and follows the latter to the (3 hrs.) Hohe Sonne (p. 370). The following route, though somewhat longer ($\frac{3}{2}$ hrs.), is preferable. From the Hôtel Bellevue (see above) a path (indicated by blue marks on the trees) ascends to the clearing known as the Todtemannshalde, where paths to the Ringberg, Eisenach, and the Wachstein separate. We select the path to the right (white marks) and in 20 min. reach the summit of the Ringberg (p. 387). We return hence to the above-mentioned cross-roads and follow the path to the right, indicated by yellow marks, to the Wachstein* (1905 ft.; $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr. from Ruhla), a group of rocks rendered accessible by steps and paths, and commanding an extensive view. To the N. rise the Harz Mts., to the W. the Rhön. — We descend from the Wachstein by a different path (also indicated by yellow marks) and regain the Rennsteig at the Zollstock, where a sign-post directs us to (2 M.) Wilhelmsthal. The path shown by the blue marks leads to the (2 M.) Hohe Sonne (p. 370).

The château of Wilhelmsthal (Auerhahn, pens. 4 M.), a summer residence of the Duke of Weimar, has a delightful park, laid out at the end of the 17th cent. and enlarged by Grand-Duke Charles Augustus.

About 1 M. from the inn, the path from which is indicated by white marks, is the Hochwaldsgrotte, and about $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. farther on, after ascending the steps beside the grotto, we reach the Hirschstein* (1510 ft.), an open space with a solitary oak and a bench, commanding a fine view to the S. and W. The forester's house at the Hohe Sonne lies about $\frac{1}{2}$ M. farther on. Thence to Eisenach by the Anna-Thal or the Landgrafenschlucht, see p. 370.

60. From Berlin or Halle to Cassel via Nordhausen.

From Berlin to Cassel, 290 M.; express (Silesian Station) in ca. 7 hrs. (fares 33 M 10, 24 M 50, 17 M 20 pf.); ordinary trains in $10\frac{1}{4}$ hrs. (fares 29 M 30 pf., 22 M, 14 M 70 pf.).

From Halle to Cassel, 195 M., railway in 4-6 hrs. (express-fares 19 M 70, 14 M 60, 10 M 20 pf.; ordinary 17 M 60, 13 M 10, 8 M 80 pf.).

Berlin, see p. 1. The trains use the rails of the 'Stadtbahn' (p. 1) as far as ($7\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Charlottenburg. 15 M. Wannsee (p. 90).

Several unimportant stations. $75\frac{1}{2}$ M. Güterglück, the junction for the Zerbst and Magdeburg line (R. 49 b). The train now crosses the Elbe. — 88 M. Calbe (Sonne), a town on the Saale, with 12,600 inhabitants. On the right bank is the old Premonstratensian abbey of Gottesgnaden. Grisehne (p. 342), the station of the Magdeburg and Leipsic railway, lies $13\frac{3}{4}$ M. to the E. — 98 M. Güsten, the junction of the Cöthen-Aschersleben railway (p. 342) and of a branch-line to Magdeburg ($27\frac{1}{2}$ M.; p. 113). — 108 M. Sandersleben (Rathskeller; Railway Restaurant), on the right bank of the Wipper, where the Halle and Aschersleben line diverges (R. 62). — 112 M. Hettstedt is the junction of a branch-line to ($27\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Halte.

118 M. Mansfeld (Goldener Löwe), with 2700 inhab., chiefly employed in the copper-slate quarries of the vicinity, lies $3\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the W. of the station (diligence twice daily in $\frac{3}{4}$ hr.). Luther's father was at one time a miner at Mansfeld, whither he removed from Eisleben in 1484. The house he occupied (with 'J.L.', 1530' above the door) and the school his son attended are still extant. The castle of the old Counts of Mansfeld, on a height above the town, was destroyed in the Thirty Years' War, but partly rebuilt in 1859-60. — 124 M. Riestedt.

131 M. Sangerhausen, see below.

Halle, see p. 342. The train crosses the Saale. 11 M. Teutschenthal; 17 M. Oberöblingen, on the S. bank of the former Salzige See (salt-lake), the larger of the two Mansfeld Lakes, which was drained in 1892-95. Branch-railway to (9½ M.) Querfurt.

24 M. Eisleben (Goldner Ring; Goldnes Schiff; Löwe), a town with 23,000 inhab., was the birthplace of Martin Luther. The house in which he was born (1483), Luther-Str. 16, contains various reminiscences of the great Reformer, of whom there is a relief above the door. A bronze Statue of Luther, by Siemering, was unveiled in 1883, on the 400th anniversary of his birth. The Andreaskirche contains the pulpit from which he preached, busts of Luther and Melancthon, and some interesting monuments of Counts of Mansfeld. Opposite the church is the house in which Luther died (interior refitted in 1894), containing his death-bed and other relics. The church of St. Peter and St. Paul contains the font in which Luther was baptised, a fragment of his cloak, and his leathern skull-cap. Extensive copper and silver mines in the neighbourhood.

We now pass through a tunnel. 33 M. Riestedt, see above.

36½ M. Sangerhausen (505 ft.; Rail. Restaurant, D. 1½ M.; Thüringer Hof; Kaiserin Augusta; Post), a town with 11,400 inhab., mentioned as early as 991. The St. Ulrichskirche, said to have been erected by Lewis 'the Springer' in 1079, in performance of a vow made by him during his captivity at the Gleichenstein (p. 344), really dates from the 13th cent. and is the latest example of the early-Saxon style, in which the aisles end in apses (comp. p. 398). The Jacobskirche, containing a fine carved altar, and the Rathhaus date from the end of the 15th cent., the Neue Schloss from 1616-22. — Diligence to Harzgerode (p. 400).

FROM SANGERHAUSEN TO ERFURT, 43½ M., railway in 1¼ hr. (fares 5 M. 60, 4 M. 20, 2 M. 80 pf.). The train crosses the Helme near (3 M.) Oberöblingen. From (9 M.) Artern (Sonne), on the Unstrut, a branch runs to Naumburg (p. 352). 10½ M. Reinsdorf. — From (12½ M.) Bretleben branch viâ Esperstedt to (7 M.) Frankenhausen (p. 390). — 16 M. Heldrungen (Kaufmann), with an ancient Schloss, in which Thomas Münzer, the Anabaptist, was once imprisoned. — 28 M. Simmerda, the junction of the Gross-Heringen and Strausfurt line (p. 353). — 43½ M. Erfurt, see p. 362.

41 M. Wallhausen. The line now enters the fertile Goldene Aue, watered by the Helme, and extending to Nordhausen.

47 M. Rossla (Deutscher Kaiser; Kyffhäuser), with a château of Prince Stolberg and a modern Gothic church.

To the S. of Rossla rises the wooded Kyffhäuser (1395 ft.). The route to it leads by (2½ M.) Sütdorf (omn. 50 pf., to the top of Kyffhäuser

1 M.), beyond which the road from Tilläda to Kelbra (see below) is crossed. The ruined castle, which was once occupied by the Hohenstaufen, consists of the Oberburg, with its tower 80 ft. in height, and the Unterburg with the chapel. According to an ancient tradition, the Emp. Frederick Barbarossa slumbers in the bowels of the earth beneath the castle, ready to burst forth as soon as Germany regains her former glory.

Adjoining the Oberburg is a magnificent architectural "Monument to Emp. William I., designed by Bruno Schmitz and erected in 1896 by the German military associations at a cost of about 800,000 M. (40,000*l.*). The total height of the structure, which rises in terraces, is 210 ft. On the lower terrace, within a small rectangular court, is a seated figure of Frederick Barbarossa, by N. Geiger. On the upper terrace is a colossal equestrian statue of William I., in copper, by E. Hundrieser, 31 ft. high; on the pedestal, a German warrior and the figure of History. Above the monument rises a tower 187 ft. high, which may be ascended by a spiral staircase and which commands a splendid view.

To the N.W. of the Kyffhäuser lies the ruin of Rothenburg (1050 ft.). The route to it is by a broad forest-path from the Kyffhäuser to the (40 min.) Frankenhausen and Kelbra road; then by the latter to (3 min.) a finger-post on the right, whence a good footpath leads to the castle in 1 hr. Good view from the top (*Inn). — At the N.W. base of the Rothenburg lies (1/2 hr.) Kelbra (Kaiserhof; Sonne; Preussischer Hof), with numerous breweries. Railway-station, see below. — The castles are most conveniently visited in the reverse direction, either on foot or by carriage. In this case we descend from the Kyffhäuser through beautiful woods in 2 hrs. to —

*Frankenhausen (Mohr; Thüringer Hof; Adler), a small town with salt-baths and salt-works, yielding 20,000 tons annually, from which Sondershausen is 12 M. distant (railway in 1 1/4 hr., see p. 389). Pop. 5900. On the road to the latter, near the (3 M.) village of Rottleben, is situated the Barbarossa Cavern, 330 yds. in length, with subterranean lakes (electric lighting; adm. 70 pf. each, minimum 2 M. 10 pf.). The direct route from the Kyffhäuser to the cavern (2 hrs.) diverges to the right from the road, by Prince Schwarzburg's shooting-lodge of Rathsfeld, about halfway between Kelbra and Frankenhausen.

From (50 M.) Berga-Kelbra a branch-line diverges to Rottleberoda (Stolberg), in the Harz (p. 404).

60 M. *Nordhausen (Römischer Kaiser; Berliner Hof; Prinz Karl; Weintraube, all fair; Schneegass, Wieg, at the station; Restaurants Klosterstübel, Spangenberg, and Rathskeller), with 27,500 inhab., situated on the Zorge, on the fertile S. slopes of the Harz Mts. (R. 63), possessing extensive distilleries and various manufacturing, was frequently the scene of councils and assemblies of princes in the middle ages. The Cathedral is a fine late-Gothic edifice, with carved choir-stalls and a Romanesque crypt (12th cent.). The Church of St. Blasius contains two pictures by Cranach, an Ecce Homo, and the Raising of Lazarus, with Luther and Melancthon among the mourners. Near the Rathhaus rises a Roland's Column (p. 161). A Luther Fountain, surmounted by a bronze statue of the Reformer by Schuler of Berlin, was erected here in 1888. The Museum of Antiquities is open on Thurs., 3-5. The old fortifications have been converted into promenades. Pleasant walk through the Gehege to the Wilhelmshöhe (view of the Harz Mts.).

From Nordhausen to Northem and to Erfurt, see pp. 132, 398.

65 M. Wolkramshausen; 69 M. Pustleben; 71 M. Bleicherode; 77 M. Sollstedt; 82 1/2 M. Niederorschel. — 86 M. Leinefelde.

A diligence plies twice daily from Leinefelde to Duderstadt (Goldener Löwe; Rail. Hotel), an ancient town, to the N., with 5200 inhab. and an interesting Bathhaus (1432-1528) and other old buildings. Railway to Wolfen and Northeim, see p. 152.

FROM LEINEFELDE TO GÖTTA, 42 M., branch-railway in 2 hrs. (5 M 50, 4 M 10, 2 M 80 pf.). — The first important station is (17 M.) Mühlhausen (Weisser Schwan; König von Preussen), an ancient town with 80,100 inhab., on the Unstrut. The Gothic Marienkirche, with double aisles, and the old stained glass in the church of St. Blasius deserve mention. Pleasant walks to the Popperoder Quelle and the (3 M.) Weisse Haus. In the Peasants' War of 1525 Mühlhausen was the headquarters of the fanatic Thomas Münzer, who was afterwards executed here. — 23½ M. Langensalza (Mohr), a busy town of 11,500 inhab. with cloth and other factories. The sulphur-baths of that name (Curhaus, pens. from 4½ M) are prettily situated on the Unstrut, ½ M. distant. The engagement between the Prussians and the Hanoverians in June, 1866, which terminated in the capitulation of the latter, took place near Merzleben, a village to the N.E. of the town. — 42 M. Götha, see p. 364.

From Leinefelde to Niederhone, see p. 418.

The broad Leine-Thal is now descended. 96 M. Heiligenstadt (Preussischer Hof; Eichsfelder Hof*), the capital of the former principality of Eichsfeld, on the Leine, with three Gothic churches of the 13th and 14th centuries. Pop. 6700.

105½ M. Eichenberg, junction for Göttingen and Bebra (p. 418). Our line descends the Werra-Thal. — 109 M. Witzenhausen, with vineyards, on the left bank. On the left rises the Meissner (p. 418; ascent in 3 hrs.). — 115 M. Hedemünden. The train crosses the Werra.

120 M. Münden, see p. 130. — 135 M. Cassel, see p. 121.

61. From Brunswick to Nordhausen and Erfurt viâ Börssum (Harzburg, Goslar).

133 M. RAILWAY. To Nordhausen in 4¾ hrs. (fares 11 M 30 pf., 8 M, 5 M 10 pf.); thence to Erfurt in 2½ hrs. (fares 6 M 60, 4 M 80, 3 M 30 pf.). — From Brunswick to Harzburg, 28 M., in 1½ hr. (fares 3 M 60, 2 M 70, 1 M 80 pf.); to Goslar, 31 M., in 1¾ hr. (4 M, 3 M, 2 M).

Brunswick, see p. 145. The train passes the ducal park and the châteaux of Neu-Richmond and Alt-Richmond. The line to Helmstedt and Magdeburg diverges to the left (p. 110).

7½ M. Wolfenbüttel (Kronprinz; Bayrischer Hof, well spoken of; Löwe), an old town with 15,500 inhab., on the Oker, is famous for its library (300,000 vols. and 8000 MSS.), of which Lessing was librarian from 1770 till his death in 1781. The library now occupies a handsome new building, to which it was transferred in 1886 Luther's Bible, with annotations in his own handwriting, his drinking-glass, inkstand, portrait by Cranach, etc., are shown here, and also a famous portrait of Spinoza. In the vestibule stands a statue of Lessing by Döll (1796). The ducal Château, the Barracks, and the Marienkirche (17th cent.), with the ancient ducal mortuary chapel, are among the most conspicuous buildings.

Branch-line from Wolfenbüttel viâ Schöppenstedt (p. 111), Jerzheim (p. 113), and Oschersleben (p. 395) to Halberstadt (p. 384). Another to Thiede,

Our line crosses the Oker and ascends to Hedwigsburg and (15 M.) Börssum, the junction of the Brunswick-Harzburg and Magdeburg-Soest lines (R. 4), situated at the confluence of the Ilse and Oker.

The HARZBURG LINE follows the Oker, towards the S. Stat. Schladen. At Vienenburg, where it is joined by the Halberstadt line (E. 62), it divides into three branches, one leading to Harzburg (p. 408), another to Goslar (p. 406), and the third to Seesen (see p. 112) and Clausthal (p. 413).

From Börssum to (40 M.) Seesen, see p. 112. The Nordhausen line turns to the S. and skirts the S.W. slopes of the Harz district, where a number of picturesque spots have recently come into favour (comp. Map, p. 408). — From (48 M.) Gittelde a diligence plies six times daily to the picturesque summer-resort of (5 M.) Grund (Rathhaus*, pens. from 4 M.; Curhaus; Schützenhaus). About 1 M. to the N. is the Hübichenstein (1410 ft.), an old sacrificial station.

12½ M. Osterode (Englischer Hof; Deutscher Hof), on the Söse, a town of 6900 inhab., with many picturesque old houses. Fine old Rathhaus. Several monuments in the Marktkirche. Diligence to (9 M.) Clausthal, see p. 413. — To the right, about halfway between Osterode and Herzberg, is the Jettenhöhle, a stalactite cavern.

60 M. Herzberg (Weisses Ross*; Peimann's*; Stadt Hannover; Railway Hotel; Curhaus, at the mouth of the Sieber-Thai), on the Sieber, the junction of the line to Northheim (p. 132), was the residence of the Dukes of Brunswick-Celle down to 1634. Pop. 4400. The old Schloss was founded by Emp. Lothaire about 1130.

From Herzberg through the Sieber-Thai* to Andreasberg, see p. 414. — Branch-line to Northheim, p. 132.

64 M. Scharzfeld (Schuster, at the station; Hôtel zum Scharzfelds, ½ M. from the station); comp. p. 414.

From the village, ¼ M. from the station, we ascend in 10 min. to the Steinkirche, a grotto connected by tradition with St. Boniface, and used as a church down to the middle of last century. Hence we may proceed over the Brenke and to the E. to (¾ hr.) the Einhornhöhle (key and guide at the Schuster Inn), another cavern, where many fossils have been found. To the S. rises the beautifully-situated ruin of Scharzfelds (restaurant), whence we descend to Scharzfeld station in ¼ hr.

A pleasant footpath leads hence viâ the furniture-factory of Oderfeld to the Philosophengang, and thence past the Königshütte (iron foundry) to Lauterberg (see below).

FROM SCHARZFELD TO ST. ANDREASBERG, 9½ M., railway in ca. 50 min. (fares 1 M., 70 pf.). — The line ascends the valley of the Oder. 2½ M. Lauterberg (Deutscher Kaiser*; Krone; Curhaus; Felsenkeller), a small town in the valley of the Oder (4400 inhab.), with pleasant, wooded environs and a water-cure establishment, is adapted for a prolonged stay. The Hausberg (1380 ft.) commands an extensive prospect. The view is still finer from the Kummel (1970 ft.; easily ascended from Lauterberg in 1 hr.), embracing Lauterberg, the Oder-Thai, the valleys of the Lutter, and the plain towards the S. Another excursion from Lauterberg is through the Gerade Lutter-Thai and the Bären-Thai (somewhat steep), or by the road to Sieber (p. 414) as far as the top of the pass, and thence to the left in 15-20 min. to the summit of the (3-3½ hrs.) Grosse Knollen, commanding another fine view, particularly towards the Brocken. Excursion by the Scholzengraben to the Königstein and Jagdkopf, and back, 5-6 hrs. — Through the Wiesenbecker-Thai, with the picturesque Wiesenbecker Teich, to the (2 hrs.) Ravensberg* (2065 ft.; Inn at the top). — $8\frac{1}{2}$ M. Kurpark; 5 M. Oderthal. $9\frac{1}{2}$ M. St. Andreasberg, see p. 414.

66 M. Osterhagen; 69 M. Tettenborn, the station for (2 M.; diligence) Sachsa (Schützenhaus, well spoken of; Rathskeller; Curhaus), a small town with 1800 inhab., frequented as a summer-resort. Ascent of the Ravensberg ($1\frac{1}{2}$ hr.), see above. — To the right of the railway rises the Römerstein, a group of dolomite rocks resembling a ruined castle. — 72 M. Walkenried (Löwe; Rail. Restaurant), a village with the imposing ruins of a Cistercian abbey of that name, a church of the 13-14th cent., and fine early-Gothic cloisters of the same period.

The train now passes through a tunnel and reaches (75 M.) Ellrich (Schwarzer Adler; Schützenhaus; König von Preussen), a small town prettily situated on the Zorge. Pleasant environs.

Picturesque walk hence by the Burgberg and the forest of Himmelreich (near which is a fine cavern, discovered in 1868) to (1 hr.) Walkenried (see above). Another to the E., by the villages of Werna and Appenrode, to Nfeld ($2\frac{1}{4}$ hrs.; see p. 405). — Diligence to Tanne, see p. 414.

80 M. Nieder-Sachswerfen (Deutscher Kaiser), the station for (3 M.) Ilfeld (see p. 405). To the right rises the precipitous Kohnstein.

82 M. Nordhausen (p. 390), the junction of this line with the Halle and Cassel railway (R. 60).

Beyond (90 M.) Wolkramshausen the Erfurt line crosses the Wipper. 92 M. Klein-Furra; $93\frac{1}{2}$ M. Gross-Furra.

97 M. Sondershausen (860 ft.; Deutsches Haus*; Tanne*; Hôtel Münch), the capital of the principality of Schwarzburg-Sondershausen, charmingly situated in the Wipper-Thal. Pop. 7000. The Schloss contains a few antiquities and a natural history collection (open 2-5). The Stadtkirche (17th cent.; restored in 1891) contains an old font and a valuable library. It is adjoined by the princely mausoleum (1892). The concerts given by the prince's orchestra, which enjoys a wide reputation, are performed in the Loh-Platz on Sun. afternoons in summer. Fine view from the Göldener and from the Possen (1510 ft.), the highest point of the Hainleite, $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr. to the S. Diligence daily to ($13\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Frankenhausen in $3\frac{1}{4}$ hrs. (see p. 390).

101 M. Hohenebra (branch to Ebeleben, $5\frac{1}{2}$ M.); 117 M. Straussfurt (branch-line to Gross-Heringen, see p. 353).

132 M. Erfurt, see R. 54.

62. From Leipzig to Hildesheim (Hanover, Cologne) viâ Vienenburg.

140 M. Railway, express in 5 hrs. 10 min., ordinary trains in 7 hrs. (fares 18 ₰ 30, 13 ₰ 70, 9 ₰ 20 pf.; express 20 ₰ 50, 15 ₰ 10 pf.). This line is the direct route from Leipzig to Hanover, and passes the N. and E. side of the Harz district (Ballenstedt, Thale, Wernigerode, Harzburg, Goßlar, Clausthal). Through-carriages to Bremen-Cologne, etc.

From Leipzig to (21 M.) Halle, see R. 49 a. — 25 M. Trotha, on the Saale. About 5 M. to the S.W. of (34 M.) Nauendorf (diligence) lies Wettin, a small town of 2800 inhab., with the ancestral château (1123-56) of the various ruling houses of Saxony, who trace their descent from Wittekind. From (40 M.) Cönnern a branch line runs to (20½ M.) Calbe (p. 342). Then across the Saale to (46 M.) Belleben and (49 M.) Sandersleben, on the Wipper, where our line crosses that from Berlin to Cassel (R. 60).

56 M. Aschersleben (Gold. Löwe; Deutsches Haus, R. & B. 21½ M., well spoken of; Schwarzes Ross), an ancient town with 24,100 inhab., the seat of the princes of the Ascanian line, who became extinct in 1345, is the junction of the line to Bernburg and Cöthen (p. 342).

61 M. Frose, with a fine Romanesque church, probably of the 12th cent., is the junction for (9 M.) Ballenstedt (p. 398) and (18½ M.) Quedlinburg (p. 396).

72 M. Wegeleben, the junction of a branch-line to (7½ M.) Quedlinburg (p. 396), Nienstedt, and (13 M.) Thale (p. 400).

76 M. Halberstadt. — Hotels. PRINZ EUGEN* (Pl. a; D, 8), with restaurant, R., L., & A. from 1½, D. 2 M.; GOLDENES ROSS* (Pl. b; D, 8), similar charges; WEISSES ROSS; CENTRAL, Breiteweg. — THÜRINGER HOF (Pl. c; D, 8); KRONE (Pl. D, 5).

Restaurants. Prinz Eugen, see above; Ufermann, Dom-Platz 7; Café Central, Fischmarkt 5; Bauer; Breitenbach; Rathskeller; Nüter.

Halberstadt (400 ft.) is an old town with 41,300 inhab., on the Holzeme, boasting of a considerable trade and important manufactories. The episcopal see, founded as early as the 9th cent., was suppressed at the Peace of Westphalia (1648). The Wood Architecture* of the 15-16th cent., with its projecting upper stories and rich sculptural ornamentation, is still admirably preserved here. The chief of these buildings are in the Market (Pl. C, 3), which is divided by the Rathhaus into the (E.) Fischmarkt and the (W.) Holzmarkt. The Gothic Rathhaus, recently restored, dates from the close of the 14th cent., but received some Renaissance additions in the 16-17th centuries. The Roland (p. 161) here dates from 1433. The late-Gothic Rathskeller in the Holzmarkt, built in 1461, is the finest wood-structure in the town. In the Fischmarkt are Tetzels House of 1529 and the Schuhhof, a rich Renaissance building of 1579.

The Cathedral* (St. Stephen's; Pl. C, 3), the most important edifice at Halberstadt, was destroyed by fire in 1179 and re-erected very slowly during the following centuries. The façade was erected in 1235 and shows traces of French and Rhenish influence; the towers, of the same period, had to be taken down and are now being rebuilt. The W. part of the nave, in a pure Gothic style, was built in 1252-76, and the E. parts, the transept, and the choir date from the 14th century. The church was consecrated in 1492 and restored in 1850-70.

INTERIOR (sacristan's house adjoining the E. choir). Rich late-Gothic Screen separating the nave from the choir; above it, the Crucified with Mary and John, a Wood Sculpture of the 13th century. The Lady Chapel has good reliefs of 1517, and there are other interesting sculptures (ca. 1500) in the choir-chapel and the chapter-house. Then a Crucifixion by Joh. Raphon of Einbeck, of 1506, as an altar-piece; several other pictures, rich sacerdotal robes, and various antiquities.

The extensive Dom-Platz, planted with trees, is bounded on the W. side by the late-Romanesque Liebfrauenkirche (Pl. B, 3), erected in 1005-1284, and recently restored. A number of figures in relief date from the 12th cent. and one of the chapels contains a mural painting of the 15th century. A War Monument in commemoration of 1870-71 rises in this square. — The Gothic Church of St. Martin (Pl. C, 3), finished about 1350, has fine towers, restored in 1881-82. — Gleim's collection of portraits of his friends is now preserved in 'Gleim's Stiftungshaus' (Pl. C, 3), Dom-Platz 31.

The Butterberg (restaurant), $\frac{1}{4}$ M. to the N.E., commands a fine view of the town and the Harz Mts. The Spiegels-Berge, $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the S., the Gläserne Mönch, 2 M. farther on, and the Hoppsberg are also good points of view. The Klus or 'Halberstadt Switzerland', to the S.E. of the Spiegels-Berge, has some fine pine-woods and picturesque sandstone rocks. Still farther to the S. are the Thetenberge.

FROM HALBERSTADT TO MAGDEBURG, $36\frac{1}{2}$ M., railway in $1\frac{1}{2}$ -2 hrs. (A. 70, 8 M. 60, 2 M. 40 pf.). — 13 M. Oschersleben, a small town on the Bode (p. 400); $23\frac{1}{2}$ M. Blumenberg (p. 341). — $38\frac{1}{2}$ M. Magdeburg, see p. 118.

FROM HALBERSTADT TO BLANKENBURG (p. 405), 12 M., railway in 1 hr. (fares 1 M. 60, 1 M. 20, 80 pf.). Stations: Spiegelsberge, Langenstein (branch to Derenburg), and (9 M.) Börnecke.

Beyond Halberstadt the train commands views of the slopes of the Harz to the left. From (91 M.) Heudeber-Dannstedt a branch-line leads to ($5\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Wernigerode (p. 410), ($11\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Ilseburg (p. 410), and (20 M.) Harzburg (p. 408). From (96 M.) Wasserleben a branch-line runs to (3 M.) Ostervieck.

99 M. Vienenburg, the junction of lines to Börssum and Brunswick (see p. 392) and to (5 M.) Harzburg (p. 408).

Our line goes on via ($104\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Oker (p. 408) to (107 M.) Goslar (p. 405; line to Clausthal, see p. 413), where it turns to the N. 110 M. Grauhof, with a spring of mineral water ('Harzer Sauerbrunn'); 118 M. Bingelheim (p. 113). Thence to — 140 M. Hildesheim (p. 141).

63. The Harz Mountains.

Plan. About ten or twelve days are required to explore the finest scenery of the Harz, which is now rendered accessible by a network of railways in every direction. The following plan, which embraces the most interesting points, may easily be extended or abridged at pleasure, and may be begun or terminated at almost any one of these railway-stations. 1st Day. Ballenstedt, Selke-Thal, Alexisbad; 2nd. Gernrode, Suderode, Hexentanzplatz; 3rd. Welser Hirsch, Treseburg, Bode-Thal, Roestrappe; 4th. Blankenburg, Rübeland, Rothe Hütte, Brocken; 5th. Steinerne Renne, Wernigerode; 6th. Ilse-Thal, Ilseburg, Burgberg near Harzburg; 7th. Environs of Harzburg, Oker-Thal, Goslar. — The finest points in the Ober-Harz and S. Harz may next be visited as follows: 8th Day. To Clausthal and Andreasberg; 9th. Lauterberg, Ravensberg, Walkenried, Ellrich; 10th.

Ifeld, Neustadt unterm Hohnstein, Eichenforst, Stolberg; 11th. By diligence towards the S. to Kelbra (Kynhäuser, see p. 388).

Carriages. Two-horse about 20 M per day; tolls extra; fee 2-3 M per day. One-horse 10-12 M. In many places there is a tariff fixed by the authorities, but in every case a bargain should be made beforehand.

Porters, 4-5 M per day.

Inns good, but charges have risen very considerably of late: E. from 2½ M, A. 50 pf., B. 1 M, D. 2-3 M, wine 1¼-1½ M per ½ bottle. The inferior and less-frequented inns are cheaper.

The Harz, the northernmost mountain-chain in Germany, 56 M. in length, and 18 M. in width, is an entirely isolated and well-wooded range, rising abruptly from the plain on every side, especially towards the N.W. and N.E. It is divided into the Oberharz, Unterharz, and Vorharz. The first of these embraces the W. region, with the towns of Lautenthal, Clausthal, and Andreasberg. The N.W. and S.W. slopes, with Goslar, Seesen, and Herzberg, are called the Vorharz, while the district to the E. of Wernigerode and Ellrich belongs to the Unterharz. The Brocken rises on the boundary between the Ober- and Unter-Harz. The Oberharz is furrowed by numerous dark, wooded ravines. The Unterharz affords a greater variety of picturesque scenery. The principal rock-formation is granite, overlying which are the more recent grauwacke and clay-slate. Mining, see pp. 407, 418, 414.

The climate of the Harz resembles that of Central Norway. The mean annual temperature is 41° Fahr. The climate of the plateau of the Oberharz is apt to be somewhat inclement, even in summer. In the places along the N. base of the mountains the summer heat is pleasantly tempered by the N.W. wind from the Baltic Sea; and the S. Harz also enjoys an agreeable climate.

I. The Eastern Harz Mts.

a. Quedlinburg.

RAILWAY from Halle (Leipzig, Berlin) viâ Wegeleben to Quedlinburg and Thale, and viâ Frose to Ballenstedt and Quedlinburg, see E. 62.

Quedlinburg (460 ft.; Bär*, in the Markt-Platz, R., L., & A. 2½, B. ¾ M; Lamm, Goldner Ring, R., L., & A. 1½-2, D. 2½ M, well spoken of), an old agricultural town with 21,900 inhab., recently increased by the foundation of the suburb of Süderstadt, lies on the Bode, 3 M. to the N.W. of the Harz Mts. It was founded by Henry I. and became a favourite residence of the German emperors of the Saxon line. Down to 1477 it was a fortified Hanseatic town, and from 1477 to 1698 it was under the protection of Saxony, passing into the possession of the Electors of Brandenburg at the latter date. It is still an important-looking place with walls, towers, and moats, and is commanded on the W. by the old Schloss and the abbey-church.

In the grounds adjoining the railway-station is a War Monument, erected in 1895.

The Rathhaus, in the market-place, in front of which rises a stone figure of Roland (p. 161), is a building of the 14th cent., altered in 1615. In its top-story is a kind of wooden cage in which the townspeople incarcerated Count Albert of Regenstein during 20 months (1336-38) for having infringed their municipal privileges.

The Gymnasium, or grammar-school, possesses a library of 8000 volumes. The Girls' School contains the Municipal Museum, with an interesting collection of utensils in flint and bronze, weapons, instruments of torture, parchment records (e.g. imperial charters of 1038 and 1134), seals, portraits, etc.

Following the street in the corner of the market-place, nearly opposite the Bär Hotel and the Rathaus, and afterwards turning to the left, we cross the Finkenherd, a small Platz where Henry I. is said to have received the deputation announcing his election as German king, and reach the Schloss-Platz, at the foot of the Schlossberg. The house in which Klopstock (1724-1803) was born in this Platz, has a jutting story supported by two wooden columns. To the right is the dwelling of the sacristan of the Schlosskirche, to whom application may now be made.

The Schloss, situated on a lofty sandstone rock, was once the seat of the abbesses of the secular and independent convent of Quedlinburg, which was founded by Matilda, mother of Otho the Great, in 936 and afterwards attained to great prosperity, but declined in importance after it embraced the Reformation in 1539, and was at length suppressed in 1803.

Adjacent to the Schloss is the Abbey Church, or Schlosskirche, an edifice of great importance in the history of art. The body of the church was erected in 1021, the choir was altered in the 14th cent., and the whole restored and the two main towers rebuilt in 1862.

The CHURCH, which was the original church, founded in the 10th cent., and built over an ancient mortuary chapel, contains the tombs of Henry I. (d. 936), his wife Matilda, and his grand-daughter Matilda. The TREASURY contains objects of artistic and historical value, chiefly of the 10th cent., such as reliquaries, books of the Gospels, an episcopal crozier, the beard-comb of Henry I., fine Embroideries (13th cent.), and one of the 'water-pots of Cana'. — The vault, which is built of sandstone, possesses the property of preserving bodies from decay. — Countess Aurora of Königsmark, the mistress of Augustus the Strong of Saxony, and mother of Marshal Saxe, was abbess of Quedlinburg in 1704-18, and on her death in 1728 was interred here.

Fine view of the town and environs from the terrace.

Opposite the Schlossberg rises the Münzenberg, with the scanty remains of the convent of St. Mary (Cœnobium ad Montem Zionis, of which Münzenberg is said to be a corruption). — The Brühl, a pleasant park to the S.W. of the town, not far from the Schlossberg, contains monuments to Klopstock and the geographer Ritter (born here in 1779). — At a neighbouring farm is the ancient church of Wipertus (now a farm-building), a basilica dating in its present form from the 12th cent., with a well-preserved crypt of the 10th century.

Quedlinburg is noted for its nurseries and cloth-factories.

b. Selke-Thal. Gernrode. Suderode. Lauenburg. Mägdesprung. Alexisbad. Victorshöhe.

Two Days. 1st. From Ballenstedt to the Falken Inn 1¼ hr., visit to the Falkenstein 1½, to the Selkemühle 1¼, Mägdesprung 1½, Alexisbad 1 hr. — 2nd. To the Victorshöhe 1½, Gernrode 1½, Suderode ¼, Lauenburg 1, Neinstedt ½, Thale or Hexentanzplatz 1-1½ hr.

RAILWAY from Ballenstedt to Quedlinburg, see below and p. 399; to Frossa, see p. 394. — RAILWAY from Gernrode to Harzgerode, 11 M., in $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr. (fares 1 M. 35, 90 pf.); to Hasselfelde, $25\frac{1}{2}$ M., in $2\frac{1}{2}$ hrs. (fares 2 M. 70, 1 M. 80 pf.).

Ballenstedt (690 ft.; Weisser Schwan*, R. & B. $2\frac{1}{2}$ M.; Grosser Gasthof*, at the entrance to the Schloss-Garten; Stadt Bernburg*, in the Allée; Germania, Dessauer Hof, in the town), a prettily-situated town with 5200 inhab., is a summer-residence of the Duke of Anhalt. A long avenue leads to the Schloss (generally closed) on a hill. Beautiful Schloss-Park, with fine views of the mountains. On the N. side are the Gegensteine (restaurant), a fragment of the Teufelsmauer ('Devil's Wall', p. 403).

A finger-post at the S. end of the town indicates the route to the right to the Selkemühle (see below), and that to the left to Opperde and Meisdorf. The latter is the highroad to the Selke-Thal, but pedestrians follow it as far only as ($\frac{1}{4}$ M.) the first road diverging to the right, on which, a little way farther on, is a direction-post on the left indicating the way to the ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) forester's house of Kohlenschacht, at the beginning of the steep footpath known as the 'Lumpen-Steig'. The same road next leads through the wood to the ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) inn Zum Falken* (705 ft.) in the Selke-Thal, at the foot of the Falkenstein.

To the left, a little above the inn, a footpath ascends to (25 min.) Schloss Falkenstein* (1080 ft.), situated on a lofty rock and dating back to the 11th century. The castle (fee 50 pf.), which is well preserved and partly restored, contains old weapons, curiosities, etc.; fine view from the tower. We now return to the valley by the same path.

A good road ascends the picturesque Selke-Thal* to the (5 M.) Selkemühle (Burg Anhalt), where it unites with the above-mentioned direct road from Ballenstedt. On the hill, $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. to the S., are the scanty ruins of the Burg Anhalt. The road next leads to ($4\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Mägdesprung; but a slight detour viâ the Meiseberg, with a forester's house (restaurant) and fine view, 20 min. from the Selkemühle, is recommended; thence to Mägdesprung (p. 399) $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr.

The RAILWAY runs from Ballenstedt viâ ($3\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Rieder to — 5 M. Gernrode (730 ft.; Inn on the Stubenberg*, see p. 399; Deutsches Haus, Deutscher Kaiser, in the town; private apartments easily procurable), a town with 2800 inhab., charmingly situated on the slope of the Stubenberg, which attracts numerous visitors in summer. The Romanesque Abbey Church* of the 10th cent., with its two round W. towers, recently restored, is a picturesque feature in the landscape. It has a choir at each end, and the E. apse is flanked by smaller apses in the old Saxon style (comp. p. 389). The tomb of the founder, Margrave Gero of Lusatia (d. 965), was restored in 1519. Romanesque cloisters on the S. side of the church partly preserved.

The Stubenberg*, or Stufenberg (920 ft.; Inn* at the top), which rises above the town and may be ascended in $\frac{1}{4}$ hr., affords one of the most picturesque views on this side of the Harz Mts. In the Hagen-Thal beneath is the 'Haus Hagenthal', a pension.

A few hundred yards to the W. of Gernrode lies —

$5\frac{1}{2}$ M. Suderode (490 ft.; Heene's Curhaus, at the end of the village next to Gernrode; Graun; Michaelis; Wahrenholz; Belvedere), which has become a favourite watering-place on account of its chalybeate springs, and extends with its villas and gardens for upwards of 1 M. along the wooded slope of the hill. Pretty walks to the Preussen-Platz, the Salsteine, the Beringer Quelle, and the Tempel at the W. end of the village.

Several routes lead hence to Stecklenberg and the Lauenburg. Pedestrians may ascend the pretty forest-path by the Hôtel Michaelis, which leads via the Neue Schenke, a forester's house (milk), direct to the Lauenburg in 1 hr., or they may take that which passes the Schulzenamt at Suderode, skirts the wood to the left (view of Quedlinburg to the right), crosses the Quedlinburg road after 10 min., and then re-enters the wood. At the entrance to the village of ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Stecklenberg (Wurmthal Inn), a stone post indicates the ascent to the left, passing the Stecklenburg, to the (25 min.) Lauenburg (1160 ft.), a ruined castle with a tower commanding a fine view (Inn*, R. $1\frac{1}{2}$ M.).

A good road to the N. leads from Stecklenberg to ($1\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Nienstedt (p. 394). — To Thale (p. 400), $3\frac{1}{2}$ M.; finger-posts. The route by the Georgshöhe (p. 408) to the ($1\frac{1}{4}$ hr.) Hexentanzplatz (p. 402) is picturesque. — From Suderode to Quedlinburg (p. 396), $4\frac{1}{2}$ M., railway in about $\frac{1}{4}$ hr.

Beyond Suderode the railway bends sharply to the N. — 10 M. Quedlinburg, see p. 396.

The RAILWAY FROM GERNRODE TO HASSELFELDER (fares, see p. 398) ascends the Ostergrund, passing the Heilige Teich, to ($3\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Sternhaus, $\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the W. of the hunting-lodge of that name (rfmts.). Thence, past the ruined Heinrichsburg on the left, we descend to —

6 M. Mägdesprung (970 ft.; Inn, R. & A. 2, D. 2 M.), with foundries, picturesquely placed at the junction of the Selke-Thal road with that from Ballenstedt to Stolberg. An obelisk on an eminence is to the memory of a Prince of Anhalt who founded the iron-works. Tasteful articles in cast iron may be purchased at the foundries. The place owes its name ('the maiden's leap') to the tradition that a giantess once sprang across the valley here, leaving her footprints, the Mägdetrappe, on the height behind the inn. An iron cross in the vicinity is to the memory of Duke Alexius (d. 1834). — By the Selke-Thal to the Falkenstein and Ballenstedt, see p. 398. — The pleasant footpath to (3 M.) Alexisbad mostly follows the right bank of the Selke.

$9\frac{1}{2}$ M. Alexisbad (1035 ft.; Curhaus Alexisbad; Goldene Rose, R. from $1\frac{1}{2}$ M.; Försterling, R. 2 M.; Hôtel-Garni Haase; Hôtel-

Pension sur Klostermühle, pens. 4-6 M.; lodgings 10-30 M. per week; visitors' tax 3-15 M., a summer-resort with chalybeate baths, surrounded with pleasure-grounds.

The direct road from Alexisbad to (12 M.) Stolberg (p. 405) is by Strassberg and the Josefshöhe (p. 405). Or the railway may be taken to (2 M.) Harzgerode (Bär; Rose), a small town with an old Schloss, on the hill, 2 M. to the E. of Alexisbad; and the diligence thence to Stolberg. Walkers leave the highroad at the turnpike at the Auerberg, and then cross the Josefshöhe.

The path to the ($1\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Victorshöhe quits the road to the left at the mill, a few min. below the baths, and leads through wood to the ($1\frac{1}{4}$ hr.) Güntersberge and Gernrode road, which we follow for $\frac{1}{4}$ M. towards the right, and then quit by a path leading to the left to the ($\frac{1}{4}$ hr.)Victorshöhe* (1910 ft.), the summit of the Ramberg, near which are several huge blocks of granite called the Teufelsmühle. (Inn at the forester's house.) Extensive and picturesque prospect from the tower.

A stone post by the Teufelsmühle indicates the descent to the right to Friedrichsbrunnen, Alexisbad, Tanzplatz, Treseburg, and Thale; to the left to the Sternhaus (railway-station, p. 399), Mägdesprung, and Gernrode. The latter leads in 5 min. to the above-mentioned road from Güntersberge, which leads past the Stubenberg (p. 399) to ($4\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Gernrode (p. 398).

The train ascends the Selke-Thal. 11 M. Silberhütte; $13\frac{1}{2}$ M. Lindenberg (p. 405). — $16\frac{1}{2}$ M. Güntersberge (1345 ft.; Goldener Löwe; Bär), a pleasantly situated summer-resort (900 inhab.). — Beyond ($19\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Friedrichshöhe the train quits the valley and traverses a plateau. — $22\frac{1}{2}$ M. Stiege (1580 ft.; Burgstieg; Stadt Braunschweig), with 1500 inhab., and an old castle. — $25\frac{1}{2}$ M. Hasselfelde (1480 ft.; König von Schweden; Krone; Deutscher Kaiser; Rail. Restaurant*, with rooms), a town (2900 inhab.) belonging to Brunswick, and once a mining centre. To Treseburg, see p. 401. A pleasant route leads hence through the Bähre-Thal or viâ Karlshaus and Sophienhof to Ilfeld (p. 405). Diligence daily to ($13\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Nieder-Sachswerfen (p. 393); to Blankenburg, see p. 403.

c. Bode-Thal. Rosstrappe. Hexentanzplatz. Treseburg.

One Day. From Thale in the Bode-Thal ascend to the Teufelsbrücke, $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.; ascend the Rosstrappe 20 min.; inn, 10 min.; by the Herzogshöhe and Wilhelmsblick to Treseburg $1\frac{1}{4}$ -2 hrs.; by the Weisse Hirsch to the Hexentanzplatz $2\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.; back to the station $\frac{3}{4}$ hr. — Or from the station to the Tanzplatz 1 hr., Weisse Hirsch and Treseburg $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr. (Wilhelmsblick and back $\frac{3}{4}$ -1 hr.), through the Bode-Thal to the Jungfernbrücke 2 hrs.; then retrace steps for a few min. and ascend the Rosstrappe, $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.; to the station 40 minutes. — Guide unnecessary. — Comp. the Map, p. 395.

The rocky Valley of the Bode*, the finest point in the Harz Mts., presents a strikingly wild and picturesque scene, to which if possible more than a single day should be devoted.

At the entrance to the valley lies Bahnhof Thale (630 ft.), near which a number of modern villas have sprung up. To the right rise the precipitous rocks of the Rosstrappe (p. 402); to the left is the Hexentanzplatz (p. 402). The village of Thale is $\frac{3}{4}$ M. to the N.

Hotels. ZEHNPFUND, a large house opposite the station, R., L., & A. 2-4, B. 1, D. $2\frac{1}{2}$ M.; *RITTER BODO, R. from $1\frac{1}{2}$, D. 2 M. — WILDER JÄGER, FORKLE, moderate; WOLFSBURG, these in the village. — In the Bode-Thal: WINKLER; BODETHAL; PRINZESS BRUNHILDE; *WALDKATER, $\frac{1}{4}$ M. from the station; *HUBERTSBAD, a salt-bath with pension, on an island in the Bode, $\frac{1}{4}$ M. from the station, pension 4-5 M. a day for a long stay; ZUR KÖNIGSRUHE, $\frac{1}{2}$ M. above the Waldkater, unpretending, R. & L. 2 M. — Inns on the Rosstrappe and Hexentanzplatz, see p. 402.

Restaurants at the hotels; at the Actienbrauerei, $\frac{1}{4}$ M. from the station (good beer); Railway Restaurant.

Baths below the Blechhütte (25 pf.).

Diligence to Blankenburg, see p. 403. — Carriage 10 M. per day, 5 M. per half-day; with two horses 15 M. and $7\frac{1}{2}$ M.

FROM THALE TO TRESEBURG THROUGH THE BODE-THAL. A few paces to the right of the station of Thale lies the Blechhütte, a foundry on the right bank of the Bode. The road to the left leads past the Actienbrauerei (brewery) to the ($\frac{3}{4}$ M.) Waldkater Inn (695 ft.), which may also be reached by a pleasant path from the Hubertusbad on the left bank. A pleasant path (left bank) leads from the Waldkater to the Rosstrappe (p. 402).

From the Waldkater we follow the road through the picturesque Bode-Thal to the ($\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Jungfernbrücke, whence a shady path ascends on the right bank, viâ the Hirschgrund and the La Vières-Höhe, to the ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr.) Hexentanzplatz (the former steep path is now closed). On the left bank is the prettily-situated inn Zur Königsruhe, 6 min. beyond which we reach the Schurre, a steep stony slope over which a zigzag path ascends to the ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Rosstrappe. A few paces farther on in the valley is the Teufelsbrücke at the entrance to the Bodekessel*, a wild basin of granite rocks through which the stream is precipitated. The road then leads through beautiful woods to (2 hrs.) —

Treseburg (915 ft.; Weisser Hirsch & Wilhelmsblick*; Forelle*, R. 2, D. $2\frac{1}{2}$ M.; Deutsches Haus*, well spoken of; Wildstein*, unpretending), a village $7\frac{1}{2}$ M. from Thale, beautifully situated at the confluence of the Bode and the Lupbode, on a rocky eminence on which the castle of Treseburg formerly stood. A road between the inns leads to the ($1\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Wilhelmsblick (view of the Bode-Thal), and through a short tunnel to the highroad which leads to the N. to Blankenburg, and to the E. to the Rosstrappe. — An eminence opposite Treseburg, called the Weisse Hirsch*, commands a charming view of the village and environs. A footpath to it ascends to the left, a short way beyond the bridge.

A pretty footpath ascends the Bode-Thal on the left bank of the stream from Treseburg to (3 M.) Altenbrak (Weisses Ross*, Hirsch*, pens. 4 M., both unpretending; Hdt. Schönbürg), a mining-village with a small sulphureous spring. — Thence we may follow the right bank of the stream to (3 M.) Wendefurth (Curhaus, pens. 4 M.; Grasshoff), where we cross the Blankenburg and Hasselfelde road (p. 402). We next ($1\frac{1}{2}$ M.) cross the Rappbode and proceed to (3 M.) Neuwerk (inn). Hence to Rübeland (p. 401), $2\frac{1}{4}$ M.

FROM TRESEBURG TO BLANKENBURG, $7\frac{1}{2}$ M. The road diverges to the left, $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. from the tunnel above mentioned, from that to the Rosstrappe, and leads past Wienrode and Kattenstedt (inn). To the right, near Blankenburg, is the Taufelsmauer (p. 408). — Pedestrians may turn to the left at the first bend in the road beyond the tunnel and proceed through the wood by the ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr.) forester's house of Todtenrode (rimts.) to (1 hr.) Wienrode.

FROM TRESEBURG TO HASSELFELDE, $7\frac{1}{2}$ M. The footpath (white marks; guide-posts) leads through beautiful beech-woods. In about 1 hr. we reach a stone finger-post, indicating the way to Stiege (p. 400) on the left and Hasselfelde (p. 400) on the right.

FROM THALE TO THE ROSSTRAPPE. The above route from Thale to the Rosstrappe by the Bode-Thal and the Schurre may be taken, or the direct path (1 hr.) may be preferred. In the latter case we pass between the buildings of the Blechkütte (p. 401) to the bridge across the Bode, beyond which we turn to the right, and then, near a second bridge (5 min.), ascend to the ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Gasthaus sur Rosstrappe (R., L., & A. $2\frac{1}{4}$ M.), near which are the Wissenburg (view tower) and the Bülowshöhe.

The Rosstrappe (1315 ft.), 10 min. from the inn, is a granite rock projecting like a bastion into the valley of the Bode, and rising precipitously to a height of 650 ft. above the stream. It commands an imposing view of the wild Bode-Thal and the distant plain as far as Quedlinburg. The name ('horse's hoof-print') is derived from an impression in the rock resembling a gigantic hoof, left there by the horse of a princess, who, when pursued by a giant, is said to have leaped across the valley. To the right is the Schurre (p. 401).

Proceeding to the N.W. of the Rosstrappe Inn, we may descend in $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. to the highroad from Thale, which leads by the ($\frac{3}{4}$ M.) Herzogshöhe (view) and the ($2\frac{1}{4}$ M.) Wilhelmsblick (p. 401) to ($2\frac{1}{4}$ M.) Treseburg (p. 401).

FROM THALE TO THE HEXENTANZPLATZ (1 hr.). We cross the Bode-Thal road near the brewery (p. 401), and follow a path skirting the wood, and leading in a few minutes to the small bridge over the Steinbach. The path ascending in windings to the Hexentanzplatz diverges to the right (guide-post) before the bridge is reached. The carriage-road diverges at the top of the hill from the highroad ascending the Steinbach-Thal to Friedrichsbrunn.

The Hexentanzplatz (1525 ft.; Hotel, R. $1\frac{1}{2}$, pens. 5-6 M.) is a rocky plateau opposite the Rosstrappe, and 210 ft. higher, commanding a similar, and perhaps still more striking view. To the left in the distance rises the Brocken. In the vicinity are several other fine points of view.

FROM THE HEXENTANZPLATZ TO TRESEBURG by the Weisse Hirsch. We follow the path along the slope to the right, pass through a gate, and turning to the right reach the (10 min.) La Vièrre-Höhe, a point of view opposite the Schurre (p. 401). We then turn slightly to the left, and reach the highroad leading to Treseburg. The latter soon passes ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr. from the Tanzplatz) a monument to the forester Pfeil, a recumbent stag surrounded by six fine beeches. About $\frac{3}{4}$ M. farther on, the road bends to the left and a forest-path leads to the right. In the middle is the path to the (5 min.) Weisse Hirsch (p. 401), whence we reach Treseburg in 10 minutes.

FROM THALE TO SUDERODE (p. 399) AND GERNRODE (p. 398), 6 M., a pleasant road, passing (4 M.) Stecklenberg, etc. (comp. pp. 398, 399). — The circuit by the Georgshöhe, 1 hr. from Thale, and thence to (1¼ hr.) Stecklenberg is recommended. At the junction of the road from the station with that from the village of Thale a direction-post indicates the forest-path to the Georgshöhe*, the tower on which commands a beautiful survey of the plain. A footpath descends hence through the wood into the valley. After 20 min. we reach a carriage-road; we then pass (¼ M.) a cross-way with a finger-post near a plaster-mill, and reach Stecklenberg ¾ M. farther on. — From the Hexentanzplatz to the Georgshöhe 1 hr.: we follow the road descending from the inn to the S.E. to the highroad, cross the latter, and ascend a road to the left.

d. Blankenburg. Rübeland. Elbingerode. Tanne.

Blankenburg, the Regenstein, and the Ziegenkopf 4-5 hrs., thence to Rübeland 1¼ hr., Baumannshöhle 1½ hr.; from Rübeland to Elbingerode 1 hr. — Ascent of the Brocken from Elbingerode, see p. 412.

Blankenburg. — Hotels. Weisser Adler*, R., L., & A. 2-5, D. 2-2½ M., with garden; Krone, Stadt Braunschweig, both well spoken of, R. from 1½, D. 1½-2, pens. 4½-6 M.; Kaiser Wilhelm, at the station, similar charges; Forsthaus, unpretending; Fürstenhof*; Silberborn*, pens. 4-5 M. — Inn on the Ziegenkopf, see below.

Restaurants. Badegarten*; Richard; Café Curhaus; Damköhler; Rathway Restaurant; Fürstenhof*, see above.

Diligence daily to (10½ M.) Hasselfelde (p. 400) and to (7½ M.) Thale (p. 400).

Railway to Halberstadt, see p. 385; to Tanne, see p. 404.

Blankenburg (750 ft.), a town with 10,000 inhab., a favourite summer-resort, is picturesquely situated on the slope of the hills and commanded by the lofty ducal Schloss. The approach to the latter passes the handsome old Rathhaus, into which five balls are built to commemorate the bombardment by Wallenstein during the Thirty Years' War. The Schloss (1095 ft.) contains reminiscences of the Empress Maria Theresa, pictures, and various other objects of interest (adm. 50 pf.; to the deer-park 50 pf.). In the Tränke-Str. is a small Museum of Antiquities. On the Schnappenberg stands a monument to those who fell in 1870-71.

To the N. of Blankenburg (¾ hr.) rises the Regenstein*, or Reinstein, a precipitous sandstone cliff, 240 ft. above the plain, on the E. side of which a castle was erected by Emp. Henry the Fowler in 919, and afterwards considerably strengthened. The works were dismantled by Frederick the Great. Little of it now remains except the vaults and embrasures hewn in the rocks. Entrance by the Raußgrafen-Tunnel, on the E. side. Admirable view, especially towards Blankenburg (tavern at the top). — If time permit, the traveller may return by (¾ hr.) Heimbürg (Deutsches Haus), a village with a castle (view), and the monastery of Michaelstein (Zur Waldmühle), 2 M. to the N. of Blankenburg.

The Ziegenkopf* (1410 ft.; Inn, pens. 4½ M.), another good point of view, is reached by ascending the Rübeland road for 20 min., thence by a footpath (10 min.) to the right. — To Hüttenrode (p. 404) 40 min. more.

About ½ hr. to the S. of Blankenburg, on the road to Treseburg, are the huge sandstone masses of the Tenfelmauer, at the N. base of which is the Hotel Heidelberg* (R., L., & A. 2½, B. ¾ M.). View from the Gross-eater (inn at its foot).

FROM BLANKENBURG TO THE ROESTRAPPE. The road to Treseburg is followed as far as (2 M.) Wienrode (two inns), a little beyond which an enclosure is crossed; at a finger-post the wood is entered to the left, and in $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr. the Rosstrappe (p. 402) is reached. — To Wernigerode, viâ Michaelstein (see below) and the forester's house of Benzigerode, $3\frac{1}{4}$ hrs.

RAILWAY FROM BLANKENBURG TO TANNE, $19\frac{1}{2}$ M., in $2\frac{1}{4}$ – $2\frac{1}{2}$ hrs. (fares 3 M 80, 2 M 80, 1 M 90 pf.). The engineering difficulties have been overcome by a combination of the ordinary locomotive with the rack-and-pinion (toothed wheel) system. The steepest gradients are, respectively, 1:40 and 1:16 $\frac{1}{2}$. The first stations are ($3\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Bast-Michaelstein and ($5\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Braunersumpf, between which a long tunnel ($\frac{1}{4}$ M.) under the Ziegenkopf is traversed. Then we ascend gradually to (7 M.) Hüttenrode (1575 ft.). The train descends to the picturesque wooded and rocky valley of the Bode, through which it runs to —

$8\frac{1}{2}$ M. Rübeland (1290 ft.; Hermannshöhle; Goldner Löwe, well spoken of, R. 2 M; Grüne Tanne, R. 2 M; Rail. Restaurant), a Brunswick village with foundries, lying in the valley of the Bode. On the left bank of the stream, 150 ft. above it, is the Baumannshöhle, a stalactite cavern which has been known for centuries (visit 1 hr.). Opposite to it, on the right bank, is the Hermannshöhle, opened in 1890, remarkable for the number and variety of the fossil animal remains discovered in it (electric light; open on Sun., 9–1 and 2–6; on week-days on application). Tickets (one cave 1 M, both $1\frac{1}{2}$ M) are obtained in the Höhlen-Museum, with the remains found in the caves. Guide at the entrance; gratuity forbidden. A third cavern, the Bielshöhle, is now inaccessible. On a precipitous rock opposite the Tanne Inn rises the ruin of Birkenfeld. To Treseburg, see p. 401.

At Rübeland the train quits the valley of the Bode and ascends a mill-valley with curious rock-formations to ($10\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Elbingerode (1535 ft.; Waldhof, R. & L. $1\frac{1}{2}$ –2, D. $1\frac{1}{2}$ –2, pens. $4\frac{1}{2}$ – $5\frac{1}{2}$ M; Goldner Adler; Blauer Engel), an iron-mining town with 2900 inhabitants. Modern Gothic church. Omnibus to the Brocken, see p. 412; diligence twice daily to (7 M.) Wernigerode (p. 410). — The railway reaches its highest point in the barren plain of Elbingerode.

15 M. Rothehütte-Königshof (1410 ft.; Railway Restaurant), near the junction of the Warme and the Kalte Bode, and the castle of Königshof, inhabited by the Saxon and Salic emperors. Ascent of the Brocken, see p. 412.

$19\frac{1}{2}$ M. Tanne (Harzbahn; Tanne) is the terminus of the railway. Diligences run hence to (10 M.) Braunlage (p. 414), to (3 M.) Benneckenstein (p. 405), and to ($10\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Ellrich (p. 393).

e. Stolberg. Josephshöhe. Neustadt unterm Hohnstein. Ilfeld.

From Rottleberode to Stolberg, $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr., viâ Eichenforst to Neustadt, $4\frac{1}{2}$ hrs., Ilfeld, $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr., Nieder-Sachswerfen (Nordhausen), 1 hr.

From Berga-Kelbra (p. 390) to Rottleberode, 6 M., railway in 23 min., viâ Uftrungen. From Rottleberode (Post; Rail. Restaurant) to Stolberg, 4 M. (diligence twice daily in $\frac{3}{4}$ hr.; walking preferable, $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) up the picturesque Stolberger-Thal, which is watered by the Tyra.

Stolberg (945 ft.; Kansler*; Eberhardt*; Schützenhaus, pens. 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ -4 M.), a place with many quaint old houses, charmingly situated at the convergence of four small valleys, and frequently visited as summer-quarters. On an eminence (1230 ft.) rises the Château of Prince Stolberg, the proprietor of the district, with a valuable library (50,000 vols.) and armoury, surrounded with pleasure-grounds. Pleasing view from the Thiergarten. At the edge of the wood is (1 $\frac{1}{4}$ hr.) Luther's Beech* (view), under which the reformer is said to have sat in 1525.

Pleasant excursions to the E. to the Wolfgangshöhe; to the S. to the Wendelsberg in the Stolberger-Thal; and to (1 $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) the Birkenkopf (1925 ft.; view), whence Stiege may be reached in 2 hrs. (p. 400).

FROM STOLBERG TO HANZGERODE AND ALEXISBAD, 18 $\frac{1}{2}$ M., road, see p. 400. Pedestrians should quit the road, 2 M. from Stolberg, by a path leading to the right to the (1 $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) summit of the Auerberg, called the Josephshöhe* (1975 ft.; inn). — Thence by Strassberg and the Lindenberg (p. 400), and down the Selke-Thal, to (3 hrs.) Alexisbad (p. 399).

From Stolberg the direct road to Neustadt unterm Hohnstein leads viâ Hatnsfeld in 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.; but the longer route (3 $\frac{1}{2}$ -4 hrs.) viâ the (1 hr.) shooting-lodge of Eichenforst, (1 $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Rodishain, and (1 $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) the ruin of Ebersburg, is preferable.

Neustadt unterm Hohnstein (860 ft.; Hohnstein; Rathhaus; Amtsschenke, well spoken of) has a hydropathic establishment, and the fine ruins of the castle of Hohnstein (2040 ft.), the seat of the counts of that name, who became extinct in 1693. — A road (3 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.) viâ Osterode, and a footpath (white marks; 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ hr.) skirting the Poppenberg (1955 ft.; View*) from the ruin of Hohnstein, lead hence to — Ilfeld (835 ft.; Tanne; Krone*; Schulze), a village at the entrance to the romantic Bähre-Thal. The Præmonstratensian abbey founded here in 1196 was converted in 1546 into a school.

Pleasant excursions to the N.E. to (1 $\frac{1}{4}$ hr.) Herzberg; to the E. to (1 hr.) Kaulberg, and thence viâ the Bielsteine to the (1 $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Falkenstein and (1 $\frac{1}{4}$ hr.) the Poppenberg (see above); to the N. to the (1 $\frac{1}{4}$ hr.) Netzkater and (1 hr.) Rabenstein; to the W. to the (1 $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Harsburg and the forester's house of Braunsteinhaus (inn). — From Ilfeld diligence five times daily to (3 M.) Nieder-Sachswerfen (p. 399); once daily to (8 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Benneckenstein (Rathskeller; Kronprinz), with 3200 inhab., iron-mines, and porcelain factories, and to (11 M.) Hasselfelde (p. 400). — Viâ Benneckenstein to (11 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Tanne, see p. 404.

II. The Western Harz.

f. Goslar. Oker-Thal.

Spend half-a-day at Goslar (including a visit to the Bammelsberg Mine), take the train to Oker, walk through the valley to (2 hrs.) Romkerhalle, and by the Ahrendberger Klippen to (4 hrs.) Harsburg.

Goslar. — Hotels. HÔTEL HANNOVER*, at the station, R., L., & A. 2-3, pens. 5-7 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.; KAISERWORTH*, in the market (see p. 406), R., L., & A. 2-3, D. 2 $\frac{1}{4}$ M.; PAUL's*, near the station, with extensive view, R. & L. 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ -2 $\frac{1}{2}$ M., D. 2 M.; RÖMISCHER KAISER, in the market, well spoken of; HANNIBAL's, with restaurant, R., L., & A. 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ -2 $\frac{1}{2}$ M. — KRONPRINZ ERNST AUGUST*, in the market, unpretending; ALTE DEUTSCHES GILDEHAUS; GERMANIA, in the Breite-Str. — Railways, see pp. 396, 413.

Goslar (845 ft.), an ancient town with 14,900 inhab., lies on the Gose, on the N. side of the Harz, at the foot of the metalliferous Rammelsberg (p. 407). The numerous towers, the partly-preserved ramparts, and the quaint old houses with wood-carving impart an air of importance to the place.

Goslar was founded at the beginning of the 10th cent. and soon acquired importance in consequence of the discovery of valuable silver-mines in the vicinity (p. 407). It became a favourite residence of the Saxon and Salic emperors, one of whose most extensive palaces was situated here. The attachment of the citizens to Henry IV., who was born at Goslar in 1060, involved the town in the misfortunes of that monarch. In 1204 the town, which adhered steadfastly to the Hohenstaufen, was taken and destroyed by Otho IV., the rival of Philip. After a slow recovery from this disaster, it became a prosperous member of the Hanseatic League (ca. 1500). In 1802 it lost its independence for the first time and was annexed to Prussia. From 1816 to 1866 it belonged to Hanover.

Near the station, to the left, is the handsome Romanesque church of the monastery of Neuwerk, of the close of the 12th cent.; interesting choir; picture of the 12th cent. in the apse (open 11-2 and, except Sun., 5-6). Opposite to it rises the Paulsturm, a remnant of the old fortifications. The street between these leads to the antiquated Market*, with the Rathhaus and Kaiserworth, and adorned with a large fountain-basin in metal, said to date from the 12th century.

The Rathhaus, a simple Gothic edifice of the 15th cent., with an arcade beneath (entrance by the steps, round the corner to the left; 1-2 pers., each 50 pf., each addit. pers. 25 pf.; closed 1-3), contains a hall adorned by a native painter named Wohlgemuth (ca. 1500). Interesting old books of the Gospels, charters, instruments of torture, and other curiosities are also shown. A small chapel adjacent contains a richly-decorated tankard of 1407, a Gothic goblet of 1519, and other articles in silver. Near the staircase is the 'Beisekatze', a kind of cage in which shrews used to be incarcerated. Fine chandeliers.

The Kaiserworth, formerly a guild-house, now an inn, with an arcade below, dates from 1494, and is adorned with statues of eight German emperors. Passing between the Rathhaus and the Kaiserworth, we reach the Marktkirche, a late-Romanesque church (rebuilt after a fire in 1844), with Gothic choir and aisle subsequently added. The Brusttuch, opposite the W. portal of the church, a curious old house of 1636, restored in 1870, is adorned with grotesque wood carvings (restaurant). Opposite is the Bakers' Guildhouse, dating from 1557 and now a hotel. At Frankenberger-Str. 32 are the antiquarian collections of Herr Fenkner (open daily, 9-6; 1 M). At the W. end of the same street is the Frankenberg Church, built in 1108 and restored in 1880. The S. portal is adorned with sculptures of the 13th cent., and the paintings in the interior (unfortunately restored) date from early in the same century.

From the Marktkirche a street leads to the left (S.) to the Kaiserbeet, a large open space where some venerable ruins still bear testimony to the ancient grandeur of Goslar.

The so-called Domkapelle* was once the vestibule of the N. portal of a celebrated cathedral of St. Simon and St. Jude, which was founded by Henry III. in 1039, and taken down in 1820.

Over the PORTAL are figures of Conrad II., Henry III., and SS. Matthew, Simon, and Jude. The richly-sculptured column by the portal, executed, according to the inscription, by Hartmann, is worthy of particular notice. The grimacing head on the capital is in a style frequently seen in Romanesque buildings.

In the INTERIOR are several interesting relics of the decorations of the ancient cathedral, sculptures, tombstones, and various curiosities, among which may be mentioned the 'Krodo Altar', an oblong reliquary of the 11th or 12th cent., made of plates of brass, with traces of filigree ornamentation and round holes for the insertion of precious stones. The four stooping figures that support it are older (ca. 1000?) and originally bore a font. The chapel is open the whole day in summer, except 1-2. Fee for 1-2 pers. 50, 3-4 pers. 75 pf.

In a square to the right rises the *KAISERHAUS, the oldest secular edifice in Germany, founded by Henry II. and extended by Henry III. (1039-56). The palace was burned down in 1289 and afterwards rebuilt, but disfigured by alterations and additions. The exterior was judiciously restored in 1878 (adm. 9-1 and 2 till dusk; castellan in the N. wing; fee).

The Kaiserhaus consists of the Saalbau and the chapel of St. Ulrich, connected by a wing, and approached by a broad flight of steps. The upper floor of the Saalbau is occupied by the imperial hall (56 yds. long, 17 yds. wide, 36 ft. high), which looks towards the Platz, with seven massive round-arched windows. It is adorned with frescoes by Wislizenus, representing various characteristic scenes in the evolution of the German imperial system. The large central picture is an allegorical representation of the foundation of the new German Empire. Above the windows is the story of the Sleeping Beauty. Opposite the central window is the ancient imperial throne, which stood in the cathedral till 1820 and then passed into the possession of Prince Charles of Prussia. The Chapel of St. Ulrich, a double chapel in the form of a Greek cross, dating from the close of the 11th cent., was destined for the domestic worship of the imperial court; in the interior is the painted tomb of Henry III., containing his heart (brought hither from Hanover in 1884).

In front of the Kaiserhaus are equestrian statues of Emp. Frederick Barbarossa and Emp. William I.

From the Domkapelle we proceed to the S.E. through the Cur-Park to the Zwinger, a round tower, commanding a fine survey of the town. On the ramparts, farther to the E., is the old Breitenhor, whence we may return to the station by the Georgenberg and the ruins of a Monastic Church, which was destroyed in 1527 and excavated in 1884.

The Farbensumpfe, ponds fed by streams from the Rammelsberg, yield the ochre dye of this neighbourhood. A grotto and chapel hewn in the Klus, an isolated sandstone rock in the vicinity, are said to have been founded by Agnes (d. 1077), wife of Emp. Henry III. On the Petersberg (1/4 hr.) are a few relics of the Abbey of St. Peter (view of the town).

The Rammelsberg (2040 ft. above the sea-level), which rises above the town, 1 1/2 M. to the S., has for eight centuries yielded gold (5-6 lbs. per annum only), silver (25 cwt. per annum), copper, lead, zinc, sulphur, vitriol, and alum, a variety of minerals seldom found within such narrow limits. The mountain is honey-combed with shafts and galleries in every direction. The mines, which may be explored even by ladies, are shown daily from 8 to 8, except Sat. afternoon and Sun. (adm. $1\frac{1}{2}$, 2 or more pers. 1 \mathcal{M} each). The expedition takes $2\frac{1}{2}$ -3 hrs. From 12 to 1 the miners are at rest.

To the N.W. of Goslar rises the Steinberg (1575 ft.; $\frac{1}{2}$ Inn), easily ascended in $\frac{3}{4}$ -1 hr. from the Viti-Thor. — A picturesque path leads through the Gose-Thal to the (2 hrs.) Auerhahn (inn), $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. to the W. of the Schalke (2505 ft.; view). — About $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the W. of the Auerhahn lies Rahnenklöze (Deutsches Haus; Curhaus Tanne*), a summer-resort, whence we may proceed viâ ($\frac{1}{4}$ hr.) Beckenwiese (hotel) to ($1\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Wildemann (p. 413).

On the road to Harzburg, 3 M. to the E. of Goslar, is the village and railway-station of Oker (680 ft.; Lüer's Inn), with important foundries. It lies at the entrance to the wild Oker-Thal*, the road ascending which affords picturesque views of the precipitous cliffs. The road crosses the Oker by the ($3\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Romkerbrücke (Hôtel Romkerhalle, R., L., & A. from 2, pens. from $4\frac{1}{2}$ \mathcal{M} , good cuisine; omnibus from Oker), where there is an artificial waterfall. A pleasant path leads hence to the N.E. viâ ($4\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Kästenklippe and Elfenstein (p. 409) to ($10\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Harzburg. The highroad goes on to (6 M.) Clausthal (p. 413). A finger-post to the left, 200 yds. from the inn, indicates the route across a bridge to the ($\frac{3}{4}$ hr.) Ahrendberger Klippen (p. 409). Beyond Ober-Schulenberg, about 3 M. from the Romkerhalle, a forest-path, shorter than the road, diverges on the left to Clausthal (p. 413).

g. Harzburg. Ilsenburg. Wernigerode.

RAILWAY from Harzburg to (20 M.) Heudeber-Dammstedt (p. 393), viâ Ilsenburg and Wernigerode, in $1\frac{1}{4}$ - $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr. (fares 2 \mathcal{M} 50, 1 \mathcal{M} 90, 1 \mathcal{M} 80 pf.; to Ilsenburg, in $\frac{1}{2}$ hr., 1 \mathcal{M} 70, 50 pf.; thence to Wernigerode, in 20-25 min., 70, 60, 40 pf.); comp. pp. 410, 411. — The following is a pleasant WALK of two days (or, including the Brocken, three days). Harzburg and environs 5-6 hrs.; by the Rabenklippen to Ilsenburg $3\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.; Ilsenstein and waterfalls $2\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.; by the Plessenburg and through the Steinerne Renne to Wernigerode 3 hrs.; environs of Wernigerode 3-4 hrs.

Harzburg. — Hotels. In the upper part of Harzburg, near the pleasure grounds and the mountains: HARZBURGER HOF*, commanding a view in every direction, R. from $2\frac{1}{2}$ and 4, B. 1, D. 3 \mathcal{M} , other meals paid to the waiter; BELVEDERE*, D. $2\frac{1}{2}$, pens. 6-8 \mathcal{M} ; LUDWIGSLUST; WULFERT's*, pens. 6-7 \mathcal{M} ; BAD JULIUSHALL*, with saline spring; RADAU; EGELING's HOTEL & PENSION*, pens. from 5 \mathcal{M} ; BELLEVUE; BOCKMANN. — In the village: LÖHE's, D. 3, pens. 6-9 \mathcal{M} ; SCHMELZER's; BURGKELLER; VICTORIA; STADT LONDON; LINDE; ENGLISCHER HOF. — Near the station: STADT BRAUNSCHWEIG; RAILWAY HOTEL; LINDENHOF; STADT HAMBURG; DEUTSCHES HAUS, at Bündheim (see p. 409). — On the Burgberg: HOTEL BURGBERG (see p. 409; flag hoisted by day and a lantern shown at night when rooms still to be had). — Apartments also to be obtained in numerous villas (pensions), many elegantly fitted up, with prices to correspond: Curhaus; Villa Löhr; Villa Feise; Rautmann; Ulrich; Reusche, etc.

Carriages (drivers show tariff on demand). From the station to Bad Juliusshall, the Eichen, or Curhaus, 1-2 pers. 1 \mathcal{M} , 3-5 pers. 2 \mathcal{M} ; to the Ludwigslust or the Harzburger Hof, 1 \mathcal{M} 25 or 2 \mathcal{M} 50 pf. — To the Burgberg, with two horses, 6 \mathcal{M} ; Radau Fall $4\frac{1}{4}$; Ilsenburg 10 $\frac{1}{4}$; Romkerhalle and back, with $1\frac{1}{2}$ hr.'s stay, with one horse, 9 \mathcal{M} , two horses, 12 $\frac{3}{4}$ \mathcal{M} ; Wernigerode $11\frac{1}{2}$ or 17 $\frac{1}{4}$ \mathcal{M} ; Brocken 18 $\frac{1}{2}$ or 27 \mathcal{M} , there and back in one day 22 $\frac{1}{2}$ or 33 \mathcal{M} , returning on following morning 81 $\frac{1}{2}$ or 40 $\frac{1}{2}$ \mathcal{M} . In each case driver's fee is included. — Horses and Mules $4\frac{1}{2}$ \mathcal{M} per day, attendant's fee $2\frac{1}{4}$ \mathcal{M} ; to the Brocken 5 \mathcal{M} , with $2\frac{1}{2}$ \mathcal{M} to the driver and the animal's food.

Porters 4 M per day, with an allowance of 1½ M for food.

Visitors' Tax for a stay of a week or more 1 pers. 6, 2-4 pers. 10 M.

Harzburg (770 ft.), at the entrance to the Radau-Thal, consists of the villages of Neustadt, Bündheim (with a stud-farm), and Schle-wecke, connected by numerous villas and gardens, and is a favourite summer-resort, with pleasant promenades which extend far into the Radau-Thal and up the adjoining heights. Pop. 6000.

At the foot of the hill is the Curhaus (see p. 408). A bridge crosses to the pleasant Eichen (oaks) promenades, which contain a café and shopkeepers' stalls (music frequently). The Krodo-Quelle is used for drinking.

The finest point in the environs is the Burgberg* (1555 ft.; Hotel, see p. 408), crowned with the scanty ruins of the Harzburg, a castle of Emp. Henry IV., which commands an admirable prospect. The 'Canossa Monument', erected in 1877, consisting of a granite obelisk with a bronze medallion of Prince Bismarck by Engelhard, refers to the humiliation of Emp. Henry IV. before Pope Gregory VI. at Canossa in 1077, and to the words used by the German Chancellor in the Reichstag in 1872 ('we won't go to Canossa!').

The road leads from the Curhaus up the valley to the S. to the (1½ M.) Radau Fall (Restaurant*), a fine artificial cascade, whence we may return by a path to the right a little below the fall, crossing the Schmalenberg (views from the Bärenstein and Wilhelmsblick).

Beautiful walks on the W. side of the valley (with finger-posts and distinguishing letters): past the Hôtel Ludwigslust (path marked 'Ea') to the (½ hr.) Silberborn and thence (route marked 'E') via the (20 min.) Elfenstein (1280 ft.) and (20 min. more) the refuge hut at the 'Stiefmutter' (to route 'K') the Kästenklippe, in the Oker-Thal, ¾ hr. farther on. On the E. side, beyond the Radau Fall: to the (½ hr.) Grotto, the (1 hr.) Molkenhaus (1625 ft.), a chalet and tavern, etc.

From Harzburg to the Oker-Thal by the Ahrensberger Klippen, 4-4½ hrs. — The path ascends the Breitenberg, to the left of the Hôtel Ludwigslust, and is indicated by numerous way-posts. Refreshments at the (2½ hrs.) Ahrensberger Forsthaus. The route by the Kästenklippe, mentioned above, is, however, preferable.

FROM HARZBURG TO ILSENBURG by the Rabenklippen, 3-3½ hrs. (numerous guide-posts). A few minutes before the top of the Burgberg is reached, at a stone finger-post, the broad 'Kaiserweg' diverges from the road to the E. (The name is derived from a tradition that Emp. Henry IV. fled in this direction when his castle was captured by the Saxons.) This road leads to the (10 min.) Säperstelle, a spot with a bench, where direction posts indicate the way in a straight direction to the Kailendse, to the right to the Molkenhaus (to the Brocken, see p. 411) and the (¾ hr.) Rabenklippen*, where a fine View* of the Ecker-Thal and the Brocken is enjoyed (restaurant). We then descend towards the N.E. to the (20 min.) Ecker-Thal, through which a road leads to (1½ M.) Eckerkrug ('Inn'). Thence by a forest-path to the right (S.E.) to (1½ M.) Ilseburg.

The new RAILWAY runs from Harzburg through the Schimmerwald and along the base of the mountains. Beyond (5½ M.) Eckerthal it crosses the Ecker. 6¼ M. Stapelburg.

8½ M. Ilseburg (780 ft.; Rothe Forellen*, with garden, pens. 6 M.; Grothey zur Tanne*, pens. 5-6 M.; Deutsches Haus, very fair; Bösche; Lindenhof; Ilsethal, at the beginning of the valley, very fair; Stadt Stolberg; omn. to the Brocken, see p. 412), is a busy village of 4100 inhab. at the mouth of the Ilse-Thal, with Iron Works of Prince Stolberg-Wernigerode, where artistic and other objects in cast iron are manufactured (no admission; depot in the village). It is commanded by the handsome Romanesque Schloss of the prince, on an eminence to the S.E., originally founded in 998 as a Benedictine abbey (collection of antiquities shown daily, 2-4; garden, 2-6). The church, consecrated in 1087, was rebuilt in 1120-29.

The Ilse-Thal*, one of the finest valleys in the Harz, presents a succession of remarkably picturesque rock and forest scenes, enlivened by a series of miniature cascades, and rendered still more interesting by the numerous romantic legends attaching to it. The valley is traversed by a carriage-road, and also by a footpath (see below). The former leads to the (1½ M.) foot of the Ilsestein, a precipitous buttress of granite, rising to a height of 500 ft. above the valley. From the Princess Ilse tavern at the foot several paths lead to the (½ hr.) summit, where an iron cross has been erected to some of the fallen warriors of 1813-15 (fine view). The best survey of the Ilsestein itself is obtained from the benches, a few hundred paces above the tavern. The road, which continues to accompany the stream and its pretty Waterfalls for upwards of 3 M., is recommended to the lover of the picturesque, even if the ascent of the Brocken (p. 412) is not contemplated.

A footpath direct from Ilseburg to (¾ hr.) the top of the Ilsestein diverges from the road to the left, a few paces beyond the village, and crosses a bridge (finger-post).

In descending from the Ilsestein a footpath to the right, marked P and Pl., and also a road diverging to the left from the road in the Ilse-Thal, lead to the (¾ hr.) Plessenburg, a forester's house and a favourite point for picnics. The Karlsteppen, ¼ M. farther up, command a fine view. Road from the Plessenburg, marked St. R., to the (1½ M.) Wernigerode road, which ascends to the right to (1½ M.) the Steinerne Renne. — Another road from the Plessenburg to Wernigerode leads by Altenode.

Between Ilseburg and Wernigerode the railway (p. 408) passes (11 M.) Drübeck, with its Romanesque church (11-12th cent.).

14½ M. Wernigerode. — Hotels. WEISSER HIRSCH*, in the market, DEUTSCHES HAUS*, KNAUF*, in the Burg-Strasse; charges at these R. L., & A. 1½-2½, B. ¾-1, D. 2, pens. from 5 M.; GOLDNER HIRSCH, Nöschendorf; GOTHISCHES HAUS*, in the market; PREUSSISCHER HOF, near the Burghor; HOHENZOLLERN. — LINDENBERG*, on the Lindenberg, near the town, with view. — In the Mühlen-Thal: MÜHLENTAL; KÜSTER'S KAMP, both also pensions. — Railway Restaurant, good table d'hôte 12-2, 1½ M. — Beer: Ahrendts, Breite-Str.; Rathskeller; Gesellschaftshaus, near the Western-Thor, with rooms to let.

Carriage to the Steinerne Renne 7½. Rübeland 10, Regenstein 9, Brocken 18 M. (there and back); fee 1-2 M. — Omnibus daily in summer to the Brocken, viâ Schierke, in 4½ hrs. (fare 4 M., there and back 7 M.; luggage 1 M.). — Diligence to Elbingerode, see p. 404.

Wernigerode (770 ft.), with a loftily-situated Schloss and a park of the Prince of Stolberg-Wernigerode, lies picturesquely on the slopes of the Harz Mts., at the confluence of the Zilligerbach and the Holzemme. Pop. 10,500. The Rathhaus, of the 14th cent., and many of the houses are picturesque old Gothic structures. The Gymnasium is a modern Gothic structure. The town possesses two war monuments. — The Lustgarten (containing the Library, with 95,000 vols. and 1000 MSS., and the Palm-House), the Thiergarten or park, the Lindenbergl (see p. 410), to the S. of the town, the Armenleutberg, the Harburg (restaurant), and the Scharfenstein afford beautiful walks.

The most attractive excursion from Wernigerode is to the Steinerne Renne. The road ascends the valley of the Holzemme, by Friedrichsthal, to (1½ M. from the station) Hasserode (Hohnstein*; Steinerne Renne, Steinberg, well spoken of), a village much visited as a summer-resort. — At the entrance to the village a finger-post indicates the road to the left to Schierke, Hohnstein, and Hohne, and to the right to the Steinerne Renne. Pedestrians may quit the road a little farther on by a path to the left, past the inn Zur Steinernen Renne. The road now ascends the beautiful, pine-clad valley of the Holzemme, or Steinerne Renne*, which gradually becomes more imposing, especially when the brook is high. At the farthest bridge, 4½ M. from Hasserode and near the waterfalls, there is a restaurant. A little beyond it a broad path to the left leads to Hohne (see below), and one to the right to the Plessenburg in 1 hr. (see p. 410). Fine view from the Renneklippen, near the restaurant. From the restaurant to the Brocken, see p. 412.

From the Steinerne Renne Restaurant we may, with a guide, ascend the (¾ hr.) Hohenstein (view), and return by the road through the Dumkühlen-Thal to Wernigerode; or we may proceed viâ the forester's house of Hohne (inn, with pension) to the Schierke road or the path through the Jacobsbruch to the Brocken. An ascent of the Hohneklippen (2975 ft.; Panorama*) may be combined with the latter route.

To ELBINGERODE, 7 M. from Wernigerode, diligence once daily, through the suburb of Nöschenrode and up the valley of the Zilligerbach. About 2¼ M. from Wernigerode is a forester's house, where the road diverges on the left to the Hartenberg (restaurant), whence a foot-path leads to Rübeland (p. 404). A finger-post, 1½ M. farther on, indicates a path to the right to the Büchenberg, with curious cave-formations (inn). Thence to Elbingerode 1½ hr. (comp. p. 404).

Beyond Wernigerode the railway (p. 408) goes on to (17 M.) Minsleben and (20 M.) Heudeber-Dannstedt (p. 395).

h. The Brocken.

The Routes to the top of the Brocken are all indicated by white capital letters painted on the trees and rocks, B standing for Brocken and the other letters for the places at the lower end of the route (S for Schierke, I for Ilsenburg, and so on).

ASCENT OF THE BROCKEN FROM HANZBURG (p. 408), about 4 hrs. — To the Molkenhaus (1 hr.), see p. 408. Ascend thence by the straight path towards the S.; then descend, past the (10 min.) Murklippe, a projecting rock (on the left) commanding a good view of the Brocken and the Ecker-Thal, to the (36 min.) Dreiherrnbrücke across the Ecker; then follow the stream (right bank) to the finger-post indicating the way to the (¾ hr.) forester's cottage of Scharfenstein (rfrmts.), near which is the Scharfensteinklippe (view).

Farther on the path skirts the Pesekenkopf and the Hermannsklippe; after 35 min. the road is crossed, the Pfasterstoss and Kleine Brockenklippen rocks are passed, and the Brockenhaus (see below) soon reached.

FROM ILSENBURG (p. 410), 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ -4 hrs., by the carriage-road, more picturesque than from Harzburg (omn. daily 8 M., back 2, carr. there and back 21 M.). To the Ilsestein 2 M., see p. 410. At a finger-post, 3 M. farther on, the footpath to the Brocken diverges to the right; after 1 hr. another post indicates two paths to the Brocken. That to the left divides again in 2-3 min.; we keep to the right, and after about 20 paces reach a footpath which ascends to the Brockenhaus in 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.

FROM WERNIGERODE (p. 410), through the Steinerne Renne, 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ -5 hrs. (carriage-road viâ the Plessenburg). — To the highest bridge in the valley (see p. 410), 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.; thence ascend by the road which passes above this bridge for $\frac{1}{4}$ hr., and turn to the right in $\frac{1}{4}$ hr. more. Then ascend to the ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) top of the Renneckenberg (view); after 10 min. the Brocken road is reached, and the summit is attained in 1 hr. more. — An easier route (5 $\frac{1}{2}$ hrs.) leads by the 'Glashütten-Weg', through the Jacobsbruch, and past the Ahrensklinterklippen.

FROM ELBINGERODE (p. 404), 3 $\frac{1}{4}$ -4 hrs. (omn. twice daily in 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ hrs., 3 M.). Near Elbingerode, on the road to Rothehütte, a footpath leads (right) through wood, reaching the Brocken road at (1 $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) Schierke (see below).

FROM ROTHEHÜTTE-KÖNIGSHOF (p. 404), 11 M. — An omnibus runs daily in summer in 4 hrs. (fares: up 3, down 2 M.). We follow the road viâ (1 $\frac{1}{4}$ M.) Mandelholz and (3 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Elend (Deutsche Elche) to (6 M.) Schierke (1860 ft.; Burghotel, Hötel Brocken-Scheideck, both comfortable, R. from 2-3, pens. 6-8 M.; Fürstenhöhe, Hoppe, unpretending), a scattered village, much frequented as a summer-resort. The road crosses the bridge and ascends to the left. The neighbouring rocks derive various whimsical names from their grotesque forms. To the right, above, are the Hohnklippen; in front of them the Ahrensklinterklippen; to the left, looking back, we see the Schnarcher ('Snorers') on the opposite Bahrenberg. Occasional steep short-cuts are indicated by finger-posts. A granite finger-post (3 M.) is reached at the union of this road with that from Ilseburg. To the top 3 M. more, but the last bend of the road may be cut off by a footpath (follow the telegraph-posts).

FROM ANDREASBERG (p. 414), 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ -5 hrs. The road leads viâ Oderhaus, Braunlage, Elend, and Schierke (see above); the footpath, more attractive, by the Rehberger Graben to the (3 hrs.) Oderteich (p. 413), and then by Oderbrück (Forester's Inn) to the (2 hrs.) top (path marked by blocks of granite).

The Brocken, or Blocksberg, the Mons Bruetérus of the Romans, 3415 ft. above the sea-level, forming together with its neighbours the Brockengebirge, the nucleus of the Harz, rises to a considerable height above the lofty plateau of the latter, and is the highest mountain in Central Germany. Vegetation becomes very scanty near the summit, and no trees grow within 100 ft. of it. Inn at the top (R. 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ -3, B. 1, D. 3, S. 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ M., higher if no wine be ordered; in the height of the season rooms should be engaged in advance).

The Tower commands an extensive *View in clear weather, the towers of Magdeburg, Erfurt, Gotha, Cassel, Hanover, and Brunswick being visible (unclouded horizon rare). The traveller should reach the summit before sunset, in order to have two opportunities of obtaining a view. — Adjoining the hotel is a Meteorological Station.

Several grotesque blocks of granite to the S. of the tower have received the names of Devil's Pulpit, Witches' Altar, etc. Tradition points out this spot as the meeting-place of the witches on St.

Walpurgis' Night, the eve of May-day. Goethe's use of this tradition in 'Faust' is well known.

The Brocken Spectre, an optical phenomenon rarely witnessed, has doubtless contributed to confirm the superstitions attaching to the mountain. When the summit is unclouded, and the sun is on one side, and mists rise on the other, the shadows of the mountain and the objects on it are cast in gigantic proportions on the wall of fog, increasing or diminishing according to circumstances.

i. Clausthal. Andreasberg.

FROM GOSLAR TO CLAUSTHAL, 19½ M., railway in 1½-2¼ hrs. (fares 2 M., 1 M. 30 pf.); from Clausthal to Andreasberg 19½ M., from Andreasberg to Elbingerode 18 M. (diligence in each case); railway from Andreasberg to (9 M.) Lauterberg.

Goslar, see p. 405. — From Goslar to (3½ M.) Langelshausen, see R. 62. The train then ascends the valley of the Innerste to (10½ M.) Lautenthal (967 ft.); Rathhaus; Schützenhaus; Princess Caroline), a summer-resort, with baths, silver-mines, and smelting-works. — 15½ M. Wildemann (1384 ft.; *Rail. Restaurant; Curhaus, with baths; Rathhaus; Wilder Mann), another summer-resort; 17½ M. Silberhütte, with silver smelting-works.

19½ M. Clausthal (1840 ft.; Goldene Krone; Deutscher Kaiser; Rathhaus), the most important place in the Oberharz, and the seat of the mining authorities, with Zellerfeld (*Deutsches Haus), which is separated from it by the Zellbach, forms a single town with 13,000 inhab., chiefly miners. Country bleak and sterile. Most of the houses are of wood. The Bergakademie, in the market, contains a collection of models and minerals.

The mines in the Upper Harz are most important near Clausthal (visitors not admitted). The annual output of the smelting-works (including foreign ores) is about 100,000lbs. of silver, 8500 tons of lead, and 220 tons of copper. The mines around Clausthal are drained by means of the Georgsstollen, a channel 6 M. long, terminating near Gittelde (p. 392). The Kaiser Wilhelm II. Mine is 2850 ft. deep.

Altenau (*Rammelsberg, pens. 4 M.; Schützenhaus; Rathhaus), 5½ M. to the N.E. of Clausthal, on the road to Osterode (p. 408), is a favourite summer-residence. By the footpath it is somewhat nearer.

To OSTERODE, a railway-station, 8¾ M. from Clausthal, a diligence runs twice daily, passing several picturesque points, e.g. the inn at the foot of the (1¼ M.) Heiligenstock. The old road, which is shorter and more interesting for pedestrians, diverges a little beyond the Ziegelhütte (inn), and passes through the village of (¼ M.) Lerbach (Glückauf, pens. 4 M.), a favourite summer-resort. — Osterode, see p. 392.

FROM CLAUSTHAL TO ANDREASBERG, 19½ M., diligence daily in 3 hrs. The road crosses the bleak lofty plateau of the Oberharz. The (5 M.) Sperberhaier Damm (1870 ft.) supplies the mines of Clausthal with water. A finger-post on the right, about 2¼ M. farther on, indicates the route to the (20 min.) Hammerstein, commanding a fine view of the valley of the Söse. At the (3 M.) Sonneberger Wegehause (2560 ft.) the highroad turns to the S., while that in a straight direction leads to Braunlage (p. 414). Pedestrians may here quit the diligence and follow the latter road to the (1½ M.) Odetelch (2360 ft.), an artificial reservoir, whence a pleasant road leads to Andreasberg in $1\frac{3}{4}$ hr., skirting a conduit called the Rehberger Graben, and passing the Rehberger Grabenhaus (inn), $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. from Andreasberg.

Andreasberg (1825 ft.; Schützenhaus, pens. 5-6 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.; Ourhaus; Busch; Rathhaus), a small town situated in a lofty and bleak region, has recently come into favour as a summer-residence on account of its bracing mountain air. Pop. 3500. It possesses important mines. The Samson silver-mine is the deepest in the Harz Mts. (2870 ft.). Visitors are not admitted to the mines. Specimens of the minerals of the Harz may be purchased at the Neufanger Zechehaus and the Samsoner Gaipel. The railway-station (p. 392) is $1\frac{3}{4}$ M. from the town (omn. 75 pf.).

Diligences ply daily from Andreasberg viâ Braunlage (Brauner Hirsch) to ($14\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Tanne (p. 404) and ($22\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Harsburg (p. 408). — Ascent of the Brocken, see p. 412.

To HERZBERG (p. 392), 9 M. from Andreasberg, a pleasant road leads by ($4\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Sieber (inn) and through the pretty Sieber-Thal. — RAILWAY by Lauterberg to Scharfeld, see p. 392.

64. From Cassel to Frankfort on the Main.

124 M. RAILWAY. Express in $3\frac{1}{2}$ -4 hrs. (fares 18 M., 13 M. 40, 9 M. 40 pf.); ordinary trains in $5\frac{3}{4}$ hrs. (fares 16 M., 12 M., 8 M.). — Express from Berlin to (364 M.) Frankfort in 11 hrs. (fares 48 M. 60 pf., 36 M., 25 M. 20 pf.; comp. RR. 4, 7).

Cassel, see p. 121. At ($2\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Wilhelmshöhe the line crosses the avenue (p. 129).

$8\frac{1}{2}$ M. Guntershausen (Bellevue) is the junction of the Eisenach line (R. 51). The train now skirts the Fulda and then the Eder. $10\frac{1}{2}$ M. Grifte, at the confluence of these streams. Near (17 M.) Gensungen the abrupt Heiligenberg rises to the left, and the lofty tower of the Felsberg (1375 ft.) to the right; farther on, at the confluence of the Schwalm and the Eder, stands the Altenburg. To the right in the background is the ruin of Gudensberg.

22 M. Wabern, with a château of the old landgraves of Hessen, is the station for Wildungen.

FROM WABERN TO WILDUNGEN, $10\frac{1}{2}$ M., railway in 1 hr. (fares 1 M. 40, 1 M. 10, 70 pf.). The railway ascends the valley of the Eder to ($3\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Fritzlar (Engl. Hof), an old town with 3800 inhab., prettily situated on the left bank of the stream, surrounded by mediæval watch-towers, and containing several interesting buildings. The Collegiate Church*, which once belonged to the Benedictine abbey founded by St. Boniface, to whom the town owes its origin, was erected about the year 1170 on the site of an earlier church. It is a Romanesque edifice, with a crypt and two Gothic aisles added on the S. side in the 14th century. The S. tower was rebuilt in 1869. The monuments, choir-stalls, etc., of the 14th cent., and the handsome Gothic cloisters are worthy of inspection. The treasury contains valuable ecclesiastical vessels and vestments. The Church of the Minorites (Prot.) dates from the 14th century. The Hochzeithaus is a picturesque timber structure of ca. 1580. At Geismar, situated above Fritzlar, about $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the N.W., St. Boniface is said to have felled the sacred oak dedicated to the god Wotan in 723. — Beyond (7 M.) Ungeedanken we enter the principality of Waldeck. — 10½ M. Wüdungen Station, ½ M. from the town. Hotel omnibuses await the trains.

Wüdungen (Baderlogierhaus & Europäischer Hof*, R. 12-40 M per week, D. 2½ M; Göcke*, by the Old Curhaus, R. 12-40, pens. from 50 M per week; Kaiserhof*; Helenaquelle*; Post, R. 10-30 M, well spoken of; Zimmermann, R. 8-25 M, well spoken of; Bayerischer Hof, plain, R. 8-25 M; numerous lodging-houses) is a frequented watering-place, also called Nieder-Wüdungen, to distinguish it from Alt-Wüdungen, situated to the N., about 160 ft. higher, with the Schloss Friedrichstein (995 ft.), commanding a survey of the pretty wooded environs. The Gothic Stadtkirche at Nieder-Wüdungen contains the marble monument of Count Josias of Waldeck (died in Crete, 1669), a formidable antagonist of the Turks, and a good winged altar-piece painted by Conrad von Soest in 1402. — The mineral Springs, which contain iron and nitrogen, and are beneficial in cases of bowel-complaints, diseases of the bladder, etc., lie a little to the S.W. (5000 patients annually; 800,000 bottles exported). The most important is the Georg-Victor-Quelle, connected with the town (¾ M.) by the Brunnen-Allee, which is bordered with pleasure-grounds, hotels, and villas (see below). The new and the old Curhaus are also on this avenue. Pleasant walks to the Katsenstein and back in ¾ hr.; to Reinhardshausen, 1 M. to the W. of the Georg-Victor-Quelle; ascent of the Homberg (tower) and back, 2 hrs. — A road diverging to the left from the highroad as we quit the town leads to the (1¼ M.) Helena-Quelle, the second in importance of the springs (Café). Pleasant walk thence to the Thalbrunnen and the Stahlbrunnen, from which we may return to the town by the highroad (2 hrs.), passing the Georg-Victor-Quelle. — About 7½ M. to the N. of Wüdungen (carr. 10-12 M) is the old château of Waldeck (1380 ft.; restaurant), which commands an admirable view of the valley of the Eder. The Auenberg (2055 ft.), 5 M. to the S., is also a fine point of view.

From Wüdungen a diligence runs daily to (20 M.) Frankenberg (p. 416).

38 M. Treysa, the junction for the line to Niederhone (p. 418). On a wooded hill to the left of (55 M.) Kirchhain lies the little town of Amöneburg, the venerable monastery of which was founded by St. Boniface. The train crosses the Lahn. — 62 M. Cölbe (p. 416).

64½ M. Marburg (Pfeiffer*, R., L., & A. from 2, D. 2 M; Ritter, similar charges; Kaiserhof; Hessischer Hof; Rail. Restaurant), a town with 16,300 inhab., on the Lahn, is charmingly situated in a semicircle round the precipitous Schlossberg. The University, now attended by 900 students, was the first founded (by Philip the Generous, in 1527) without papal privileges.

The chief boast of Marburg is the *CHURCH OF ST. ELIZABETH, erected in 1235-83 in the early-Gothic style, and restored in 1860, affording in its pure simplicity and noble proportions an admirable example of the impressiveness of this style. W. towers 310 ft. high. (Sacristan opposite the church; ring; 50 pf.)

Soon after the death of St. Elizabeth (p. 369; d. in 1231, in her 24th year), the church was erected over her tomb, which attracted multitudes of pilgrims from every part of Europe. The Emp. Frederick II., one of these devotees (1236), caused a crown of gold to be placed on the head of the saint, whose remains were deposited in a richly-decorated copper-gilt sarcophagus. The Reformed Landgrave Philip (founder of the university), in order to put an end to the pilgrimages, caused the bones to be removed and interred below the tomb of Conrad of Thuringia, where they were discovered in 1554. The sarcophagus, which was much injured by the French in 1810-14, is now preserved in the sacristy. The mortuary chapel is adorned with a carved representation of the Coronation of the Virgin, and winged pictures; in the interior the Nativity and Death of Mary; ancient carving and pictures at the four side-altars. The High Altar is a noble Gothic work of 1290; the Screen dates from the 14th century. Numerous Monuments of Hessian princes and knights of the Teutonic Order dating from the 13-15th centuries (amongst others the tombstone of Landgrave Conrad von Thüringen, d. 1240) are preserved in the S. transept.

The Lutheran Church, on a terrace commanding a fine view, a finely-proportioned structure of the 15th cent., contains several large monuments of Landgraves and other princes.

The town boasts of a number of interesting old buildings in the Steinweg, in the Wettergasse, in the market-place, in which is situated the Rathhaus (1512), in the Ritter-Str. (Zum Hirsch, a timber building of 1566), and in several others.

The extensive Schloss (875 ft.; open free on Wed., 2-4; at other times 50 pf.; castellan in the main tower), to which a steep road ascends from the church of St. Elizabeth in 20 min., built in the 13th cent., was a residence of the princes of Hessen in the 15th and 16th centuries, and afterwards a state-prison. It was judiciously restored in 1866 and now contains the valuable Hessian archives, and those of Fulda and Hanau. The fine Gothic chapel (1288) and the Rittersaal are worthy of inspection. In this château the famous disputation between Luther, Zwingli, Melancthon, and other reformers took place in 1529. They met, on the invitation of Philip the Generous, with a view to adjust their differences regarding the Eucharist, but the attempt proved abortive owing to Luther's tenacious adherence to the precise words, 'Hoc est corpus meum', which he wrote in large letters on the table. Beautiful views from the Schloss Terraces, and in descending to the town by the other side ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.). On the plateau, a little to the W., is the Stadt-Park.

ENVIRONS. Good paths, provided with finger-posts, lead to a number of other beautiful points of view. The Spiegelslust (1200 ft.), a height above the station (to the E.) is ascended in 40 min.; morning-light most favourable. From the Elisabethbrunnen near the village of Schröck, $3\frac{1}{2}$ M. distant, another good view, towards Schöneburg, may be obtained; the building covering the spring was built in the Renaissance style in 1596. — On the left bank of the Lahn are the (1 hr.) Lichter Kuppel (1200 ft.) and the ($\frac{1}{4}$ hr.) Frauenberg (1240 ft.), with a ruined castle. On the right bank, above the church of St. Elizabeth, rises the oak-clad Kirchspitze (1050 ft.), from which forest-paths lead to the quarries of Wehrda.

FROM MARBURG TO CREUTHAL, $57\frac{1}{2}$ M., railway in $4\frac{1}{2}$ -6 hrs. (fares 5 M 80, 3 M 80 pf.; no 1st cl.). The line traverses the Lahnthal. — $2\frac{1}{2}$ M. Olbe (p. 415). — From (5 M.) Sarnau a branch diverges to (16 M.) Frankenberg, with a Marienkirche dating from 1500, adjoined by the beautiful Gothic Liebfrauen-Kapelle (1386). — Beyond (25 M.) Laasphe, with the château of Wittgenstein, we cross the watershed between the Lahn and the Eder. — 40 M. Erndtebrück; branch to (10 M.) Rausland-Berleburg. At (47 M.) Vormwald begins the most beautiful part of the line, which descends in great curves. — 57 M. Creuthal (p. 419).

The line follows the fertile valley of the Lahn. From (72 M.) Niederwalgern a branch-line runs to Gladenbach and (8 M.) Weidenhausen. We cross the Lahn beyond (75 M.) Fronhausen. Near (76 M.) Friedelhausen, on a wooded hill to the left, is the château of that name; farther on, also to the left, rise the conspicuous ruins of Staufenberg (a fine point of view, $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. from Lollar). From (78 M.) Lollar a line diverges to Wetzlar (11 M., in 1 hr.). Beyond Lollar the ruins of Gleiberg and Vetzberg are seen to the right. Beyond Giessen, 2 M. to the S.E. of the town, rises Schloss Schiffenberg, the property of the grand-duke of Hesse (Inn; extensive view).

83 M. Giessen (Rail. Restaurant, D. 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ -1 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.; Kühne*, near the station, R., L., & A. 1 $\frac{3}{4}$ -3, D. with wine 3 M.; Einhorn*; Rappe; Prinz Karl*; beer and fine view at the Felsenkeller), on the Lahn, with 22,900 inhab., is the seat of a university, founded in 1607 (600 stud.). Behind the Library is a monument to J. von Liebig (1803-79), the celebrated chemist, who was a professor here from 1824 to 1852.

FROM GIESSEN TO FULDA, 66 M., in 2 $\frac{1}{4}$ hrs. (fares 8 M 60, 6 M 40; 4 M 30 pf.). 87 M. Aisfeld (Krone), the principal place on this line, and the oldest town in Oberhessen, possesses two fine Gothic churches and several interesting late-Gothic and Renaissance edifices of the 15-16th centuries. — 54 M. Salzschlurf (Curhaus*; Hôtel Iller*) is a watering-place with mineral springs. — Fulda, see p. 419.

FROM GIESSEN TO GELNHAUSEN, 44 M., railway in 2 hrs. (fares 5 M 60, 4 M 20, 2 M 80 pf.). The most important station is (22 M.) Nidda (Traube), near which is the small bath of Salzhausen, and whence a branch-line diverges to Salotten, at the foot of the Taufstein (2600 ft.), the highest point of the volcanic Vogelsberg. — Gelnhausen, see p. 420.

FROM GIESSEN TO COBLENZ, railway in 3 $\frac{1}{4}$ hrs., see Baedeker's Rhine.

89 M. Langgöns. About 3 M. to the left of (94 M.) Butzbach (Hessischer Hof), a small town in the fertile Wetterau, rise the extensive ruins of the castle of Münzenberg, destroyed in the Thirty Years' War. The higher (155 ft.) of the two towers commands a fine view. A little farther on is the ruined monastery of Arnsburg, on the Wetter.

100 M. Nauheim. — Hotels: Kaisershof*; Bristol*, handsomely fitted up, with changes to correspond; Sprenzel*; Bellevue; Corsaal; Hôtel de l'Europe; Augusta Victoria; Hôtel du Nord; Reichshof; at all these R., L., & A. from 2, B. 1, D. 2-3 M. — Goldener Engel. — Private Apartments numerous.

Restaurants. At the hotels; also, Langsdorf; Thüringer Hof; Burk.

Visitors' Tax 12 M, 2 pers. 18 M.

Cabs. One-horse per drive, 1-2 pers. 60 pf., 3-4 pers. 80 pf.; two-horse, 80 pf. or 1 M; per hour 2 M 60, 3 M 40, 5 M 40 pf., 5 M.

Nauheim (450 ft.), a town with 3000 inhab., in a healthy situation on the N.E. slopes of the Taunus Mts., possesses warm saline springs, impregnated with carbonic acid gas; which attract 14,000 patients annually. Extensive evaporating houses and salt-pans. The water is used both for drinking and for baths. Adjoining the Trinkhalle are several greenhouses connected with the pleasure-grounds. At the foot of the Johannisberg, about $\frac{1}{2}$ M. from the station, is the handsome Conversationshaus, with elegant rooms and a fine terrace overlooking the extensive grounds.

The Teichhaus (restaurant), at the upper end of the park, is much visited. The Johannisberg, a wooded height, 20 min. to the W. of the Cursaal, commands a fine view (two-horse carr., 1-2 pers. 2 M 80, 3-4 pers. 3 M 40 pf.). Excursions may also be made to the Stadtwald, Hof Hasselheck, Schloss Ziegenberg (1 $\frac{1}{2}$ hr.; one-horse carr. 7 M or 8 M 80 pf., two-horse 11 or 12 M), the ruin of Münzenberg (on foot 3 hrs.; carr. and pair in 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ hr., 14 M), Tellerberg near Butzbach (p. 417), the ruin of Arnsburg (p. 417), or Homburg (2 hrs.; two-horse carr. 17 or 18 M.). Walk to Friedberg (see below), $\frac{1}{4}$ hr.

The train skirts the Gradierhäuser (evaporating sheds), and crosses a lofty viaduct to — 103 M. Friedberg (Hôtel Trapp*, good wine; Weith; Restaurant Felsenkeller, with view), a town with 6000 inhab., once a free imperial city, and still retaining traces of its former importance. The Gothic Liebfrauenkirche was built in 1290-1350; the interior contains a screen, tabernacle, and tombstones of the 14th and 15th cent., and also Gothic stained glass. The so-called Judenbad*, in the Judengasse, existed in the 14th century. A flight of 77 steps descends to the basin, 75 ft. below the street; the water has a temperature of 42-48° Fahr. On the N. side rises a fine, well-preserved watch-tower, 165 ft. high, near which is the beautiful Palace Garden. The old Castle, altered in 1611, is now a seminary. — About $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the N.E. of Friedberg is Schwalheim, the mineral water of which is largely exported.

As the train approaches Frankfort, the Taunus Mts. are seen on the right. — 118 M. Bonames, the station for the baths of Homburg.

124 M. Frankfort on the Main, see Baedeker's Rhine.

65. From Göttingen to Bebra and Frankfort on the Main.

153 M. RAILWAY in 5-9 hrs. (fares 19 M. 90 pf., 15 M., 10 M.; express, 22 M. 90, 16 M. 50, 11 M. 80 pf.).

Göttingen, see p. 131. — The train ascends the wide Leine-Thal. 12 M. Eichenberg is the junction of the Nordhausen and Cassel line (p. 391). A picturesque walk may be taken hence to (1 hr.) the ruins of Hanstein (restaurant; View*) and ($\frac{1}{2}$ hr.) the Teufelskanzel; Allendorf (see below) may be reached in $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr. more.

The château of Arnstein is seen on the right. The train passes through two tunnels and enters the valley of the Werra; to the right rises the castle of Ludwigstein, on the left the Hanstein just mentioned. The river is crossed. 21 M. Allendorf; the station lies on the left bank, at Sooden, a village with salt-baths. The Klausberg is a fine point of view. — $25\frac{1}{2}$ M. Albungen (Heiligenstein); the castle of (1 M.) Fürstenstein, beyond the Werra, commands a charming view.

The Meissner* (2465 ft.), a hill well-known in German traditionary lore, may be ascended from Albungen in 2 hrs.

The train again crosses the Werra. $28\frac{1}{2}$ M. Niederhone.

FROM NIEDERHONE TO LEINEFELDE, 30 M., railway in 2 hrs. — The first station is (2 M.) Eschwege (Koch), an industrious town with 10,300 inhab. and important tanneries, on the Werra, said to have been founded by Charlemagne, and mentioned in documents of the 10th century. It afterwards belonged to the Landgraves of Thuringia. The château, built in 1380 and restored in 1581, is occupied by the authorities of the district. The 'Schwarze Thurm' is the sole relic of a Cyriac monastery, established before 1088. The Karlskirche, near the handsome Realschule, commands a fine view of the valley. The grounds on the Leichberg also afford several beautiful prospects. Charming excursions may be taken to the Höhenholz, the Hörnckuppe, the Greifenstein, and the Hülfsenberg (resort of pilgrims). Diligence from Eschwege twice daily via (7 M.) Wanfried, at the foot of the Heldrastein* (1080 ft.; view), to (12 M.) Treffurt, with the ruins of Normannstein. From Treffurt to Eisenach (p. 367), 16 M. (diligence). — 11 M. Langensfeld; 24½ M. Dingelstädt. — 30 M. Leinefelde, see p. 380.

FROM NIEDERHÖRNE TO TREYSA (p. 415), 50 M., railway in 2½-3¼ hrs.

The train now quits the Werra. 31 M. Nieder-Reichensachsen, 2½ M. to the E. of which rises the peculiarly formed Blaue Kuppe. — 33 M. Hoheneiche. About 2½ M. to the S.E. are the ruins of Boyneburg, the chapel of which was endowed by Frederick Barbarossa in 1188. — The train now ascends the valley of the Sonter.

50 M. Bebra (Rail. Restaurant; p. 354), the junction for the Berlin, Leipzic, and Cassel lines.

The Frankfort line ascends the valley of the Fulda to (61½ M.) Hersfeld (Stern; Deutsches Haus), with 7400 inhabitants. The Benedictine abbey of Hersfeld, founded in 769, was formerly of great importance; the secular buildings are now used as barracks. The Abbey Church*, built in the 11th and 12th cent. and destroyed by the French in 1761, is still imposing in its ruins. The Stadtkirche dates from the 15th century. The Wippershainer Höhe, and the Frauenberg, with its ruined church, are two good points of view.

The train now ascends the valley of the Haua. To the left rise the hills of the Rhön. 66 M. Neukirchen, at the foot of the basaltic Stoppelberg, which bears the ruined castle of Hauneck.

84½ M. Fulda. — Hotels. Kurfürst* (Pl. a; B, 4), in the Schloss-Platz, R., L., & A. 2-2½ M., D. 2 M. 20 pf.; Wolff* (Pl. c; D, 3), R. & R. 2½ M., D., incl. wine, 2 M. 20 pf., at the station; Pult, Markt-Str. (Pl. C, 5).

Fulda (930 ft.), an ancient town on the Fulda, with 14,500 inhab., situated in a pleasant, undulating district, derives its origin from a once celebrated abbey founded by St. Boniface in 744. Its numerous towers and public buildings still testify to its ancient dignity as the residence of a prelate of princely rank.

The Cathedral (Pl. A, B, 3), with a dome 108 ft. in height and two towers, was erected in the 18th cent. in the Roman baroque style.

On a pillar by the E. entrance there is a very ancient figure of Charlemagne, dating from a much earlier structure (8-9th cent.), of which the only remnant is the now restored crypt, or Chapel of St. Boniface, beneath the choir. Here, beneath the altar, repose the remains of St. Boniface (Winfried), a zealous English promulgator of Christianity, who was slain by the heathen Frisians near Dokkum in Westfriesland in 755.

To the W. of the cathedral are the extensive buildings of the old Benedictine Convent, now a Clerical Seminary (Pl. A, 3). To the N. is the Provincial Library (Pl. 5), with interesting MSS., a copy of Gutenberg's (1450-55) 42-lined Bible, and a natural history collection (open on Mon., Wed., & Sat., 2-4).

The small Church of St. Michael (Pl. A, 3; restored 1858), adjoining the cathedral, was consecrated in 822, to which period belong the crypt and the octagon above it. The Romanesque nave and the rest of the edifice date from the end of the 11th century.

The late-Gothic Nonnenkirche (Pl. C, 4) was restored in 1870. — In the Markt (Pl. B, C, 4) are the Pfarrkirche (a Jesuit building of 1770-75, with two towers, one of them of the 15th cent.), the Bathhaus, the Post Office, and an old Fountain. — The little Church of St. Severinus (Pl. 9) dates from the 15th century.

In front of the Schloss (Pl. B, C, 3, 4) is a Statue of St. Boniface (Pl. 1; comp. p. 419), in bronze, erected in 1842. Near the Paulusthor (Pl. B, 2; built in 1771) is the small Town Park, with a War Monument for 1870-71. Opposite rises the handsome Normal Seminary.

Fine views are obtained from the Frauenberg (1080 ft.), and from the Petersberg (1310 ft.), $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the E., long the residence of the scholar Hrabanus Maurus (d. 856).

FROM FULDA TO GERSFELD, 17 M., railway in $1\frac{1}{4}$ hr. (fares 1 M 70, 1 M 10 pf.), through the valley of the Fulda. — Gersfeld (1580 ft.; Adler, R. & B. $1\frac{1}{4}$, D. $1\frac{1}{4}$ M; Krone, both well spoken of), with a château and beautiful park belonging to Count Froberg, is the best starting-point for excursions in the Rhöngebirge, a group of hills, 22 M. long and 9 M. broad, between the Upper Fulda, the Upper Werra, and the Franconian Saale. The most attractive are (to the N.) to the Wachtküppel (2815 ft.), and thence by the Eube (2725 ft.) and the Pferdskopf (2815 ft.) to the Grosse Wasserkuppe (3115 ft.; View*), the highest summit of the group. At the foot of the Wasserkuppe lies the village of Abtsroda (2280 ft.; Inn, plain), whence we may return to Gersfeld by the road viâ Siebslo, Tränkhof, and Poppenhausen. — A diligence plies once daily from Gersfeld to ($6\frac{1}{2}$ M.) Bischofsheim (Rhönhut; Löwe), whence the ascent of the Kreuzberg (3060 ft.) may be made in $1\frac{1}{2}$ -2 hrs. Railway from Bischofsheim to Neustadt-an-der-Saale, see p. 372. To the S. of Gersfeld rises the (3 M.) Grosse Natten (2680 ft.). Hence we may visit the picturesque Otterstein and the Dammersfeld (3045 ft.) by way of the Ziegelhütte and the Rommerser Grund, returning either to the E. by Reussendorf and Wildflecken to the Kreuzberg (see above), or to the W. by (3 M.) Dalherda (inn) to (4 M.) Schmalzau (inn), on the road from Fulda to Gersfeld.

FROM FULDA TO TANN, $25\frac{1}{2}$ M., railway in the valley of the Bieber, affording another access to the Rhön district. From the station of (14 M.) Milseburg we may visit the Milseburg (2730 ft.) and the curious rock formations of the Teufelsstein (2380 ft.) and the Steinwand (2120 ft.). — 20 M. Hilders (1510 ft.; Engel*; Sonne), an ancient village on the Ulster, at the base of the wooded Auersberg (2480 ft.). About 11 M. to the E. of Hilders (diligence daily) lies Fladungen (2815 ft.; Kümmerth's Inn), a small Bavarian town on the Streu, on the road from Kalten-Nordheim (p. 370) to Mellrichstadt (p. 372). From Hilders to Kalten-Nordheim and Salzungen, see p. 370. — $25\frac{1}{2}$ M. Tann (Münzel), with 1100 inhab. and three châteaux, lies 8 M. to the W. of Kalten-Nordheim (p. 370).

THE ROAD FROM HILDERS TO BISCHOFSHHEIM, 18 M., leads through the centre of the Hohe Rhön, viâ (5 M.) Wüstensachsen (Leist).

A branch-railway runs from Fulda to Giessen (p. 417).

93 M. Neuhof, with handsome public buildings. — 102 M. Elm. From Elm to Gemünden, see Basdeker's S. Germany.

The train descends to the valley of the Kinsig. 111 M. Steinau, a small town with several mediæval buildings and a Schloss of the 16th century. On the right, farther on, rises the well-preserved ruin of Stolzenburg, situated on a wooded height above the small town of Soden, $1\frac{1}{2}$ M. to the N. of (115 M.) Saalmünster.

126 M. Gelnhausen (Hessischer Hof*, R., L., & A. from $1\frac{1}{2}$ M; Deutsches Haus), once a town of the empire, with 4500 inhab., situated on a red soil, which contrasts picturesquely with the green vineyards. On an island in the Kinzig, in the lower part of the town, $\frac{1}{2}$ M. from the station, are the ruins of an Imperial Palace erected before the year 1170 by Frederick I. (Barbarossa), parts of which are still in tolerable preservation. The head of Frederick I. and the lion of the Hohenstaufen family, sculptured in stone, are still recognisable. The chapel and imperial hall are interesting. The arches of the windows rest on clustered columns with beautiful capitals. An interesting old building, dating from Barbarossa's time, discovered in 1881 and restored, probably a Rathhaus or Guild-hall, is now private property.

The handsome and richly-decorated Pfarrkirche*, erected in the Transition style in 1230-60; was skillfully restored in 1876-79. It contains an interesting early-Gothic screen, late-Gothic choir-stalls, stained-glass windows of the 13th cent, and a handsome modern pulpit, organ-loft, and stained glass. — A monument to Philip Reis (d. 1874), inventor of the first form of the telephone (1860), was erected in 1885 at Gelnhausen, of which he was a native.

From Gelnhausen to Gießen, see p. 417.

Beyond Gelnhausen the country is flat. The line intersects the Lamboywald, where in Oct., 1813, Napoleon with 80,000 men on his retreat from Leipsic defeated 40,000 Bavarians under Wrede, who had endeavoured to intercept the fugitives. Gross-Steinheim is visible on the opposite bank of the Main.

139 M. Hanau (Adler*, R., L., & A. from 2 M.; Riese, R., L., & A. $1\frac{1}{2}$ -2 $\frac{1}{2}$ M.; Post), a pleasant town with 27,600 inhab., near the confluence of the Kinzig and Main, lies in the most fertile district of the Wetterau. The more modern part of the town was founded in 1597 by Protestant exiles from the Netherlands to whom an asylum at Frankfort was denied. Their industries, the cultivation of tobacco and the manufacture of gold and silver wares, still flourish here. Hanau was the birthplace of the celebrated philologists Jacob (1785-1863) and Wilhelm (1786-1859) Grimm, to whom a monument, by Eberle, was erected in Oct., 1896. — On the Main, near the town, are situated the Wilhelmsbad, with a fine park, and the palace of Philippsruhe, with extensive orangeries, the property of the Landgrave of Hessen, erected last century.

The train crosses the Main. 141 M. Klein-Steinheim.

147 M. Offenbach (Stadt Cassel), with 40,200 inhab., a pleasant and busy town, owes its prosperity to French refugees in the 17-18th centuries. The handsome château of Count Isenburg, built in 1572, has a noteworthy façade. (See Baedeker's Southern Germany.)

At (150 M.) Sachsenhausen the train again crosses the Main, and soon enters the W. station at — 153 M. Frankfort (see Baedeker's Rhine).

List of the Principal Streets, Public Buildings, etc., in the Plan of Berlin.

The large Plan of Berlin, on the scale of 1:14,000, is divided into three sections, of which the uppermost is coloured brown, the central red, and the lowest gray. In the accompanying index the letters b, r, g refer to these sections, while the capital letters and numbers indicate the square of the section in which the place in question is to be found. Thus the Alexander-Platz will be found in the red section, column M, first square from the top.

The squares will also be useful for calculating distances, each side of a square being exactly half a kilomètre or about $\frac{3}{10}$ of a mile, while the diagonals if drawn would be 760 yds.

The letters immediately following the names of the streets refer to the Postal Districts (C, central; W, West; O, Ost, East, etc.).
